The first period was six minutes old when Etcher took Attersley's pass in front of the German net and scored. Rope added another within 12 seconds. Then Douglas, Rope and Etcher followed to give Canada a 5-0 lead.

A misplay into a drive by Rope period Attersley rapped in Etcher's pass while Germany's Len Wallt was serving a penalty.

ONE IN SECOND PERIOD

In the second period Douglas clinched his scoring marker—his only goal of the period—at 6:15.

Rope opened the third-period barrage at 4:40 with his second goal to make it 8-0 and Attersley, Samuelson, Douglas and Forhan wrapped it up.

The game was cleanly played with only three penalties called. Wallt got both German infractions and the other went to big Moe Benoit, the Valleyfield, Que., defenceman who played for the world champion Belleville McFarlands in 1959.

RUSSIAN CZECH GAME

In the Russian-Czech contest last night, Loktev, 24, a four-year man on the Soviet national squad, tallied three goals and assisted on another; Aleksandrov had two goals and an assist and Almetov three assists. The Russians led 3-2 and 5-3 by periods.

Vitezslav Jirik and Jiri Dudacek got two goals for the Russians, and Stanislav Petukhov notched the other.

Centre Vaclav Pantuck slammed in three for Czechoslovakia and Vaclav Pantuck and Josef Cerny added singles.

Soviet goalie Nikolai Puchkov came up with 32 saves. The Czechs used two goalies-Vladimir Madeski and Vladimir Dvoracek —who together stopped 35 shots.

The Soviet netminder wore a red jersey while his teammates had white shirts. Almost all the Czechs protested and McLean ordered Puchkov to switch to white —which he did.

SWEDEN VS. U.S.

Against the Swedes, the U.S. took a 4-0 lead in the first period, but were outplayed in the last two periods.

Christian scored the first American goal on a pass from brother Billy. Roger hit again in the middle period and his final goal in the third period sealed the victory. Bob McVey, Bob Cleary and Bill Cleary also scored for the other three first-period goals.

The game was hard-fought but only two penalties were called—the last the 30-minute mark in the final 30 minutes.

The international ice hockey federation had instructed the referees to call the games closer than usual because of international tactics in a preliminary round game which Canada won 5-0.

Ed Reigle, Canadian coach of the Americans, said it was a "hard, orderly" game, "just as hockey should be played."

Americans coach Jack Riley was jubilant. "Now all we have to do is beat Germany and the Czechs for second place — but we're shooting for the top," he said.

Another Storm Blows in "Squall" Valley

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP) —A major controversy of the Winter Olympics exploded Monday a few hours before Carol Heiss of the U.S. took the ice in an effort to win the first United States gold medal.

Despite the alleged downgrading, Carol wound up in the compulsory figures with 9.0 ordinals and 837.8 points compared to 20.0 ordinals and 792.00 points for Miss Dijkstra.

The compulsory figures count 60 per cent in the final scoring, free skating counts 40 per cent.

On Monday's final figure, an intricate one known as the backward three change loop, seven judges from Austria, Czechoslovakia, England, Italy and Japan gave the edge to the Dutch girl. Judges from Germany, the United States and the Netherlands favored Carol. The Canadian judge rated the two even.

One of the experts here for the Games, who declined use of his name, said, "It was rank prejudice or rank ignorance. Carol's figures were far better placed, placed, her edges truer, and general formation of figure was closer to the ideal of the circles which that figure is supposed to be."

Juniors Put Second Spot in Wraps With 11-2 Decision Over Trenton

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Lambert-Rollins chalked up another double-figure victory here last night to run their unbeaten string to eleven games. this one an 11-2 decision over the last-place Trenton Lafferty Cubs.

The victory officially clinched second place in the OHA Eastern Junior "B" league for the locals, and following the pattern of most of their recent games, the winners exploded in the third period to wrap it up.

Belleville took a 3-1 lead in the opening stanza and scored a lonely two goals of the middle heat. They whipped six by Gerry Genereaux in the final twenty minutes with Trenton collecting a singleton.

Last night's triumph was a real team effort with no less than 12 of the 15 attackers sharing in the distribution of 27 scoring points. Moe Hunter, with two goals and two assists and Denny Hull, improving with every game, with two and one, were the only double scorers. Gary Goyer increased his individual scoring leadership with a goal and three assists while Pat Assistine picked up one and two.

Gary Rowbotham, Bucky Elsner, Reg Rowbotham had a goal and assist apiece, Jackie Elliott and Ralph Plane a goal, Don Forsythe and Gary Reid two assists and Ted Kennedy one.

Ron Rutherford was in top form in a losing cause with a goal and three assists while Trenton goalminder and Larry Westfall assisted on both. Trenton also picked up a couple of injuries, Roger Smith being knocked out of action with a nasty broken collar bone in the game's early stages and Ron Hall also suffering a mouth injury from a high stick in the second period.

Belleville had a five-minute-plus minor for high sticking midway in the first as was a quite contest Trenton drew nine minor penalties while Belleville picked up three to go with the major.

Elliott, who scored all of his club's goals in a 5-3 tie with Peterborough Friday night, opened the scoring again last night at 2.10 of the first. Ron Hall made it 2-0 on a pretty passing play but Rutherford cut the margin in half at 10.28. Goyer's goal on Hunter's perfect pass made it 3-1 five minutes later.

Trenton's only goal in a passout play with R. Hull and Goyer while Denny Hull added another while Plater was off for the only two second-frame markers.

Rowbotham whacked home his own rebound, Plane blocked home by the short side, Ethier got his while the team was shorthanded and D. Hull completed a three-ply passing play with Goyer and Hunter before Ward scored for Trenton in the third. Assistine scored with Hess off and Hunter closed the scoring at 19.15 for the 11-2 final score.

Bobby Locke Seriously Hurt In Car Crash

CAPETOWN, South Africa (AP)—Bobby Locke's life was saved but his "touch" putting is missing after a train-car collision Friday.

Locke, still in serious condition in, hospital here and forbidden visitors, hasn't been told of the crash.

"The putter is more than a mascot to Bobby. He has a fatalistic belief in its prowess," Locke's nephew, A. L. Pratt, said today.

The putter is one of two clubs Locke couldn't be found in the wreckage of Locke's car after a grade crossing collision with a train. The other one missing is a No. 4 iron.

Locke received the putter as a gift from his father when he was a youth. Rusty-bladed and with a hickory shaft and leather grip shiny with use, it has helped him win the British Open four times and win countless other tournaments.

Locke reported Monday night to be "still disorientated" with a fractured skull and temporary paralysis of the muscles in the left eye.

Davey Moore Stops Italian

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — World featherweight champion Davey Moore of Springfield, Ohio, stopped Italy's Sergio Caprari in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round non-title bout Monday night.

Moore weighed 129 pounds, Caprari 128.

The referee stopped the bout after Moore had floored the Italian for the third time.

Hockey Hints

by Lloyd Percival

"YOUR STICK DOES IT!"

Few young players guard an opponent well in front of their own net. As a result, many goals are scored which should have been prevented. Causes of this defensive failure are: excitement; following the puck and forgetting the man; lack of aggressiveness.

The chief fault is the inability to watch the puck in the corner of wherever it is being played and the man to be guarded in front of the net at the same time.

The secret is to watch the puck from a point of your man by keeping your stick on him. Do not put your stick between his legs or across his chest but merely keep it in contact with him, about shoulder to knee legs. By doing this you can feel where he is and if he makes a move, and keep your eyes on the puck too.

Teens Go Hull-Out for Bobby

"Pure Jet, Man! Pure Jet!"

Picked up by the Hawks three seasons ago from St. Catharines, Ont., team in the Ontario Association's Junior A ranks at 18, Hull has quickly become the club's most forceful threat for the National League scoring title in its 43-year history.

Hull whipped in four goals in a 7-5 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs Sunday night, moving them into a third-place tie with Boston at 24 points.

As usual, the curly-headed bomber was caught after the game in a swarm of worship-ping teen-age gals seeking autographs — or just trying to touch him.

"Never saw anything like it," says Chet Hawks front office man, Johnny Gottselig. "I'll bet Bobby has a dozen fan clubs. They hang banners from the Chicago Stadium stands every night and shout such things as: 'Go! Go! Bobby! You're rocket. Pure jet, man! Pure jet!'"

Hull's four goals and one assist Sunday moved him into second place in the scoring race with 60 points, four behind Bronco Horvath of Boston.

Russia Piles Up Big Margin In Winter Olympics

Leads Field With 86 Points, Germany Takes Over Second With Canada Tied for Fifth

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP) —Canada's Olympic team, cheered by Monday night's 12-0 hockey victory over Germany, looked to its two top skiers in the alpine and cross-country specialties for a medal to put Canada back in the eighth Winter Games' winning column.

Anne Heggtveit of Ottawa, named Canadian woman athlete of 1959 for her showing in last winter's European alpine events, is to make her second start of the 1960 Olympics in the women's giant slalom. And in the men's special 15-kilometre cross-country race, Clarence Servold of Cremrose, Alta., will be out to match his spectacular second place showing over the same distance Monday — when it didn't count as an individual performance.

Miss Heggtveit, 5ft1 below expectations Thursday in the women's downhill, and said later that she took a gamble and went at the corners too fast.

"As a result I skidded out and lost very valuable time," she commented.

But Pepi Salvenmoser, her coach, said: "She needs another 10 pounds or so, so that she can hold on the flat portions of the course."

TOUGH TASK

Like Miss Heggtveit, who weighs 115 pounds, Servold is up against the top European skiers who have won most of the honors at these Games. The competition is likely to be much tougher than in the 15-kilometre cross-country Monday. Most of the cross - country specialists didn't enter that because it was tied up with a 30-kilometre jump event as the nordic competition.

Sixten Jernberg, Sweden's king of skiing who won the 30-kilometre, cross-country last Friday, will be out for his second gold medal and a powerful field of Scandinavian and Russian skiers will try to keep him from belting the first 1960 double tilliit.

Servold placed second Monday in the cross-country race to Russia's Nikolai Guszkov, who is more of an all-around skier than a cross-country specialist.

Servold, whose brother Irvin also is entered in today's race, made Canada's best showing over the men's skiing with his effort Monday, but because he placed second last in the earlier jumping competition his place in the nordic standing fell to 29th place, Irvin, 13th Monday and a bit better in the jumping than Clarence, was 25th.

OTHER HOPES

Competing with Miss Heggtveit in the giant slalom are Canadians Nancy Holland of Montreal and Elizabeth Greene and Pat Nora of Rossland, B.C. Miss Holland, 17th in the downhill, is regarded as Canada's No. 2 prospect.

Barring an amazing upset, the United States, shut out in the first 11 of the 27 championships will win its first gold medal—in the women's figure-skating. Carol Heiss, 20, four-time world champion, had an almost insurmountable lead after the end of the free compulsory school figures Monday.

The women's figure skating goes into the free-skating competition today. The American, regarded as the week's best attraction in this part of the test, has a huge lead over Sjokja Dykstra, 15, of the Netherlands going into the event.

Canada's chances of picking up points in the women's singles figure-skating are slim. At the end of the school figures, Sandra Tewkesbury, 17, of Chatham, was left with an aggregate of 781.4 points. The other Canadian in the competition, Wendy Griner, 15, of Toronto, was 13th with 682.6.

RUSSIA PULLS AWAY

In the fourth day of competition Monday, the gold medals went to France, Russia and Germany, and Russia rolled up its advantage in the unofficial team point scoring based on the traditional 10-5-4-3-2-1 for the first six placings.

The Russians had 86½ points, Germany 48, Sweden 26, the U.S. 16, Canada and Austria 13 each, Finland and Poland 12 each, Italy 8, Norway 6, Japan 3½.

Klara Guseva gave Russia its third gold medal Monday, winning the women's 1,000 - metre speed-skating in 1:34.1.

Mrs. Doreen Ryan of Edmonton put on a good performance—1:39.1 which broke her Canadian record of 1:47—but it wasn't good enough as the Europeans once again dominated and the Canadian finished 13th.

Teammate Peggy Robb of Saskatoon could do no better than 19th of the 20 who finished the race. Her time was 1:47, also breaking the Canadian mark.

TEAM AGAIN TODAY

Both girls try again today in the 3,000 metres.

Jean Vuarnet, 27, handsome Frenchman who was told to "go for broke" in his last big-time fling, captured the downhill in 2:06.6 for the dangerous, two-mile journey down ice - topped Squaw Peak.

Georg Thoma, 22, stocky mail carrier from Germany's Black Forest, upset the Scandinavian and Russian favorites in winning the nordic combined jumping and cross-country skiing with 427.8 points.

It was clear, crisp and sunny for the athletes and the 18,500 spectators and ideal weather was forecast for the next few days.

Six District Bowlers Enter Tourney Finals

Six district bowlers have qualified for the provincial finals of the Ontario Proprietors' Association of Ontario tournament.

The tournament is designed to select a team to represent the East in an April-May marathon bowling championship which will decide for Calgary over the Easter weekend.

Four male keglers won their way to the closing circle at Belleville Recreation over the weekend as did two of the distaff side.

Trenton's Lloyd Blight topped the men with a ten-game pinfall of 2247. Next came Charlie Gray, Deseronto, with 2238, Art Aikin, Belleville, 2236 and Jack Canning, Belleville, 2216.

Leading the ladies two-gal team was Doris McLean of this city with a pinfall total of 1578 while next came Muriel Bowerman, Deseronto with 1552.

The men's final is slated for Toronto while, it is expected, the ladies will decide their representatives at Hamilton. No dates have been set.

RETIRES FOR SEASON

MONTREAL (CP)—Fern Perreault, 32, left winger with Montreal Royals of the Eastern Professional Hockey League, Monday announced his retirement for the rest of the season. He suffered a shoulder separation against Sudbury Wolves Nov. 20 which necessitated surgery and benched him for two months. The operation was a success but he wants to give the shoulder more time to heal.

BCI Basketballers Win Odd Game In Postponed Triple With Picton

By PETER CARVER

Belleville Collegiate Institute Raiders took a pair of wins from Prince Edward Collegiate in a postponed COSSA triple header here last night.

The city school seniors and juniors turned in victories by respective 62-47 and 56-41 scores while the bantams dropped a 33-12 decision to the visitors.

SENIOR GAME

The first quarter was evenly fought as both teams looked sharp around the basket. The quarter time score was a 14-14 deadlock. The second quarter was the same brand of ball as the checking was fast and close BCI outscored Picton 14-12.

BCI started to pull away from their visitors as their sharp passing and shooting gave them a 36-26 lead at three-quarter time. Both teams opened the last quarter fast but then tapered off towards the middle, however Belleville began to rack up the points in the closing minutes of the game.

Brian McKenzie again turned in a top performance for BCI hitting for 27 points, while Jim Hawker had 16 for their cause.

Hawker was the top man for Picton hitting for 19 points. Nicholson and McNaughton collected 8 apiece.

PECI — Hawkes (10), Nicholas (8) Lee (6) Taylor (8), Prouse (5), Johnson, McNaughton (8), Mathew.

JUNIOR GAME

Belleville started off very quickly in the first part of the first quarter but settled down in the latter part for an 18-12 lead at quarter time. The checking was close in the second quarter but B.C.I.'s sharp play around the basket saw them outscore P.E.C.I. 17-13.

Again the third was B.C.I's as their good shooting helped to build up a 49-38 lead at third quarter time. Picton began to move in the last quarter but scoring their hosts 15-7.

Peter Annis topped the winners with 14 points while Jim Dahl hit for 7.

Bob Hajdewasky hit for 12 points, while Jim Clapp had ten for the losers cause.

B.C.I.V.S. ..... Annis (14), Bristow (2), Burr (6), Campbell (2), Dahl (7), Muir (4), Regensburg (5), Roberts (2), Scott (4), Soule (4), Weston

P.E.C.I. — Bulgajewski (12), Clapp (10), Norval (2), Brummell, Robinson (6), Parliament, Prout (6), Proctor (5).

BANTAM GAME

The first quarter was Picton's as their size helped them to outclass their smaller opponents in the rebounding department. This and their good shooting gave them an 8-2 lead. Again in the 2nd quarter Picton was all over Belleville as their good passing routine gave them a 20-3 lead at half time.

Both teams battled on even terms in the third stanza, BCI scoring 4 points and Picton 6. Picton racked up 7 points to BCI's 5 in the last quarter.

Jim Clapp played well for the winners collecting 15 points, while Bob Burr and Norval had 6 apiece.

Brian Skinner topped the BCI scorers with 7 points. Bakker and Thompson each had a field goal to their credit.

LINEUPS

PECI — Clapp 15, Norval 6, Sutherland, Coulter, Gray 2, Bailey 2, Ketcheson, Tubbs, Le Heup 6, Finegan.

Officials: Steve Wilson and Bill Green.

Olympic Games Bust or Bonanza, Nobody Knows

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP) —Will the 1960 Winter Olympics end up as a financial bust or bonanza?

Right now the answer appears to be neither.

At the start, the Games appeared headed for financial disaster. Opening - day attendance, at a snowstorm, was 15,000. The second was only 10,000.

But on Saturday there was a surprising turnout of 32,000. And on Sunday it was 47,000. Admission charge is $7.50 a head.

"Originally, we thought our probable potential was $2,500,000, figuring a maximum of 35,000 people a day for 11 days. But we are actually hopeful of taking in maybe $2,500,000," said the assistant public relations director, Bob Rubin.

"After the last two days it would guess we have a chance of hitting $2,000,000."

Rubin refused to include money from concessions, such as car parking at $2 each, in addition the Olympics have large grants from California and Nevada legislatures and private individuals.

Ski Pants Protested, Sew Its Seams

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—Scott David Gorsuch, United States Olympic skier from Climax, Colo., was the most embarrassed young participant in the men's downhill event Monday on Squaw Peak.

He split the seams of his ski pants while executing a sweeping turn after completing his run.

"I didn't know whether to stay right where I was, or ski into the crowd," said Gorsuch, 22, "but everybody was so busy watching the hill and the speed skiers I didn't make any difference."

They'll Do It Every Time

Canadian Press Staff Writer

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP) — The Australians figure to "run a drum" or at least "get into a posse" in the winter Olympic Games hockey tournament.

"And if anybody wants to get tough, they'll find we've got heart and guts, the know-how about butt-ends and kneeing and a few more cute tricks."

The speaker is Russ Carson, a transplanted Canadian from Kenora, Ont., who has lived in Australia the last 20 years and is managing the first Aussie team ever to enter the Olympic hockey competition.

"To run a drum," he explained in an interview, is to be a medal winner. And to "get into a posse" means finishing in the first six. Carson, besides being well-versed in the Australian vernacular, is an inexorable optimist.

FAMILIAR WORLDS

He sounds like Canadian coaches who suggest their charges can give the Aussies a real "battle" in swimming and track and field competition. The Canadians, as everyone knows, aren't in the same league as the world - beating Australians in these sports.

But here, where the sun-baked Australians are out of their element, Canadians can get even. This was demonstrated last Monday when Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, Canada's hockey representatives, engaged the Aussies in a light scrimmage and simply walloped them with them. Observers eventually gave up keeping score.

It didn't faze the Australians, however. It now is summer in Australia and this was one fine game since last October against a team outside of our country," explained the slightly red-faced Carson. "If we do well in these Olympics we'll get to the chance games in Austria and that's a pretty good deal to dangle in front of a bunch of guys."

The Aussies will be fortunate to win a game in the nine-country tournament but Carson is "absolutely sure" of one thing—his players are the only "purely amateur" athletes in the 11-day games. "These guys even pay to play," he said.

PAID OWN WAY

"You may think this peculiar but the chaps on our team even buy season tickets at home just to get to practice and to play. They buy their own skates, $5 for a hockey stick made in England, $70 or $75 for pads and every changed chap on the team has taken annual leave—vacations to you Canadians—to come here.

"All but three of them have families to support and this year alone each one will pay out nearly $300 just for the privilege of playing the game and travelling to California for the Olympics."

Carson said it cost nearly $25,000 to send the hockey team to the games. "We worked 17 months on a fund-raising campaign and the people back home were really wonderful. Don't forget, the Australians have a great pride. They are interested primarily in developing world champions and yet they kicked through with money to send a hockey team nearly 8,000 miles to a tournament they know they didn't have a chance of winning or probably even coming close."

The Australians are working to develop hockey and Carson said a 14-week, 56-game schedule for juniors and seniors is played in Melbourne.

As a result we now have more than 500 hockey players in Victoria and New South Wales. We're pushing for first games in temperatures of 105."

The Australians include two Czechoslovakians who became naturalized Australians. The remainder were born in Australia.

Canada, U.S.A. Meet in Cup Round

MELBOURNE (AP) — The United States and Canada will meet in the first round of the 1960 Davis Cup American Zone tennis competition. The draw was made Monday by the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia.

New Zealand and the British West Indies play in the other first-round match. Mexico and Venezuela drew byes. Mexico will meet the U.S.-Canada winner and Venezuela the New Zealand-B.W.I. winner.

Close Fight In Test Match

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters) — The stage is set for a tight finish to the third cricket test match between the West Indies and England.

The West Indies face the final day of play today 204 runs behind and with one English wicket left to get. A wearing pitch will mean the hosts will have to fight hard to close the gap in their second innings.

At bat Monday for the second time in the scheduled five-day match, the English openers steadily piled on runs early in the day. But after lunch the visitors slumped in the face of tough West Indian bowling.

England wound up the day with 290 second-innings runs for the loss of nine wickets. The visitors made 377 runs their first time at bat and the West Indies replied with 383 runs.

English opening batsmen Colin Cowdrey and Geoff Pullar, who launched the innings Saturday with 65 runs, built their first-wicket stand to 177—the best total match opening for England in 10 years.

Says Al Dark May Manage The Phillies

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Manager Eddie Sawyer of Philadelphia Phillies says he is not discounting the possibility veteran infielder Alvin Dark eventually may wind up as manager of the club.

Dark was obtained this winter from Chicago Cubs in a trade for Richie Ashburn.

Asked to comment about the Dark reports circulating among observers here, Sawyer said:

"I don't say Dark might not eventually wind up as manager of the Phillies. But he wasn't brought here for that purpose. We want him to play third base. And I'm sure Alvin wants to play third base. He's still got time before he thinks about becoming a manager."

Three Lead Junior Race

TORONTO (CP) — Rod Gilbert, Jean Ratelle and Chico Maki lead the scoring race in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series swings into the last week of its schedule.

Gilbert, of Guelph Biltmores, has a three-point scoring edge with 85 points—37 goals and 48 assists —and has played one game less than the wrap up the title. Last season the league's eight-game set was ninth.

Ratelle, Gilbert's linemate, is tied for second with 83 points, statistics released Monday show. He has 37 goals and 46 assists and is tied with Maki, who has 36 goals and 47 assists for St. Catharines Teepees. Maki, top goal - scorer last year with 42 has only three games remaining to catch Gilbert.

Fourth place is held by Wayne Connelly of Guelph Biltmores with 77 points. six more than St. Catharines' Ray Cullen. Both have 41 goals, tops in the league.

St. Michael's College Majors, remainder. Jerry Cheevers gained his fifth shutout Sunday and brought his league-leading average down to 2.97 goals per game. Second place is held by Bob Bagnall of Toronto Marlies. Wayne Rutledge of Barrie Flyers, is third at 3.58 average. He has had three shutouts.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winnipeg Warriors handed a stinging blow to the playoff hopes of Calgary Stampeders when they turned back the Stamps 5-4 in overtime in the only Western Hockey League action Monday night.

It was the second straight 2-1 overtime loss for Stampeders and left them 13 points behind fourth-place Victoria with only seven to go. Warriors are three points behind Calgary.

Making a fine return to Warrior netu was Ray Mikulan, a Winnipeg native, replacing Al Rollins, called up by New York Rangers of the National League.

In an exhibition game at Saskatoon, the WHL Victoria Cougars defeated Saskatoon Quakers of the Saskatchewan Senior Hockey League 5-0.

BLAMES SOVIETS

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Teng Chuan-kai, head of Nationalist China's Olympic Committee, returned from the United States Monday, blaming Russian pressure for the exclusion of his country from the Winter Olympics. Teng said all necessary documents for his country's participation in the Games at Squaw Valley, California had been sent to the International Ski Federation.

Hank Aaron Back in Braves' Fold

MILWAUKEE (CP) — General manager John McHale of Milwaukee Braves breathed easily today as slugger Henry Aaron came into the fold for 1960.

"He's very happy and so are we," McHale said after a telephone conversation with Aaron.

With the signing of the National League batting champion Monday, the contract situation brightened considerably for McHale.

Indications are that Aaron, who had a worthy .355 batting average last season, is the highest-paid member of the team. He received an estimated $35,000 last year and was pushing for a raise, which he apparently got without much trouble.

McHale still has 12 to sign, including Lew Burdette, Warren Spahn, Johnny Logan, Joey Jay, Bob Rush, Wes Covington, Juan Pizarro, Joe Adcock, Bob Avila, Felix Mantilla and Chuck Lau.

McHale insists the Braves should have won the pennant last year. He says this has to be a determining factor in what salaries will be.

Tessier Has Big Lead

OTTAWA (CP) — There appears to be little hope of catching Orval Tessier in the Eastern Professional Hockey League scoring race.

With just 13 games to go for most teams in the regular schedule, the 29 - year - old Kingston Frontenacs forward has 49 goals and 56 assists for 105 points—almost two points a game.

Tom McCarthy of league-leading Sudbury Wolves is next entrenched in second place with 92 points. Sudbury's Sam Bettio picked up two points last week to take over third spot with 86 points, one ahead of Kingston's Cal Gardner.

Montreal Royals goalkeepers have the best average at an even three goals a game. Sudbury still leads in the penalty department with 773 minutes.

How About Flowers for Dead Balls?

Chicago White Sox are adding a picnic area; New York Yankees likely have a new restaurant, Cincinnati Reds a gymnasium. Who knows what Walter O'Malley will wind up with at Chavez Ravine?

Word reached here from Cincinnati during the weekend that the Freddie Hutchinson Athletic Club will have a gym rat to the trainer's room in the Reds' clubhouse.

O'Malley recently declared the "battle of Chavez Ravine" was over at Los Angeles and the way was clear to build the baseball for the opening of a 1962 season.

Last October the Dodgers startled the city fathers by popping up with a map on presented zoning changes that would involve a car wash, ice cream parlor, novelty stores and auto service areas around the park.

Bill Veeck, who couldn't be left behind in this new movement, started some time ago that he would open a picnic area near the left field stadium at Comiskey Park.

White Sox customers will be offered a limited menu in the new area which is designed primarily for organized groups. However, if space permits, anyone having his own basket and view the game at field level through a fine, durable wire screen at Bill's Grille.

The Yankees were the pioneers in this off-the-field branch of the ball park business. Larry MacPhail dreamed up the idea of the Stadium Club which has been a big money-maker through the years. Members still their guests are permitted to entertain at a swank restaurant-bar on the mezzanine while the rest of the ball game on television.

Thinks He Was Hypnotized Watching Television Show

By CYNTHIA LOWE

NEW YORK (AP)—About a month ago a 14-year-old Evansville, Ind., boy was watching television on NBC's The Man and the Challenge which concerned efforts to hypnotize a pilot who was afraid of flying.

In the middle of the show he whirled, and — according to a newspaper account — something happened to the boy. He thinks he was hypnotized via the filmed television show. Hospital officials treated and released him, now committed.

Accurately it could have happened. That a susceptible person might get in such a state is something of which television people have long been aware.

"Hypnosis, used for entertainment purposes, could be dangerous," said NBC's Stockton Helffrich, who checks on the acceptability of scripts.

"It could be a boomerang. We are exceptionally cautious in this area. We insist, for instance, that in cases where...there is an educational demonstration...the exercise of the hypnotist are not looking at the camera."

Ivan Tors, producer of The Man and the Challenge, commented that it seemed unlikely even a very susceptible person might have been affected by a very brief sequence.

He added that "television itself can have a hypnotic effect."

Despite all the surveys, there is an apparent difference of opinion between NBC radio and TV programmers as to how the average American spends Saturday night. Its radio shows go in strongly for dance band music, suggesting Saturday is a gala, lighthoted evening. But its TV schedule has World Wide 60, a heavy cultural show, suggesting that's the night the audience wants to do some informational viewing.

Cold-Hearted Business Making Movies Says Lorre

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Why is the movie industry undergoing labor strife? With the writers on strike and the actors preparing for one, actor Peter Lorre offers this insight:

"The movies are no longer an industry. After all, who ever ever heard of an industry that offered no loyalty to its employees? The studios offer none at all anymore."

Studio contract lists virtually are non-existent, and this may be why the talent guilds are willing to strike for a bigger share of the economic pie. But Lorre wasn't interested in discussing labor. Instead the Hollywood that lamenting the industry used to be.

"Making movies used to be fun in the old days," he sighed. "It isn't any more. It's a cold, heartless business."

He harked back to the days when he and Sydney Greenstreet were menacing each other, when Bogart and Humphrey Bogart and Errol Flynn and others made the Warner Brothers lot an exciting place. Now Greenstreet, Bogart and Flynn are dead, and most of the others have gone into television.

"It won lots of prizes and editorial comment in Germany," he said, "but it didn't do business. The Germans don't want to be told how bad the Nazis were."

Bogart and Lorre used to hang around Romanoff's, the movie colony hangout frequented by stars, where they aimed their barbs at filmland foibles. Lorre hasn't been able to face the place since Bogie died.

Lorre was back in town for a television appearance tonight and said reports of his near-death were exaggerated. He was supposed to have suffered a stroke in Spain last year while filming "The Scent of Mystery."

"I had sunstroke," he said. "We were working in the sun all the time, and the Spanish also use great banks of reflectors. I passed out. I think I was off the picture for three days. That doesn't sound as if I were near dying, does it?"

Lorre was one of the products of the German film industry's golden era in the 1920s. He returned to Germany a few years ago and made a film with his own company. It was a shocking but true tale about a compulsive murderer who was punished because the Nazis needed his organization.

Farmer Sings Hit Tune of 1956 Follies

HALIFAX (CP)—Canada needs public support to start rather than federal finances to start its Olympic Games standings, Kenneth Farmer — Montreal, president of the Canadian Olympic Association, told a press-conference Monday.

Visiting the recently formed Nova Scotia division of the association, he said Canada's Olympic standings have improved during the last 10 years. Interest had increased, he added, and a better standing was anticipated.

Public apathy towards amateur sports was the cause for lack of interest by good Canadian athletes.

One-Ton Rinks Play for Lard Title

The unusual championship was played during the weekend to raise money for St. Joseph's Hospital.

"Ah! Good evening—I'm Reverend Halley. You must be the young men they told me about."

worked or worried. Show devotion to those you love instead and you will get co-operation and understanding. P.M. take it easy.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Affairs at home are quite strained, but they will get no better if you use a dictatorial or peevish manner. Forget past differences, be courteous and kind and all will be well. No human being ever lived who didn't have human failings.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22, to Dec. 21) — You could get into serious trouble if you are not careful while out driving or walking today. Also be sure you choose your words well before uttering them or you can make unfortunate enemies of good friends. Be wise, kind.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Be careful you do not give in to that extravagant urge today. Try instead to find ways to economize and set up a more sensible budget. Improve your partner with your good financial ability. P.M. take treatments to improve voice.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — You want to vent your ire on others today and kick over existing traces. This is because you are tired or vexed. Improve your health and get a bit of new finery instead, so that you soon regain your cheerful spirit. P.M. rest.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — A private anxiety could put you in the mood to be unkind to others today if you permit. Get busy clearing up that myriad of small tasks methodically and calmly while you think objectively, then all can be adjusted very nicely.

If your child is born today—The fine child born today will fit very naturally into the New Order of this modern day, and will possess particular ability at keeping the peace. Be sure you early give many sports in which to excel and work off excess energy while learning fair play, or your child may get into all sorts of original outlets since the mind is very active here. A very promising charm whether for male or female.

General Tendencies: This is certainly a day when you need to be very careful that you do not break up present course of action for something that doubtless appeals to you but which actually has very disastrous, or at least troublesome conditions connected with them. Make sure through the night you keep cool, calm, collected.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Planetary influences are a bit cobbrary right now, so do not permit directions of friends, associates, even loved ones, to irk you. Accept this as a challenge to your intellect and wisdom and remain poised, controlled.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — It is important you use caution and wisdom in dealing with employer, executive, bureau or civic affairs. And be particularly intelligent where securities and your job are concerned. Real advancement is possible now.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Rather than breaking up existing set-up and getting into alien fields, as you are tempted to do, find a more efficient way of operating and you can realize a far greater success in the early future. Read your paper for ideas.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Here is one of those peculiar days when you want to be most extravagant or get overly excited over practically nothing, act almost enviously. Curb this tendency or you lose out badly and sever important connections. Work quietly instead.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Refrain from severing connections with vital persons in your life right now, or from giving notice of your mind to one who seemingly is not working for your best interests. You may have the picture all wrong. Meet obligations instead.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Rather than be critical of others, show them kindly how to improve their methods so that you help them and yourself. Strive for harmony. P.M. take treatments to improve health. Get your clothing in fine order.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Don't go off on a spree some where because you are over-

Many Factors In Hardening Of Arteries

TORONTO — With all the talk about cholesterol these days, the public may lose sight of the fact that a number of other factors are being studied for their possible relationship to atherosclerosis, the form of hardening of the arteries that sets the stage for heart attacks and strokes.

These other factors, according to The Ontario Heart Foundation, include diet, obesity, here-dity, stress, exercise, hormones and hypertension.

In atherosclerosis, the Heart Foundation has pointed out, the passageway through the arteries has become roughened and nar-rowed by deposits of various fatlike substances, one of which is cholesterol. When this condi-tion affects the coronary arter-ies, the vessels that supply the blood that nourishes the heart muscle itself, there is the risk of a heart attack, due either to spasm or an artery or the clog-ging of it by a blood clot.

It still remains to be shown that the fat in individual cases is directly related to the fatty substances that line the blood ar-teries, the Heart Foundation said.

Research scientists who are studying the other factors sus-pected of playing a role in ath-erosclerosis are faced with this picture:

Diet — Much work has been done to determine the relation-ship of diet to atherosclerosis. The problem is proving to be an extremely complex one. Some doctors believe that many dietary nutrients may play a role in the development of or the protection against atherosclero-sis.

Obesity — Overweight is a known health hazard. It adds to the work of the heart. Also, heart disease should not carry the stigma of poverty.

Heredity — Many doctors be-lieve atherosclerosis may run in families. It is known that individuals inherit a resistance or a lack of it to some of the dis-ease. Though research scien-tists have tackled this problem, it is proving to be a difficult one.

Stress — There is much contro-versy about this. Stress has been difficult to define or to measure. Though it may bring on symptoms such as chest pain in a person who already has hardening of the arteries, the role of stress in causing the disease has yet to be satis-factorily evaluated.

Exercise — Some doctors be-lieve that steady physical labor or exercise over a long period of time tends to some degree to protect the heart from athero-sclerosis. Some studies seem to indicated there is more heart disease among light or seden-tary workers than among those engaged in heavy labor.

Sex Hormones — Women in their child bearing years are not as susceptible to heart at-tacks and strokes as are men. During this period, sex hor-mones may protect women from the development of atherosclero-sis. Research workers are seeking some fraction of the female hormones or similar

PAKISTAN REFUGEE COLONY — This ramshackle refugee colony on the outskirts of Karachi is typical of the lingering resettlement problem facing Pakistan in the new decade. The problem became acute during the 1950s when some 8,000,000 persons, mostly Moslems, fled Hindu India after partition of the two countries. New housing and employment are gradually being found for the refugees as economic planning and political stability develop. (CP from AP).

Pakistan Looks to Prospect Of New Constitution to Replace Old Martial Law

By GEOFFREY DIESON

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (Reuters) — Pakistan has entered 1960 with a mild flush of electioneering enthusiasm that brought back the shadow if not the substance of politics after 13 months of martial-law decree rule.

Today the nation looks to the prospect of a new constitution to replace martial law before the year's end, headed by a president vested with a popular mandate.

Field Marshal Mohammed Ayub Khan was the sole candidate in the Feb. 14 presidential referendum and the vote of confidence by the 80,000 elected members of the new "basic democracy" councils was a foregone conclusion. There had been no doubt that the result would have been the same if rivals had been permitted.

WELCOMED BY PEOPLE

These electoral processes, though limited in scope, mark the turn of the decade as a milestone on the promised road back to some form of democratic government and have been welcomed with eagerness by the mass of the people.

Official spokesmen have hailed the elections as a good beginning in the business of associating the people with government in a new-type democracy "more suited to the national genius" than the wild hitherto imported from the west.

Some 20,000,000 voters of both sexes, or more than 60 per cent of the total electorate, are estimated to have endorsed the government's policies by balloting for the 8,000 local village and town councils throughout the country on a strictly non-party basis.

With the hitherto dominant landlord class shackled by land reforms and politicians with bad records excluded by law, the voters in general exercised a free choice for the first time in Pakistan's history and successful candidates included most sections of the community. Several women were elected — a significant sign of social progress in this young Moslem state.

HAPPY BEGINNING

The 1960s have thus begun happily for all except a few on a note of popular approval for the government's achievements and acclaim for future promises.

Pakistanis have been given plenty of reason to hope that the national renaissance initiated with the army take-over at a time when the country was sinking deeply on the verge of chaos will continue with growing momentum.

A spate of reforms announced or foreshadowed in the last few months embraces many fields of national endeavor. Education, law, administration, medicine and commerce are all under scrutiny and challenge.

A new five-year plan involving expenditure of 12,000,000,000 rupees (about $3,378,000,000) points the way to development of national resources on a major scale.

The menacing population growth is being tackled firmly to prevent absorption of the benefits of anticipated economic advances.

If hopes are realized, Pakistanis can look forward to the next decade as an era of higher social standards, smaller families, greater educational facilities, quicker justice and a more efficient and responsive bureaucracy.

Under the five-year plan the average man can expect to earn 10 per cent more and spend about three-quarters of the increase on himself and his dependents.

Much of this planning there should be three or four children in the average household instead of seven or more as now; and under educational reform they are promised five (later eight) years' free primary schooling with a chance of higher education on a merit basis.

Lest they should think these benefits can be conferred by grace of government, President Ayub has reminded his countrymen that they must be earned by hard work, more taxation and savings for investment.

Some 12,000,000,000 rupees (about $2,026,000,000) to finance the five-year plan must be found from national resources, of which one billion rupees will be represented by extra taxes. Foreign sources are looked to for the remaining eight billion.

The year 1959 was marked by a brightening of the rural scene with the redistribution of land, the weeding out of corrupt and negligent officials the suppression of large-scale smuggling, streamlining of administrative services, curbs on tax evasion and much progress in the task of settling 10,000,000 refugees from India — a problem neglected for 12 years.

Finances have been put in order with the aid of stringent import controls, careful husbanding of foreign exchange, expansion of production in primary products like cotton, textiles and jute goods, and the administration of export stimulants.

There was a marked improvement in the balance of payments and in 1959 with exchange earnings 25 per cent higher than the previous year. Gold and dollar reserves almost doubled.

Pakistan benefited by increased injections of foreign aid, the total volume of which stood at $1,445,000,000 at the end of November last.

The cost of living, sharply pegged back in the last three months of 1958, crept steadily up from January last year, but at the end of 1959 it was still lower than when the generals took over from the politicians as runaway inflation seemed just around the corner.

MORE FOOD

Basic foodstuffs and clothing are more plentiful, even though imported consumer goods, bought mostly by the higher income groups, may be scarce and dear. At the start of the 1960s Pakistanis find themselves on better terms with most of their neighbors, notably India, with whom a number of festering disputes have been settled. High-level talks have begun with Afghanistan to see whether relations with this Moslem neighbor, embittered by Afghan territorial claims, can be improved.

These are the silver lining to the dark clouds of Chinese activities on the northern frontiers of the Indo-Pakistan subcontinent and growing Soviet influence in Afghanistan.

Duke of Ottawa Suggested as Name for Baby

MANCHESTER (CP)—The possibility of the royal baby ultimately becoming known as Duke of Ottawa is discussed by The Guardian.

The paper, in an article mentioning several choices says:

"Canada's special interest would be easy to argue. It was during the Queen's tour of that country that her condition became known, and Mr. Diefenbaker was one of the first to share the secret."

The Guardian's first choice, however, appears to be the Duke of York. It notes that this is the tradition for second sons.

Head of UN Emergency Force Is Tough and Durable Sikh Who Dislikes Term 'Police'

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

RAFAH, Egypt (CP) — Indian new commander of the UN Emergency Force is a tough and durable Sikh with an established record in war who's hoping to help win the peace in this explosive corner of the Holy Land. And he's glad he's got Canadians in a key spot.

Maj.-Gen. Prem Singh Gyani wants to start right in by dispelling a few popular notions about the role and purpose of his unique command. He doesn't like UNEF called "police" and he wants to emphasize the limitations of his force as set by international agreement.

Shaking his head vigorously, the tall, slim Indian army gunner, successor to Canada's Lt.-Gen. E.L.M. Burns, says:

"Don't say police. That means a lack of law and order, crime and punishment, punitive measures and the like and that's got nothing to do with our job as I see it. . . We're strictly a peace force and by our very presence and our moral effect, interposed as we are, between declared enemies, we prevent incidents that might lead to clashes, clashes that might lead to minor skirmishes and to major conflicts.

"If there are no incidents there is no tension and eventually we hope bitter memories will be superceded by a practical approach to the situation and a climate will be created for a final settlement."

WON'T PREDICT

He didn't care to guess when such a happy day would come or in other words, how long he figured UNEF would be needed to patrol the hard and unyielding Sinai between Israel and a critical part of the United Arab Republic. It has been operating since the Suez crisis of 1956.

The general relaxed under the date palms that shaded him from a warm February sun. A reporter had waylaid him as he conducted a familiarization tour of this Canadian base camp. He returned again and again to his chief topic: that UNEF was a preventive and not a police force. It had been created by the United Nations to provide an orderly withdrawal of opposing forces and according to international agreement. While it did not operate on Israeli territory, it was respected by Jew as it was by the Arab. It was to see that illegal border activity and misunderstanding weren't created by isolated incidents which before had created tension and led to full-scale war.

FIGHTING SIKH

The Indian commander is 49 and comes from Chandigarh, the new Indian capital of Punjab, created when the province was divided between India and Pakistan. He comes from fighting Sikhs but he doffed his hat and with a smile pointed out that he didn't conform with the traditional Sikh "hairdo" as he called it. He's clean-shaven whereas his religion calls for both beard and long hair knotted in a coil under a turban.

He is right at home with Canadians and in fact has two brothers-in-law, Krishan and Pimmy Ahuja, who have decided to adopt Canadian citizenship and make Toronto their home. They are sons of his father-in-law, Mulk Raj Ahuja, a former Indian trade commissioner in Toronto. The general has visited Canada several times and likes especially the Muskoka resort district of Ontario.

He first met Canadians attending an army training school in England. His own part in the Second World War saw him serve with distinction in the Burma theatre. But after the war he met Canadians again as a member of the International Truce Supervisory Commission in Indo-China, when his opposite number from Canada was R.O.G. Morton of Toronto, a friend with whom he has maintained contact ever since.

CANADIAN DISCIPLINE

He's "impressed" with the discipline of Canadians in his command. "They have a high sense of duty which is so important in our work."

He had personally gone on patrol with a Royal Canadian Dragoons squadron — just relieved by the Fort Garry Horse — and saw how effectively they operated. "They showed that their training and understanding of the tough task is first class."

He also had a word for the Canadian service support troops which Canada provides for the force — service corps, sappers, repairmen, signallers and air transport men. "They've met the challenges of different standards of repairs and a wide variety of equipment and have adapted and improvised in a way that can hardly be matched," he added. "And almost two miles long and 1,000 feet deep.

175 Acres Land Bought For Hydro in Dispute

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Frost announced to the legislature Tuesday the establishment of a royal commission to investigate all aspects of Ontario Hydro's purchase last year of 175 acres of land at Sarnia.

Hydro paid $1,250,000 for the land to build a transformer station and transmission lines.

Mr. Frost said the royal commission would determine whether the Hydro transaction in Lambton County was "to the detriment of the public interest" and whether the best possible business practices were employed in buying the land from Dimensional Investments Limited.

Both Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer and CCF Leader Donald C. MacDonald have repeatedly asked for an investigation into the land transaction.

Dimensional Investments, bought several hundred acres of land from the Chippewa Indians at Sarnia for $2,000 an acre. Hydro had also negotiated with the Indians, but later paid Dimensional Investment about $3,000 an acre for a part of the property.

Mr. Frost said the duties of the commission's hearings will be set by Mr. Justice George Argo Thompson, Ontario Supreme Court, who will head the inquiry. Legal counsel is to be Joseph Sedgwick of Toronto.

Reason for a royal commission, Mr. Frost said, is that the legislative committee's rights to subpoena witnesses to give evidence are doubtful.

Deputy Chief Telford Adams and the Indian council should be asked to testify, he said. However, the powers of a legislative committee in this regard are doubtful "owing to the fact that it involves the service of papers and documents upon Indian lands which are under the jurisdiction of the federal government."

An honorary chief of the Chippewa Indian band, Sarnia, Mr. Frost said it would be embarrassing if the chief and the council refused to come to Hydro and had to be tried for contempt of the legislature.

The commission would determine "whether proper business practises and judgments were employed and exercised and if there were any circumstances of neglect in connection with the said transaction." It would also determine if any transactions were made "to the detriment of the public interest."

OPPOSITION CHARGES

Among the opposition charges levelled are:

That Hydro made no serious effort to buy land other than a part of it, directly from the Indians.

That Hydro could have obtained the land for about half price if it had undertaken serious negotiations.

That Hydro paid the money to Dimensional Investments three days before the firm had itself paid for the land.

Former Member, Others Fined For Evasion

TORONTO (CP) — Car dealer John C. Cragg was fined $178,000 Tuesday on charges of income tax evasion and ordered to pay the money within a month or go to penitentiary for 14 years.

Cragg, two other businessmen and five land firms who pleaded guilty to the charges two weeks ago were fined a total of $247,000 for tax evasions totalling $246,270.

Harold Fishleigh, former Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for Toronto-Woodbine, was fined $9,000 or one year for evading $18,000 in taxes in 1954.

James J. Walsh was fined $2,500 or six months for evading $2,435 in taxes in 1956.

Defence counsel G. Arthur Martin said the taxes involved were now paid in full and asked the court to allow time for payment of the fines.

The three men were directors of several real estate firms in Metropolitan Toronto. Crown counsel Sedgwick said the executive committee's rights to subpoena witnesses to give evidence are doubtful.

Judge to Rule On Motion Of Non-Suit

MONTREAL (CP)—Judge Redmond Roche has indicated he will rule on a motion of non-suit made in the preliminary hearing of Jose de Lima, president of Canadian Javelin Limited.

Mr. Doyle, 41, is charged with conspiracy, theft and fraud involving $4,800,000 worth of company stock. The hearing is to determine whether there is enough evidence to commit Mr. Doyle to trial.

The non-suit motion followed argument on merits of a Quebec Superior Court order naming Judge Roche commissioner to hear the first to New York, then to Paris, Geneva and Leichtenstein to hear witnesses.

Joseph Cohen and Noel Dorion, lawyers for Mr. Doyle, objected to a postponement to allow the commission to go to New York, where testimony would be taken from company officials and the prosecution would examine the company's books.

The defence asks for a dismissal of the charge on grounds that the prosecution has failed to establish a prima facie case. Mr. Doyle's lawyers ready to testify immediately and that the evidence now heard does not justify a trial.

The private prosecution was launched by James K. Canning.

Javelin shareholder who alleges fraud, theft and fraud involved 1,500,000 shares of Javelin stock issued in May, 1955, to a Swiss bank as collateral for a $4,800,000 loan.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Warm air will continue to carry moderate to severe thunderstorms over the Great Lakes region, bringing fair weather to Ontario. There have been intervals of cloudiness and some very light snow in northeastern Ontario and in the Lake Huron region, but these have been largely insignificant. However, it seems likely that a trend to more cloudiness with intervals of light snow will be noticed. Temperatures are near normal.

PEARSON SAYS ELLIOT LAKE TO BE GHOST TOWN

Charge Brings Denial From Trade Minister

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Pearson says the uranium-mining area of Elliot Lake in Northern Ontario is headed for the status of a ghost town unless the federal government takes emergency steps.

The fault, he said Tuesday night in the Commons, lies with the Progressive Conservatives for not pressing the United States to pick up options to buy more Canadian uranium after 1962.

His 55-minute attack, which included proposals for government action, drew a denial from Trade Minister Churchill, who blamed the former Liberal administration for encouraging over-production in the Canadian industry.

Mr. Churchill promised that "decisions will be made" for policies discussed by the U. S. Kelly Gorham (left) of Vancouver, who is in charge of DRB's telecommunications establishment group constructing the satellite, discusses a problem with Dr. R. C. Langille, of Yarmouth, N.S., superintendent of DRTE's electronics laboratory (CP Wirephoto).

MOCK-UP — A mock-up of Canada's washing-machine satellite, scheduled to be put into orbit by the U.S. in November, 1961, was unveiled by the defence research board.

He said the government will be able to buy more Canadian uranium "but it was originally contracted for in 1950 and said he hoped to make an on-the-spot investigation.

"If do not see Elliot Lake becoming a ghost town; far from it," he said.

STILL OPERATING

"There may be contraction, but the major producing mines are still there, still operating. They will operate for another three years. There will be a decline in production.

"But there there may be an increased demand for the peaceful use of uranium.

Mr. Pearson charged that the government and particularly Mr. Churchill, the minister responsible for the atomic program, "misled" the people of Canada when he urged repeatedly in 1958 and 1959 that pressure be brought on the U.S. to take up its options on Canadian uranium production.

The U.S. had a moral obligation, he said, to keep the Canadian industry from going under because it took the lead of the U.S. that the Canadian industry

Four Teen-agers To Face Armed Robbery Count

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Four teenagers, two of them girls, will be brought here from Chatham to face charges of armed robbery, Crown attorney Peter Glois said Tuesday.

Three 18 - year - olds, Dorothy Adams and Dorothy Mills, both of Windsor, and Ronald D. Emerson, of Blenheim, were remanded Monday until Thursday in Chatham on $5,000 bail each, a juvenile, will appear in court there on the same charge. They pleaded not guilty to the theft charge.

Police said the four will be brought to face the robbery charges in connection with the robbery of a New Glasgow family.

Four masked teen-agers broke into the home of Mrs. Mary Kowalchuk early Saturday morning. One of them, a girl, held a knife to the throat of four-year-old Billy Cummins while her accomplices ransacked the house, police said, escaped in a car after taking about $10.

West Germany Will Abandon Plan To Store War Material in Spain

BONN, Germany (CP)—West Germany will abandon her plan to set up military supply depots in Spain because of opposition from some NATO countries, diplomatic sources said.

The Bonn government has been warned, the informants said, that the NATO allied nations would object to the plan inspired by West Germany's lack of space for rear area dumps of war materials and supplies.

The sources said the U.S. state department already has called attention of the Bonn government to provisions of the plan, which revived memories of the ties between Nazi Germany and Spain's Franco during the Second World War.

Britain and other nations who oppose Spanish membership in NATO might look on renewed military co - operation as an undercover military alliance between West Germany and Generalissimo Francisco Franco, observers said.

Three Labor members of the British Parliament introduced questions in the House of Commons asking about Soviet plans. Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd is scheduled to reply Monday.

Headlines in Spanish papers today reflected general alarm and indignation at German militarism.

The London Daily Mirror reported in a banner headline that West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer had "shocked" his Allies by "secret talks with France over new bases."

The Daily Express saw "A new danger of Nazis in Spain plot angers the West."

The Daily Mail said Adenauer's plan "seems to drop a fantastic plan to set up West German bases in Spain—where Hitler's Luftwaffe rehearsed for the Second World War."

The Mail said the damaging thing about the mikup could be that "Germany would take part of "this further 'evidence' of West Germany's untrustworthiness —less than three months before the summit."

Crowds Throng Rio Streets To Give Eisenhower Welcome

RIO de JANEIRO (AP) — President Eisenhower arrived from Brasilia Tuesday to receive a warm welcome from President Kubitschek and huge throngs jamming the city streets.

The biggest and most extravagant capital of Brazil gave the president a tremendous ovation.

Thousands of employees here were given the day off and most of the business firms declared a half holiday so their employees could see the two presidents drive 11½ hours through the city.

It was Eisenhower's second visit to Rio, which gave him a hero's welcome in 1946 when he toured the countries which had forces under his command during the Second World War. This time he made Brazil the first stop on a 10-day tour of four South American countries designed to convince the southern continent that the United States is anxious to help its economic development and considers its nations valuable allies against Communist aggression.

A key question to be discussed is possible revision of procedures of the Organization of American States in an effort to strengthen hemisphere security and provide machinery for protecting political and human rights.

Definitely Established Bomb Caused Crash Killing 34

WASHINGTON (AP)—Government investigators say the cause of a Trans-Canada plane crash that killed 34 persons Jan. 6 was a dynamite bomb.

They said furthermore that the bomb, set off by a dry cell battery, exploded near the seat of Julian Frank, a young Westpoint, Conn., lawyer who carried $1,500 in life insurance with him.

And there was a hint that the tragedy might have been the result of a conspiracy by two or more persons.

James E. Barfee, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, told the Senate's space committee Tuesday it has now been definitely established that a dynamite bomb caused the crash of TCA.B. and the Federal Bureau of Investigation is continuing their investigations, he said.

Frank's body was found on Kure Beach, N.C., and that of a senior cabin pairs and part of the plane's fuselage also. The plane itself travelled 20 miles farther before it hit a range of hills, Barfee N.C., where all the other victims were found.

Barfee said "foreign bodies" were found deeply imbedded in Frank's body. Also papers together with pieces of steel wire, cloth fibres and bits of deposits which were later determined to be explosive residue dioxide, a substance found in dry cell batteries.

Barfee noted that Frank, 32, had taken out insurance policies within a year preceding the accident. The beneficiary was his wife, a former model and mother of their two children. She has said she'll never believe that Frank killed himself by bombing the plane.

The conspiracy hint came when Barfee said questions "which relate to possible criminal charges are still under investigation." It was obvious that no criminal charges could be brought against anyone on the plane, since they are all dead.

Barfee was asked what is being done to find the wreckage of the other plane operated by National too.

MINISTER CLAIMS 'BASIC BENEFIT' FROM PAYMENTS

Method to Control Production Approved

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government's new method of controlling Canadian production of pork and eggs gained majority parliamentary approval on Tuesday night—but not without some loud voicing of doubts.

The Liberals said the government should never have given up the system of keeping up hogs, eggs and poultry meat whenever prices fell below the stated floor. The CCF, on the other hand, said the government is "flouting" the 1958 agricultural stabilization act.

Agricultural Minister Harkness entered the debate with a 40-minute defence of the government's move to end direct purchases and begin the system of deficiency payments.

A Liberal non-confidence motion called for consideration of policy and farm prices at a level to give farmers fair returns for their labor and investment.

Mr. Harkness said the government is already striving for that. The motion was lost, 172 to 48.

SECOND ONE DEFEATED

A similar CCF motion calling for deficiency payments on grain, and hog and egg floor prices on all grades. Without referring to it, Mr. Harkness said that to spread deficiency payments across all grades of eggs and poultry would be to "perpetuate low-quality production." The motion was defeated, Coown 170 to 48.

Property Bail Of $91,615 Set by Judge

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A man charged with 1,200 counts of smuggling and selling narcotics was released on $91,615 property bail Tuesday.

Joseph Moses, 35, described by federal authorities as "one of the top men" in an international dope ring, was one of 17 persons rounded up Feb. 10 in a raid here by federal, state and local police.

Originally, bail was set at $50,000 cash or property. County village federal district Judge John Henderson reduced it when eight persons pledged their homes. Their connection was not revealed.

In all, the group was charged with 2,553 counts of conspiracy, smuggling and selling narcotics.

Police said the drug was supplied in part by a Canadian

Seafarer Says He Last Saw Woman Talking to Immigration Officials

BOSTON (AP)—Dutch seafarer Willem Van Rie, 23, testified Tuesday the last time he saw Lynn Kauffman was around 8 a.m. last Sept. 18, nearly 12 hours before her death.

Testifying at his murder trial for the first time as to his version of the fatal night, Van Rie said the 23-year-old American passenger aboard the Dutch liner Ryndam came into the lounge about 4 a.m. to deal with immigration officials, who had boarded the ship shortly (before its arrival in Boston.

"Tell the court and jury what if anything you observed about her appearance" defence lawyer W. Langdon Powers asked.

"She looked pretty sick," Van Rie replied.

Van Rie said Miss Kauffman was normally lively and gay but she did not seem so that day.

Q. Then Miss Kauffman then leave the lounge?

A. Yes.

Q. Where did she go?

A. I don't know, sir.

Q. From the moment she left the lounge that morning and passed out of your sight did you ever see her again?

A. No, sir.

The prosecution contends Van Rie on a 44-day voyage from Singapore developed a torrid affair with Lynn which ended when he beat and threw her overboard.

Defence lawyer W. Langdon Powers gave no hint of the course the defence will follow.

It has been assumed, on a basis of his statements during prosecution witnesses, the defence will contend the girl leaped to her death in the harbor.

Negroes, Whites In Wild Slugfest, Twelve Arrested

Police Post Guards To Protect All Schools

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—A Negro and white youths battled in a wild slugfest at a downtown variety store in the latest demonstration over segregated lunch counter seating.

Police Chief Ed Brown mobilized his entire 250-man force and called in 40 auxiliary officers after what started as a peaceful demonstration exploded into a free-for-all Monday night.

Swarms of Negro and white youths boiled out into one of the city's main intersections. Police quieted the melee 30 minutes later and arrested 11 white persons and one Negro.

Brown posted guards at all schools today. Negro and white, including Negro variety stores, as possible trouble spots, agreed to close at 3:30 p.m., daily closing time for schools.

Police court hearings were scheduled today for the 12 persons arrested.

THIRD IN FIVE DAYS

It was the third Negro lunch counter demonstration in a Chattanooga variety store in less than five days. The first two were peaceful.

Meanwhile, Negro students resumed non-violent resistance to segregated restaurants in Virginia and North Carolina.

In Nashville, Tenn., pickets marched against a Quality department store and a drug store in the arrest of 34 Negro students there Monday. Three Negroes were arrested outside the store.

In Greensboro, N.C., where the sit-ins demonstrate 1 was a began Feb. 1, variety store lunch counters were open on the customary segregated basis. No Negro demonstrations were reported.

A major demonstration occurred at Winston - Salem, N.C., where 12 Negroes and 10 whites were arrested as they sat at a lunch counter marked for service by F. W. Woolworth Company employees and guests.

Two Believed Soldiers Killed In Car Crash

FOREST (CP)—Two persons, believed soldiers at the Canadian regiment at Camp Ipperwash, were killed Saturday night in a one-car crash three miles north of this Lambton community.

Police said the car rolled over a ditch and snapped off a utility pole.

Names of the victims were not released but it is believed they are from the east coast.

Strengthen Defence

MOSCOW (CP)—Marshal Rodion Malinovsky, Soviet defence minister, said Tuesday the Soviet Union is the strongest power in defences because other nations have not accepted President Khrushchev's offer to disarm armament.

"Only on Army Day, message he said plans to cut armed forces by another 1,200,000 men and reduce the defence capacity of the U.S.S.R, but will make it possible to develop the productive forces of the country."

Wife Accused Of Plotting Hubby's Death

DETROIT (AP) — "No it isn't true. It's the pretty widow screamed. "Not me! They do that when they know it's not true. I didn't kill Bill."

Mrs. Nelle Lassiter, 38, was near hysterics Tuesday when suddenly she was charged with murder and conspiracy in the shotgun shooting of her wealthy husband, Parish Bill Lassiter.

Gordon Watson, 44, "friend and business associate of the slain millionaire Wood Oak car dealer, was named in a similar warrant.

The silver-blonde former model, held in jail without bond, was to be arraigned today.

Police Lieut. Howard Whaley said his office had been contacted by the state Mrs. Lassiter and Watson were involved.

Whaley refused to say apparently was the motive in Lassiter's slaying. Under the victim's will, Mrs. Lassiter would inherit at least $100,000 in assets, plus the couple's $35,000 home.

IN ANTEROOM

Mrs. Lassiter was arrested in court antechamber where she was waiting to appear again as a witness against two men remaining on trial in the slaying.

Roy Hicks, another business associate of Lassiter; Richard Jones, who was accused of acting as go-between in arranging Lassiter's murder April 9, and Charles Nash, named as the actual killer, were convicted and when the murder trial opened Feb. 1.

Jones last week interrupted his trial to plead guilty to second-degree murder. Tuesday Hicks also pleaded guilty to the lesser charge.

Lassiter's death followed a business trip with his wife and Watson that a $1,200 insurance policy he took out on Lassiter was written by Hicks, former ward man at the airport when he returned from a business trip to Canada to a lonely spot where he was taken and shot to death.

Prosecutors says Hicks set up the slaying by offering Jones $5,000 to do the job and the right to split any money found on the body.

Launch Titan

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — An intercontinental - range Titan missile was successfully launched today, the Air Force announced.

The Titan eventually will have a range of 5,000 miles. But today's missile was not fully armed and was designed for a 5,000-mile flight. Furthest it had flown previously was 2,000 miles.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

21 YEARS AGO IT SNOWED HARD

When a new member of a family makes his or her appearance the day is usually looked upon as a "red letter day," especially by the mother; but 21 years ago today, Mrs. J. Young, who resides at the corner of Sidney and College Streets, regarded it as a 'white letter day!' It had snowed without let-up for four continuous days and every road was blocked. Snowplows were unable to get through. Her children walked along the top of the snowbanks, holding onto the telephone wires in their endeavor to get to school at St. Michael's Academy.

Some people are meticulous enough to keep a diary of events but whether Mrs. Young did this is not known; however, she has a living 'diary' to mark that occasion with its unprecedented snowfall.

POLICE LAY CHARGE OF CARELESS DRIVING AGAINST AIRMAN

Provincial police have laid a charge of careless driving against Sgt. J. Cormier of the RCAF following a two-car collision Tuesday on the No. 6 H.D. road. No injuries resulted from the accident.

Foremen's Club Given Reasons For Making Will

Kenneth G. M. Ross, Belleville lawyer, Tuesday night said: "Most people don't make a will because they think they are immortal."

But this is foolish, he told the Quinte Kinsmen Men's Club, because "we all know we have to go sooner or later and it will save a lot of confusion if you make a will."

Many people have been avoiding because of government succession duties on estates and the increasing density of traffic which increases the chances of meeting a sudden end, Mr. Ross people now are making wills.

"The estate is tied up until the government is sure no succession duties are owing," he said.

"About two-thirds of the estates settled in a place such as Belleville are settled under succession duties."

Succession duties are not levied on estates of $60,000 or less.

Some people think they can dope the international revenue department and get out of paying succession duties. But the government is always one step ahead of you. They get you coming and going.

The gift tax—a levy on all major gifts given during a lifetime—was first announced so that a man can give to his wife or one child or all of his children during his lifetime and not be assessed the tax at death. The tax, previously 25 per cent, is now 50 percent and 25 percent of the value of the gift.

EXPLAINS LEGAL TERMS

Mr. Ross explained some of the legal terms connected with wills.

The gross value comprises all annuities and pensions are part of a person's estate but, therefore, is liable to succession duties. But such expenses as normal debts, mortgages and funeral expenses can be deducted from the estate before succession duties are levied. Legal fees involving the settling of an estate cannot be deducted, however the succession tax is assessed.

He said an estate can usually be settled rapidly if a will has been made and the lawyer or family survivors know where it is. Sometimes it is almost impossible to find out if a deceased person made a will. To avoid confusion, the best thing to do is leave the will in a bank safety deposit box with a lawyer or a trust company.

Mr. Ross also suggested every one should list his assets and fix approximate values. He said he didn't make the mistake of trying to cheat the internal revenue department by valuing the assets for less than they're worth because the department will always assess them and usually get higher values. The onus is then on the owner to prove his valuations were correct — if he wants to argue with the department.

"The courts have said that although it is illegal to evade taxes, it is not illegal to avoid them," he said.

Teachers Holding Specialists' Certificates Are Given New Salary Schedules by Board

New maximum and minimum salary schedules for teachers with the Bay of Quinte District High School Board holding specialists certificates were approved by trustees at the board's adjourned meeting held Tuesday evening.

The new schedule effective for the school year 1960-61 provides for a $100 minimum-maximum increase for non-specialists holding second certificates, and for specialists, and also sets up a new honor specialist category with a salary maximum of $6,400 per year.

There will be no change in the salary schedule for non-specialists which will remain at the present $4,500 minimum and $6,-600 maximum.

The new schedule calls for minimum-maximum salaries of $5,200-$6,200 for endorsed certificate holders; $5,100-$9,100 for specialists and $5,400-$9,400 for the new honor specialists category.

Of the 101 high school teachers with the Bay of Quinte board about 30 will honor specialists degrees but no further on the staff will reach even the minimum salary for the next two years.

Increased allowance for department heads has been increased from $200 per year to $300 per year.

TEACHERS ACCEPT

School Board secretary Roy Wannamaker reported that local teachers have accepted the new schedule for the 1960-61 school year and only some minor fringe benefits still remain to be agreed upon.

Mr. DuVmage said the new schedule puts the provincial trend although it is possibly slightly below that of some boards.

Last night's meeting of the board was the last meeting for the regular meeting for the month of August, 1960.

At that time most of the evening was taken up with discussions with the local school board representatives from the Frankford area who are seeking a "corridor" through Sidney township which would open the way for Frankford village to join the Bay of Quinte District High School Board.

Discussions were of an exploratory nature with various educational departments are as follows: Agriculture, Mr. Coding; commerce, Wallace Bell; horticulture, Donald Leeming, and home economics, Miss Brooks Allen.

GIVEN INCREASES

Regular salary increases to Miss Bernice Brooks, sales secretaria head at the Moira Secondary School and Mrs. Eileen Brooks, assistant at BCI cafeteria, were granted by the board. Mrs. Hollister now receives $200 per month and Mrs. Brooks $33 per week, also on a 10-month basis.

Board Chairman A. O. Drysdale was authorized to support persons in whose names sets of Encyclopedia Britannica may be presented to the local high schools by the Canadian School Trustees Association. The presentation will be probably by will be retired members of the local school board.

Long time member of Belleville school boards, Mr. Harold C. Seldon, will be nominated by the high school board for the Lamp of Learning award by the Secondary School Trustees. The nomination is expected to be endorsed by the local teachers' federation and home and school associations.

A drive will be made on parents' insurance coverage with the view of broadening coverage and premiums being paid by parents on a voluntary basis.

Also under consideration will be replacement of the drinking fountains at BCI.

The Quinte Water Safety Committee request that Grade IX students be allowed to take safety instructions at the Y.M.C.A. during class hours was declined with board members feeling it would be impossible to include such instruction during class periods.

Prices Compared By Harkness

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has done "substantially well"—much than most other countries in the world—in maintaining her agricultural prices, Agriculture Minister Harkness said Tuesday.

He told the Canadian Labor Congress that the cumulative farm cash income in the United States dropped last year by 11 per cent from 1958, Canada's income had a decline of only 1 per cent.

Mr. Harkness gave the Commons these comparisons for commodity prices for the last quarter of 1959, based on wholesale prices in main market centres:

	Canada U.S.
Good steers (cwt)	21.55 23.75
Hogs, dressed weight (cwt)	23.27 16.05
Butter (pound)	51 .61
Eggs (dozen)	47 .49
A large eggs (doz.)	42 .35

The minister predicted that the prices of Canada's market will continue to be slightly more than $7 a hundredweight higher than the comparable prices on the U.S. market.

Chicago's best quality pigs Monday were selling at $14.35, the highest price of 1960 so far.

This was $7.59 a hundredweight below the price in Toronto.

Follow Blood Trail From Home Of Slain Girl

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP)—A teen-age boy was arrested at his home Tuesday after officers followed a gooey trail of blood and footprints there from the home of a slain 15-year-old girl two blocks away.

Detectives said the boy, also 15, is the father-child who allegedly stabbed with blood.

They quoted him as saying he had fallen and bloodied his nose while walking Monday night. It was there the murder of the girl's decision was stabbed and beaten with a hammer, then in her parents' eight-room home.

Juvenile authorities took custody of the boy.

The boy's identity is protected under Montana law, which requires that minors not be named in juvenile court cases.

The slender, curly - haired youngster was described as a friendly acquaintance of the girl. They attended different high schools.

Judie was stabbed 25 times in the neck and shoulders with a pair of shears. The school sweater was found near her body.

Police Chief R. L. Wilson said he was apparently the victim of sexually mistreated. He was unable to establish a motive for the crime.

90 Per Cent Of Class Passes Swim Exams

The Learn-to-Swim program sponsored by the Quinte Water Safety Council for non-swimmers in the grades seven and eight classes in Belleville public schools has now come to a close for the current school year. Some 44 non-swimmers were receiving instruction through the co-operation of the local YMCA and approximately 90 per cent of the classes successfully qualified for their beginner's certificate of proficiency.

Lt.-Col. A. Cousins of the Public School Board has been winding up a tour of the local schools during which the grade seven graduation awards in the course were presented with their certificates. Seventeen certificates in all were presented to students in this level. Grade eight students received their recognition at an earlier date.

The program consisted of a 30-minute class for 15 pupils once a week for five weeks and was started last February with the conclusion of this program in the pool schools for the school year it was hoped that the program could be introduced to the remaining schools in the city.

Dr. G. H. Craig, chairman of the Safety Council is highly pleased, stated that in this program it had been possible to fit in instruction to those non-swimmers from the surrounding area, who could not, for various reasons, join the city schools program.

Recent discussion of this proposal by the Quinte Secondary School Board has resulted in the Council's not being successfully declined because it was felt that such an arrangement would be impossible without distrubance to the class routine when the three schools involved, it was stated by Mr. Roy Dulmage, secretary of the board, this morning.

Wolf Cubs Demonstrate Signalling

At a recent meeting of the Bayside Pack, Wolf Cub Leader, Dr. Morris Smith, with his assistant, T. Brodie and the Wolf Cubs, gave a demonstration of singing, signalling and many other interesting activities of the pack. Various awards were described and a first aid practical procedure each Cub must follow to win badges for these awards.

Cub Leader S. E. Wellington, well-known local radio personality, will be guest speaker at the next March 10, Mrs. Genereux, chairman of the Pack Committee announced. It was also announced that the Fun Fair will be held on April 29, and that the preceding different booths and articles needed to be ready for the event.

Room count was taken with the winner being Mrs. Campbell's class of Grade Five, Bayside School. This is the fourth month Mrs. Campbell's class had won.

Prosecution Charges Jury In Finch Case

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A prosecutor has charged in final arguments to the Finch murder trial that Carole Tregoff stood ready with the so-called murder hot lover, Dr. Bruce Frederick Finch, strangled with his wife.

He also charged the surgery surgeon ambushed his wife, cracked her skull, shot her to death, then stabbed her body after if he'd found the maid, "she wouldn't have been a damaging witness stand."

Deputy district attorney Clifford Crail thunderously accused them Tuesday of trying to weave a story to fit the facts and escape murder conviction.

Finch, 42, and his 29-year-old mistress sat impassive. They are charged with killing his wife Barbara Jane, 35, last July 18. The handsome doctor says the gun went off accidentally as he tried to throw it away after wrestling it from his wife. She was shot in the back.

The family maid, blonde Marie Anne Lidholm, 19, interrupted the scuffle in the Finch garage.

Crail told the jury of five men and seven women that Finch shot his fleeing wife, then dragged her to the garage, hunting Miss Lidholm. She had run into the house to call police.

MISSION TO VISIT JORDAN

AMMAN, Jordan (Reuters)—A five-member Mexican parliamentary mission will visit Jordan March 9 for four days, it was announced Monday night. The aim of the visit is to tighten friendly relations between Jordan and Mexico and strengthen relations between the two countries' parliaments, the announcement said.

Charges Pledged School Grants Not Forthcoming

TORONTO (CP)—Elmer Sopha (L — Sudbury) Tuesday night charged the government is engaging on a pledge to give $100,-000 in educational grants towards cost of building a Sudbury high school.

Mr. Sopha said he and a Sudbury district school board have been trying for months to get a grange an appointment to see Premier Frost on the matter.

In the legislature's debate, Mr. Sopha said he wrote the premier last October for an appointment for the Sudbury Nickel District school board, which is to erect Composite High School at a cost of several million dollars and which was pledged by the department of education.

He has not yet received a reply.

The school was built, Mr. Sopha said, on the understanding that a new scale of grants, effective in 1958, would apply to the high school. The amount involved during the five-year period would be $100,000.

Mr. Sopha said the Sudbury district during the school election campaign quoted Gerald Monet, then the Progressive Conservative member for Sudbury, as saying Mr. Frost had sanctioned the school grants. A new Sudbury high school board had also told him the cabinet guaranteed the grants, he said.

Mr. Sopha quoted the local newspaper after the election as saying the premier denied ever having talked about the new school. And the newspaper quoted Mr. Monaghan, then a defeated candidate, as saying Mr. Frost "has a short memory."

"That's the biggest fairy tale I've ever heard," Mr. Frost interrupted. "It's all news to me."

Two Aldermen Away on Fact Finding Tour

Alderman Ben Corke and Alderman Jack Deacon, members of a special council committee named to investigate all angles of municipal fire protection, are away from the city on a fact finding tour to see how fires are operated in other centres.

The two aldermen left for Toronto this morning and before returning are expected to visit centres in Western Ontario.

Alderman Corke and Deacon were named to get full information on bus operation, following the announcement by Fred Rawson, operator of Rawson Bus Lines Ltd., that bus service in the city would be terminated on March 31st. They are charged with the problem of coming up with some suggestion to keep a bus service operating in Belleville, either by public or private ownership.

New Ceiling On Chamber Is Completed

True to the prediction of Alderman Deacon, chairman of the city property, that replacement of the city hall council chamber ceiling would be a short job once commenced, workmen completed the removal of the scaffolding following completion of their work.

Last evening only replacement of ceiling lights remained to be done and electricians were already on the job.

The new ceiling — two feet lower than before — is of acoustic tile squares fastened to wooden brackets. Replacement of the ceiling was ordered after ceiling plaster crashed last July, allowing several big chunks to crash to the council chamber floor.

The white of the new ceiling now stands out in marked contrast to the rather dingy appearance of the upper walls of the chamber. Once a paint job would be in order.

Skull Fracture Caused Death Of Picton Gunner

Gunner Joseph B. D'Allaire, 27, of the Picton School of Artillery, was found dead in his bed on February 14th, died as a result of a skull fracture caused by a fight or a fall.

This was the verdict returned early today by a coroner's jury at the inquest held last night at Picton following the man's death. The inquest, before Coroner Dr. W. J. Ponton, lasted for over five hours, the jury taking over an hour to reach its decision. Witnesses were recalled by Assistant Crown Attorney Lance Nethery.

One of the chief witnesses at the inquest was Gunner Neil Ellis, 23, Allisville, who testified he had had a scuffle with the deceased soldier on the night of February 13th. The young soldier was given the protection of the witness rule during the evidence Act before he commenced his testimony.

Evidence was that following the scuffle D'Allaire went back to his barracks and at 8 o'clock the next morning was seen by barrack-room orderly on the floor at the side of his bed.

The soldier was alive at that time but the next morning at 8 o'clock he was found dead in the same position on the floor.

Provincial police are under the direction of Staff Sgt. H. S. Hunter, who conducted the inquest, assisted by the Provost Corps and the RCMP.

Bacteriological Warfare Talk Given Kiwanians

Local Kiwanianse heard Mr. Tom Sidwell speak on "Warfare Experienced in Bacteriological Warfare," at their weekly dinner meeting held yesterday at the Kiwanis Centre. Drawing from his experience as a warrant officer on the technical staff of a research team encamped on Grassy Island in the St. Lawrence River during World War II, the speaker discussed the work which was done by Canadian, British and American scientists during this period to devise counter-measures to a feared bacological attack by the Nazis.

The work of the Canadians, led by Sir Frederick Banting, was quite outstanding, said Mr. Sidwell. A 100 per cent effective vaccine was developed for the dreaded cattle disease Rinderpest or cow pox which Allied intelligence had derived was being investigated by the Germans. Although no attack was ever made, this vaccine has been produced in great quantity during the war and was released for use in Asia at the conclusion of the hostilities where it proved very effective in curing cattle.

The speaker also discussed the nature of germ warfare, describing it as the spread of inducing sickness or death to military or civilian personnel, domestic animals or plants in order for a combatant to gain an advantage over his enemy. The methods of implementing a germ attack by airplanes low flying missiles and gas producing shells were explained. One method was that of seeding an area with an aerosol with pathogenic organisms which, preceded by a cold front, would affect the population of eastern Canada and the United States.

The defence against such an attack or method of warfare was also explained to the Kiwanians. Primarily an efficient intelligence service was required in order to find out what germs an enemy was producing. Then vaccine-measures could be devised by scientists to produce immunity from these germs.

Electronic devices have been developed to detect germ contamination in the air, the speaker said, and other contamination measures have been studied.

Mr. Stovell concluded by saying that although germ warfare had not been used in the last war the possibility of its use still constituted a definite threat to the future.

Teen-Ager Bakes Best Cherry Pie

TORONTO (CP) — A 19-year-old Brantford high school student, Marilyn Jones, was named winner of the Canadian Pie Cherry Institute pie baking championship Tuesday. She won out over both male and female students for the crown.

Marilyn, who says she would like to be a home economics teacher, baked a pie using pies during Grade 5 home economics classes.

Second prize was won by Barbara Allen, Willowdale and third by Jack Nicholson, Burlington.

Reduce Bail Of Mine Head

MONTREAL (CP)—Judge Redmond Quinn today reduced to $5,000 from $100,000 the cash bail put up personally by John C. Doyle, provincial Canadian Javelin Limited, who faces charges of conspiracy, theft and fraud involving $4,800,000 in company stock.

Judge Roche said the evidence "that now is before me is much more compatible with his innocence than with his guilt."

Judge Roche is presiding at a preliminary hearing to decide whether there is sufficient evidence to commit Mr. Doyle to trial.

DWINDLING COAL

Canadian production of coal in 1959 was 10,555,000 tons, the smallest yearly total since 1908.

Will Regulate Job Agencies

TORONTO (CP)—A bill introduced in the legislature Tuesday would permit the government to make regulations "prescribing the fee, reward or other remuneration that may be charged by employment agencies."

Labor Minister Daley said the bill, called the Employment Agencies Act, also would prescribe a fine up to $500 for breaches of the regulations. And all such agencies would be licenced under the legislation.

Another bill, amending the Workmen's Compensation Act, would give widows and dependents of workmen killed on the job before April 2, 1953, increased compensation.

Mr. Daley said that in 1953 the compensation payable to defendants of cattle disease Rinderpest or cow pox which Allied intelligence had derived was being investigated by the Germans. Although no attack was ever made, this vaccine has been produced in great quantity during the war and was released for use in Asia at the conclusion of the hostilities where it proved very effective in curing cattle.

The speaker also discussed the nature of germ warfare, describing it as the spread of inducing sickness or death to military or civilian personnel, domestic animals or plants in order for a combatant to gain an advantage over his enemy. The methods of implementing a germ attack by airplanes low flying missiles and gas producing shells were explained. One method was that of seeding an area with an aerosol with pathogenic organisms which, preceded by a cold front, would affect the population of eastern Canada and the United States.

The defence against such an attack or method of warfare was also explained to the Kiwanians. Primarily an efficient intelligence service was required in order to find out what germs an enemy was producing. Then vaccine-measures could be devised by scientists to produce immunity from these germs.

Electronic devices have been developed to detect germ contamination in the air, the speaker said, and other contamination measures have been studied.

Mr. Stovell concluded by saying that although germ warfare had not been used in the last war the possibility of its use still constituted a definite threat to the future.

Refrigerator Cold Place To Take Bath

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Mrs. Jean Allgayer found son Ronnie, 3, nude and "cherry blue with cold" after two hours in electric icebox Tuesday.

Mrs. Allgayer, 26, and a girl playmate, likewise 4, used the refrigerator for a tub while they played "taking a bath." He shucked his clothes and crawled inside. The little girl slammed the door.

Mrs. Allgayer took the boy back to normal after the real bath and he appeared to suffer no ill effects.

Some of the more unusual coins owned by members of the Coin Club of Quinte are examined by Sgt. H. E. Anderson, treasurer; Mr. T. W. Smith of Frankford, and Mr. Holloway, president, and Mrs. Holloway, secretary, all of whom are founding members of the club. Coins pictured include a complete set of American Lincoln head cents, pieces of eight, a Spanish piece of eight, Canadian coins, and coins from Imperial Russia. (National Defence Photo).

Coin Collection Sound Investment Says Club Pres.

TRENTON—The newly-formed Bay of Quinte Coin Club held its first meeting this week. Members of this club, the first of its kind in the area, was formed last November by four RCAF employees and four civilians. Membership now stands at 25 and are now 14 members. The nearest similar club is in Peterborough.

LAC. Jerry Holloway is the president, Mrs. Holloway, secretary, and the treasurer is Sgt. H. E. Anderson.

Monthly meetings are held in No. 6 Repair Depot Social Centre. Programs consist of the exhibition of coins and sets of coins by one or more members. The person exhibiting will explain how the coins were obtained, discuss the value of the coins and bring up any unusual features. There is also an opportunity for trading. Plans for the future include incorporating sections into the meetings and the presentation of a public exhibition.

Although several of the members have valuable collections of ancient and foreign coins, the main interest is centred upon collecting Canadian coins and complete sets of Newfoundland coinage, last minted in 1947. Collections may consist of sets of some particular denomination, period or region, or of individual coins of interest.

According to President Holloway, a coin collection is a sound investment. The collector of complete sets of coins now in circulation is quite likely to possess a coin which will be considered rare within his lifetime. One of the highest-priced coins is the 1921 half dollar. Originally overissued the greater number of these coins were withdrawn from circulation and melted in 1928. The few which escaped the melting pot are now worth between $700 and $3,200.

Pennies and dimes which have a dot at the bottom of the face side from the year 1936 are worth $1,000 to $2,000. After the abolition of Edward VIII these coins were thus marked until a new die could be cast. Also considered rare are 1946 half dollars with a line joining the four and the six.

A native of Brighton, Warrant Officer Lindsey has conducted many such tours of the depot. Twenty-three boys from the senior classes visited the 6-RD machine shops, the paint shops and the drafting section. Mr. Charles Leppard, Director of the School, accompanied the boys. Brighton Resident, Aged 92, Has First Book Published TRENTON — Mrs. Mary Ann (Mutton) Down of Brighton, who was 92 years old January 19, has just had her first book published. Mrs. Down started to collect information about the Mutton, Philp and Dunnett families about twenty years ago. The original idea was that she was to read the compiled information at special 70th anniversary services at Shiloh Church. The ministers of the church at that time, Mr. Armstrong, died before the anniversary date and the special services were cancelled. Mrs. Down continued to search through old records for information concerning the original settlers of Shiloh. The settlement is north west of Brighton.

Last year, a niece, Miss Marion in Peterborough, revised Mrs. Down's notes, typed the manuscript and arranged to have the book published privately. The book is called "Ours To Remember".

The book not only gives details of the early life of Mrs. Down's parents and grandparents but also gives a complete history down to the present day, but also gives authentic glimpses of pioneer life in the district, with wonderful touches of humor.

Mrs. Down, who shares her home in Brighton with a girlhood friend, Mrs. Daniels, plays an active life, doing all her own housework, and finding time to crochet tablecloths for her granddaughters and great granddaughters, and maintain a diligent correspondence with friends and relatives.

Two years ago she was taken on a trip to Niagara Falls by her nieces. She enjoyed every minute of the 536-mile trip and insisted that climbing up Brock's monument would be no chore. "We'll be only have to climb one step at a time", she said which may well be described as Mrs. Down's philosophy of life.

Find Man's Body Near Brantford

BRANTFORD (CP)—Provincial police have begun investigating the death of a man whose body was found in a ditch on the Six Nations Indian reserve about 10 miles south of here, today.

The victim was identified as Peter Davis, about 40. Police are investigating the possibility he may be a hit-and-run victim.

'Thinking Day' Observed by Guides, Brownies

TRENTON — Guides and Brownies of Trenton (Airforce) companies held a packs observance Girl Guide Thinking Day with services at St Peter's Chapel, Canadian and Protestant, on Sunday.

The service at the Protestant Chapel was conducted by Flight Lieutenant C. W. Boyer, chaplain. Squadron Leader H. S. Wright, Command Chaplain for Air Transport Command conducted the Catholic service.

Both services included the presentation of the Union Jack and of company colors. Color parties were formed from the following Guides: Debbie Andrews, Ellen Daly, Patty Ann Clarke, Maureen Coker, Marianne Clifford, Danielle Daoust, Jill Gorman, Nora Hayes, Gail Henry, Barbara Lynch, Carol McFadden, Clare Nelson, Connie Makay, Joan Rogerson, Patricia Suley, Dianne Sligh, Poppy Trumbley, Edith Ann Taylor.

Public Speaking Contest Held By Lions Club

TRENTON—The annual Lions Club Public Speaking Contest was held last evening in the auditorium of Trenton High School.

Mrs. Sprague, wife of Lion Ken Nostrand Sprague, who is well-known in this area for his interest in this field, was guest adjudicator.

Preceding the program, Mr. Sprague spoke to the audience, explaining the rules of the contest. He said that the Lions Club felt that training in public speaking would be an advantage to any young person, in whatever field of endeavor he decided to follow in the future.

Winner of the Senior Beery Trophy was Bob Halladay. Bob also received a gift certificate will grace the wall of his schoolroom for a year, and a cheque from the Lions Club. He will go on to the regional competition. His subject was, "Canada's Impact on the United States."

Marabelle Libling, who displayed honest talent for competition, and her address, which she explained was "a family heritage."

The judges were Mrs. A. Mason, district chairman of the Girl Guides, Dr. A. E. MacKenzie, and Mr. Bert Simpson, all of Belleville.

Present at the competition was Jack Dyble, Lions Zone Chairman. Miss Margaret St. Hilaire played several vocal solos between sections of the contest.

Elvis Presley Will Continue Rock 'n' Roll

BAD NAUHEIM, Germany (AP)—Elvis Presley, 24, preparing to leave for the United States to get his army discharge, said Tuesday the first thing he is going to do is make more rock 'n' roll records.

"One thing is sure, I'm not going to change my style," he said in an interview when asked whether he thought there had been many changes in music tastes during his two-year stay in the army.

"I've no reason to change," he maintained. "The people will let you know when you should."

Elvis is expected to leave for New York next week, but the exact date is a military secret because the army doesn't want a teen-age riot.

May Not Start Two Hospitals This Year

TORONTO (CP)—Construction of an Ontario hospital at Goderich and a psychiatric hospital institute at Toronto may not be started for another year, Health Minister Dymond told the legislature Tuesday night.

Speaking on the Throne speech debate, Dr. Dymond said plans for the two hospitals are still with the architects and "they tell me at least a year is necessary to prepare the plans."

Ontario hospitals are also to be built at Owen Sound and Peterston, where land has already been obtained.

Mr. Dymond was answering charges made two weeks ago by James Trotter (L—Toronto Parkdale) who said the Frost government has not kept its promise to build more accommodation for the province's mentally retarded.

He said he personally rejected the plans for the Goderich hospital because they "were not acceptable to me."

Dr. Dymond, speaking of successes in the treatment of mental health cases, said the health department is now involved in a program to open outpatients centres in every hospital.

There are 30,000 beds in the mentally ill now contain 21,783 patients. In 1959 there were 5,270 first admissions and 5,338 discharges up to the end of November.

Compact Car Demand Said Overestimated

VANCOUVER (CP)—The demand for North American compact cars has been overestimated by both the public and the manufacturers, F. H. Walker, president of General Motors of Canada said Tuesday.

Mr. Walker said despite the interest in compacts and small imported cars, the average Canadian still prefers, and buys, the standard Canadian car.

Here for the opening of GM's Motorama, he said the Corvair, GM's first domestic product in the small-car market, is selling well at the price class it is in and not competing with GM's British-built products.

He said the possibility of building a small car in Canada similar to Vauxhall's Envoy is under continuous study by GM.

New Approach to Trade?

Are we on the threshold of an age in which international trade will be internationally organized?

There are signs of it, not so much in the actual formation of trade groups like the European Common Market and the Outer Seven as in stray observations and even actions.

Heretofore, trade policies have, by and large, fallen into one of two classifications, fulfilling the ideals of the free traders or the protectionists. If free traders have often talked as if they were more internationally-minded than protectionists, who are frankly interested in the welfare of industries at home, this internationalism was more a fancy than a fact. Those who advocated free trade were almost always those who benefited from such a policy.

It is still self interest which is behind the concern that Canada's two major farm groups, the Canadian Federation of Agriculture and the Interprovincial Farm Union Council, have expressed regarding the possibility of curbs against imports. Farmers have come to be more customer for Canadian agricultural products. But she already buys more from Canada than she sells to this country. If barriers are raised against her imports to this country, Canadian farmers may lose an important market, or at least find that it does not expand as rapidly as it otherwise might.

This would be an old story were it not for the fact that Japan appears to be taking an unconventional attitude. According to an article by Bruce Hutchison in Maclean's Magazine, Japan's government already has imposed restrictions which prevent Japanese manufacturers from exporting goods to other countries at prices out of line with those prevailing in the importing countries. In other words, Japan is taking the long view, preferring to win permanent acceptance for her products instead of endeavouring to push into new markets as rapidly as possible by taking every advantage possible of lower costs of production resulting from cheaper labor and, in many cases, advanced techniques. The heavy damage to her productive facilities which Japan suffered from U.S. air attacks has, paradoxically enough, proved a blessing in disguise in some instances, since the industries she had to rebuild were equipped with the most modern machinery.

Nor is this restraint in pushing into new markets the only unusual feature of modern Japanese trade policy. She has deliberately converted her manufacturing facilities to concentrate on the production of quality goods requiring skilled workmen and the use of ingenious machines. This leaves the market for the products of less skilled workers and less involved techniques open to the new factories springing up in India, China and other populous Asian lands. Of course, it could be argued that the Japanese did not want to have to face the competition of lands where labor costs are even lower than in Japan, but it is also true that by this action the Japanese have made things much easier for their own people in the task of entering the industrial age and which would otherwise have had to fight Japan for markets.

It may be that the Japanese example influenced a decision at a recent two-day ministerial conference between the U.S. and Canada. The communique of the conference agreed that European lands and other industrialized countries should take more of Asia's low-cost manufactured goods, to ease the flood of these products into the North American market.

If European countries accept the proposal, we shall see a different type of trade, not precisely free and yet designed to make it possible for every land to sell abroad those goods which it is best equipped to produce at home.

We are not so sure that coal miners in Derbyshire, England, may not be acting in a similiar spirit in a current campaign against the use of oil for heat and power. The miners' union has instructed its representatives in local government and on school and hospital boards to see that these institutions do not convert to the use of oil. This may seem contrary to the spirit of free trade principles, but it seems in keeping with the spirit which leads the Japanese government to forbid exporters to sell below a certain price. A long term view is essential and surely this view suggests a country ought to make use of its own resources to meet its own needs, even if this involves slightly higher costs. Similarly, we suggest, Canadians ought to give preference to the use of uranium, natural gas or oil from Western fields over imported U.S. coal for purposes of power production and heating.

Ongoing world trade so that all nations have a chance to earn a living is not going to be an easy task but it looks as if we might be seeing a start made on this project. Rather obviously, this result could never be obtained by either advocating free trade, with no barriers to the flow of goods across national boundaries nor by insisting that home industries always be protected against the competition of imports. If the objective is obtained, it will only be after innumerable compromises.

Hear, Hear!

During the Ottawa discussions about a world fair for Montreal in 1967 Mr. Diefenbaker, while refraining from putting forward definite proposals, as the news story put it, said he felt the centenary celebrations should not emphasize fireworks, bands and speeches. Well, no speeches, anyway. (Montreal Star.)

Rail Union's View Praised

Ottawa Citizen

The objection taken by the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employes toward a checkoff of union dues for political purposes is well conceived. The proposal, made by some members of the new left wing party now being formed—though by no means all—is that union contracts include a provision on behalf of dues paid to the new party. Union members would retain the right to contract out.

But this right would clearly be spurious. A union member who found himself in a minority would undoubtedly come under severe pressure from his workmates to allow part of his pay to be earmarked as a contribution to the new party. In the result, men who had no conscience in support the party would in practice have to contribute toward it if they wished to keep their jobs.

This is facism. There is no other word for it. The intentions of those members of the new party who made the proposal were no doubt excellent. They probably reasoned that since the party will support labor, and since labor in Canada groups support the new party, it is only fair that the dues of union members should have an opportunity to contribute to it through a checkoff system.

But they have failed to take into account the right which each individual union members give to the Canadian Labor Congress Parties, as indicated by voting results in such highly industrialized areas as Hamilton and Brantford. And they have failed to take into account the fact that the principle of the privacy of the polling booth would be violated if a union member were coerced out. His political views would be known. Pressure to vote as others come possible for over-zealous adherents of the new party to be brought to bear on him.

The Canadian Labor Congress has no authority to dictate to its affiliated unions in political matters, though the CLC itself is encouraging formation of the new party. But it has no authority to individual union locals, when drawing up collective bargaining contracts to dictate to the conscience of its rank-and-file members.

More Changes Needed in Act

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

Amendments to the Liquor Control Act introduced by Attorney-General Roberts are disappointing in that they do not go far enough in rationalizing "puritanical" provisions of the act and bringing it up to the times.

The amended legislation will still make it a crime for anyone serving a drink in his home unless he is a guest or members of his household.

It will be within the law to carry liquor from a liquor store indirectly to one's residence, provided the seal is not broken. And it will also be legal to carry liquor from one residence to another even if the seal has been broken. So far so good. These are things sanction what has been fairly common practice.

But some of the nuisance features of the regulations will remain. For instance, unless the government can be persuaded to change its mind, for instance, the liquor permit serves as a barrier aside from the fact that it is a revenue producer on top of the treasury's already generous take of intoxicants.

It is regrettable, too, that the act isn't being amended to permit hotels to serve intoxicants in hotel rooms. This would go a long way in reducing drinking in public by packs of many of whom would be satisfied with a drink or two if they were legal to have such service.

It is not yet too late to include this recommendation in the act, a change which would promote more moderate drinking.

Teen-Agers Are Symbols of Modern Living

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Speaking of new words, as I was recently, it is hard to realize that only 20 years ago there was no such animal as a "teenager." Not only that, but even the word, had not yet been invented.

A generation ago, you were a child until you became a man or a woman, just as there is a child's world, not in the hazy and undefined half-world in which boys and girls exist today.

Over-exposure to new forms of civilization has produced a race of pimpy adults today called "teen-agers," and I feel sorry for them. They are chronological half-castes, who belong in neither world — they are too knowing for the pleasant myths of childhood, and too immature for the harsh realities of adulthood.

We have done this dreadful thing for which posterity will have to rebuke us, and which we ourselves have pushed them too far and too fast, putting the boys and girls pants before they could toddle, furnishing nail-polish for the little girls, exposing them to pleasures and stimulations and material possessions they neither need nor understand, and cared much about at first.

The adolescent society is a shock and a scandal to the rest of the civilized world, and it should be the task of sociologists to discover the deep reasons for the fact juvenile delinquency and the whole problem of the troubled "teen-ager," is merely a symptom of our own frantic tempo of living, our own relationship to money and to the pursuit of happiness, our own over-emphasis on things and not people, on speed and excitement and "getting the most" out of life without putting the most into it.

DEBT AND PAYMENT

Do you pull your own weight in the boat? Do you pay your own freight?

Think about it for a moment. Do you? There is a way, of course, in which all of us fail right here, for our achievements are so in contrast with God's greatness and providence that we may all call ourselves unprofitable servants. And yet there is a way in which we can repay God in some measure for having given us the high opportunity. We can repay our debt to society by serving it in some measure.

Many people go through life purely in the spirit of the parasite. They live off others. They let the unselfish serve them without giving any service in return. They are out to get as much out of life as possible and to put into it as little as possible. The world owes them a living — they owe nothing to the world.

Now if we had to deal only with people who are conspicuous because of this abominable attitude toward life, there would not be much of a problem involved. The problem arises from the fact that you and I and many others of us are guilty of the bit of this parasitical spirit within us. We complain frequently about the way the world is weighed in the boat. It hurts us to think that the freight charge of our insurance premiums is so high. Let us thrill at the opportunity of being able to make some slight payment against a great debt.

How thrilling the experience is of being independent and self-sufficient. The world owes us nothing. God owes us nothing. Let us thrill at the opportunity of being able to make some slight payment against a great debt.

How thrilling the experience is of being independent and self-sufficient. The world owes us nothing. God owes us nothing. Let us thrill at the opportunity of being able to make some slight payment against a great debt.

One of my friends who uses liquor the way he uses Worcestershire sauce or ketchup, which is to add a bit to his days as to his meals, was lately ordered by his physician to cut liquor entirely. He was gaining weight to a point that his doctor thought was dangerous to his heart.

So my friend, a most moderate drinker for more than 30 years, proceeded to go on the wagon. But a curious thing happened. He would go for a week or ten days without the couple of snorts he had been accustomed, for years, to imbibe before dinner. And

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

NEW DRUG MAY HELP PREVENT HEART ATTACKS

"Dear Dr. Molner: After reading your column on 'How apparently healthy people die of heart attacks,' I wonder about one thing. I understand there is a medicine to counteract clotting of the blood. If so, why can't this be taken regularly by apparently healthy people say at the age of 45, even if there is no sign of heart trouble? Wouldn't this be a preventive in many cases? — Mrs. H."

This is a reasonable enough question, and one that many people have asked — including doctors and research people.

It may some day be possible to develop a drug that will serve such a purpose. And perhaps not. Some research information on a new one, aired at that very purpose, was reported at a scientific meeting in December. So there is thought being devoted to the idea.

On the other hand, it is not as easy a problem as you might suppose. Suppose you cut yourself: this why does blood have to clot? Else, to start to prevent bleeding, or to stop it when you have a cut or some other wound.

If the blood didn't clot, you would, when you cut yourself a time, die just from cutting a finger. Remember that there are people who have hemophilia, and even a scratch is a serious thing because hemophiliacs ("bleeders") have blood which refuses to clot.

So suppose you gave people a drug which prevented clotting? Hemophiliacs would be close to "bleeders". If they didn't suffer a cut or scratch, there would still be the danger of internal bleeding, a small stomach ulcer, for example.

There's another factor to be considered, the heart attacks themselves. Why do they come to older people instead of young ones? Because the arteries become hardened and coated with a gradual accumulation of fatty material so that a clot which, under the circumstances of youth, would pass through readily, now finally catches and clogs a size narrowed artery, and the heart artery. The problem isn't just one of moderate clots; it is also a matter of the size of the tubes (or arteries) through which they must move small, or later a bit, they break up.

The new drug on the early report said it designed to clear away some of the accumulation which clogs down the size of the arteries. If it works, it will be a great boon to us. But it is a little too much to expect that just one new drug is going to be the answer to the whole problem. It is too much like hoping for a fountain of youth, or medicine that will "cure everything".

Let's be hard-headed. For the sake of argument, so we have been living in an age of great medical progress, more during this quarter than in any other age in all history. But let's not expect too much too soon.

Yes, we have drugs now which can inhibit clotting, but we have yet to watch the patient carefully, and after a certain period of time opposite - eating drug which restores the necessary ability of the blood to clot and protect us.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I get hay fever every year and was wondering what you think I should do. — E. S."

Have your doctor refer you to an allergist as soon as possible. Hay fever can be eased greatly, but treatment to do the best for you, should be started at least several months before the hay fever season starts.

Note to B.S.: There's no reason a low-salt diet should have any effect on your arthritis. The diet was prescribed for your heart, not for the arthritis.

New Zealand Sells Venison

Federal Dept. of Trade and Commerce Release

New Zealand, long noted for its excellent meat products, is shipping a new one to world markets — venison. A company on New Zealand's West Coast is breeding and selling deer to buyers in North America and Europe. Business is booming at about 10,000 pounds a month at present, and the country is looking forward to much bigger sales in future. Plans call for immediate expansion of shipments to 16,000 pounds a month, and within one year to 80,000.

Where do the New Zealanders get all these deer? The forests are overrun with them, according to a report from the Wellington office of the Canadian Trade Commissioner Service which is devoted to trade. Eight species of the animals were introduced into New Zealand during the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries, and the climate and terrain suited the deer perfectly.

The New Zealand deer-packing company employs six permanent hunters who work in the mountains to round up trucks but close to aircraft landing strips. From there the freshly killed deer are flown directly to packinghouses on the coast.

THE JOY OF DISCOVERY

Is there any joy quite so thrilling to yourself, and then to invite others into your joy.

There is a place for every healthy human being if he will but discover it and make his success one to inspire others.

Kettering, noted "boss" of General Motors, once said that there were not enough men for the jobs that were then waiting for them to find their own. It is a fact that if all the workers part 30 were to be dismissed, there wouldn't be enough remaining to carry on our great industries.

Irked Trains Run on Time

Derby, England, has come up with an unusual but understandable complaint. Trains are running on time, and as a result people are missing them.

This is a sidelight on the adaptability of the human race, which adjusts to the inconvenings of civilization; and of the perverseness of officialdom, in making unannounced changes in behavior.

What the British railways won't do, people of Derby now must learn to do, or miss their trains. They'll set their clocks a few minutes ahead, in that unofficial "fast time" common to so many households, even here.

Greater Use of New Communication Techniques to Spread Gospel Urged

TORONTO—By its name and nature The United Church of Canada is called to bear a special witness to the gospel of peace, Rev. J. R. Mutchmor, secretary of the United Church's Board of Evangelism and Social Service, told the annual meeting of his board in Toronto on Tuesday.

He said that the United Church stands for "right relations among men. We work at this task at home and abroad."

Dr. Mutchmor declared that peace will not be won only by political, financial and military leaders. The leaders of the Christian churches must, he thought, word and greet, do all in their power to build peace.

"United Church evangelism must be related to the gospel of the Kingdom," the board secretary declared. "Ours is an evangelical and reformed Church. We give first place to the gospel of the Kingdom. I believe that the gospel of the Kingdom alone can save man and his society on all the fronts of life: economic, social, political and internationalal."

"The best evangelism will be done by the Church," he related, "by ministers and laymen going out two by two, house by house, apartment by apartment and room by room," Dr. Mutchmor said that his method would get results for God.

The secretary urged his board to devote more attention to communicating the gospel by modern methods of newspaper, radio and television. He said that while the United Church had pioneered in these fields, far more must be done. He advocated new developments in radio and television which would place the United Church near the top in the use of the new communication techniques.

Describing the modern Christian, Dr. Mutchmor said "The Christian in today's affluent society is superficial in belief. He is ready to go anywhere, anytime, but seldom as an apostle of Christ's name. He is somewhat willing to give, at least of his surplus, particularly if the gift can be listed as a deductable item in his income tax return."

On Church membership, Dr. Mutchmor pointed out that on the world front the number of Christians is lower than twenty years ago. "On the North American front Church membership is on a high peak, but the proletetic ministry of the Church is weaker," he said. "The Church has slipped from her former high place in public affairs."

On Church fills, the Board Secretary declared: "The most threatening evidence of the protestant Church's weakness is her increasing concern with fills. A disproportionate amount of time and effort is being spent on pulpit drapes, clergy gowns, altar lighting and bits and pieces of unimportant liturgy. The tragedy is that these signs of weakness appear in a day of revolution, change and challenge."

On the moral front Dr. Mutchmor said, "A relatively large proportion of homes continue to be broken by desertion and divorce. The illegitimacy and abortion rates are slightly higher. The alcoholism rate is a record high and increasing. Juvenile delinquency and major crimes are at top levels. Dishonest practices are more common in business. Labor's code of ethics has slumped. Gambling has increased. Observance of the Lord's Day has declined slightly.

Urges Prairie Council to Seek Federal Help

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Edmond Prefontaine, Liberal-Progressive member for Cariboo, Tuesday called on the Manitoba government to propose creation of a joint Prairie provinces executive council to present Prairie problems to the federal government.

Other provincial legislatures discussed a range of topics from agriculture to mineral.

Provincial Agriculture Minister Newton Steacy charged in the British Columbia House that the federal government had failed to provide tariff protection for agricultural products against American competition.

He said a bill providing protection had been put through commons but never proclaimed.

Meanwhile, in Ottawa, Revenue Minister Nowlan proclaimed the bill almost at the same time as Mr. Steacy made his charge.

STARTS THRONE DEBATE

At the other end of the country Liberal Leader Louis J. Robichaud launched the throne speech debate in the New Brunswick legislature. He said a restatement of government policy is needed if comments with a reported agreement between a provincial mining and smelting corporation and Sogemines Limited of Montreal and Belgium.

Mr. Robichaud said reports of an agreement to begin production indicated the province would be unable to build a smelter for at least five years and mineral would be shipped to Belgium for processing.

In the Quebec assembly, Colonization Minister Joseph-Damase Begin denied the department paid an irregular price for seeds purchased from his friends. He was replying to a Liberal member's charges that he had paid higher than market prices for his friends' seeds.

In Saskatchewan, where Canada's only CCF government holds office, the Liberal Opposition attempted to postpone new party being sponsored by the CCF and the Canadian Labor Congress.

Jack Horsman (L—Wilkie) said the CCF wants the new party because it is at the end of its rope.

Court Refuses Boy Murderer Leave to Appeal

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada refused Tuesday to hear an appeal by Steven Murray Truscott against his murder conviction for the rape slaying of 12-year-old Lynne Harper.

The court's decision—an unanimous one—was made by a panel of five judges headed by Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin after a hearing Monday of an application by John O'Driscoll, Toronto counsel for the 15-year-old youth.

Reasons for judgment written by Chief Justice Kerwin said:

"After considering Mr. O'Driscoll's argument with respect to each of the points taken by him, we are all of opinion that no case has been made out for the granting of leave to appeal and the application for it therefore is dismissed."

The court's action in issuing reasons on applications for leave to appeal is unusual since such applications the normal practice is merely to say whether the application has been granted or refused.

The Supreme Court's unanimous decision paralleled the action of the Ontario Appeal Court, which unanimously dismissed an appeal against the conviction.

Truscott was 14 at the time he was convicted at Goderich, Ont., of the June 9, 1959, slaying of the girl in a wood near the RCAF station at Clinton, Ont.

He now is in the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph after having his death sentence commuted by the federal cabinet to life imprisonment.

Brand, Downey Proposed for TTC Board

TORONTO (CP)—Metropolitan Toronto council Tuesday backed Ford Brand, a former city controller, and Clarence Downey, former Swansea reeve, for appointment to the Transportation Commission.

In a straight majority vote after an angry debate, the committee recommended Mr. Brand for a three-year term and Mr. Downey for a one-year term. Commissioners are paid $8,000 a year.

Hattler, Controller William Allen withdrew his name from the list of candidates. He said later he would give serious consideration to entering the city mayoralty race next December.

Voices Concern over Growth of Alcoholism

TORONTO — Notable advances in the facilities and program of the Alcohol Research and Education Council of B.C. were described by the Rev. Robert S. Christie, executive secretary of the United Church's Board of Evangelism and Social Service, at the board's annual meeting in Toronto on Tuesday.

Mr. Christie said that there is a growing public concern and participation in the temperance groups in B.C. He said: "Confronted by their aggressive and greedy sales promotion campaigns, coupled with the alarming growth in the number of alcoholics, the beer and liquor industries are cutting their own throats? Drinkers and non-drinkers alike have to resent the liquor industries' open invasion of their privacy — particularly the privacy of the home — by their through printed journal and TV advertisements which too often circumvent provincial controls. Who knows but what the very excesses of the liquor industries' practices account for the current increase in the anti-booze sentiment?"

Describing the many activities Mr. Christie said he had participated in, such as addressing drive in Vancouver for the relief of flood victims and served on the Mayor's Committee for the shelter of Vancouver's unemployed; assisted in a survey of mental health resources and had helped in the planning winter employment campaign.

Reporting on the United Church's new hostel for drug addicts in Edmonton, Mr. Christie said: "It is too early to properly assess its development".

MINISTER DIES

BRANTFORD (CP)—Rev. Fred Sirdie, assistant minister at Wesley United Church, died Monday night after collapsing in front of his church. Mr. Sirdie, a native of England, came to Canada 35 years ago and held ministerial posts in Stratford, Windsor, Tilbury and Petrolia.

Women's Institutes

UNIONDALE W.I.

UNIONDALE — The February meeting of Uniondale Women's Institute was in the form of a "Family Night" at Scott's Church Hall with a pot-luck supper and variety program.

A sleigh crowd sat down to a sumptuous supper; grace was sung and all did justice to the delicious food.

The program was given in the church with Mrs. Max Dodds as convener. The first item being a reading by Mrs. Robert Bush, "Ode To Be an Investor's Wife", followed by a solo, "Winter Wonderland", by Marilyn Phillips; a song, "When I am Big Somedays", by children of South Sunday School; a musical reading, "The Touch of the Master's Hand", by Mrs. George Burkitt, accompanied on piano, with soft music by Mrs. Robert Burkitt.

Mrs. Milton Grills led in community singing, "Jingle Bells" and "S-M-I-L-E-S"; Mrs. Frank Phillips a reading, "What is a Committee?"; a duet, "Dear Hearts and Gentle People", by Mrs. Milton Grills.

Mr. Roy Davis, of Belleville, gave an interesting talk on Colonel Burkitt, who showed films of his trip around the world while a representative of the Colonel Burkitt with the United Nations. These were appreciated by all.

Mrs. Max Dodds thanked Mr. Davis and presented him with a gift from the Women's Institute.

Mrs. Robert Burkitt favored with a duet of International songs.

Mrs. Frank Loney thanked all for making the evening a success.

The March meeting will be at Mrs. E. Sine's with an Irish program. Convener, Mrs. G. Striker; assisting committees, E. Anderson, G. Burkitt, R. Burkitt, G. Striker, A. Martyn and G. Harrington.

CHAPMAN'S W.I.

The February meeting of the Chapman's Women's Institute was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Mitchell Bannie, who opened the meeting in the usual manner.

The secretary, Mrs. William Cook, read the correspondence, which included an invitation to a Coffee Party for March 17, from Carmel Institute; a letter for donations to Mental Health. Officers' conference in Guelph held May 5-6, of which the public relations convener, Mrs. Burton Coulter was appointed as delegate; leadership training school for the Girls' Club held in Madoc on February 25-26, and a letter from "Club Girl Stands On Guard." Mrs. William Boothe and Mrs. Doris Lawrenson were appointed leaders, with Mrs. Don Martin and Mrs. Burton Coulter as assistants.

The president asked the members to remember the shut-in members.

Mrs. Albert McTaggart was convener for the balance of the program on "Citizenship." Mrs. McTaggart gave a reading on the "Hoodless Birthplace," the birthplace of the woman who started Institute work. Mrs. Tom Kelly gave a splendid paper on "Banking."

Mrs. Stanley Webb gave a summary of the 1950's, which was most interesting.

Mrs. Tom Lyon read a paper, "The Open Door."

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her committee, and a social half hour was enjoyed.

YOUNG READERS

Children between 5 and 14 years old, 20 per cent of the population, formed 41 per cent of the borrowers from larger public libraries in 1957.

Credit System Discussed At Women's Study Guild

On Monday evening the Women's Study Guild convened at the home of Mrs. A. Orr, Foster Avenue, for the February meeting. The president, Mrs. L. F. Reid, welcomed the members and conducted the business.

A letter of appreciation from the Guide's Italian Relief child was read to the members. Mrs. Wishart accepted the collection of knitting wool to be sent through the Unitarian Service Committee, to Korea, to aid in teaching girls professional knitting.

Mrs. Mills conducted the devotional service, reading 1st Corinthians 10:24.

A short sermon entitled, "To the Glory of God," by the Rev. W. P. Hares, was read, stating in part that "whatever one does, should be done to the glory of God.No task is too trivial or unimportant in His sight. It is not the king of work we do, but the quality that counts. We must bring the Golden Rule down from the heights and weave it into our everyday living."

Mrs. Sloan and Mrs. Reid presented the program on "Credit Buying". Mrs. Sloan introduced the topic by stating that the word "credit" means belief or trust; influence or authority resulting from the confidence of others; or from one's reputation, and time allowed for payment for goods obtained on trust.

PRIME FACTOR

In the world of industry and trade, credit is a prime factor. Without the power of credit facilitating the rapid distribution of goods the enormous productive capacity would soon clog the channels and seriously disrupt economy.

"Governments and municipalities borrow to operate. Credit buying is a reflection of a prosperous era and is almost nonexistent during a depression.

"In many of the European and Asian countries it is almost unknown. Great Britain has only recently begun to have a small amount of it, and as recently as January of this year, the Russians are beginning to have this glorious privilege.

"Whether we like it or not, the credit system is part of our economy, and affects almost every one of us. Even if we never actually go into a store, pick out an item, make a down payment, sign an agreement for stated terms and walk out with the article, one-twelfth paid for, we are still affected by the credit method of payment.

"For example, our bi-monthly public utilities accounts is on a credit basis since we have used the service before we pay for it.

INTEREST RATES

"The custom of charging interest is as old as Babylon. Clay tablets dug up in the valley of the Euphrates tell of interest transactions. The common rate in Babylon was 20 percent and in 40 percent. Charging interest is an ancient practice, but it has not always been a respectable one.

"Ancient societies often banned it. Aristotle denounced it so did Moses. The early Christian Church called it sinful, but people went right on charging interest, ignoring the bans or getting around them. Not until the days of Henry VIII did charging interest come to be accepted as a normal, ethical practice that should be regulated, not outlawed.

"Lending today is a business, whether it be lending on a family or to a corporation. It is a profitable way of employing savings, as is running a beauty parlor, making bedsprings or selling sportswear. But, if you must use credit, look for the kind of lender who is doing business on your level. The arguments for and against, rage hot and heavy."

Mrs. Read dealt with the sources from which one may borrow money or obtain credit. These are: credit unions, small and large retail stores and finance companies.

In discussing interest rates she stated that the rate of interest is always in ratio to the risk involved. It was learned that in Canada 90 per cent of the people are honest and that credit cards for a variety of goods and services are being more widely used every day.

CREDIT BUREAU

A Credit Bureau in a municipality or district is an important and valuable asset to business men. The local credit bureau is highly regarded as being accurate and most dependable.

A lively debate continued during tea which was served by the hostesses, Mrs. McLeod and Mrs. McLeod.

Mrs. Murdoch closed the meeting.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

These have been days of celebration for Guides and Brownies — it is their fiftieth anniversary and last Monday, was their Thinking Day.

An inspiring story appears in their Journal of the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts, "The Council Fire". The story had to do with India at the time of partition and was written because this is World Refugee Year. There was a strong feeling of pride in the work Guiding was able to do in the rehabilitation of refugees. Punjab, the beautiful land of the five rivers, suffered the most as a result of the partition of the subcontinent into two countries. There was a mass exchange of population, the Hindus had to come over to the east and the Muslims to the west. They had to leave their native soil, hearth, home and all their belongings and cross the border, some in trains, buses and other conveyances, but mostly on foot with their families.

Unfortunately this did not take place peacefully and many lost their nearest and dearest and all their belongings. Thousands of children became orphans, women were left as widows and many parents lost their children.

Like everything else, Guiding was at a standstill just after partition. It was started in 1950 again and had to be done from scratch. Guiding started in the refugee centre in Jullundur in 1954 and has been responsible for amount of good for those unclothed little children who have grown up as young girls since the time of partition. Through the Thinking Day Fund from all over the world, guides of the refugee centres are provided with full uniforms, equipment and books. They are also taken out for camps and participation in rallies and other activities.

The very smiles and spirit of these girls have entirely changed. They have got rid of the effects of the terrible times they had been through and are bright, happy, cheerful, and ready to help others. The Promise and the Laws play an important part in their daily lives, and at the beginning of World Refugee Year, these girls were all pledged themselves to help others in a different way and to lessen the sorrows and sufferings of others in the world around them. Their hearts go out to the other refugee children all over the world.

This same spirit is exemplified in the motto of a Guide House in West Germany:

Build a bridge,
from country to country,
from heart to heart,
from earth to heaven.

Have you heard of some of the newest conveniences in the 1960 automobiles that will be especially beneficial to women? One is a new accelerator pedal which has a depression at the lower end so as to fit a woman's high heels more comfortably. Women will also like the mirrored instrument panel on another of the newer cars which is so adjusted as to prevent wiewing for anyone regardless of size or position.

It has been pointed out that clothing can be a source of danger in driving a car, if it happens to be the sort of dangling type that can get caught in car controls. Jewellery is a hazard, bracelets and costume jewellery in particular, something that catches on the selector lever or the lever on the turn signals could cause quite a mix-up.

A few weeks ago we mentioned that lingerie is now being sold in cans in some grocery chains; it seemed just a new novel idea. But now the sad news comes out. Stockings and pieces of underwear could be so easily lost in the pockets, that the theft loss was becoming very great. And so — canned lingerie!

BLAMES NAGGING

ENFIELD, England (CP) — A man charged with stealing a television set, a tape recorder and refrigerator from a home in this Middlesex town said he had been driven to crime by constant nagging from his wife. He was jailed for one year.

BLAMES HEELS

TORQUAY, Eng. (CP)—Stiletto heels on women's shoes are ruining floors in council-owned cafes and restaurants, a councilor of this Devon resort charged. He said the only solution was to make women take their shoes off at the door, like the Moslems.

Peterborough Girl Began Whistling in High Chair

PTERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP)— Mignon Maynoord began whistling in her high chair and her puckered pastime has carried her to the concert stage.

A mezzo whistler with a two-octave range, Miss Maynoord believes she is the only concert whistler in Canada.

Her debut was at age four, when she whistled in a Sunday school concert. Her high school years were crowded with concerts, piano lessons and singing lessons. But she gave up the singing. "Singing and whistling don't go together."

She doesn't hold out much encouragement for anyone wishing to follow her example, however. Training is almost impossible to find. She perfected her technique with a book Whistling as an Art written by the late Agnes Woodward of Los Angeles, and translated by Dr. Ernest Nickel of Ohio, who gave her a few lessons during his vacation near here.

Miss Maynoord says she is a "pentecostal", whatever who tells easily but finds the yodel difficult.

Dr. Nickel advised her to turn professional, but she preferred the security of her job with the borough bank.

"I'm grateful to God for my talent," she says. "It has opened many doors to me and provided me with a full and wonderful life."

CONCERT WHISTLER

Mignon Maynoord of Peterborough, Ont., believes she is the only concert whistler in Canada. Shown here practising, she says she has been whistling since she was a child. Miss Maynoord, a bank employee, is a mezzo whistler with a range of two octaves. She has performed on concert stages across Canada. (CP Photo).

Pine Grove W.I. Views Hydro Farm Slides

MARSH HILL — The February meeting of Pine Grove W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. William Slater with nine members, three visitors and five children present.

The president, Mrs. Slater opened the meeting.

During the business it was decided to make a donation to the Red Cross and also to have a social evening on March 1. The committee is to include Mrs. Alyn Finkle, Mrs. Alex Tanner, and Mrs. William Slater.

It was also decided to have meetings in the evening in the future.

Mrs. Charles Ross, home economics convener introduced Mr. Grant Webber, representative of Farm Sales of Ontario, who showed slides on how hydro can be used on the farm. He warned against over loading the system.

Mr. Webber was thanked for his interesting and informative address.

Several members asked Mr. Webber questions and a shortbills cussion followed.

Mrs. Ross read a short poem, "Hints on the Use of Salt", and "Almonds and Raisins".

Current events were given by Mrs. George Stoliker.

Refreshments were served.

Telephone Etiquette Talk At H.S. Meeting

MARMORA — Marmora Public School Home and School Association February meeting was held in the Central School when Founders' Night was celebrated.

In the absence of Mrs. James Thomson, the vice-president, Mrs. Roy Baker, presided.

Following the business meeting, an acrostic was put on by Mrs. J. Dunlop using the names of stones of the Association. Faith, Loyalty, Service and Inter-Tolerance, with Mrs. V. Glover, Mrs. J. Grant, Mrs. Jayne Walker and Mrs. R. Barker, representing the pairs.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Barker introduced Mr. G. W. Proctor, District Manager of the Bell Telephone Company, who, after a short talk, introduced the guest speaker, Miss Florence Lemoges of the Public Relations Department Bell Telephone Company of Montreal. Miss Lemoges spoke on "telephone etiquette," modulation of voice, using tape recorder with telephones to demonstrate.

At the social hour, a birthday cake was served.

Mrs. Spry's room won the banner for parents' attendance.

"BLUE MONDAY" BLUES

That "Get out of the wrong side of the bed" feeling is one with which we are all familiar. When afflicted with this universal complaint, ask yourself, "Is this you?"

With one eye on the clock, you wait until the last minute to heed the fact that time is moving on. Suddenly you remember that important early appointment at the office. A football rush is tame compared to the activities from then on.

Your wife is the unfortunate recipient of acid comment because her shower seems unduly prolonged. Then you set up a howl because that suit you particularly wanted to wear had not come back from the cleaner. Of course no other suit will do. A bellow to Mary, the faithful maid, elicits the information that the socks she washed yesterday aren't dry. Result: a bawling out for Mary. Added result: Mary threatens to leave.

You retur to your morning ablutions accompanied by much muttering. A sharp verbal exchange then takes place with Junior about his making so much founded mouth noise. Result: Junior dissolves into loud howls and you nick your chin!

This cheerful beginning now evolves into the battle of family mate objects: The bureau drawer that refuses to open; the recalcitrant tie that refuses to tie; and the final blow — the broken shoe lace. At long last, thoroughly ruffled, to put it mildly, you dash to breakfast (which you have been told was ready twenty minutes before) to find your eggs stone cold. The final indignity! You stumble to the front door. Your wife, Junior, and the faithful Mary, receive a wrathful glare in farewell and off you go. You practically put holes in the pavement walking to the bus, the driver's cheerful "Good morning" is met with a glower and the trip is a series of glares at those unfortunate enough to come within bumping distance.

When the office is finally reached, your secretary receives the full brunt of your ill-humor and she, poor soul, has to grin and bear it. Or, as has been known to happen, she might burst into tears and walk out! To cap the climax, you will undoubtedly find that the important engagement has been broken.

We have all had these upside-down days when we have allowed our own ill-humor to blight the day for others. Realization that the woes encountered are brought about by our own actions may make us stop and think the next time a "Blue Monday" rolls around — even if it happens on a Wednesday!

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two mothers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Ellen R. — Mother is a character.

Mrs. H. R. — I have a warm, Latin temperament.

Ellen R. — I am a girl of 15 who has a lot of trouble in life because my mother is a character. Don't get me wrong. I love my mother, but she embarrasses me and my brother half to death.

For one thing, she hugs and kisses all our friends — boys and girls. It's true our friends feel very welcome in our house, but other kids' mothers don't act like that. Mother has also started a crazy custom. When we sit down to eat all the gentlemen at the table must walk around and kiss all the ladies. Well, some people don't go for that kind of thing and are very embarrassed.

When I tell Mother how I feel she shuts herself in her room and cries. Then she does the same thing next time.

Mrs. H. R. — I guess I'm just a misplaced woman. I don't have the cold Anglo-Saxon temperament of most Americans. My parents were warm Latins. I was brought up in a home where affection was freely given and taken.

When I tell Mother how I feel she shuts herself in her room and cries. Then she does the same thing next time.

Fortunately, I married a man who has a warm temperament like mine. But how is it our children haven't inherited it? They are both cold propositions and they hurt me by their standoffishness.

I think there is too little love in our world today. People are embarrassed by a display of innocent affection, but they stare unashamedly at erotic love scenes on screens and big billboards. I am not afraid to be different from "other kids' mothers" if only my children won't hate me.

The Council: Mrs. H. R. has some good points, but she is a bit too self-righteous and closed to the feelings of others. Displays of affection are nice, but they are not the essence of love. Love involves a deep consideration for others and we think Mrs. H. R. is a bit lacking there. . . . Although she is very sensitive as far as her own feelings are concerned.

Mrs. H. R. does not see that her children are not necessarily cold because they object to too much physical contact with her and between her and their friends. At their age they are painfully aware of the sexual implications of touch and they are forced to do their best to understand and master their impulses. It may seem simple to an adult to differentiate between a friendly embrace and an erotic one, but it is not so easy for a teenager. It is quite likely that Ellen feels her friends may misinterpret her mother's affectionate advances but she is too shy even to admit this idea to her self.

Mrs. H. R. seems to press herself a bit on her Latin temperament, but she should be aware that the Latins have always placed restraints upon themselves, a young girl's poise and withdrawal from physical contact was respected and was not considered evidence of coldness.

For all her giving of affection, Mrs. H. R. should know she is a demanding woman. The love she wants from her children will come in its own way and its own time. It doesn't try to force it.

On the whole, we think Ellen and her brother are lucky to have a mother who errs on the side of displaying too much affection rather than one who gives too little.

Mother's Helper

EXTRA-LARGE napkins or ample aprons needed for this birthday party idea! For each guest, bake a small cake in a foil pan (but don't ice it). At each place, have a paper cup full of frosting, a small dish with spoonfuls of colorful tasty decors, a candle with holder — and a butter spreader. Let each decorate her own cake, to take home. Have a big cake to share at the party.

W. M. S.

WELLINGTON — The Women's Missionary Society of the United Church, Wellington, met in the Centennial parlor. Mrs. Maybee played quiet music. Mrs. Hamel opened the meeting by reading "Harmony."

It was decided to let the finance committee arrange suitable means of raising the extra money needed to attain the allocation, aside from regular voluntary giving. The W.M.S. will assist the Couples Club in their benevolent work as the supply allocation is not large.

Treasurer's report by Mrs. L. Palmer was read and adopted.

Mrs. Gay is now able to be out. Being all Christmas cards of religious nature or otherwise and birthday cards to be sent to the Ontario hospital and an Indian mission, to the March meeting.

A letter from Mrs. McCullough, in Willowdale, was read. Presbyterial is to be held all day in the Tabernacle Church in Belleville. The young people held a special meeting the evening of February 22nd with Mrs. Gretta Gauld, now on furlough from South Formosa, as guest speaker. On February 23rd Mrs. C. S. Paterson, who is on the council and who is planning the "New Church Organization," was guest speaker at an all day meeting.

Dollar day is next meeting with all members to donate a dollar earned by them and tell how it was earned.

The supply secretary, Mrs. Bryant, asked that a shower of gifts for Port workers be brought to the next meeting, such as soap, wash cloths, small Kleenex, pins, crayons, scribbling, small pictures, books, toys, combs, tooth brushes or paste.

Mrs. Nash, stewardship secretary, reported. Mrs. Harris led the devotional on topic, "The Prayer Perfect."

Mrs. S. Yoke reviewed the study book of "Africa Disturbed."

Mrs. Barton Cronk followed with a talk on political aspect of Africa, "Medicine Man Versus Medical Doctor."

Refreshments were served.

What To Do With Cut-Up Chicken Backs

by Mary Moore

Years ago an efficient little pensioner wrote telling me that she could make three inexpensive chicken backs go further than anybody she knew. She boiled them and used the stock for soup with vegetables and barley and rice. The meat she stripped from the bones and made into chicken a la king for Sunday supper.

This stuck in my mind for I was afraid it made pretty slim pickin's.

Dinner Menus

WEDNESDAY
(Guests)

Citrus Fruit Cup; Cantonese Pork with Rice (see Monday); Relish Tray (see Tuesday); Carrot and Celery Curls, Radish Roses; Chocolate Layer Cake with Lemon Filling; Coffee.

Last week I measured the cooked meat from three chicken backs costing 20c and to my surprise I ended up with 1 1-2 well-packed cups. That is not slim pickin's for 20c.

This meat could be returned to the soup or you could make

CHICKEN A LA KING:

(To serve 4). One and one-half cups cooked meat cut in strips or cubes, 1 1-2 tablespoons chicken fat (or butter), 1 3-4 tablespoons flour, 1-2 cup hot chicken broth, 3-4 cup whole milk (or whole milk and cream), 1-3 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup sliced mushrooms, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 2 tablespoons canned pimiento cut in strips, yolk 1 egg. Melt chicke . fat, stir in flour and salt and blend, then stir in the broth and milk until thick. Saute mushrooms gently in butter or margarine but do not brown. Add to sauce. Add chopped pimiento and beaten egg yolk and stir. Reheat in top of double boiler. Serve on toast points or patty shells or split hot tea biscuits.

CHICKEN LOAF:

1-2 tablespoons butter, 1-3 tablespoon flour, 1-2 cup milk, 1-2 cup bread crumbs, yolks 2 eggs, 1 cup cooked macaroni or rice, 1 cup cold cooked chicken, 1-3 cup mushroom caps, 1 tablespoon canned pimiento, 1-2 cup heavy cream, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon parsley, finely chopped, white 2 eggs.

Melt butter, add flour, and stir until well blended; then pour on gradually, while stirring constantly, milk. Bring to the boiling-point and add bread crumbs, egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon-colored, macaroni cut in 1-2" pieces or rice, chicken and raw mushroom caps, cut in strips, pimiento, cut in small pieces, cream, beaten until stiff, salt and parsley. Stir until thoroughly mixed and fold in whites of eggs, beaten until stiff. Turn into a mould lined with buttered paper cover with foil and bake at 350 deg. F. for about 30 to 40 minutes or until set. Remove from mould to hot serving dish and garnish with parsley. Serve with tomato or white sauce.

WMS Presbyterial Reports Society in Good Condition

Mrs. C. Holmes Re-Elected Head

By GLADYS WARD

On Tuesday morning the second session of the Belleville Presbyterial of the W.M.S. of the United Church was opened at Tabernacle Church with Mrs. Clarence Holmes presiding. The altar was decorated with baskets of white carnations and pink gladioli.

Registrations were in charge of Mrs. G. F. Lent and Mrs. A. H. Fisher, while Mrs. H. Pierson and Mrs. M. Clancy looked after the programs.

After the opening hymn a service of worship was conducted by the W.M.S. of Cannifton with Mrs. J. C. Eastott presiding.

Mrs. P. D. MacMillan reported on an encouraging year for the literature committee, and explained the various books available. A roll call was taken by Mrs. George Pettet.

The treasurer's report was presented by Mrs. R. G. Coulter. Throwing light on the allocations it was seen that with a total of over $39,003 received, Two hundred and two societies had reported. Ninety-five memberships from the Auxiliaries; 16 life members; ships from mission bands; 20 from baby bands, and 12 In Memoriams.

With $1,200 raised in excess of the allocation, the "Gifts for Building Advance" was voted $600 for the Christian Education Centre in Rhodesia, and $600 for the advancement of the work with the Indians of Saskatchewan.

ALLOCATION INCREASED

In presenting her report on Christian stewardship Mrs. H. M. Davis explained that the allocation had been increased. The increase will be used to add to the pensions of retired ministers, who have served and are fulfilling and earned some comfort in retirement, their present pensions being inadequate with the rising cost of living. The allocation was accepted. Mrs. Davis appealed to the members to keep before them the necessity of having a prayerful and dedicated membership with generous hearts.

Mrs. Howard Langdon of Trenton contributed a fine solo, "How Great Thou Art."

Miss Ethel Horton introduced Rev. Elmer Leard, M.A., B.D., who was the special speaker for the occasion. Mrs. Leard was born near Chatham, attended Western University, among other schools, and graduated from the United Church Training School. With her husband, Mrs. Leard went to India on mission work where they spent ten years, and last October came, with their three children, to be assistant minister of Tabernacle Church.

In her travels, Mrs. Leard had heard on occasion, critical comments about the W.M.S., and had been deeply disturbed to have to face this same society. It was felt by some that the W.M.S. tended to be a church within a church and self-sufficient.

"The church is away behind society in its awareness of the us. of human resources," said the speaker. "Social revolution has seen the emancipation of women, and the time has come to categories them according to their capabilities and talents." The church has not developed its feminine potentialities The segregation of men and women into separate working societies went out of date with Christ. Young women are by-passing church work for activities with more scope in national and international organizations. Now that society has accepted women on an equal basis, women should not feel the need of separate societies." Still, keen women's organizations but by absorbing the time of active one able women in total women's groups, are we depriving the church of the cross-fertilization needed for the joint effort of our enterprises? It is disturbing that there are so few women in official bodies of the church, local and national.

"A large percent of the wealth of Canada is in the hands of women, yet how many are on the boards of stewards! It would be a wonderful thing if the resources of the church would be used where needed. We are pressing now for one church organization for collecting and deploying our working force which may mean that we will be coming nearer to Christ's vision of what a church should be. As women you must urge women to fulfil their duties in full membership, and to make the church functionally ready to be one church."

MEMORIAL SERVICE

Mrs. G. S. Puttenham conducted the memorial service dedicated to the members who had passed and were at peace. Mrs. Johnston read the names of forty-eight sisters who had passed, while Mrs. Work placed sprays of white flowers in a vase for each section represented.

Miss Gretta L. V. Gauld addressed the assembly briefly, relating some of her experiences in Formosa, where her father went as a missionary in 1891, retiring over from Rev. George Leslie MacKay who was the first missionary from the Presbyterian church on the island. Having chosen Formosa for her life work, Miss Gauld did not regret it. It had been an enriching experience and worthwhile and she had met so many fine people doing things for other people. Missionaries appreciated what was being done at home for them

"God is not a waster," the speaker stated. "He multiplies and adds to our efforts if we are willing I have been asked by many Formosans to bring thanks to the workers at home. We are not in Formosa as parents any more, but as co-workers. The church there is no longer an infant, but has grown up, and will soon be one hundred years old. The church belongs to the ecumenical movement and the missionaries are helpers. They are strong and active Christians, and they speak their minds without inhibitions.

LUNCHEON SERVED

A dinner was served at noon by the ladies of Tabernacle church. Greetings were brought by Rev. F. J. Whitely, chairman of the Belleville Presbytery; Mrs. F. Davidson, of the Belleville Presbytery W. A.; Mrs. Ray Lockyer and Mrs. J. Morris Smith from the Tabernacle Women's Missionary Society.

Mrs. George Carlisle presided at the afternoon session of the annual meeting which opened with a worship service conducted by the Newburg Federation. The Fairfield Auxiliary took charge of the offering and dedication. Mrs. Howard Langdon contributed a vocal solo, "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings."

Mrs. Bertram Introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. G. S. Patterson whose address was based on the theme, "The work of women in the church." Mrs. Patterson, who has held many offices on the boards of the United church

River Valley W.I. Holds Euchre Party

STIRLING — River Valley Women's Institute sponsored its seventh euchre party at the school house on Friday evening with 28 paying guests and nine tables in play.

Twenty-four visitors were in attendance from Stirling, Frankford, Bethel, Stockdale and Wellmans. Six Institute members were present.

The prizes and coffee were donated by the conveners and their helpers, Mrs. and Mrs. Harry Morrow and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Harry.

The awards were ladies' high, Miss Carol Beckett, Wellmans, (80 points); 2nd, Miss Joyce Reid, Bethel; men's high, F. C. Percival, Ridge Road; 2nd, Ed Hanaman.

The president, Mrs. Roy Tucker, spoke briefly, welcomed the guests and announced two euchre parties for March.

The conveners and their assistants served refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Styles For Skiers

BONARLAW — On Friday evening the Y.P.A. of St. Mark's Church held a social evening and the parents were invited.

A debate was put on by members of the Y.P.A., the first debate was on rock-'n'-roll, Miss Wendy McNeal, Mr. Sexton, Miss Geraldine McFaul and Gary Wellman taking parts. The second debate was on "Elvis Presley" was taken by Kenneth Stiles, Barbara Woodberry, the opposition by Barbara Neal and Mr. Dunford.

The ladies served refreshments and cards were enjoyed.

The judges were the Rev. and Mrs. R. G. Fleming, Mrs. J. Eggett and Charles Wellman.

Couple Feted By Friends on Anniversary

MARMORA — Mr. and Mrs. Everett Derry were entertained on the 25th wedding anniversary last Friday at the home of his brother an dsister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Derry, when a dinner party of 15 were present.

Later in the evening, around 60 friends and relatives gathered to further honor the couple. The Rev. P. Miller called the gathering in order and spoke of the esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Derry are held in the community and church work.

Mr. Harold Carman read an adress and they were presented with two swivel TV chairs. a tri-light and other individual gifts for which Mr. and Mrs. Carman expressed their thanks.

A social time was spent and lunch was served by the ladies.

CBC International Service Broadcast in 16 Languages

By OLI DAUM
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — The Voice of Canada is familiar to people around the globe but scarcely known by Canadians at home.

The voice, which may be heard in any of 16 languages, is the CBC International Service. It has been telling foreign listeners about Canada for 15 years, since Feb. 25, 1945.

From studios in Montreal and powerful shortwave transmitters in Sackville, N.B., the service aims daily broadcasts at practically every major country in the world. The Soviet Union tries to jam the Canadian wavelength, however, and broadcasts don't penetrate the Iron Curtain regularly.

CHANGING CONDITIONS

Broadcasts are fashioned to meet changing conditions. In 1945, with the Second World War still on, many programs were directed at boosting morale of Canadian troops overseas. Prisoners of war in Canada sometimes made broadcasts to their homelands.

"Now programs cater to wider interests. They are largely informative, reporting on sports, foreign visitors, international conventions, immigration and Canada's economic and cultural growth. Music by Canadian composers and artists is also broadcast.

But whatever the political picture, its overall aim is the same today as it was at inauguration: to help form a friendly international climate.

"Our listeners tend to form their impression of Canada from the voice they hear," said Mr. Fleming, Canadian Broadcasting veteran from Croydon, England, "for this reason we choose announcers who have interest and warmth in their voices — they can't be blase."

The International Service's success in gaining friends for Canada is indicated by mail from listeners to its daily programs.

THOUSANDS OF LETTERS

During the last 15 years 420,000 letters, cards and reception reports have been received at the service's headoffice in Montreal. They were answered in the language in which they were written. When the writer asks for information on Canada—and most correspondence falls into this category—the CBC sends back a kit of printed material.

But some listeners ask for pen pals, assistance in tracing a missing relative or financial help. Consequently, the service' staff of 170 announcers, producers, writers, technicians and clerks often find themselves improvising in other fields.

They recruit pen pals from Canadian high schools, co-operate with the Canadian Red Cross in locating missing persons and turn other unusual requests over to organizations equipped to deal with them.

In answer to an unusual request in 1946 the service recorded 1,350 school broadcasts in Polish, Greek and French for children whose education had been disrupted by the war. The records were distributed by UNESCO.

Regular programs are broadcast directly in French, English, Czechoslovakian, German, Dutch, Italian, Norwegian, Danish Swedish, Slovak, Russian Ukranian, Polish, Hungarian, Spanish and Portuguese. Recorded programs are sent regularly to Austria, Greece and Finland.

In addition the CBC International Service has made special broadcasts in Egyptian, Chinese and Yugoslavian.

VOICE OF CANADA DIRECTOR

C. R. Delafield is director of the Voice of Canada, the CBC's international service which broadcasts news of Canada to foreign listeners in as many as 16 languages. The service has been in operation since Feb. 25, 1945. Daily informative broadcasts, originating in Montreal studios, are beamed to major countries of the world from powerful short-wave transmitters at Sackville, N.B. Mr. Delafield, in the broadcasting field for 20 years, was appointed director in 1954 after seven years as assistant director. (CP Photo).

Day of Mourning Proposed for Elliot Lake

ELLIOT LAKE (CP)—The district Chamber of Commerce proposed Monday that a day of mourning be held in this uranium centre to focus national attention on the area's plight from the announcing closing of four of the six uranium mines and its accompanying unemployment.

The chamber, which represents 300 local businesses, suggested stores be closed one day and that business men wear black arm bands for the 24-hour mourning period. No date was set.

A citizens' group Monday draped a 30-foot banner over the main highway as it approaches the town, saying in bold letters: "Abandon hope all ye who enter — the world's most modern ghost town."

The weekly Standard said it has invited representatives of the Winnipeg Chamber of Commerce to visit Elliot Lake at the paper's expense. One proposal to alleviate the expected unemployment is for the federal government to locate here its proposed second nuclear research centre slated for Manitoba.

"These people out West want the research centre near Winnipeg," Standard editor Ed Gibbons said. "They don't know the facts. They think we're greedy. We're not after luxuries—its bread and butter. If they came here we'd open their eyes."

The federal government has said it planned the Manitoba site for the proposed centre to help decentralize its nuclear development. The existing research centre is at Chalk River, Ont.

VOICE OF EXPEIENCE

Rhodesians See Settled Future and Progression To Complete Independence

By EDWIN LINNGTON

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (Reuters)—Rhodesians enter the 1960s with something of the feelings of the small boy about to recite his piece at the school concert.

Just six years old, the Federation of the two Rhodesias and Nyasaland must satisfy a visiting battery of eminent inspectors on its past achievements and future intentions.

The prize, to be gained at the October review of the constitution, is a settled future in which the federation of central African states to independence within the British Commonwealth.

The eminent inspectors: British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, a "fact-finding" commission from London under Lord Monckton, the visiting Queen Mother Elizabeth and British Colonial Secretary Iain Macleod.

ECONOMY IS SOUND

Not much pleading is needed on the economic side. During 1959 there was a good recovery from the world-wide recession of the previous two years. The federation ended the year with a favorable trade balance in the region of $50,000,000—the best in its history.

The big Northern Rhodesian copper mines are booming again, paying high wages and bonuses, earning an excellent profit and a good rake-off in taxes for the government.

Southern Rhodesia's mineral production is expected to surpass the target of $24,000,000. Its tobacco and corn crops last year were records and this year promises to be at least as good.

Unemployment figures, among both Europeans and Africans, are very low.

FOREIGN CAPITAL

There is ample evidence of overseas confidence in the federation. Several big financial groups, including British, French and Japanese interests, are planning to open large industrial enterprises.

A completely new factor in the economy — cheap power from Kariba, where the world's largest man-made lake is forming in the Zambesi River valley — is expected to boost primary and secondary industry. It will make possible the processing of many products which now are exported as raw materials. Kariba produced its first power at the end of 1959.

For people around the bustling federal capital of Salisbury, 1960 will go down as the year of television. The first television programs in Central Africa are due to be broadcast later this year.

WELENSKY STRONG

The political scene is dominated by Sir Roy Welensky, federal prime minister, and his United Federal party. It has an overwhelming majority in the federal House and also rules in Southern Rhodesia, provides the strongest group of elected members in the Northern Rhodesia legislature and claims the allegiance of all European elected members of the Nyasaland legislature.

The right-wing Dominion party and the Liberal Central Africa party led by Garfield Todd complete the picture.

All three have African membership and all agree on the need to carry on with federation.

African political life has been limited following the disturbances last year and the banning of the African National Congress, Dr. Hastings Banda and about 50 lesser congress men are still behind bars or restricted to rural areas.

AFRICANS FEARFUL

The African leaders fear long-term rule by the 200,000 whites and therefore are seeking to suspend federation on the grounds that it would wreck their hopes of winning a one-man-one-vote franchise for the territory's 7,700,000 Africans.

Welensky, on the other hand, is convinced federation is essential for the growth of the territory.

He sees this year's review of the constitution not as the time to consider the break-up of the federation but the moment to demand that the right of the British government to veto federal legislation should go, as a step toward independence within the Commonwealth.

Meanwhile, many pinpricks of racial discrimination have been removed and the color bar has dropped several notches. Africans are no longer confined to third- and fourth-class coaches on the state-owned Rhodesia Railways, and there is no longer a color bar in federal post offices in Southern Rhodesia.

LAW FOR HOTELS

Southern Rhodesia has passed laws which allow hotels to be multi-racial if they wish. The first to take advantage of this law, the Victoria Falls Hotel, is owned by the Rhodesia State Railways.

Advancement has already been granted to some African copper miners and similar improvements for African civil servants are under study.

In Southern Rhodesia, trade unions, workmen's compensation and apprenticeship became multi-racial at the beginning of this year.

Welensky can also claim that the new franchise laws give the vote to thousands of Africans who could never have got it before, on a basis of income and educational qualifications which are applicable to all races.

TOWARD INDEPENDENCE

The 1960s may bring the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland full independence within the British Commonwealth. The federal constitution of the federation, created six years ago, is up for review this October. Map locates the federation (black area) to the east. Also shown are two other Commonwealth nations in Africa — the Union of South Africa on the continent's southern top and Ghana on the northwestern hump. (CP Newsmap).

POWER IN AFRICA — This is an aerial view of the Kariba dam, which has backed up waters of the Zambesi River to form the world's largest man-made lake in the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasland. The African territory, verging on full independence in the British Commonwealth during the 1960s, expects power from the dam to boost industry. Kariba's first power was produced at the end of 1959. (CP Photo).

TEA PICKER AT WORK — Steady economic development is expected in the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland in the new decade. Foreign enterprises have shown interest in mineral and industrial development; good crops are being reaped on tobacco, corn and tea estates. This African plucks tea on an estate at Mlanje in south Nyasaland. (CP Photo).

SHIFT CATTLE

BULAWAYO, Southern Rhodesia (AP) — A rail exodus of thousands of cattle is planned from drought-stricken areas to pastures 703 miles north. Cattle and game died by the thousands in southern Rhodesia and neighboring Bechuanaland in the worst drought in a decade.

White's District

WHITE'S DISTRICT—Church and Sunday School services were held at White's Church on Sunday morning. Mr H. Pulman had a story for the children. His text was Matthew 6:21 "For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also." He spoke on the Prodigal Son with reference to everyday life.

Miss Sylvia Bilham of Toronto spent the weekend at her home.

Mrs. W. Jeffery was a Sunday guest of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Jeffery.

Mrs. Leonard Young was a Sunday visitor of her sister, Miss Mabel Brown.

Mrs. Gerge Pelletier, Churchill, Manitoba, is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pelletier and family.

Major Earl Cooper, Mrs. Cooper and Betty, were last Sunday visitors of Mrs. Fred Cooper of Maple .

Mr. and Mrs. George Cotten opened their home on Monday evening for a meeting of the stewards and trustees of White's Church.

Representatives from White's Church attended a combined meeting at Centenary on Thursday evening to make plans for the Pageant for the Bayside charge in the absence of the Rev. Roy Rickard, B.A.

A succesful euchre party, sponsored by the Bayside Home and School, was held at Bayside School on Thursday evening.

COMMUNIST TITLE

BERLIN (AP) — West Berlin authorities are checking aliases used in schools in an effort to get rid of those which describe East Germany as the "German democratic republic." That is the Communist title for East Germany, which in West Germany is generally called the Soviet-occupied zone.

WELLINGTON

Community Party, Euchre Well Attended

WELLINGTON — Close to 100 attended the community party held in the town hall on Wednesday evening. People from all parts of the county came to enjoy their annual get-together.

Progressive euchre was enjoyed by all. Prizes being presented to the following: ladies' high, Mrs. J. B. Lavender, low, Mrs. Clifford Young; men's high, J. B. Lavender, low, Oscar Bonyay. Ladies' lone hands, Mrs. Clifford Mc[illegible]; men's lone hands, Keith Blakley.

Arnold Foster occupied the lucky chair. Refreshments were served by the sponsors of this year's party: Mr. and Mrs. Eckert Pearsall; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ellis, and Mr. and Mrs. Ken Wood.

After the repast, the chairs were all set back and dancing was enjoyed before all returned to their homes after a pleasant evening.

Next year's sponsors are: Mr. and Mrs. Donald Parks; Mr. and Mrs. Douglas McPaul, and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Wight.

FRANKFORD

A.O.T.S. Club Holds Banquet

FRANKFORD — An A.O.T.S banquet was held in Frankford United Church, Rose Lowery Hall on Wednesday evening. Mr. Linton Read department of English, Moira Collegiate, Belleville, stated "Parents can be a handicap to their children." High school boys should not own automobiles. Teen-age students should not be walking the streets during the week and going steady is a doubtful blessing," he said.

The Frankford United Church A.O.T.S. Men's Club was entertaining the Men's Club of Grace United Church, Trenton. About 65 men, partook of a sumptuous dinner catered by the W. A. of Frankford United Church.

Mr. Wesley Brooks, Stockdale, president of the Frankford Association, presided. Mr. Ernie Wallace with Mr. Holt Madill, pianist, started proceedings with an enthusiastic sing-song. Mr. Herbert Brooks, Trenton, conducted an inspiring devotional from the sermon on the Mount.

Clergymen present from Trenton, Frankford and Batawa were identification lapel pins, George, Charlie and Hector. It was a friendly evening and someone suggested another get-together in the near future.

Northport

NORTHPORT— Major George Baldwin, of the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles, of Canada, Calgary, Alta., has been transferred to Army Headquarters in Ottawa, where he will be a general staff officer, grade 2, in the Directorate of Staff Duties. WELLINGTON

Approximately 600 Attend Arena Carnival

WELLINGTON — Wellington Arena held its annual carnival in the rink on Saturday evening when about 600 were in attendance. Many lovely and humorous costumes were there on display. Small ones and large ones, all competing for the many prizes.

The three judges, Mrs. Beverley Gibson, Mrs. Charles Jansen and Mrs. William Salisbury, did a wonderful job selecting the prize winners.

Mr. Donald Baxter of Bloomfield acted as master of ceremonies and after the contestants had skated for an hour or two, he presented the following with prizes:

Boys and girls, six years and under: Joan and Brian Lane, as bride and bridegroom; Sally Nash, Reg Ridin glamor; David Bowerman, a Mountie.

Boys 10-12 years: Elwin and Milton Hanson, Hawaiian dancers; Jeffery Singleton, a Beatnic; Benny Burley, best man.

Girls 13-16 years: Gloria Tuttle, boxes advertising Brimleys' Groceteria; Glee McQuaid, Aunt Jemima; Bonnie Reed, two-faced clown.

Door prizes: 1st, No. 157940. 2nd, No. 157946, (anyone having these numbers please bring to Mr. Jim Clemmison and receive their prize); and 3rd door prize, Miss Laura Jeffery, Belleville.

The ice was cleared off and a hockey match was played by some of the old timers from Bloomfield versus Old Timers from Wellington. This was quite an exciting game which ended in a tie, which they hope to break at the next carnival.

The players were: Bloomfield: coach, Jack Duetta; Bob Irvine, C. Thompson, G. Parks, M. Pyke, B. Alexander, H. Mann, R. Tripp, R. Parks and A. Thompson.

Gaitskell, Critics Display Confidence in Labor Issue

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

An unusual feature of the current dispute in the ranks of British's Labor party is the air of confidence displayed by both Hugh Gaitskell and his critics.

The dispute began at the party's annual conference last November when Gaitskell aroused instant and vociferous opposition from other's left wing by proposing a constitutional revision of the clause dealing with public ownership.

Gaitskell argued that the existing clause, which set out the principle of "common ownership of the means of production, distribution and exchange," was distorted by Labor's opponents during the October election campaign. He urged that the amended clause should define the limits of the party's nationalization policy.

The initial storm was raised by fundamentalists, who claim the existing clause must be read as what it says and that any weakening of it would be a betrayal of the party's basic principles.

Apart from Frank Cousins, leader of the powerful Transport and General Workers' Union, and Mrs. Barbara Castle, last year's party chairman, no party figure of consequence has supported this extreme view. In the closing number of influential figures have since urged Gaitskell to drop the idea in the interests of party unity.

The latest of these have been two members of the national executive, Aneurin Bevan, the party's No. 1 man behind Gaitskell and his ailing Aneurin Bevan, and Anthony Greenwood, a member of Sir Winston Churchill's wartime coalition cabinet.

Any impression that Gaitskell lacks support within the party is countered by the promptness with which he has dealt with his critics. The party leader took occasion to deliver a point-by-point refutation of the speeches of Wilson and Greenwood within 48 hours of their delivery.

The disputants, with the exception of the extreme left wing, have taken pains to carry on their discussion at an impersonal level that avoids any suggestion that Gaitskell's leadership is at stake, or that heads are likely to roll if he loses.

Its outcome will probably be determined in the next party conference by a number of voices that have remained silent so far. The existing vote is known to the leaders of a handful of trade unions, but the attitudes which would appear to make them side against Gaitskell, the parliamentary party's overwhelming majority of his opponents.

Uniform Traffic Control Devices Now Adopted

TORONTO (CP) — Standard highway markers have been "accepted in principle" by all major areas of Canada, C. W. Gilchrist, managing director of the Canadian Good Roads Association, said today.

He said the "recommended national standards" are detailed in a 208-page manual distributed across the country and the object now is "to bring about the widest possible adoption of those standards as quickly as possible."

Mr. Gilchrist was one of three speakers discussing uniform traffic control devices at the association's annual convention.

W. Q. MacNee, traffic engineer with the Ontario highways department, said the signs proposed as a national standard are "basically the same" as those adopted in 1956 by Ontario. But some of the prohibition signs have been changed to give more positive directions.

For example, the "no-left-turn" sign would show arrows indicating traffic straight ahead or to the right.

MOST ADOPTED

It said the majority of the changes have already been adopted as a result of Ontario's experience.

Mr. Gilchrist said the national Canadian standards were adopted by the Canadian Good Roads Association at a meeting in Winnipeg in 1956. The specifications and drawings of the proposed standard signs are available from that association and by manufacturers and governments produce their own signs.

R. D. Cowley, director of traffic engineering, Ontario department of transport, said the department intends to create a provincial manual of uniform traffic control devices based essentially on the Canadian manual.

Texts of addresses were released to the press in advance of delivery.

Influx of Low-Priced U.S. Fresh Fruit at Beginning Of Season to Be Controlled

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has armed itself with strong new powers against low-priced American fresh fruits and vegetables—powers demanded by Canadian growers but protested by the United States government.

Revenue Minister Nowlan informed the Commons Tuesday the government had brought into force a section of the Customs Act aimed at preventing an influx of American products at below-normal prices just at the start of the Canadian growing season.

The section empowers him to set customs valuations on imported fruits and vegetables at the average import price for the preceding three years. This can be done when he feels prices of American products have fallen to below-normal levels late in their growing season.

"The problem in the past has been that, with the earlier U.S. season, these low prices have occurred just as the competitive Canadian crops ripened.

U.S. COMMENT

A U.S. Embassy official indicated the American government—which was given advance warning of Tuesday's move—is opposed to the Canadian new law.

When the section was written into law in 1958, a U.S. diplomatic note protested that it was inconsistent with the principles and provisions of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, which said that tariff valuations should be based on the actual value of imports in the country of origin.

Mr. Nowlan gave no details in his announcement to the Commons. But in an earlier statement he indicated the government's intention is to provide itself with the authority powers it says are needed. He said there is no immediate intention to put them into law and that he has no specific products in mind.

He added that the section—if it had been in force last year—would have affected only a few products of minor importance. The revenue department had entered out a study of what the section would have worked out.

The new section is an extension is in addition to an existing seasonal tariff protection, whereby Canada can impose special extra tariffs on specific vegetables during the Canadian growing season.

Municipalities Must Study Future Traffic Needs or Lose Out in Financial Aid

TORONTO (CP) — Unless Ontario municipalities undertake studies of their future traffic demands and road needs they may not receive an increase in financial aid for road building from the provincial government, W. J. Fullon, Ontario's deputy highways minister, said today.

He told the annual convention of the Ontario Good Roads Association that his department has developed efficient planning and programming techniques to predict need of road replacement.

"We believe similar procedures are essential for the municipalities," Mr. Fulton said.

"So much so, that we would hesitate to increase aid to the municipalities until they have made adequate planning studies of their own."

He said his department would assist municipalities in making such studies which will be of three types: regional, concerned primarily with provincial highways; co-operative studies with urban centres; and studies in municipalities which have a minor problem on the main highway system.

Mr. Fulton also told the meeting that a study of the program of roads need from now until 1971 showed $6,500,000,000 will be needed.

He said another study was under way to relate future road needs with anticipated revenues from all assigned subsidies. Early estimates from this study showed municipalities would fall $900,000,000 short of raising the $2,000,000,000 needed to be spent on roads by 1977, he said.

Text of his address was released to the press in advance of delivery.

Predictions Aid Keeping Down Traffic Tolls

OTTAWA (CP)—Published predictions of holiday traffic deaths tolls are believed useful in holding down fatalities, says the Canadian Highway Safety Council.

Executive Director W. A. Bryce said in an interview Tuesday that they help bring home to drivers the fact that handling a motor vehicle is potentially dangerous.

In the Commons recently, John Kucherepa (PC — Toronto High Park) referred to the forecasts in making a plea for a royal commission to investigate Canadian traffic accidents.

"Should we as Canadians," he asked, "not be ashamed that such a situation should exist whereby this is almost becoming a new kind of sport where the score is envisaged prior to the event in the same manner as we might guess the score of the forthcoming Saturday night hockey game."

IMPACT NOTED

Mr. Bryce said "the fact that people call out figures show that their minds are being turned to the facts that we want them to think about."

Predictions were made at the request of a group of safety leagues and associations.

The total program included driver education, extra-curricular safety teaching in schools, tightening of provincial traffic legislation regulations and the production of millions of measuring drivers' alcoholic content.

While no statistical evidence of the effectiveness of the individual techniques was available, Mr. Bryce said, the ratio of highway deaths per 100,000,000 vehicle miles had dropped to 6.8 in 1958 from 17.3 in 1937. And during Safe Driving Week there had been a reduction in fatalities from the number that might be expected normally.

Federation Critical of Govt.' Support Plan of Hogs, Eggs

OTTAWA (CP)—More criticism of the government's support program for eggs and hogs was expressed today by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture submitted its annual brief to Prime Minister Diefenbaker and cabinet ministers.

The brief said that deficiency payments on those commodities create inequities, insecurity to producers and contribute to market instability.

More small producers may be forced to reduce output than larger ones, target of the deficiency payments, the brief suggested the brief, which also included requests for higher farm support prices plus import limitations, deficiency payments on western grains and various other demands.

The brief echoed that presented by the Interprovincial Farm Union council a week ago on eggs and hogs. The federation's submission followed a two - day Commons agriculture debate in which the two commodities were featured.

Both recently were converted from the support system whereby the government bought up products when prices sank to a floor level. This purchase system resulted in huge surpluses and the government switched to a deficiency payment.

The federation reiterated backing for price supports including deficiency payments but said such payments for hogs and eggs should be coupled with an emergency offer-to-purchase support.

Deficiency payments on eggs should be calculated regionally so that lower-price regions like the Maritimes could get a larger. Hog payments should be calculated on a three-month basis rather than annually.

On other matters, the federation is making a plea for a royal commission to investigate Canadian trade relations.

It urged that the government support prices plus import limitations, deficiency payments on western grains and various other demands.

Quebec Members Do Not Favor Total Abolition

By GUY RONDEAU
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Among Quebec's members of the Commons, the trend of opinion on capital punishment appears to be clear.

A public opinion poll among a great number of the French-speaking members shows that in general, they favor no more than partial abolition of capital punishment.

There are 75 Quebec members of parliament.

Most of the members questioned said they feel that capital punishment should only be applied for premeditated murder.

Two said they had no definite opinion. Another said he had wondered whether it would not be preferable to substitute corporal punishment for the death penalty.

DEBATE RESUMES

The Commons debate on the abolition of the death penalty is to resume Thursday. It was launched last Thursday on a private bill of Frank McGee (PC—York-Scarborough). The bill asks the abolition of the death penalty for all crimes but treason in time of war.

At adjournment of the debate last Thursday, 14 members had spoken. Nine were in favor, seven opposed and one undecided on the measure.

The results of this first debate have made it impossible to establish a trend in one direction or the other.

A trend is most easy to distinguish among the French members. Most have pronounced themselves in favor of keeping the death penalty, at least for premeditated crimes.

Dr. Perreault LaRue (PC—Saguenay) wondered whether making all penitentiary prisoners attend executions would help inculcate in them a wholesome fear of hanging.

Planted Trees On Private Land Says Minister

TORONTO (CP) — Lands and Forests Minister Spooner told the legislature Tuesday his department mistakenly planted trees on private land because of a clerk's error in plotting the lines of a survey.

Mr. Spooner was answering CCF Leader Donald C. MacDonald who wanted to know the validity of a newspaper report which claimed the government expropriated a piece of Crown land for the land on which it had planted spruce and pine trees.

Mr. Spooner said the land now being offered for sale by a real estate firm in Fort William—operated by Oscar Lentinen, a lumberman, and Clarence Mapledram, a former Liberal cabinet minister, Mr. Mapledoram was not involved—was sold before the error occurred.

Mr. Spooner said he was told Tuesday by Mr. Mapledoram that the land in question was owned originally by Mr. Lehtinen, a sawman with the Mapledoram firm.

Mr. Spooner gave this account of the deal:

The land purchased by Mr. Lentinen had been foreclosed by the Settlers' Loan Commission for debts owed by previous owners.

Thinking it had reverted to Crown land, the department planted 600,000 trees of trees without first checking the titles office.

It was discovered that the newly planted trees, Mr. Spooner said, the department assessed value of the land at $3,666. It also made an assessment of the Crown land on Dog Lake and decided to sell 18 acres of it to Mr. Lentinen for $4,266.

"The interests of the taxpayers in the province have been amply protected," Mr. Spooner said, adding that the Crown still owns most of the lake's 60 miles of shoreline.

Chessman Says Dead Man Can Help His Cause

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Carl Chessman says a dead man can prove he is not guilty of the sex crimes for which he was sentenced 11½ years ago and he has informed Governor Edmund Brown of the whereabouts of the body, The News-Call Bulletin said Tuesday.

Chessman did not explain what the dead man had to do with his case.

In an interview at San Quentin Prison, Chessman said he mentioned the body in a letter he sent to Brown Friday, hours before his scheduled execution.

The governor reprieved the convict-author for 60 days only 3 hours before he was to be put to death.

Chessman said "It's the body of a man who could be linked to me and to certain other activities that were going on at that time (when he was arrested)."

21 Bodies Found in German Mine But Still Have Hope for 86 Others

BERLIN (Reuters) — Rescue workers groping through shattered shafts today found 21 bodies of the 107 men trapped in a blazing coal mine at Ziethen, East Germany.

Weary rescuers said "there is little hope" for some of the 86 other men trapped by a raging fire in the mine, which is more than 48 hours. Twenty-one dead were brought up Tuesday night.

Hopes were slim but the East German government ordered rescue workers to "use breathable air beyond the firefront."

Rescue teams worked in relays to fight into the mine where the men trapped 3,500 feet underground. They used breathing apparatus against smoke and methane gas.

The explosion and fire rocked the mine Monday morning just as the day shift started. Fifty-three other miners were rescued after the blast or were able to find their way to the surface.

The intense heat and methane gas hampered rescue efforts for hours each. More than 400 rescuers were on hand to go down into the pit.

CLIMB SHAFT

The rescuers managed to climb a shaft where the fire had been put out and then tried to get to rescue chambers deep through which they hoped to reach the men where the men were trapped.

One rescue worker, interviewed in a hospital where he was taken with other injured, said "We were sent down as guides to make a first survey . . . it was very difficult.

"Temperatures were exceedingly high and visibility was only about 10 centimetres (about four inches) in parts."

Jail Governor Reimbursed by Metro Council

TORONTO (CP)—An order-in-council received Tuesday from Lieutenant-Governor Mackay of Ontario cleared the way for Metropolitan Toronto council to reimburse the governor of the city's Don Jail for the $725 he paid out because of a mistake by jail attendants.

Governor David Dougall paid the money to a Toronto businessman whose suit, wristwatch and $400 ring were handed by mistake to a common drunk being discharged from the prison at New Year's. When the businessman was released he was given the drunk's sweatshirt and a pair of dirty trousers.

Lawyers Argue Monopoly Could Not Be Formed

MONTREAL (CP)—A lawyer defending 17 pulp and paper companies charged with conspiracy to set pulpwood prices said Tuesday it is doubtful the firms could have held a price monopoly because of competition from the United States and Europe.

Urging dismissal of the suit, lawyer A. J. Macintosh advanced this argument.

The companies are charged with conspiracy to set pulpwood prices and unduly lessen competition in Ontario, Quebec and parts of New Brunswick from 1947-51.

The companies: Abitibi Power and Paper company, St. Lawrence Corporation Limited, Spruce Falls Power and Paper Company, Canadian Pulp and Paper Company, Armstrong Cork Company, Canadian International Paper Company, Consolidated Paper Corporation Limited, The Eddy Company, Donnacona Paper Company, Gair Company of Canada Limited, Gaspesia Sulphite Company Limited, Howard Smith Paper Mills Limited, Ontario Paper Company Limited, James Maclaren Company Limited, Richmond Paper and Paper Company of Canada Limited, Ste. Anne Power Company and Price Bros. and Company Limited.

The case is continuing.

Nigger Certainly Offensive Word Says Rollie Miles

WINNIPEG (CP)—Rollie Miles, former halfback of the Edmonton Eskimos football team, said Tuesday that in Canada you don't have to be a football hero to avoid racial discrimination, though it helps.

He said in an interview: "Certainly, there is anti-Negro prejudice in Winnipeg, but not to much against me. I think I'm accepted a little more readily."

But, he said, the same feeling might not apply to his children if they would marry white persons.

His children, now number seven with the latest, a boy, just a week old.

Asked about the word "Nigger?" he said:

"Certainly, it's an offensive word. Just like the words 'Yike' or 'Kike' or 'Wop.' I was a Italian. When you use those words you're talking about his religion and citizenship. A Negro is a Negro, not a Nigger."

Miles said he and his family feel things toward him on the part of citizens at St. Joseph's High School in Edmonton, where he teaches physical education, law, business fundamentals and English.

Mr. Miles, in Winnipeg to address a Brotherhood Week luncheon, will speak at other centres including Fort William during the week.

Five Children Of Same Family Given a Home

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government has found a home for five children of the same family who were left destitute by their parents—and possibly saved taxpayers $58,000.

Welfare Minister Cecile told the legislature Tuesday that a newspaper advertisement with a request for "good homes and heartwarming" had resulted in the children being placed together in a home.

The Children's Aid Society took over care of the children—ranging in ages from 2 to 7 — after they had been deserted by their parents and the subsequent desertion by their foster parents.

Mr. Cecile said the cost of keeping the children had been $304 a month.

Shopping Centre Owners Hooked by Sears Realtor

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Large chain stores took advantage of the rapid growth of shopping and credit plans to obtain fairly-low rentals to shopping centre owners until recently, a Montreal realtor told the Ontario Association of Real Estate Boards Tuesday.

James A. Lowden, president of the Canadian Commercial Corporation Estate Boards, told the convention of the Ontario group that supermarkets, variety and department stores had a financial hardship to a number of shopping centre owners by refusing to pay a fair rent.

These chains were able to pay low rents because they were main area advertisers and drawing cards for the centres, he said. The situation now was changing as chains began to understand they were not paying their fair share.

Toronto realtor H. P. Langer told the real estate men they must not overlook the importance of parking in the sale of business. People won't spend $20,000-$40,000 for a store, he said, unless they like the address, he said.

Dr. H. L. Purdy, director of the farm economics and statistics branch of the Ontario department of agriculture, said the time is rapidly approaching when municipal government in Ontario will have to be taken to save Ontario farmland from the loss of 3,000 acres of farm land in the province since 1945 had been largely offset by new land cultivation, he said.

F. H. McMorran of Ottawa was elected association president.

Kenneth S. Raven of Kingston was elected vice-president and John Bowers of Peterborough a director. Other directors include Clyde E. B. Fleming, Sault Ste. Marie, and Frank H. Wilson, Kitchener. K. G. Ferguson, Woodstock, was elected vice-chairman of the rural realtors committee.

Judge Reserves Judgment on Owner's Claim

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Charles D. Stewart reserved judgment Tuesday on a Long Branch home owner's $11,500 claim against the village for demolishing her basement apartment last March.

F. Andrew Brewin, counsel for plaintiff Mrs. Alexandra Bihun, said the municipality acted while court proceedings restraining it were pending. "A state of anarchy will be taught to this municipality," he said.

Court had been told that a contractor company, hired by the village, sent 4 crew through her kitchen window, detached plumbing fixtures, ripped away electrical installations and knocked down partitions in the basement apartment of her home.

That same day a temporary injunction was granted restraining the village from removing the plumbing fixtures.

Walter M. Martin, Long Branch counsel, said the previous owner had been fined for unlawfully constructing a portion of the plumbing system without first obtaining a permit and had been ordered to remove it to the bylaw within three months.

Biblical Epic, Ben Hur, Tops In Nominations

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The movie Ben-Hur, biblical epic that has won acclaim for its dramatics and pageantry, dominates nominations made public Tuesday for the 32nd Academy Awards.

The MGM movie collected 12 nominations in the Oscar derby. The awards show is April 4. The Diary of Anne Frank and The Nun's Story each drew eight nominations, followed by Anatomy of a Murder with seven and Room at the Top with six.

The five films will contend for best-picture honors.

Elizabeth Taylor was nominated for best actress for Suddenly, Last Summer, and Simone Signoret, Room at the Top; Two Hepburns—Audrey for The Nun's Story and Katharine for Suddenly Last Summer; and Doris Day, Pillow Talk.

In the best actor race were Laurence Harvey, Room at the Top; Charlton Heston, Ben-Hur; Jack Lemmon, Some Like It Hot; Paul Muni, The Last Angry Man; and James Stewart, Anatomy of a Murder.

Two Anatomy of a Murder actors were nominated for best support: Arthur O'Connell and George C. Scott. Also named were Hugh Griffith, Ben-Hur, Robert Vaugh, The Young Philadelphians, and Ed Wynn, Diary of Anne Frank.

ANOTHER DOUBLE

Imitation of Life also scored double nominees for best female support: Susan Kohner and Juanita Moore. Others named were Hermione Baddeley, Room at the Top; Thelma Ritter, Pillow Talk; and Shelley Winters, Diary of Anne Frank.

Best director nominations went to William Wyler, Ben-Hur; Fred Zinnemann, The Nun's Story; George Stevens, Diary of Anne Frank; Jack Clayton, Room at the Top; and Billy Wilder, Some Like It Hot.

Nominated for best song were the title songs of The Best of Everything, The Five Pennies and The Hanging Tree, plus High Noon from A Hole in the Head and Strangers Are the Waves of Love from The Young Land.

Browder Says Mr. K. Follows His Reasoning

NEW YORK (AP) — Joseph Stalin gave the signal for the opening of the cold war in 1945 by purging personally the leadership of the Communist party in the United States, Earl R. Browder, party's former chief, charged.

In a blitz article in the current issue of Harper's Magazine, Earl Browder, breaks a silence of 15 years on the reasons behind his sudden expulsion as a "revisionist."

Browder was expelled by the U.S. Communists after Jacques Duclos, a French Communist leader and powerful figure in the Communist International, accused him publicly of "sowing dangerous opportunistic illusions" about the possibility of peaceful co-existence of the American and Soviet social systems.

Today, Browder says, Nikita Khrushchev has adopted the Browder heresy.

ADVICE TO FARMERS

SHELBURNE (CP) — Farmers were warned Monday by the Du'Ferin Federation of Agriculture to seek federation advice before closing deals with the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission for the sale of land rights for transmission lines. Secretary of William McCarthy said the federation received no Hydro land grants that where power lines cross farm lands a 33-year easements has negotiated instead of outright sale.

Queen Taking Exercises to Regain Figure

The exercises, done while lying in bed, were prescribed by John Peel, her obstetrician who delivered the sovereign's second son Friday. Margaret Saul, a physiotherapist, is helping with the exercises.

The informants said the 33-year-old Queen has been advised to do the exercises twice a day for 10 minutes at a time.

JOBS FOR DISABLED — Ralph Butt, 33, works in the small Toronto office of Just One Break, an organization that helps find jobs for disabled persons. Supported by grants from the March of Dimes and guided by a similar organization in New York City, the Toronto office of J.O.B. is the first in Canada. In the first four months of operation it placed some seven or eight of 85 disabled persons on its rolls. Mr. Butt, a former salesman and advertising executive, says the future goal is to establish J.O.B. offices in other Ontario cities. (CP Photo).

J. O. B. 'Just One Break' Agency Placing Disabled Persons Back in Work World

By BRUCE LEVETT

TORONTO (CP)—You get the idea as soon as you open the door to the cubbyhole office on Yonge Street here, close to the subway's north end terminal at Eglinton Avenue.

The receptionist interviews you from a tasteful, lightweight wheelchair and passes you into the office of the director. He greets you leaning heavily on a cane.

This is the only office in Canada of J. O. B.—Just One Break —an organization backed by the March of Dimes to fit the disabled person back into the workaday world.

"Our job is to overcome the first big obstacle—getting a disabled person to an employer who won't consider disability a factor. Then it's up to the individual to sell his own abilities and talents."

J.O.B., set up under the guidance of a similar organization in New York City, has 85 disabled persons on its rolls. They have placed "seven or eight" in the first four months of operation and are "tremendously encouraged" by the figures.

"They told us in New York that they would place about two in the first six months. The Boston branch said it would take five years to become established."

Naturally, J.O.B. is a non-profit organization, financed by grant under the March of Dimes.

"We act as a liaison body. Many employers are willing to hire the disabled if they can get a good, honest appraisal of the person," Mr. Butt says. J.O.B. supplies it in the form of a thorough physical report.

Interviewing disabled persons willing and able to work is only half the story, Mr. Butt and his assistant, Mrs. June O'Keefe, also visit factories and offices, interviewing personnel managers, finding what sort of openings could occur that a disabled person could fill. Then they ask the company to call them when a vacancy occurs.

"A surprising number of them do," Mr. Butt says. "We find that many senior executives are disabled themselves—with heart disease, cancer or some other complaint—and yet they have failed to give themselves as a 'disabled person.'

"We like to look over their operation before sending a disabled person out. We have to consider things as how many steps are there to climb? Are the aisles wide enough for a wheelchair? I seldom enter a building now without automatically counting the steps."

The toughest placement J.O.B. has tackled was the first person to seek help—a young high school graduate suffering from cerebral palsy. They got a job at an outlying plant and at first she spent "about half her salary" in taxi fares.

J.O.B.'s standing rule is that is applicant must have a permanent disability,' must be able to work full time and must want permanent employment. Their rule of thumb is that if the applicant is able to get to the job, he is able to work at it.

In the case of the girl with cerebral palsy, "she soon worked out transportation within the company."

J.O.B. stresses that it protects the employer as well as helping the employee.

"If the applicant doesn't work out, the company telephones us and we take him out of the company. This gets over the objection of employers who disliked hiring disabled persons because they felt they would be in an unhappy position if the applicant didn't work out."

J.O.B. occasionally runs across human vultures willing to take advantage of persons too broken and beaten to argue terms. One applicant was fired from his previous job because a friend reported his employer—the man had been paid $35 for a 75-hour week.

"Some people feel those not employable are not worth full salary—something we insist upon. We counter that everybody is disabled in that not everybody can do every job."

In Ontario, more than 12,000 persons are receiving disabled persons' allowances. Many could earn their own living, J.O.B. claims.

"With disability there is still plenty of ability."

Once J.O.B. is settled in Toronto, the next step will be to organize in other Ontario cities, Ralph Butt says.

"There's a need for this work all across the country."

CANADA'S MR. BOXING — Gene Letourneau, who fought 46 professional fights in his youth under an assumed name, is national commissioner of the Canadian Boxing Association. Associated with boxing for 44 years, he fought his first fight as a bantamweight in 1916 at the age of 16 but used the name Gene (Kid) Dufresne because he didn't want his parents to know he was fighting. Mr. Letourneau also holds a regular job as governor of the Quebec provincial jail. (CP Photo).

Gene Letourneau Associated With Boxing for 44 Years

By LAURENT CHIASSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP) — Gene Letourneau, Canada's Mr. Boxing, has remained associated with the fight battlers for 44 years on the theory that he can't keep away from the sport.

He spends his days at work as governor of the Quebec Provincial Jail. In his spare time he handles the duties of national commissioner of the Canadian Boxing Federation, as representative of several rating committees and ex-officio to boxing commissions.

His association with the boxing ring dates back to 1916, when he was 16 years old and won his first of 46 professional fights. After he quit the ring, he became an instructor, trainer and manager of boxers, and served a two-year term as president of the CBF before being appointed national commissioner of the federation in 1956.

CALM VIEWS

The jovial, rotund "man about boxing" has no personal theory about the current boxing complications.

"Some people will tell you that boxing is crooked, but it isn't," he said in an interview. "Some people who are connected with it are, though, and everybody knows that. These people mean well but they don't always do the right thing.

"Boxing is still a great sport but it's not what it used to be," he said. "It's too much of a business proposition these days."

Letourneau has been Canada's representative on the National Boxing Association's rating committee since 1946, is Canada's advisor to the British Boxing Board of Control, chairman of Canada's rating committee and a technical advisor to the Quebec Boxing Commission.

But boxing is not his only trade. He is a fingerprint expert and worked as an investigator before taking over as governor of Quebec's 100-year-old provincial jail 10 years ago.

In 1948 Letourneau introduced a plan to have fingerprints of boxers, managers and seconds on fighters' licence cards to a Montreal convention of the NBA. The plan was accepted. Canadian boxing commissions also accepted it.

"Of course the NBA and the CBF are not police departments," he said, "but we have a system now whereby we know with whom we are dealing. No boxer may fight under another boxer's name as happened several times before the plan came into being.

CHANGED NAME

Letourneau fought as a bantamweight from 1916 to 1925. In those days he was known to fight fans as Gene (Kid) Dufresne. "I changed my name because I didn't want my parents to know I was fighting," he said.

"The name stuck to me until I quit fighting."

His won 40 fights, was held to a draw three times and lost only three. He was never knocked out.

At one time, after his fighting days were over, he had 54 fighters, from all divisions, under his direction. He developed three Canadian champions and was in many cases Canadian boxers' corners like Al McCoy, Freddie Welsh, Dave Castilloux, Bill Bronco Lowe, Gus King, Steve Devon, Fernando Gagnon and others.

The three Canadian champions he developed were Jean Barrieau in the featherweight class, Joe Villeneuve, who was Canada's featherweight champion for six years, and Aurelien Lamothe, in the bantamweight division.

In the past decade he has often been called on to settle ring disputes.

"I've hesitated at times, but never refused to help," he said. "There were times I figured I was intruding into someone else's territory. But I'll do anything—if it will help boxing."

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP) — George Dudley and Bunny Ahearne exchanged knowing glances and blurted almost simultaneously: "This is duck soup compared with 1948."

Some of their listeners didn't know what they were talking about, but 1948 probably will go down in history as the most controversial name - calling, complaint - filled winter Olympic Games ever held. Naturally enough, the rumpus revolved around hockey, just as it has done in these games.

Ahearne was secretary of the International Ice Hockey Federation at the time, and Dudley, the slow-talking Midland, Ont., lawyer, was secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, a position he still holds.

RINKS BAD

The battle of 1948 came up last week when IIHF officers arrived here to conduct their business regarding hockey on the Olympic program. They were appalled at the condition of the three artificial rinks, sat down with organizing committee members and tried somehow to straighten out the mess.

After a long session with the organizers, Dudley and Ahearne reminisced about the games at St. Moritz, Switzerland, 12 years ago. They laughed and joked about it, but at the time it was not funny.

Two American teams, where only one was allowed, turned up at St. Moritz, each with the avowed intention of competing. It developed into a three-pronged fight with the organizing committee from Switzerland and the International Olympic Committee lined up against the hockey federation.

The IOC said that the American team recognized by the Amateur Athletic Union would compete. The hockey officials laid it on the line with a threat of withdrawing hockey from the Olympics unless the Amateur Athletic Union of the American Hockey Association of the U.S. was permitted to play.

The AHA team eventually started, but only after some of the bitterest and longest haggling known to the Games. They met day and night for almost a week before the Olympics opened, and neither side would yield until the eve of the Games.

The IOC eventually gave in, but not all the way. They ruled that the federation - recognized club could play, but that none of its games would count in the competition.

HARD FEELINGS

"You know," said Dudley, "I had a bitter enemy at that time. He was Sidney Dawes of Montreal, president of the Canadian Olympic Association. He refused to recognize me, but after it was all over we became good friends, and we still are."

Ahearne, a fiery, outspoken Irishman from England who loves a fight, said he didn't have a friend on the IOC in the Swiss-land meetings. "And I still haven't got one. I guess I did too much talking and arguing.

"I was determined they would not push us around. The hockey federation says which teams will play in the Olympics, not the International Olympic Committee, and we just had to stick with our decision."

Stanley Cupper Cy Denneny Doesn't Like Today's Game, Says It's Too Dangerous

By TOM MITCHELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Cy Denneny, who played on five Stanley Cup champions in the 1920s and won a place in hockey's Hall of Fame, thinks today's game is more dangerous.

"Today it's the same as it was back between two high-powered cars when these boys meet—one or another has to give," says the chunky former left winger.

Unlimited substitution and less stringent offside restrictions meant present-day players had the energy and the opportunity to go full out. Accidents were more likely.

But the old - time game, if slower, was still plenty rough. "You had to watch your head or it wouldn't stay on very long."

LACROSSE TRICKS

Many players had lacrosse training and "just naturally carried those sticks high."

"One of the best lacrosse checks was to slam your stick down hard on the other fellow's and try to jar the ball loose. The boys carried this into hockey and sometimes that stick came down on an arm."

Denneny recalls that his hips were "black and blue after every game." He has a touch of arthritis in his left hip and leg and sees a cane.

Now 68, and recently retired after 42 years in the civil service, Denneny looked back over a 15-year pro hockey career during which he scored 216 goals.

FIVE STANLEY CUPS

He was with Ottawa Senators when they won four Stanley Cups and then moved to Boston Bruins who promptly won another in his last season as a pro.

He remembers particularly the fireworks of the 1926-27 final when he played for Ottawa against Boston. Senators were awarded the cup after winning two and tying two in the best-of-five series. League president Frank Calder made the decision, saying he didn't want anyone to think the series was being extended to increase the gate.

"That was a rough series," Denneny says. Boston's Billy Coutu was expelled from the National Hockey League for life after assaulting referees Gerry Lafiamme and Billy Bell after the final game, won 3-1 by Ottawa. Other scores were 0-0, 3-1 and 1-1.

Hooley Smith was fined $100 and suspended a month for clobbering right winger Harry Oliver; Boston's Lionel Hitchman and Ottawa's George Boucher were fined $50 each for fighting and Jim Heberts of Bruins was assessed $50 for "wild actions and intimidation."

TURNED PRO IN 1914

Born at Farran's Point, Ont., now covered by the St. Lawrence Seaway, Denneny grew up in Cornwall, 19 miles away. He played hockey there and later with Russell in the lower Ottawa Valley league and with an O'Brien mine team in Northern Ontario's cobalt Mining League. He turned pro in 1914 with Toronto Shamrocks and moved to Ottawa in 1916, remaining there until 1928 when he took a turn as assistant manager, coach and player with the Bruins.

None of the teams he played for ever was defeated in a Stanley Cup final. He was with Senators when they won in 1920, '21, '23 and '27 and Bruins in '28. Among Ottawa team-mates were Frank Nighbor, Eddie Gerrard, Jack Adams, Alex Connell, Hec Kilrea and Frank Finnigan.

He was an NHL referee from 1929 to 1931 and was coach and manager of Ottawa Senators of the NHL in 1933-33.

SWIFT KILLERS

LONDON (CP) — The Racing Pigeon Association is asking the home secretary for permission to kill peregrine falcons, believed the fastest birds in England. Protected by law, the falcons have killed many valuable racing pigeons over the last few years.

OUTSTANDING PLAYER

Cy Denneny, a member of hockey's Hall of Fame, played on five Stanley Cup champion teams during an outstanding 15-year professional hockey career. He was with Ottawa Senators when they won in 1920, 1921, 1923 and 1927 and then joined Boston Bruins, champions in 1928. Denneny's last year as a pro. The former left winger, now 68, started playing pro hockey in 1914 with Toronto Shamrocks. He moved to Ottawa in 1916. He retired recently after 43 years in the civil service at Ottawa. (CP Photo).

Six World Swimming Records Shattered by Three Aussies

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Three Australians shattered six world records in the space of an hour Tuesday night. Dawn Fraser, a 22-year-old Adelaide girl, accounted for half of them.

John Konrads bettered marks in the 440-yard and 400-metre freestyle, while Neville Hayes beat the record for the 220-yard butterfly.

The Australian swim officials predicted a sweep of all swimming honors in the 1960 Olympic Games at Rome.

Miss Fraser, winner of the 100-metre freestyle in the 1956 Olympics in world record time, first broke the 110 - yard butterfly mark. She swam it in one minute, 10.8 seconds, four-tenths of a second better than the record held by Becky Collins of Indianapolis.

She returned 45 minutes later and bettered her world records for 110 yards and 100 metres in 60.2 seconds. This boat by 1.2 seconds the 110-yard mark she set in 1958 at the Empire Games in Wales, and by one second her record for the 100 metres.

Konrads sped the 440 - yard free style in 4:15.9. That bettered his world 440 of 4:19 and captured the 400-metre record which he had lost to Japan's Tsuyoshi Yamanaka, last summer. Yamanaka did 4:16.6 at Osaka.

If formally approved, these performances would raise Konrads' list of world freestyle records to seven. His sister, 15 - year - old Ilsa, holds six.

Hayes swam the butterfly in 2:17.8, bettering by 2.1 seconds the mark of 2:15.8, set arbitrarily by the International Swimming Federation.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Two big nights are on ice this week for the hockey faithful.

Tonight is a big one for the younkers when the OMHA first-round playdowns get under way in Memorial Arena.

Friday night is a big one for the popular Gordie Bell, coach of the McFarlands, who will be the central figure in a Booster Club-sponsored "Gordie Bell Night." Hockey-wise the Windsor Bulldogs will help the Macs wrap up their 54-game schedule.

Three Kingston teams will be the guests of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association squads tonight, albeit one of the games will be an exhibition affair.

The bantam teams will up the curtain on the night's triple-header, taking the ice at six o'clock. The midgets follow at 7.30 and the juveniles wind up the evening's fun, starting nine o'clock.

Somebody apparently "goofed" as far as the bantams are concerned. It seems their playing certificates did not reach the OMHA secretary in time for eligibility, and the disappointed youngsters were disqualified. They were not alone. The Toronto Hockey League banties and some four other clubs also failed to file the necessary papers, and were tossed out on their respective ears.

However, the pint-sizers, disappointed as they are, will be going all out to hang a defeat on their Kingston counterparts. They are a good little club, which has been well-coached and trained hard for the big playoff.

The midgets, too, should give the Limestone laddies a real run for the roses in this first game of a two-fray goals-to-count series. They have a good club, too, and are out to repeat the highly creditable performances which annexed their playdown efforts last year. Local officials and coaches look for a victory in this category.

If the juveniles bow, it will not be because of lack of condition and playing experience. Coach Russ Soules has whipped his five young club into splendid shape and Kingston will have to be a little better than good to pull this series out of the fire.

Soules has kept his youngsters in the pink by playing them as a member of the City Industrial League. Stacked against wily old veterans of former senior and intermediate leagues, the non-voters came up with some outstanding performances. They had a league record of won two, lost eight and tied two. Some of their losing scores were squeakers in which the kids were nosed out by hairline scores.

They pulled an upset last Sunday when they defeated Booths TV 4-2 in the second game of the Industrial League semi-finals. They are the defending Junior "B" champs of the city, have had excellent coaching and know how to take care of themselves. This game should be a thriller and fans should not miss it—or any of the tilts as far as that goes.

GORDIE BELL NIGHT

Plans have been finalized for the honor night for Gordie Bell and Booster Club president Jim Matthews and his hard-working executive and committees are looking for a bumper crowd come Friday evening.

Over sixty prizes have been donated by generous merchants and others of the city and these will be drawn for immediately following the game. Ticket holders do not have to be present in order to win. A list of the "luckies" will be published in this newspaper Saturday morning.

The presentation of the gifts to Coach Bell will take place between the second and third periods of the Bell-dogs-McFarlands game.

There are plenty of tickets left. They will be on sale up to the end of the first period Friday night. If you can't buy otherwise, get them at the arena Friday.

BATA BALL

There's a doughty band of puckchasers out Batawa way who take their hockey seriously. They're labbed the Bata Bombers, who play in a Trenton Industrial league. There is nothing of the "pro" taint on this crew. In fact they pay their own way into the igloo on nights they are playing.

However, the Bombers' treasury can stand a little of that silver lining stuff, so the boys are hosting a dance come Friday night in the home town. Splendid music, tasty refreshments and fun for all have been readied, as for a real evening's entertainment drop around the Bata Recreation Hall Friday evening.

JUNIOR A GAME SET

TORONTO (CP)—A Junior A game between Hamilton Tiger-Cubs and Barrie Flyers postponed last Friday because of sleet will be played Feb.26 at Barrie, the Ontario Hockey Association announced Tuesday. Secretary Bill Hanley said Hamilton's Memorial Gardens is booked, while Senior kicked out eleven. Both goalies came up with key saves as the latter quickened.

Macs Last-Minute Rally Yanks Win From Chatham

Had 4-1 Lead in 3rd Period Wiped Out by Maroon Drive; Davey Jones Scores Winner

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The Macs showed a pint-size crowd their now famous third-period "fadeaway" act here last night, but this time it had a happier ending.

True, they defeated the Chatham Maroons 5-4 but for a couple of minutes in the fateful final frame, it was closer than grandpappy's winter longies.

They had a 4-1 lead going away until eight minutes in the last chapter. Then Eddie Martineau drew a penalty that proved the spark that fired the Maroon explosion. Within seven minutes they slung home three unanswered goals—and it was a new ball game.

It was anybody's take-home pay from here until the clock read 17.42 when the Macs banged up on the Maroon net and Davey Jones filled a small opening with rubber to score the winner. Maroons pulled the goalie with 51 seconds to go, but the Macs hung on until time ran out.

The Maroons have one more chance to piggy-back the Kitchener Dutchmen and take over third spot in the standing. They entertain the Whitby Dunlops late this week in their remaining schedule game and thereon hangs their positional fate.

SCORED EARLY

The Macs who outshot the opposition 37-33 on the night's play, raced into a first-period 2-1 lead. They held a big edge in the scoreless second heat and scored their fourth goal early in the third. Then it happened.

Davy Jones and Denis Boucher topped the Macs goalgetters with two each with Paul Peyette—getting the fifth. Wiener Brown and Lou Smrke each got two assists with Bart Bradley, Floyd Crawford, Whitey Hincks-berg and John Chaszewski getting singles.

Mader, Sharpe, McGregor and Malo were the Maroon triggermen with Cleary getting two assists.

The Macs lost no time getting into the scoring columns. Peyette batting home a Maroon rebound after 1.57 minutes of play. The homesters had the better fo the period outbooking Johnny Herreck's crew 13-9.

Dietrich set up the equalizer nearly after four minutes, racing behind the Mac net and ripping out a pass to Mader who made no mistake.

DENIS BOUCHER
. . . Goals 19 And 20

The homesters quickly regained the lead. A passing play by Brown and Bradley drove in with Bunny Bradley. Brown's high blast ripped into the netting back of the Maroon goal, the puck rebounding perfectly to Boucher's stick. The winger drove it home with a skilling slapper from close-in.

Chatham got only the only sentence of the period, but the Mac defence held. The Maroons drove in but were weak in front of the goal, Forhan missing a wide-open net with Senior out of position.

Boucher scored his twentieth goal of the season with seconds to go when he shovelled in Brown's pass from the crease edge. Crawford was in on the play.

The Macs again dominated the play in the scoreless second period, Gilles Hincks and Hincks-while Senior kicked out eleven.

Both goalies came up with key saves as the latter quickened.

DAVEY JONES
. . . Game Winner

Power and Smrke missing gaping nets.

With four minutes to go, the Macs applied terrific pressure, MacDonald firing three point-blank shots in a row at Hicks, then drawing a penalty when he tried to take the goalie out bodily.

A hassle started around the Maroon nets with Leyte and Muir drawing majors for fighting. Power's penalty for interference a minute later evened matters but both sides failed to take advantage of the extra manpower.

Jones scored his first goal of the evening on a goalmouth gang-ing attack in the third heat, firing the rubber through a mass of players to give the Macs a 4-1 lead.

Then Eddie Marineau's penalty at 8.57 fused the Maroon offensive. Sharpe circled the net and scored from Forhan's pass. Cleary a minute later to cut the margin and the Macs appeared to pull themselves into the shell. The Maroons kept it up the attack and at 11.51 McGregor slung home Cleary's pass to whittle the margin to a goal.

Hicks kicked out two hot drives from the Brown, Bradley, Boucher combo but Malo ripped home the equalizer at 15.30 on a three-pronged play with Skov and Power.

Hasslin defen apparently fir-ed the Macs and they regained their win-ning form and stayed there in. Davy Jones fired the winner at 17.42 after the Maroons had kicked out seven which they triggered the first tally.

Chicago Black Hawks have won 15 of 25 and Detroit Red Wings 12 of 24. They are tied for third. The lowly New York Rangers have the worst first-goal points record: nine wins, eight losses and five ties for 25 of a possible 44 points in 22 games.

That's an average of a point a game, far better than the Blueshirts' total of 39 points in 36 games so far.

First Goal Important in National League

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The obvious advantage of the first goal in hockey is that it puts the scorer one point ahead of his opponent.

But National Hockey League statistics for this season indicate that the initial score apparently has a decided effect on the outcome of a game.

Of the 147 games won in the NHL this season, teams scoring the first goal have won 109. The opening tally has resulted in only 35 losses.

The league - leading Montreal Canadiens, for instance, have scored first in 39 of 58 games; have won 29, lost only three, and tied seven. This gives them 65 points of a possible 78.

In the 19 games in which they were slower on the draw, the power-packed Habs picked up 16 of a possible 38 points.

LEAFS GOOD EXAMPLE

The second - place Toronto Maple Leafs have tallied goal No. 1 in 35 NHL tilts, winning 24, losing six, and tying five.

Boston Bruins, faltering in fourth place but the highest NHL scorers on Montreal, have the third best first-goal average with 30 of 58 games in which they tallied the first goal.

Sonny Liston T.K.O's King In 8th Round

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Sonny Liston of Philadelphia, second - ranking heavyweight contender, scored a technical knockout over Howard King of Reno, Nev., Tuesday night in the eighth round of their scheduled 10-round bout.

Liston weighed 212½ and King 195.

In a preliminary, Ed Beattie, contender for the Canadian lightweight boxing championship, won his 14th consecutive fight without a loss, taking a six-round decision over Glen Holloway of Miami.

MATCH A STALEMATE

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters) —The third cricket test match between the West Indies and England ended in stalemate Tuesday. The five-match series now stands at one win for England, two draws and two to be played. Tuesday the West Indies was 55 runs short of a win and England needed four more West Indian wickets to clinch its second game of the series.

CBS Apologizes To Japanese For Word 'Jap'

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP) —The Japanese Olympic team said Tuesday it received a formal apology following the use of the word Jap on U.S. television broadcasts of the Winter Games.

Japanese people consider the word derogatory.

Prof. Hitoshi Kihara, leader of the Japanese team, said he told a representative of the Columbia Broadcasting Company" that I appreciate the apology and that I fully understand that no harm was meant by the use of the word."

Quebec Aces Lose to Bears

QUEBEC (CP)—Hershey Bears kept their slim playoff hopes alive by chalking up a 4-1 victory Tuesday night over Quebec Aces in an American Hockey League game before 3,683 fans.

Hershey is sixth in the seven-team loop with 49 points, 10 behind fifth-place Cleveland. Quebec trails with 32 points.

Hershey was paced by Dunc Fisher's two goals. Other Hershey marksmen were Jack McIntyre and Willie Marshall. Aces lone scorer was Camille Bedard.

TO WEAR MASK

MONTREAL (CP)—Gerry McNeil, 33-year-old goaltender with Montreal Royals of the Eastern Professional Hockey League, Tuesday was fitted out with a fibreglass face mask.

McNeil and mask will first be seen together in Thursday's home encounter with Hull-Ottawa Canadiens. It is expected to that worn by Jacques Plante of the National Hockey League Montreal Canadiens.

American Beauty Wins Figure-Skating Gold Medal

Carol Heiss Home in Breeze, Canadian Girl Finishes 10th; Oshawan is Hopeful Today

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP) — Don Jackson of Oshawa, considered one of the best free skaters in the world, starts out today in quest of the men's Olympic figure - skating championship, and again he will be up against David Jenkins of the United States, winner of the world championship for the last three years.

Jackson, a 19-year-old student whose mother went to work for nine years to help finance his skating career, has moved up in the last two years to the top ranks and is looked upon to give Canada a second Olympic medal to go with the gold one won by Barbara Wagner and Bob Paul of Toronto in the pairs figure skating half Friday.

Last year the five - foot - five, 130-pound Jackson won the North American and Canadian titles and finished second behind Jenkins in the world championships. Also competing is Donald McPherson of Stratford.

Jenkins, a 25-year-old medical student, is expected to give the 175 - 5 king of ice to second queen Carol Heiss, Jackson could win the silver for another runner-up finish.

WINS EASILY

Carol, the pretty four - time American world champion, demaxed 14 years of dedication when she won the women's Olympic figure-skating crown in a breeze Tuesday.

The 5-foot-2 blonde won a championship until the 20 - year - old baker's daughter came through with a brilliant, almost flawless free-skating exhibition before a capacity crowd of 8,500.

Carol beat both Sjouke Dijkstra of the Netherlands and 17-year-old American Barbara Ann Roles in this event competition, after she had piled up a commanding lead in the five compulsory school figures.

Miss Heiss was picked tops by all nine judges with 1,486 points. The 16-year-old Dutch girl had 1,434 points for second with Miss Roles third with 1,414.9. Two young Canadians who lack experience in international competition made good showings in the field of 26. Sandra Tewkesbury, 17, of Chatham, placed 10th and 15-year-old Wendy Griner of Toronto was 12th.

DOUBLE WINNER

The other winners Tuesday were Russia's Lidia Skoblikova who won the 3,000-metre (two-mile) speed skating in 5:14.3 to become the first double gold medal winner of the eighth Winter Games; Yvonne Buerg, a pretty 20-year-old Swiss secretary who edged Penny Pitou of the U.S. for the women's giant slalom gold medal with a time of 1:39.9, and Haakon Bruuveer, a 22 - year - old Norwegian who beat Sweden's mighty Sixten Jernberg, winner of the 30-kilometre gold medal, for the 15-kilometre (9.4 - mile) prize in 51:56. Jernberg was timed in 51:58.6.

Miss Pitou, hampered by a nasty chest cold, still managed to finish only one-tenth of a second behind the Swiss girl. The 21-year-old New England blonde already has won the silver medal in the downhill and seems a cinch to be the women's world alpine title.

The bronze medal went to Mrs. Chanzi Minuzzo of Italy, timed in 1:40.2. American Betsy Snite was fourth in 1:40.4.

All the winning times were close, resulting in a fifth placing for 21-year-old Anne Heggtveit of Ottawa. Her time was a good 1:42.1. Four girls finished immediately ahead of her were deadlocked for ninth place while there was another tie for fifth.

PRAISES SKIERS

Canadian ski team manager Andy Tommy of Ottawa commented:

"Two years ago we were 12 seconds behind the winners in the world championships. This time has been cut down to seven seconds here and the reason probably is that for the first time Canada has had a real training camp. We have been going since last November and it has paid off for us."

In the speed skating number Tuesday, Valentina Stenin, was second in 5:16.9 and Eevi Huotarinen of Finland third in 5:21.0. Mrs. Doreen Ryan of Edmonton was 14th and Peggy Robb of Saskatoon 16th.

Mrs. Ryan's time of 5:30.7 might have been a bit faster except for a mixup. In her heat, a bell to signal the last lap didn't sound and she saved her finishing kick for an unnecessary lap.

Skating coach Frank Stack of Winnipeg also was high on the Canadian performance so far.

"Our girls have broken Canadian national records in three events—500, 1,000, 1,500 and 3,000 metres—and I think they've done wonderful. All they need, and they've shown it here, is more international competition."

Clarence Servold of Canmore, Alta., who was a surprise 16th odd-place finisher in the 15-kilometre cross-country leg of nordic combined, and was only 36th place over the same distance Tuesday as the nordic jumping specialists who passed up the combined event returned to competition. His brother Irvin was 47th.

Major Leagues Start Trek to Training Camps

NEW YORK (AP)—Four more baseball major league training contingents are expected to arrive at their spring training sites today, bringing to seven the number of camps already opened.

The Chicago White Sox, San Francisco Giants, Pittsburgh Pirates, Philadelphia Phillies and New York Yankees, Chicago Cubs, Los Angeles Dodgers and Detroit Tigers open camp early next week.

Boston, Washington and Milwaukee will have their pitchers and catchers in tow Thursday, Cleveland, Los Angeles, Cincinnati and Baltimore Saturday and Kansas City Sunday.

The Cleveland Indians, the Chicago Cubs and Detroit Tigers will begin workouts next week, when the full squads report.

Burnley Blanks Bradford 5-0

LONDON (Reuters) — Burnley, qualified for the quarter-finals of the English Football Association Cup when they defeated Bradford 5-0 at Burnley Tuesday in a fifth-round replay at Burnley.

First-Division Burnley next will meet Blackburn Rovers or Second-Division Lancashire clash.

Burnley, in the first eight minutes virtually ended the hopes of Bradford. Ray Pointer and Jimmy Robson each scored two goals, and John Connelly one.

Burnley's victory means that there will be six First Division teams and four from the Second Division arching the last eight in the competition.

In the First Division, Wolverhampton Wanderers jumped above Burnley into second place, one point behind Tottenham Hotspur, by defeating Luton Town 5-2.

Gross Leads Senior League

KITCHENER (CP)—Centre Irwin Gross of the Windsor Bulldogs of the Canada Hockey Association Senior A series is a safe bet to win the individual scoring crown.

Statistics released today, which include Sunday's games, show Gross on top of the scoring parade with 28 goals and 37 assists and 65 assists give him 88 points. He added two more Sunday.

In second place is Ted Power of Chatham Maroons with 28 goals and 46 assists for 74 points also second among the league's penalty leaders with a total of 80 minutes.

Ken Kaufman of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen is third with 72 points, five more than Gary Harper of Chatham Maroons while the Dutchmen are currently in Squaw Valley, Calif., competing in Winter Olympics.

Eight clubs of Windsor continue leading contenders with a 2.90 goals-per-game average. He has allowed 142 goals in 49 games while chalking up three shutouts.

Luis, who topped the major leagues with 56 stolen bases last year, previously had turned down a contract which would have assured him $25,000 in take-home pay.

Canadians Are "Grizzle Bears" Says Sweden

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP) — A letter dated Feb. 20 arrived Tuesday from "15 hockey teams in Stockholm," addressed to the "Canada team captain" at the Olympics. It read:

"Most people regards Canada as the best hockey country in the world. But since the match against Sweden you are just a team of lumbering grizzle-bears which slip on ice. Are you forced to adjust a player as Lasse Horn to have no resistance, that is craven.

"Do play hockey and not boxing, and do not be so self-important.

The letter referred to the Canada-Sweden game last Friday night when Horn, defenceman and team captain of the Swedes was put out of the rough play with Canada. Fifteen penalties were called—nine against the Canadians who won the game 5-2.

World Champ Will Train In Gaza Strip

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Ingemar Johansson said Tuesday he's going to train in the Gaza Strip for his return bout with Floyd Patterson.

He appeared at a press conference here to herald his forthcoming assignment as the UN Emergency Force troops along the Israeli-Egyptian frontier begleming March 10.

He will be accompanied by his adviser, Edwin Ahlquist; his brother, Rolf, an amateur middleweight boxer; and a few other wrestling partners, Albert Westphal, former German heavyweight champion.

A woman correspondent asked Johansson if he would be paid for the trip or was being motivated by his love of peace and the United Nations.

"I'm not going to earn any money on this trip." "There is no money in the trip."

The UN pays the expenses of international visitors who promote the morale of the more than 5,000 men including contingents from Canada.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The three-way fight between Seattle, Edmonton and Victoria for second place in the Western Hockey League was anything but settled by Tuesday night's action.

Victoria Cougars out-fought Edmonton 3-1 to snap the Flyers' record run of consecutive home victories at 14. Vancouver signed Seattle 5-2 at Vancouver.

Tonight Cougars travel to Calgary for their final league game on the Prairies while Flyers go to Winnipeg.

Centre Art Jones, Gord Fashoway and Connie Ford handled the scoring for Cougars and goalie Marcel Pronovost held Flyers off the scoreboard in sensational fashion until beaten at 6:30 of the third by Bob Solinger.

For Jones and Fashoway it was their 28th goal of the season.

BIG PAYOFF

LONDON (Reuters) — A half-penny investment in a penny pool won an English milkman £40,825 (£109,242) Tuesday. P. C. Webber, one of several persons who won big sums by correctly predicting eight draws matches last Saturday, said he intends to keep delivering milk and devote his time to a farm he owns.

Canadians Want Canada-Russia Game on TV, May Seek Help From Ottawa

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP)—There's a lot of behind-the-scenes talk about having the Canada-Russia final game of the Olympic hockey tournament Sunday televised by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation although the Columbia Broadcasting System holds exclusive rights.

CBS is reported to have said no to requests to the CBC to televise the game and Gordon Juckes, Melville, Sask., president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, has been busy for the CBS officials today with other hockey men and Jack Taylor, Progressive Conservative MP for Vancouver-Burrard.

"If they convince us it is impossible for the CBC to televise the game, we'll probably drop the matter," he said in an interview around."

"It not, we might go through political channels in Ottawa.

"It all depends on the answer we get."

The International Ice Hockey Federation, which has complained to the Olympics organizing committee about ice time and condition of the ice, has another beef—the blue lines and red lines on the arena ice are too faint.

"The players can hardly see them," Juckes said. "They don't like it and we don't like it. We haven't been able to get any satisfaction from them since the tournament started and we've put it up to them bluntly to fix this situation fast. There's no reason why we should be pushed

'Deadheads' Are Included in Crowd Figures

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Olympic officials said Tuesday they have been including non-paying personnel in their daily crowd estimates and will not have accurate paid attendance figures until they audit ticket sales.

Estimates of daily attendance also have included officials.

Last Sunday's crowd estimate of 47,000 included about 5,000 non-paying personnel.

'Dont Sell the Czechs Short' Says Moe, -He Should Know

Canadian Press Staff Writer

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP) —Judging from his past experiences, big Moe Benoit won't be taking anything for granted tonight when Canada meets Czechoslovakia in the Olympic hockey championship tournament.

The Canadians, with a day's rest after an easy 19-1 victory over Germany Monday night, figure the scrappy Czechs will be tough to beat, and with good reason.

The Czechs seem to play their best against Canada in world and Olympic competition, and Benoit, a 185-pound defenceman, likely hasn't forgotten it. He probably will have a lot of advice for his teammates at game time (9 p.m.) and a probable warning: remember Volf, Vlach, Polch and Starsi; watch Pantucek, Cerny and Bubnik.

WAS IN UPSET LOSS

The Czechs upset Canada's representatives 3-2 in the 1959 world tournament at Prague, although Canada won the championship.

While Benoit is the only member of that Belleville team on the Canadian squad, all the mainstays of the Czech club are here.

Jaroslav Volf, Miroslav Vlach and Rudolf Potch each scored a goal and Jan Starsi scored two for Canada in that game.

Tonight Russia meets Sweden (9 p.m.) while United States clashes with Germany (4 p.m.). The round-robin tournament ends Friday.

In consolation play Tuesday night, Switzerland japan fought Finland to a 6-6 tie.

STARRED AGAINST RUSSIA

Canada's other starters—Cerny, Pantucek and Bubnik—are the trio that made the Russian 8-5 victory over Czechoslovakia far from easy Monday night. Vaclav Pantucek scored three goals and Josef Cerny and Vlastimil Bubnik, who also is an outstanding soccer player, scored one apiece.

After Czechoslovakia, Canada meets the U.S. Thursday, Sweden Saturday and Russia Sunday.

The Canadians are skating better now that Conference All-Star defenceman Jack Douglas from Chatham Maroons, who is key are "up" for the Czech clash.

Petes Beaten By Teeps 7-3; Bilts, Cubs Tie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rod Gilbert of Guelph Billmores and Wayne Connelly of Peterborough Petes added to their individual scoring lead Tuesday night though neither of their clubs won in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A action.

Gilbert leads in total points while Connelly is the top goal-getter in the loop.

Gilbert, husky Guelph right winger, added another goal and an assist to his total, putting himself four points ahead of his teammate Jean Ratelle, in the 7-2 tie between Billmores and Hamilton Tiger Cubs.

Connelly scored all three Peterborough goals in the 7-3 beating of St. Catharines Teepees. He now has a goal ahead of Ray Cullen of the Teepees who scored two goals.

Catharines share second place with Barrie Flyers and St. Michael's Majors, all seven points behind Toronto Marlboros.

Guelph has crept within a point of fifth-place Peterborough.

The Teepees had a wide margin of play at St. Catharines after shooting the Petes 41-19. The Teepees led 2-0 after the first period, 5-3 after the second.

Murray Hall, Cullen and defenceman Pat Stapleton scored two each for St. Catharines while Bob Crossa had a single.

At Guelph, Hamilton broke a no first-period tie to lead 3-1 after the second. The four goals were by Nell Forth and Howell MacDonald for the Cubs while Gilbert scored for Guelph.

BROOKLYN (AP) — They threw out the first ball (non) at Ebbets Field Tuesday and started to knock down the former home of the Dodgers.

A delegation of the Flatbush faithful, hard-ed by former Dodger catcher Roy Campanella and several other ball players, attended a brief ceremony to mark the start of demolishing the park to make way for a $22,250,000 housing development.

A cast iron wrecking ball, painted to resemble a baseball, was the instrument of destruction. After the farewell ceremonies and a luncheon in the park's rotunda, work was started on the left field wall, favorite target of the right-handed sluggers who appeared there from 1913 to 1957.

Radio and TV Soon to Run Series of Short Commercials

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—U.S. television and radio may erupt soon with a series of short commercials telling what a dandy little public service outfit they are. It is part of a new project to help solve broadcasting's problems.

The Radio and Television Executives Society has published a public relations plan for the industry designed, as its president says, to get the picture back in focus.

It proposes using radio and television an hour each week to breaks 10-20 times a day for a series of three- to five-second messages.

RTES suggests that the individual station staffs write their own messages, but in its outline makes some suggestions, e.g.:

"This is WXXX . . . which last year brought you 782 hours of first rate m u s i c a l entertainment."

The idea, as outlined by RTES president Frank Pellegrin in a communique to members, is to go directly to the public to combat what Pellegrin calls a campaign by "p o w e r f u l forces" against broadcasting. Pellegrin mentions specifically 40 bills already introduced in Congress which would "control, regulate, punish or circumscribe broadcasting in various ways," and "organized and unorganized petitioners and their representatives."

A recent study of viewing habits made by a trade journal, Sponsor, shows that the later the hour the higher percentage of women in the home television audience. By 11:30, the breakdown is 54 per cent women, 28 per cent men, four per cent teen-agers and three per cent children.

Recommended tonight:

Playhouse 90, CBS, 8 - 9:30—Cruel Day, with Van Heflin, Raymond Massey and Peter Lorre, a drama about French Algeria:

Four for Tonight, NBC, 10:30—Four stars, Beatrice Lillie, Cyril Ritchard, Tony Randall and Tammy Grimes:

Steel Hour, CBS 10:41—First of a two-part drama, The Women of Hadley, with Gertie Hardwicke, Richard Kiley, Mary Astor, Rita Gam.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Princess Margaret of Britain has been invited to a big Swedish royal ball next month because at 29 she is a little too old for the other guests. Court chamberlain Nils Millar said Monday it had been decided to invite only royal guests who were of about the same ages as the four Swedish princesses. The oldest, Margareta, is 25.

LONDON (Reuters) — A half - penny investment in a soccer pool won an English milkman £40,915 ($109,243) Tuesday.

P. C. Webber, one of several persons who won big sums by correctly predicting eight drawn matches last Saturday, said he intends to quit delivering milk and devote his time to a farm he owns.

Two other winners set records for their wins on an investment of a farthing, which is worth about half a cent.

A woman set a record with £18,438 (49,229) win but less than an hour later it was announced that a man had topped this by winning £19,056 ($50,879).

Federation Of Agriculture Elects Officers

The members of Hastings County Federation of Agriculture met at Ivanhoe Hall on Friday evening for the annual business meeting in which Mr. Sid McDonald conducting the election of officers for the ensuing year with the following results: past president, Philip Harris, Madoc; president, George Carlisle, Stirling; 1st vice-president, Hamilton, West Huntingdon; 2nd vice-president, George Heasman, Stirling; treasurer, Harvey Homan, Corbyville; directors, Cecil Ketcheson, Allan Ketcheson, Mrs. William Donnan, Rose Ketcheson, Don Marvin; press reporter, Miss Jane Gay.

Mr. Philo Harris outlined the events of the past year including the safe driving rally and a county banquet held in Madoc.

Mr. Ray Jackson, field-man for Eastern Ontario, said that it has been felt for some time that the people of eastern Ontario were not getting as much benefit as they might from the short courses in agriculture held in the Ontario Agriculture College in Guelph.

SHORT COURSE

As a result, a number of farm organizations in the east decided to hold a short course at the Kemptville College in April from 11 to 22 inclusive. This will be an annual event and will follow as close as possible the annual held at O.A.C. Mr. Cunningham hoped that a number from Hastings County would take advantage of this course.

Allan Ketcheson, president of Cheese Producers, reported that this had been a bright year for cheese, and as they have a superior product, can demand a superior price.

Mr. Sid McDonald, agricultural representative, outlined farm accident survey. The results of the first half of the year have been published. One of the surprising facts is that there are only as many accidents in the farm home as take place in the field.

MOST IMPORTANT INDUSTRY

Mr. Earl Sager, County Warden, was present at the meeting He said agriculture was still the county's most important industry and would be for some time to come. He felt, in order to be successful, agriculture must have a united front when presenting its case.

Bob Mountjoy, secretary of the Hog Producers, outlined briefly the membership year to date, from December 29 1958 to December 29, 1959 some 7,000 hogs and 123 sows have been shipped from Madoc, the big share going to Peterborough. Cost of handling each hog is approximately 18.12 cents.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Marilyn Monroe, criticized by her former directors and co-star, gets a boost from her current leading man, Yves Montand.

But of course, you say? Why wouldn't Yves Montand, the handsome gallant words for the fabulous blonde he is appearing with in Let's Make Love?

Yes, but Montand is a no-nonsense guy who fought his way up from the Marseilles docks and the French music halls. He speaks his mind, sometimes deliberatingly, sometimes quickly as the weaves his way through a new and difficult language, English.

"I like Marilyn very much," he commented as he waited for her to arrive for a scene. "She has it up here (tapping his skull). But more important, she has it here (indicating the heart). Ah, that is very important for an actor, that actors are very intelligent, but if they lack heart, they cannot be successful for long."

LOTS OF NICE FIGURES

"Look at Marilyn. She has been top star for seven years. Yes, she has very nice figure, from both directions. But so do other girls, and they do not last.

"Yes, I have to wait on the set for Marilyn. I do not mind to wait. Because when Marilyn comes, she is prepared.

"Marilyn is a girl with a great many fears. She needs understanding, someone to calm her fears. I think she can be a very fine actress. She will do a very fine job in her next picture, The Misfits, which is a dramatic role of the director (John Huston) will take her aside the first day and be gentle with her fears."

Montand is a well - tailored, crazy - faced man with the build of a lumberjack. Italian - born and reared in France, he combines the personality and charm of both nationalities.

FORCED ENGLISH

Because Montand's presence on the set is problematical, there is always a quick change of actors. That means the scenes Montand studied the night before are postponed. Then he must hole up with his English coach in the dressing room and learn the new lines. He does not rely on his wife, actress Simone Signoret, for help, though her English is much better than his.

Montand finds Hollywood filming slower than in France, and likes it that way.

"There you take time to make sure everything is right because you're thinking how the film will look everywhere in the world," he observed. "In France, we don't have time to rearrange, we go right in the scene and shoot it."

On the Track

TORONTO (CP) — Anthony Simms, racing secretary for the Hockey Club, has rated Sailor's Guide as the best handicap horse to run on Ontario tracks in 1959. Sailor's Guide, Australian horse owned by Mr. Leon Levy of Philadelphia, won the Jockey Club Handicap at Woodbine in October.

Simms considered 68 horses for his annual Experimental Handicap, a hypothetical race at a distance of 1-16 miles. He awarded 126 pounds to Sailor's Guide, winner of the $100,000 Washington International in 1958.

War Eagle and Martini II were given 120 pounds.

AT THE BELLE — Zsa Zsa Gabor plays a wealthy and sophisticated charmer who goes her best to add Mario Lanza to her list of suitors in "For the First Time," the MGM release. The romantic musical was filmed in Technicolor and CinemaScope on locations in Rome, Naples, Salzburg, Vienna, Paris and on the island of Capri. The picture, in which you now on view at the Belle Theatre, includes color treats, and a new and funny Tom & Jerry Cartoon cartoon.

AT THE PARK — A scene from the thrill feature that beats them all "Hell and High Water" in CinemaScope and Technicolor starring Richard Widmark with Bella Darvi and David Wayne, opening Thursday at the Park Theatre. On the same program "Broken Lance", also in CinemaScope and Technicolor starring Spencer Tracy, Robert Wagner, Jean Peters, Richard Widmark and Katy Jurado.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL EIGHTER

Thursday, February 25, 1960

General Tendencies: Now you have a day in which you can make a whole new fresh start toward the aims and ambitions that are yours. Be sure that you do let others see that you can wind up whatever is pressing in a modern and efficient manner this morning. Then tonight think out your long-range plans and take steps to make them a part of your every day living.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — A.M. is excellent for working harmoniously with comrades to realize your combined aims effectively and speedily. P.M. confer with experts re answers you need to current questions and ideas for better operative methods.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Think out how you can get along far more harmoniously with loved one in A.M. Take him, or her, along to that charming spot where you can converse happily, yet be able to do your work as well. Get down to specific detail.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — A fine opportunity is yours now to garner the information you require from an associate, but it is imperative you honor his, or her, views, too. Be appreciative and the finest results will be realized. Loyalty is very important, too.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Sit back a while in A.M. and realize how you can grow and advance in your chosen profession, so that both you and fellow workers will benefit. Then you can come to a better understanding with all, including loved one in P.M.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Earnest discussion with associates, colleagues, customers, et al, will point the way to better understanding and increased prestige in the future, and real success will surely follow P.M. go to a nice place and have lots of fun.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Endeavor to install new budgets and systems that will top off time and work, whether at home or in business. Adopt a better attitude, too, so that you really get fine co-operation from others. Be jolly with associates.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — A day for true enjoyments working out special talents or with good buddies at sports. Impress others with your flair for comedy and uplift their spirits as well as your own.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — The best way in which to operate today is by giving your full attention to the interests of immediate family, especially where property is concerned. Strive for long-time security. P.M. spend time quietly at home.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — A day for unrelenting activity. Get shopping done, collect moneys owed you, pay bills and keep those appointments with important people. Get affairs nicely straightened out. Then tonight you can have fun with congenials.

Capricorn (Dec 22 to Jan. 20) — Be sure you put into operation time-saving mechanisms that will improve efficiency and take much of the labor work off your shoulders. This can be either at work or at home. Later, think out ways of increasing income.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Spend time now thinking exactly what your goals are and the best means to attain them. Be sure later to contact all those individuals who can be helpful to you and give you the support you need and must have for best results.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — A day for self analysis and planning for more efficient ways of bettering yourself and the conditions about you. Later, get out-door work done quickly. Be sure to lend a helping hand where sorely needed.

If you child is born today— The delightful child born today is the type who must have people about him, or her, constantly, and there is also a very decided humanitarian streak in this nature. Give as fine an education as you can, particularly one that will equip your youngster for work in some charitable organization. Teach that help should be given only when asked for.

HEAVY TOLL IN ALGERIA

ALGIERS (Reuters) — French troops killed or wounded 400 Algerian insurgents and captured 240 last week, for the loss of 53 French soldiers killed, French military headquarters said Monday night.

CHILDREN FOR ADOPTION

JOSEPH & TERRY — are brothers 2 and 3 years old. Baptized Roman Catholic parentage. They are healthy boys, full of mischief, and lovable. Their features and fair complexion, blue eyes and curly hair, especially the boys, would make a real dark brown hair. Both boys are South Hill love. In many interested in school than Terry. They are thoughtful youngsters, as active and energetic as all boys of their age.

If you would be interested in adopting these two darlings, please write to:

ENCOURAGE EXCHANGE

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain has set aside a special fund of £700,000 ($1,820,000) a year to encourage the exchange of teachers with the Commonwealth, it was announced Tuesday. Education Minister Sir David Eccles also said that more places in British training schools will be made available to student teachers from overseas. He was speaking on the "Teachers for the Commonwealth" conference here.

PEARSON SAYS

was developed in a period of "dangerous scarcity" of uranium.

Mr. Churchill replied that the U.S. did not beg Canada to undertake the development. The amount of money to be made provided "quite an incentive."

Mr. Pearson said:

In 1954, there was evidence that uranium "was coming into considerable supply that might have been needed." It would have been sound common sense for the Liberal government to sign contracts extending for longer than five years.

Mr. Pearson suggested the U.S. should have not allowed its subsequent uranium discoveries to be developed, thus endangering the Canadian industry.

Mr. Churchill said as external affairs minister in 1954 Mr. Pearson did not do a single thing toward that end.

Between 1954 and 1957 world uranium production was on the increase. The Liberals "are responsible for the over-production of the uranium industry." They should have signed contracts for 10 or 23 years with the U.S.

He said the Liberals, "working on the assumption that there were contracts, misled the people who now are living in Elliot Lake."

OFFERS SUGGESTION

Mr. Pearson proposed that the government consider building an enrichment plant, which would enable Canada to compete on the world market with the only cheapest supplier, the U.S.

He quoted authorities as estimating the cost at $100,000,000 or $200,000,000 and said such a step would help the uranium industry through the period of transition until uranium resources for peaceful purposes in greater quantities.

Mr. Churchill said cost of such a development would be $500,000,000. By 1963 or 1964, he said, the atomic research efforts using natural uranium would be at a stage where "we can determine if it is economically successful and if it is there will be a very good possibility for Canada of that type of reactor being built much earlier."

Mr. Elliot Lake miners say half those employed in the mines were single. The government will see that they are not inconvenienced due to having to shift employment.

INDUSTRY'S WORRY TOO

"And on industry itself must rest a great responsibility to see that employment is kept at a high but overnight.

Mr. Pearson also urged that in the light of the Elliot Lake emergency the government consider locating an atomic research plant at Whiteshell, Man. Facilities available at Elliot Lake would have to be built at great cost elsewhere. Scientists would represent a saving as well as help in their personal adjustment.

Mr. Churchill said Ontario had fared well in the atomic program and that Chalk River represents and a nuclear power station at Rocanton.

The government's policy had been to encourage exchanges across the country and "to establish a nuclear research establishment in every area as is reasonable to most people except the leader of the opposition."

TO STAY WELL AWAY

LONDON (Reuters) — British travelers will be warned this month, the 12-mile fishing limit claimed by Iceland during the period of the Law of the Sea Conference in Geneva, which opens March 17 and ends April 21, was announced Monday night. The 80-nation conference will discuss the extent of fishing limits and territorial waters which any nation can claim.

IN THE DIGESTIVE TRACT

Laboratory tests have now proved that liver bile emulsifies fats . . . actually breaks them down. It is an established fact that when liver bile is added to fats in the test tube, the fat is broken down and form a smooth, creamy liquid.

In your digestive tract, liver bile helps break down fats in the same way. Many of the foods you eat reach the digestive tract as fats and oily solids. Your golden liver bile helps break these fats down, for easier and more complete digestion.

Carter's Little Liver Pills' exclusive formula of vegetable ingredients remove irregularity gently and effectively. At the same time, it actually improves the flow of liver bile, needed to break down fats in your digestive tract.

So when you feel sluggish, headachy, nervous and need a laxative, take Carter's Little Liver Pills.

MINISTER CLAIMS

The debate, concentrated on hogs and eggs, continued an earlier discussion during the throne speech debate in the session's early weeks. At that time, Mr. Harkness made a lengthy explanation of government policy, and Tuesday he repeated and amplified it.

With discontinuance of the offer-to-purchase system, the method of support was switched to guarantee that producers will receive 84 per cent of the national average price for the previous 10 years for eggs and 85 per cent of that price for hogs.

Payments are cut off when supply after 4,000 dozen Grade A large eggs—the approximate output of a flock of 500 hens—and 100 Grade A and B hogs.

Mr. Harkness also made clear that an interim payment on hogs will be made in April, if necessary.

NEEDED CHANGE

"The system of support by means of purchase had to be changed," he said. Factory-line producers—"essentially not farmers at all"—had stepped in to take advantage of the forthcoming government payments, and the result was an unmanageable surplus of both commodities.

Now the "basic benefit" of the new system had emerged — giving factory-type operators, who had been driving the family farmer out of the hog and egg business, "more cutting back their production because of the limited support they could get.

CCF House Leader Hazen Argue said the Stabilization Act of 1958 assured farmers of floor prices for nine key commodities at 80 per cent of the average price of the previous 10 years. He also made no mention of the limits to quantity now being placed on hogs and eggs.

Paul Martin (L-Essex East) said the Liberal record is that "the offer-to-purchase policy is the right policy." However, if the government insisted on making deficiency payments, it should consider these modifications:

1—The support price should be increased. It now was at an "emergency" level, unrelated to rising production costs. The support in any one year should be adjusted to take into account the previous year's rise in costs.

2—To avoid discrimination against farmers in low-price areas, deficiency payments should be based on regional average prices rather than a national average.

Ike Guarantees Latin Americans Right To Choose

U.S. Determined to See There's No Intervention

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — President Eisenhower landed in Sao Paulo today for a brief look at the heavily populated area before settling the pace for industrialization in South America.

Eisenhower was reported standing up well under the heat and humid weather he has encountered since he began his Latin American visit. He was pleased at the giant welcome he received in Rio on his arrival there Wednesday.

Immediately on his arrival he spelled out the theme of his tour —to promote solidarity and economic development in the western hemisphere.

ADDRESSES CONGRESS

He told the Brazilian Congress that the U.S. is determined to see that the Latin American nations have "the right to choose" their own future.

He issued a clear warning to international communism, the president declared:

"We should consider it intervention in the internal affairs of the American state if any power, whether by invasion, coercion or subversion, should seek to destroy freedom of choice to the people of any of our sister republics."

The Eisenhower visit from Rio de Janeiro to spend 6½ hours in the city known as the Chicago of Brazil. He returns in mid-afternoon to Rio and Friday flies to Argentina, second stop on his four-nation South American tour.

NO PLANS

Another undisclosed conference was arranged by Eisenhower and President Juscelino Kubitschek for the hour's trip back to Rio. The two presidents were expected to deal with world problems and hemispheric affairs in a general way only, leaving the details of U.S.-Brazilian matters to U.S. State Secretary Christian Herter and Brazilian Foreign Minister Horacio Lafer who remained in Rio to confer.

NO ISOLATION

Mr. Herter has said Canada should not isolate itself. The best hope for a world community lies in the United Nations which should be the country's foundation for foreign policy.

Mr. Freedman said "it does not matter which Canadian government speaks for us in foreign affairs if we recognize our own limitations. In the last decade Canadian those who solve the disarmament problem will be the giants —the United States and Russia."

Mr. Pearson said earlier he can see difficulty ahead for NATO under the present setup whereby member states are unwilling to put their entire forces together.

"If we don't go into integrated collective arming, the defence scheme of NATO will be very difficult to work."

Storm to Dump 3 to 6 Inches Of Snow Here

TORONTO (CP) — A storm moving up from the United States is expected to drop between three and six inches of snow on Southern Ontario today and tonight, the weather office said.

Winds between 25 and 35 miles an hour were expected to cause considerable drifting before the storm ends in flurries Friday.

The weather office said the downstorm will spread through Lake Nipigon and Lake Superior sections this afternoon and extend to the Ottawa Valley and Haliburton regions tonight.

Today's Chuckle

How come the television hero can always find a parking space in front of the bank, the supermarket and the post office? (Must be rigged.)

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — An intensifying storm over Tennessee, moving slowly northeastward has now brought snow to the eastern peninsular sections of Ontario. The snow will spread northward in the Niagara and Lake Ontario regions this afternoon and as far north as the Georgian Bay and Muskoka regions this evening.

A gradual change from snow to snowflurries is expected to take place over Southern Ontario during Friday. Present indications are that from three to six inches of snow will fall over Southern Ontario due to this storm with northeasterly winds of from 25 to 35 mph causing considerable blowing and drifting snow tonight and Friday.

UNEMPLOYMENT, URANIUM UNDER BITTER ATTACK

Opposition Runs Out Clock in Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition members coupled uranium and unemployment Wednesday to throw another roadblock in front of approval of the government's supplementary estimates.

The specific item under debate was a $15,000,000 spending estimate for the winter works program for the 1959-60 fiscal year. But Liberal and CCF members took full advantage of an earlier government offer to consider all phases of unemployment when they ran out the clock on the fourth day of debate on winter works expenditures.

Arnold Peters (CCF — Timiskaming) brought in the situation at Elliot Lake, the uranium mining centre facing serious problems with term mination and a threatened shutdown of U.S. uranium purchases.

WOULD WARN U.S.

The government should tell the United States that it will curtail defence spending unless the Americans help half Elliot Lake out of its difficulties, Mr. Peters said.

The uranium development in the Northern Ontario area was undertaken only to satisfy the United States requirements, he said. The U.S. had a responsibility for those to be thrown out of work by the government decision not to buy more uranium than was called for under a five - year contract expiring in 1962.

He said the plight of Elliot Lake pointed to the need for a national manpower board, not the sort of board that operated during the Second World War but one that would be able to assess the whole field of labor and job availability.

The government also should establish a national planning board for development areas that examine the potentialities of setting

Woman Weeps When Fined $100

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Jean Shirton, 37, who was photographed by a Toronto traffic camera device as she stole $6, was fined $100 or 30 days in jail.

She was caught a week ago by John Butler who set a camera in his apartment to go off automatically when a bureau drawer was opened. He said $200 had disappeared over a six-month period.

Rev. F. W. Hunter of the First United Church said in court newspapers had "unjustly" published the fact that Butler's hidden camera had taken.

It showed a wide-eyed woman caught in the act of opening the bureau drawer. They had no right "to make anyone the stellar attraction they are," the minister said.

Mrs. Shirton's husband was the apartment block caretaker.

WAS TOP SHOWMAN

BRIGHTON, England (Reuters) — John Watt, 30, former director of planned TV for the BBC and a well-known broadcaster, died Wednesday night. He was Britain's top radio showman in the 1930s and then had many plays and songs to his credit.

Arena Roof Collapses as Manager Phones to Say Building Not Safe

TIMISKAMING, Que. (CP) — Recreation director George McWilliams was telephoning the principal of the local high school Wednesday to notify him the Timiskaming arena would be closed indefinitely when the roof fell in.

"I sounded like an earthquake," he said afterwards. There were six other men in the building. "We all dived under tables. It was a mad scramble."

The roof and one wall collapsed and the cave-in blew open all the doors and windows in the building.

The front wall enclosing the offices and dressing room where Mr. McWilliams and six other employees were standing sagged towards but held. The fourth wall is leaning at an angle.

Mr. McWilliams said "it certainly was not a snow load which caused the risk to collapse." He has called for an investigation by the provincial public works department.

The 1,000 seat arena, now a total loss, was built in 1947 and cost $125,000.

The cave-in recalled the collapse of the Listowel arena Feb. 28, 1959, which killed seven people and injured many others. Recreation director. Failure of laminated roof supports was blamed.

Germans Delay Negotiations With Spain, Seek NATO OK

BONN, West Germany (Reuters) — German Minister Franz Josef Strauss reported to a parliamentary defence committee today as the West German government faced questions at home and abroad over moves to seek army support bases and flying facilities in Spain.

Strauss brushed off reporters as he entered the meeting room to submit his report.

"I'm in a hurry," he told reporters trying to question him about the plan.

Meanwhile, Russia joined the chorus of protests over the West German moves Wednesday and charged it was part of a plan to set up German nuclear bases on the Atlantic seaboard.

A Moscow radio commentator said "the ultimate aims of this alliance of the two most reactionary regimes is extremely dangerous are not difficulty to imagine".

Strauss regarded Spain as a author of the plan which aroused American and British disapproval, Wednesday night personally assured both the United States and British ambassadors that West Germany would not proceed with negotiations for Spanish bases without prior Atlantic pact approval.

UNDER SEMI-ATTACK

The Adenauer government came under fire from the Western press for allegedly planning to move outside NATO committees and negotiate a "secret deal" with General Francisco Franco's regime, on-time friend of Hitler's. Germany, Spain is not Strauss Wednesday conferred with the U.S. ambassador and separately with U.S. Ambassador Walter C. Dowling, British Ambassador Sir Christopher Steel.

The British minister is reported to have told the ambassadors that a small defence ministry delegation would go to Madrid, recently visited Madrid.

West Germany is surrounded out" the possibility of setting up supply bases in Spain, despite the prospects of obtaining flying facilities for German pilots at a Spanish air base, Bonn reported today.

POINTS TO PROBLEM

Strauss is reported to have emphasized to the Western ambassadors West Germany's problems in building up effective supply support for its army in the event of tied, elongated territory.

The defence minister also indicated displeasure at the publicity given to his plans, informants said.

But the barrage of criticism continued in the press today.

The Social Democratic party, Adenauer's chief opposition, flayed the government for "monstrous stupidity and tactlessness."

A party statement Wednesday night said the talks between Adenauer and Franco brings back all memories of another alliance to our Western affairs."

German newspapers have labelled the plan "unfortunate," while justifying the move on military grounds.

Threat Against McGee, Family Is Withdrawn

OTTAWA (CP) — A scribbled note received Wednesday by Frank McGee said "I didn't mean it."

The note was a follow-up to one of two threatening letters received last week by the Progressive Conservative member for Parliament for York - Scarborough. It was written in the same illiterate hand and on a similar two-inch scrap of paper.

The original letter threatened Mr. McGee and his family because he was sponsoring a bill in the commons to abolish capital punishment.

Wednesday's note, bearing an Ottawa postmark but unsigned, expressed "sincere regret." It said the first said had been written "in a moment of high temper; I did it because of the illness in the RCMP and the little girl of 12."

It said that if Mr. McGee's bill wins passage no harm will come to the MP or his family.

The 33-year-old Toronto member has a wife and three children.

Harold Winch (CCF — Vancouver East), a member of Mr. McGee bill and sponsor of earlier bids to abolish the death penalty, also has received notes threatening harm to himself and his family.

Winnipeg Man Willing to Bury Body Decently

PARRY SOUND (CP) — Harry C. Paul, a Winnipeg businessman, has told town council he will pay to have the body of Marvin McKee exhumed and decently buried in the Manitoba capital.

McKee, 20, was hanged in this town 50 miles northeast of Orillia Feb. 9 after he was convicted of the murder of a Huntsville taxi driver.

Mr. Paul, president of H. C. Paul Limited, said in a telegram he had seen a report of the council's protest in Ottawa on the burial of McKee in a yard of the district jail.

Mayor James Wing said last week she thought it unfair to have the body of murderer buried practically on the main thoroughfare. She said the town was prepared to bury the body in a cemetery district.

McKee asked just before his death to be buried in the yard as a deterrent to others who choose to live dangerously.

Mr. Paul said in his telegram: "People fail to realize that some of us must be bad in order to help others to be good. It is a way God has of testing the worth of people."

Says Outboard Operators Should Be Licensed

TORONTO (CP)—The federal government will be asked to crack down on operators of outboard motorboats.

W. Bev Lewis (PC—York-Humber) told the legislature's committee on conservation Wednesday that no outboard operators should be licensed the same as motorists.

Resort areas are getting so clogged with speeding and reckless motorboats that it is "just suicide to try to swim or bathe."

Heavy Spending Planned With Emphasis On Health, Education, Municipal Aid

Budget Presents Cheerful Picture Of Ontario's Economic Health

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Allan today presented a cheerful picture of Ontario's economic health and said the prospects for the next year as "undiminished."

Mr. Allan, bringing down his second budget in the legislature and the first since the Progressive Conservative government was returned in last June's general election, unveiled an unprecedented spending program of more than $1,000,000,000 in gross outlays with emphasis on education, health and municipal aid.

He forecast a continued upswing in revenues and announced no new taxes or tax increases. He reported a surplus on ordinary account of $632,000 after allocating a big sum in unexpected revenues and predicted a $546,000 surplus for the coming fiscal year.

"During the past year new ground was broken in nearly all major fields of economic activity," Mr. Allan said.

RECORDS BROKEN

He reported records last year in population—Ontario passed the 6,000,000 mark in October—employment, production, personal incomes and retail sales.

"The gold reserves of our domestic market as well as that of our trading partners offers unrivalled opportunities. Capital investment is expected to remain at its present high level, with the emphasis on additions to machinery and equipment and over-all production increases.

"Despite setbacks which will occur in particular sectors of our economy, the strong underlying forces of growth suggest another year of better-than-average progress."

The surplus on ordinary account, the day-to-day expenses of running the government, for the year ending March 31 is based on gross revenues of $736,337,000 and expenditures of $735,705,000.

A year ago Mr. Allan had forecast a $259,000 surplus from $667,301,000 revenue and $667,042,000 expenditures.

Reserves for outstripped predictions, however. The surplus was carried over to the new fiscal year and $8,238,000 was distributed in supplementary estimates to be considered before the fiscal year ends.

These include special contributions of $1,000,000 each to the

Tempers Cooled By Police Clubs And Fire Hoses

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) —Fire hoses and the threat of police billy clubs cooled tempers of thousands of racially tense Negroes and whites who stormed Chattanooga's downtown area Wednesday for the second day.

Twenty persons — 11 Negroes and nine whites—were arrested. Police said 50 persons were taken from three of them.

The worst crowd scenes during last night's violence were in front of the Loew's theatre where gangs of belligerent white youths challenged Negro demonstrators for integrated lunch counter service.

Elsewhere in the South the situation was relatively quiet on the "sit-down" protest spread from a demonstration in Greensboro, N.C., more than two weeks ago.

Both houses of the Virginia legislature quickly passed three trespass bills. The emergency measures were proposed to thwart lunch counter sitdowns by Negroes.

Tennessee already has a law forbidding integrated service in restaurants.

Chattanooga police commissioner H. P. Dunlap announced his department would not permit any large assemblies of persons to parade or congregate in the downtown area today.

Police officials generally credited the staunch work of policemen mustered to 100 per cent strength for nearly 24 hours, with preventing a major riot in the city's second industry.

But it was the spray of fire hoses, ordered by Mayor P. R. Olgiati that scattered the bottle throwing mobs. Police used their clubs only to prod the crowd along.

UNION DISPUTES MAY HAVE TO FACE REFEREE

Amendment Would Speed Settlement

TORONTO (CP) — Unions involved in long jurisdictional disputes may soon find themselves before a provincial provincial referee.

Under a bill presented to the legislature Wednesday by Labor Minister Daley the government will be able to step into such disputes and speed up settlements.

The amendments to the Ontario Labor Relations Act will also force unions to give their members annual financial reports and bend in yearly statements on welfare schemes to the government.

The bill will be given second reading sometime next week and then handed over to the standing committee on labor.

JURISDICTIONAL TROUBLE

Highlight of the changes is the government's determination to step into minor squabbles between unions than can tie up thousands of workers.

One minor slight between two unions can tie up thousands of workers unable to be by pickets," Mr. Daley told the legislature.

"No government can stand by in this day and age when protection is so necessary and the world is becoming so competitive and permit thousands of men to remain out of work over a dispute involving very few," he said, referring to the disputes commission which

Sharpshooting Mountaineer Slain From Tank After Murdering Four

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (AP) — A sharpshooting mountaineer who picked out moving targets like ducks in a shooting gallery shot four persons to death and wounded five others Wednesday in a shooting spree with machine-gun bullets.

Then police, protected by an army tank, cut down Daniel Raymond Lucas, as he fled his burning home a scrubby Chalk-hill after it had been set afire by incendiary and tear gas bombs lobbed from the tank.

Why sharpshooter Raymond killed four passersby and wounded five others remains a mystery.

Although his wife indicated the shooting spree was touched off by his "nervousness," there was no clear-cut answers.

The mountaineer saw a doctor February 16 because he was nervous, his wife said.

Raymond, a pipe liner walker for a natural gas company, had a reputation among the mountain folk for being a crack shot. He did his lethal shooting from the second story of his home, located about 50 feet from a rural road.

Before police shut off the road to traffic, Raymond fired for nine hours at almost everything that moved—cars and to comment in Copenhagen on reports that he was "tied" about his West German move.

Madrid sources say Spain prevents not being bound by the NATO and the idea of a unified Germany. West Germany is not likely to appeal to the French government. A foreign ministry statement Wednesday said Spain was satisfied with U.S. and Portuguese defence alliances.

The Times of London today labelled the Bonn move "a display of the most elephantine ineptitude" and said "it could not fail to rouse widespread suspicion of German intentions in the NATO alliance."

The Times added that "no credulity was placed in the (German) semi-denials that missile training bases had been contemplated."

The Manchester Guardian said the Bonn move was "a grave blunder."

French newspapers also were critical of West Germany.

War Amps Sell Car Key Tags

For 13 years the War Amputations' Association of Canada has been operating a worthwhile service of finding lost car keys for car owners. To do this, it sells metal car key tags to motorists.

Last year the War Amps distributed 3,200,000 key tags to motorists in Ontario. Purchase of the tags is voluntary.

Now more than 3,300,00 car key tags are being mailed to Ontario motorists, part of a Canada-wide mailing of 7 1-2 million key tags.

All the key tags are manufactured by war amps. Not only does the key tag service keep these amputees employed, but all the profits go toward the benevolent work of the War Amputations' Association of Canada.

Allan David Piper, who wears two iron hooks in place of the hands he lost in a grenade explosion in Korea, is manager of the War Amps Key Tag Service. Piper says that the system of sending out duplicate key tags in the same mailing is paying real dividends, because in most homes both husband and wife have car keys.

The key tags are sent out to all. The recipient is expected to mail one of the War Amps' 69 cents for duplicate car key tags 35 cents if one key tag is required. The money is sent to the War Amps Key Tag Service, 160 Metcalfe St., Ottawa.

Area Tomato Growers Shown Latest Techniques in Growing Larger and Better Crops

Ontario tomato growers may look forward to a big crop when much of the backache can be taken out of tomato picking.

This was assured approximately 200 fruit and vegetable growers in the Hastings-Prince Edward area when they met at Club Alamara in Belleville Wednesday to learn of the latest techniques in tomato growing and how much they might expect to increase production by growing the right variety.

Main speaker for the day Dr. Phill Magee of the vegetable crops department of Cornell University at Ithaca N.Y., told his listeners that tomato picking machines were now being rapidly developed and could be expected to be on the market within a very few years. One such machine is now operating on a limited basis in Western Ontario last year, he said.

The meeting of district tomato growers was sponsored by the fruit and vegetable branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and the Ontario Vegetable Growers Marketing Board for the purpose of acquainting farmers with new methods of tomato production. In addition to Dr. Magee, the meeting was addressed by department experts from the Smithfield sub-station at Trenton, and by research scientists from Vineland in the Niagara Peninsula.

District farmers were welcomed to the all-day session by Lloyd Bergeron, district agricultural director of the Hastings County Canning Crops growers. Co-chairmen of the meeting were Byron Beeler, fieldman for the fruit and vegetable branch for Hastings and Prince Edward, and Jim Dick, Prince Edward grower and director of the Tomato Growers' Marketing Board.

MANY AT RESEARCH

Speaking of tomato growing conditions in New York State, Dr. Magee said the four main objectives of research department were 1. to improve yields; 2. improve quality; 3. lengthen the harvest season, and 4. improve production efficiency.

One of the first things learned was that early tomato varieties are growing most successfully in New York State, and the inference was that this variety would also supply to this part of Ontario.

Ontario situation was to be able to get at least 90 percent of the crop off before the first frost," he said.

Transport Slams Into Side Of CNR Diesel at Crossing

Swerving his tractor trailer at the last minute after failing to see the CNR locomotive in time, 41-year-old William A. Gibson, 64 Bleecker Ave., Toronto suffered only late yesterday afternoon when his truck slammed into a CNR locomotive at the Reid Lane crossing on No. 2 highway.

Gibson is in Belleville General Hospital with chest injuries and facial lacerations but is said not to be seriously injured.

Provincial police said that Mr. Gibson, driving a Rome transport, was northbound when blinded by the late afternoon sun he failed to see the eastbound CNR diesel.

Belleville firemen were called to the scene as a precaution against fire. Fortunately however the spilled gasoline failed to ignite.

At the last moment when he spotted the train he swerved his transport to the right. The tractor landed directly into the side of the locomotive. Engineer Alfred Goddard of Westminster Ave. suffered a bruised leg.

Wheels of the wrecked transport were locked beneath the diesel and a CNR railway crane had to be called out to clear the track. The track was not cleared for several hours but highway traffic was blocked only briefly until one freight car was moved.

The accident was investigated by Constable K. R. Baserin of Belleville OPP.

CNR Pensioners Just Meet to Have Good Time

On the fourth Wednesday of each month a group of "over 60" men from the Central Ontario area meet between Toronto and Brockville meet at Belleville to shew the fat and to discuss matters which might improve their collective well being.

They are the Canadian National Railways Pensioners from the Belleville Division, who have an organization of their own — by which, if nothing else is accomplished, they can re-live former railroad days and have a good time.

Yesterday was the regular meeting day for the group of railway pensioners who convene at Club Alamara, Belleville. They get together in the evening, knock off for dinner several of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the local CNRA, and then reconvene for an afternoon session. After the day's break-up the out-of-towners board the train for home.

The day's agenda might include discussion on pending problems-or maybe a guest speaker will be called in to keep the members amused for a while.

Orrin one of the members has done a bit of travelling, he could be called in to entertain his fellow pensioners by showing colored slides of far off places.

As one of the members stated, "We just have a good time."

Experiments Indicated Fireball Variety Tomatoes

Experiments indicated that the fireball variety of tomatoes could be successfully grown with plants spaced as high as 30 ons per acre. This variety was resistant to blossom end rot and to cracking.

Dr. Minges emphasized, however, that farmers must learn the proper growing techniques for each tomato variety. One of the reasons for favoring the Fireball variety was its good industrial colouring.

One of the first requirements for good tomato yield was to transplant good plants. It was important to transplant young plants as this improved yield. Good soil, properly fertilized with nitrogen, followed by a proper spray program for control of weeds, were other important factors.

Spraying for weed control was described in some detail, including extensive cultivation as cultivation alone does not deeply disturbed roots and checks plant development.

MANY SPEAKERS HEARD

In many instances field seeding of tomatoes could be done successfully as early as April although if this was done weed control by chemical spray was of importance.

Other speakers heard including Dr. Hamilton Smithfield research scientist from the Smithfield sub-station, who talked on mechanical weed control techniques; Lloyd Lyall, senior horticulturist from Vineland, on vegetables branch at Ottawa, who talked on tomato breeding and varieties and residents of Trenton C.N.I., Fadday and Pandzich Experimental farm station at Vineland, who talked on control of tomato diseases in Eastern Ontario.

Growers were encouraged to attend the field day for their district field experimental sub-station where experts were happy to discuss problems with district growers.

Such farmers were not taking full advantage of the service offered was indicated through a show of hands when four growers of the assembled group stated they had visited the Smithfield station last year.

A panel discussion on tomato growing problems concluded the day's program. Taking part in the panel, chaired by Cecil Fraser of CJBQ radio station were Lloyd Lyall, Lloyd Wiebe, Vineland research scientist, Lowe Butler, Lloyd Lyall and Walter Butterfield.

15 Hogs, Dog And Machinery Lost in Blaze

WEST HUNTINGDON — Fire destroyed a large modern barn belonging to Peter Wilson of R.R. 2, Stirling, yesterday evening, together with much machinery, 15 prime hogs and the family dog. It was at about 10.30 p.m. that the flames were noticed by Mrs. Wilson as the family was retiring for the night. Through the efforts of Mr. Wilson and four passers-by, the 30 head of cattle quartered in the barn were saved before the flames became quite out of hand. Sadly, forsake any re-entry to the structure.

A truck, an automobile, the farm's tractor and all machinery were lost in the blaze, as were 1,000 bushels of grain, 1,200 bales of hay, the swine and the dog. The fire developed so quickly in the still night air that the impossibility of any fire department rendering aid was realized. Stirling and area reeled since no other buildings were threatened. The cause of the fire is unknown and the property was covered by insurance.

Series of Armed Robberies Bring Jail Terms for Accused

MORRISBURG (CP) — Two men were sentenced here Wednesday for a series of armed robberies last September in Eastern Ontario.

Warren Wilber Durning 25, of Economy, N.S., and Richard Franklin Madison, 17, of Boston, Mass., each pleaded guilty to four charges of armed robbery and one of housebreaking. During admitted another seven offences, and was sentenced to four years in penitentiary.

Madison received 18 months definite and one year indefinite for housebreaking.

Crown Attorney R. P. Milligan withdrew two charges of kidnapping and one charge of theft by conduction at sapquinil last September of a couple living near Niagara-on-the-Lake and of a farmer near Belleville.

SERIES OF ROBBERIES

The men admitted two armed robberies in the Iroquois area Sept. 15—taking $45 from Mrs. May Frosts and $235 from Mrs. Ida McLeod. They also pleaded guilty to taking $160 from Percy Moore near Belleville Sept. 13 and to robbing Mr. and Mrs. George Rooney of clothing and money near Niagara-on-the-Lake Sept. 6. They admitted breaking into a farm home near Trenton Sept. 7.

Durning pleaded guilty to stealing a car at Belleville April 1, 1958 and to failing to appear for trial Aug. 13, 1958 after being allowed out on bail.

He pleaded guilty to five other charges of theft in the Belleville area—breaking into a lakeshore cabin Aug. 31, 1958 stealing from Canada Packers Ltd. a meat and boat and motor Aug. 21 and breaking, also an Imperial Oil Company yacht anchored near Sault Ste. Marie Aug. 22.

The court was told that after committing the offences a near Sault Ste. Marie, Durning went to Boston, where he met Madison. Together they entered Canada and committed the series of robberies.

They were arrested in the United States and returned to Canada late last year.

Scouting activities

CANNIFTON - CORBYVILLE

One hundred fathers and sons sat down to enjoy a wonderful dinner prepared and served by the Boy Scouts Auxiliary under the leadership of Mrs. Fred Furmidge. The occasion was the annual banquet, the first for the Cubs.

The tables were beautifully laid in the Cannifton Church hall, tastefully decorated with daffodil, green candles and green and yellow streamers.

It was an unusual banquet because there were more sons than fathers. Every father was there who could be, the writer borrowed Lewis Luffman, who looked after his adopted father very well. Glenn Luffman had two other sons there.

HEAD TABLE GUESTS

Scoutmaster Kerr introduced the head table: Mrs. Fred Furmidge, Auxiliary president; the Rev. J. McCartney; District Commissioner Phil Alcorn; Mrs. Kay Putman, A.C.M.; Harvey Putman, group chairman; Frank Lancaster, presiden District Council; Mac McClelland, A.D.C. Cubs; John Kinsella, Commissioner; Stan Kerr, Scoutmaster; Mr. McLeod, caretaker, and Fred Furmidge Jr., A.S.M.

Chairman Putnam, echoed the sentiments of all the fathers when he paid well deserved compliments to John Kinsella and Kay Putman for their good work with with the Cubs and to Mrs. Furmidge and her ladies of the auxiliary.

A.S.M. Furmidge thanked the ladies, not only for their excellent dinner, but also for their untiring work throughout the year, preparing lunches, making necklerchiefs, and many more especially helping the group in many ways.

Mrs. Clayton Sullivan responding, said that the ladies were pleased that so many came to enjoy the banquet and expressed the hope that these will be present next year.

The next big group is growing it is quite likely that there will be more; the hall is plenty big enough to seat twice as many.

INVESTITURES

The Cubs formed a circle and all the Sixers lighted their candles (for the ten Scout Laws) were in the A.D.C. McClelland, who officially invested John Middleton as Akela and Kay Putman as assistant. The title of "Akela" means "Old Wolf" or leader of the pack; his jurisdiment is never questioned. Kay was named "Baloo," which is "Old Bear" or the "teacher." Kay's name was destroyed by fire and will be known in the future as 'Baloo'.

Akela Middleton invested the Cubs in sixes, first the Green Six, with John Reynolds as Sixer, assisted by the Brown Six, Sixer David Putman, the Red Six, Sixer Stephen Pound and the Blue Six, Sixer Albert Belgrave.

INVESTED AS PADRE

The Rev. J. McCartney was invested as Padre by District Commissioner Alcorn and presented with his Padre's badge and prayer beads. Mr. Alcorn, in his remarks, mentioned that the Cubs are the charter members of this new Pack. To a Cub an investiture is most important and serious.

He congratulated the Cubs and stressed that he hoped each Cub would always remember the solemn promise made this evening. The leaders were highly commended by the D.C. District Cub Pack Training Chief Frank Lancaster said he was pleased by the ceremony of an entire Cub pack being invested and also by the good behavior of the Cubs and Scouts, and the enthusiasm of the entire group present.

Scouter Kerr presented badges and service stars to the following: Scouts: Brian Bulger 1 year; merit's badge and star; John Pound, 2 years, athlete's badge, rescuer's badges and star; Lyle Sullivan, swimmer's, athlete's badges and star; Ricky Putman, swimmer's, athlete's badges, Robert Kerr, swimmer's badge and star; Ricky Thornton, rescuer's badge and star; Jim Stewart, rescuer's, electrician's badges and star; Roy Armstrong, G. S. Star, 2nd year badge and 1 Plumpton, service stars.

CHURCH PARADE

The chairman in closing this delightful evening invited everyone to attend a church parade with the Cubs and Scouts at Canniton United Church on Sunday, February 28th at 11 a.m. He reminded the Cubs that 28 was a most important day to be officially formed, Lord Baden-Powell's birthday.

Parks Board Wants Monument To Champlain

TRENTON — Members of the Trenton Board of Parks' Management voted at Tuesday night's meeting to ask that council or the Trenton Chamber of Commerce approach the Historic Sites Branch with the request that a monument to Samuel de Champlain be erected on Mount Pellon. Champlain is purported to have stood on the mountain's grassy down over the Bay of Quinte and the site of the future town of Trenton, before proceeding on his canoe trip up the Great Lakes. It was felt by the members that the status of the explorer would prove to be a tourist attraction.

Present at the meeting were the secretary, Miss Marion Baker, Bill Ireland, Norman Armstrong and John Saylor.

Mr. Ireland reported that he had received "No Hockey" signs which are to be erected at the various skating rinks on park property.

Chairman Allore Lumber Company had agreed to supply "pressed boards" for the park's use. The benches will be movable, but the others five, for use on the mountain, will be supplied with long legs which can be driven into the ground.

Miss Baker reported that the planting committee had chosen an assortment of plants for the parks, with a view to spring planting. She said that the new selection of plants would be transplanted in the spring and not be readily watered. Miss Baker said that she had written the town council asking for the usual grant of one mill with which to carry out work during the coming year.

LOCOMOTIVE TOO COSTLY

Mr. Saylor had written to the board, on behalf of council, to ask if the members cared to undertake the project of installing a steam locomotive in a strategic location as a tourist attraction and as a reminder to future generations that Trenton had at one time been a "railroad town". Council members, who approached on the same idea, had declined with thanks, as they felt that the project would prove to be too costly.

The Parks Board members agreed that they were of the same opinion. "It would be a costly venture initially," said Mr. Ireland, "and you wouldn't be finished when you bought it."

It was decided that trees would be planted this year in the Dundas Park. Some of the trees would be hardwood and some softwood, and they would have to be planted 30 feet in from the boundaries of the park.

The members decided that sidewalks, when they are installed, should be provided enough to encourage children to keep their tricycles on the sidewalk and off the grass.

Accounts were read by the treasurer, John Saylor, and passed by the board, with the exception of the bill from the town for $381.86. No one could remember what this bill was for, and it was decided to investigate further before forwarding payment.

$200 Cash Taken From Safe in Trenton Office

TRENTON — Graham's Food Products on the Wooler Road was entered and robbed early Wednesday morning. Entry was gained through a rear window. The safe was broken into at the hinge end by means of a jimmy and crow-bar and $200 in cash taken. The office files were ransacked and papers were strewn up and strewn around the floor.

The robbery was discovered shortly before nine by Richard Kemp, office manager. He notified the Brighton detachment of the Provincial Constable Cook is conducting the investigation.

It understood that Trenton police had noticed a car with three men in it in the vicinity of the plant earlier in the evening. This angle is also being checked.

Revision Court Members Sworn

TRENTON — Members of the 1960 Court of Revision were sworn into office by O. W. Larry, Trenton's clerk-treasurer, at a meeting in the town office Wednesday.

Chairman will be Councillor F. R. Fraser. Members are Councillor Howard Aziz, Lloyd Worrall and Harold Turney.

Also present at the meeting were Allan Smith, assessor, and G. Alan Weaver, tax collector.

A discussion was held about variations in business tax and arithmetical errors in assessment notices.

Herbert Smith Named Manager Of New Chamber

TRENTON — The directors of the newly-formed Trenton Chamber of Commerce held a luncheon meeting in the Gilbert Hotel yesterday afternoon.

Herbert Smith was appointed to act as manager pro tem until other arrangements can be made. Mr. Smith is secretary of the chamber.

Douglas Whitley announced that the new chamber would have its headquarters in the Trenton office of the Dorion Intelligencer, at 74 Dundas Street West, over the Bank of Nova Scotia. This is a temporary measure until plans are finalized and suitable headquarters obtained.

Acting on a suggestion from the Board of Parks Management the members requested Mr. Smith to write to Elmer Sandercock, M.P.P., asking that the Historical Sites Branch of the Department of Regional Affairs consider placing a monument on Mount Pellon to the memory of "Labor-management relations are a matter of give and take, so each side must remember that co-operation is a two-way street. There is no reason why, if men of goodwill sit down together and intelligently discuss problems, solutions cannot be found," members of the Quinte-St. Lawrence Branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association were told yesterday evening by Douglas F. Hamilton, secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Federation of Labor.

Pointing out that the public is well aware of the major strikes which have occurred in recent years and that it has started to take an increasing interest in labor-management relations, the guest speaker pointed out that although many of them only realize the results of disagreement between labor and management, "there are thousands and thousands of union agreements signed each year reasonably, quickly, and quietly and without any fanfare."

"An encouraging note," Mr. Hamilton added, "is that more and more long term agreements are being signed, which add to the industrial peace and stability." He suggested that this was undoubtedly due to the decided move in recent months on both sides of the labor-management fence towards greater exchange of ideas."

Giving his views on the various proposed remedies for labor-management relations, such as compulsory arbitration and controlled wages, the speaker asked his audience whether they would agree to compulsory arbitration in their own industries and whether they would accept control of prices and profits. Mr. Hamilton added that both unions and management "should use their privileges intelligently."

OUTLINED PROBLEMS

The labor official also outlined a few of the domestic problems which affect the Canadian society and economy and suggested that the solutions to these problems are a responsibility of industry and unions as well as those in the community more directly connected with them. Mr. Hamilton suggested that there was great room for improvement in this respect now that a number of management and labor groups seemed oblivious to what was going on outside of their own particular field of endeavor, stating that "I am of the opinion that if management and labor work together during their off hours on community work, for example, they would not only get a better understanding of the problems in the community, they would be better equipped to understand each other at the bargaining table."

Mr. Hamilton was speaking to representatives from member companies of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association from Trenton, Belleville, Kingston and Napanee, who were accompanied by labor union representatives from their respective companies. Those who were to address there was a lengthy question period in which there was considerable interest.

The speaker was introduced by Mr. D. L. Guthrie, personnel superintendent of the Dupont plant in Kingston, and welcomed by Mr. G. B. Daugherty, personnel superintendent of the Northern Electric firm in Belleville.

The meeting, which was held at the LaSalle Hotel in Kingston, was chaired by J. C. R. Hamilton, manager of the Ontario division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

DUBLIN, Ireland (Reuters)—William Norton has resigned the leadership of the Irish parliamentary Labor party, which he held since 1932, it was reported Wednesday night. In the last night months the three main political parties in the republic have changed leadership.

Approve Oshawa Buying Buses

TORONTO (CP)—The legislature's private bills committee today approved the city of Oshawa's purchase of the city's transportation system.

A bill calling for purchase by the city of the Oshawa Street Railway Company, a subsidiary of Canadian National Railways, will now go before the legislature for final approval.

The city decided to buy the transit system after the CNR announced it would discontinue operating it and a vote of ratepayers turned down a bid by a private company to purchase it.

Samuel de Champlain.

A report was made of the office equipment and bank balance of the former Chamber of Commerce. Committees were appointed to ascertain if the bank balance would now become the property of the new chamber, steps which should be taken to secure a charter for the chamber and other details.

PROVISIONAL BODY

Mr. Whitley said that the chamber would be a provisional body until the group was fully organized and a constitution finally ironed out. Air Transport Command Headquarters has been asked to appoint three advisory members to the chamber.

A representative from Trenton service clubs will sit on the board, one from council and a professional man from the town, to be seatately annually will be a member of the Trenton Kinsmen Club and a member of the fire department.

Mr. Smith read a letter from John Fisher, executive director of the Canadian Tourist Association of which Dr. Hers of Batawa is a director. Mr. Fisher said that Dr. Hers had told him that the chamber had been recently reformed, and he wanted to be of any assistance possible to the new body. He said that Trenton had beautiful tourist attractions and he felt that these should be advertised and capitalized upon by the town.

Cubs, Scouts Hold Father, Son Banquet

TRENTON — Third Trenton Cub and Scout annual father and son banquet was held Wednesday night in the Trenton Legion Hall. About 250 Cubs, Scouts and fathers were on hand to enjoy the banquet prepared and served by the Women's Auxiliary to 3rd Trenton Scouting group, Third Trenton is sponsored by Grace United Church.

After dinner, District Scoutmaster Fox thanked the ladies of the W.A. for arranging and preparing the banquet.

District Commissioner Mowbray briefly addressed the gathering and said the good turnout of the evening spoke well for the interest shown by the fathers in their sons' activities. But he said that leaders were badly needed and urged fathers to volunteer to undertake some of the Scouting leadership work.

Mr. Brummell reported that packs and troops had a good year and a good camp, and that her of Trenton Scouts from he added a plea for leadership for that of the district commissioners.

The 3A Cub pack presented a skit, "The Leslie Bell Show," and "Dr. Leslie Bell," impersonated by Barry Elsworth, led his "girls" singers through several tuneful melodies.

Alan Clark played several accordion solos.

Since Wednesday was Scoutmaster Bell's birthday, he was presented with a gift of his favorite pie, raisin, and "Happy Birthday" was sung with gusto. Mr. Bell admitted that he and Jack Benny were the same age.

The 3B Cub pack took the audience on a hazardous early spring "Pack Ramble," and 3B Cub pack presented a rousing version of "Cyrano de Bergerac and the Three Musketeers."

Ill Considered Action

If we were an advocate of the abolition of capital punishment, we should be tempted to consider making an exception in the case of Peter Churchill, the 29-year-old CBC-TV news editor who has gone on a tax-paying strike to dramatize his own opposition to the death penalty.

The many sincere, thoughtful persons who oppose capital punishment must find it intolerable to be saddled suddenly by such an ally as Mr. Churchill. He may be warm-hearted but he is also hot-headed. His idea of logic is preposterous. He does not appear to have the faintest understanding of the meaning of democratic government, or, if he has, he is willing to follow a course which, if copied by all others who disagreed with any phase of government policy, would produce anarchy. By his own statement, only his poor financial circumstances prevent him from inflicting the death penalty, on a Korean child for the mere theft of a pen.

That this man should presume to dictate to the elected representatives of the Canadian people how they should run a bill before the House of Commons is bad enough. That his illogical arguments and imprudent action should win applause from others who should know better is to be more deeply deplored.

As a sample of what Mr. Churchill calls logic, we call attention to his reference to the Nuremberg Trials of Nazis, a study which, he says, "proved beyond the fact a person acted on orders from a superior was no defence against charges of committing certain acts. "It is in this spirit I now stand in defiance of the Government of Canada," Mr. Churchill says in his letter to the members of the Canadian Press. What he is saying, if he is saying anything, is that a believer in capital punishment who pays taxes is in the same class as a concentration camp guard who tortures his prisoners at his commandant's behest. And yet some tax-paying abolitionists actually applauded his stand!

Humphrey Takes His Stand

One of the least-admirable aspects of U.S. policy in the post-war years has been her jealous guardianship of what she has believed, often erroneously, to be atomic "secrets."

She withheld information from Britain and Canada, wartime allies which pooled their resources with her to develop the first atomic bombs.

Now President Eisenhower has suggested that U.S. atomic weapons be transferred to trusted allies, and not merely stored on their soil under U.S. control.

At Washington opposition to the proposal is growing. Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, a possible choice as a Democratic candidate for the presidency, has come out flat-footed in opposition to any such course.

In spite of the criticism which can be legitimately levelled at Senator U.S. secrecy, Senator Humphrey seems to us to be on sound ground.

What a man advocates is not the only vital thing Why he supports such a policy can be equally important.

Senator Humphrey is opposed to the U.S. giving atomic weapons to trusted allies because "once several countries possess nuclear weapons the problem of reduction and control will become immensely more difficult, if not impossible."

Well spoken. But, to be realistic, Senator Humphrey ought to couple with that statement an insistence that the U.S. do everything within its power, short of war, to force the existing atomic powers, the U.S., Russia, Britain and France, to cease developing more nuclear weapons and to seek an agreement to destroy those already built and stockpiled.

Refusal to arm U.S. allies with atomic weapons is not good enough, because in time many nations will be so armed, with or without U.S. help.

France pushed the panic button in her Sahara test.

The principal of a Brooklyn high school reports that the recent return of the New York State Regents Examinations is directly related to the crop of chain bombers a senior student's identification of Boris Pasternak as "the discoverer of the pasteurization of milk." (New York Times.)

STRENGTH FOR THE LOAD
DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS
NEW TURN TO THINKING

Do you have a complaining spirit? If you do, snap out of it and come to. For you are truly all of us and agree to get along in a nightmarish dream. You are in a trance. You are slow to see the environs of hell, whereas God intends that you walk through the Elysian fields.

There are genuine causes for complaint in the world. We often pay large amounts for service we do not receive. We purchase goods and find them shoddy. We trust certain people and they prove false. We look over the whole of human life and see in it a tremendous amount of evil and selfishness. If we want to chew our pills and linger unwholesomely on the bitterness of them, we have plenty of opportunity to do so.

But what an unhappy state of mind! How much better to accept the fact that there is imperfection in the world and in ourselves and to agree to get along in a nightmarish dream. You are in a trance. You are slow to see the environs of hell, whereas God intends that you walk through the Elysian fields.

Snap out of the complaining spirit. Get yourself away from it as rapidly and with as much determination as if you were fleeing a house which is about to completely body to collapse. For the complaining life will collapse if indeed it has not already done so. If there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things." (Philippians 4:8).

Strictly Personal

A Man's Faults Reveal His Virtues

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices:

There is nobody more unrealistic than the so-called "realist," for a thousand years he has been telling us that "more armaments" would serve as a deterrent to war, and for a thousand years wars have become more frequent and more catastrophic.

One of the rarely-considered advantages of growing old is the freedom to tell the absolute truth about anything to anybody; and it is distressing that so few old persons take advantage of this privilege.

Next to being insincere, the most exhausting thing in life is being sincere; I know the pinched look of the sunsetious person who cannot tell a deliberate falsehood.

The best one-word critique of a new book I have heard was expressed to me by a friend some time ago: "Underwhelming."

All incomplete information is, in a sense, false information; and it is rare to know it fits into a total pattern, the isolated fact remains for so many people dishonestly for our own partial purposes.

A great artist who breaks the rules of his craft has the same privilege as a general who returns a salute sloppily or negligently; it is only the second lieutenants, in any field, who must smartly observe the forms.

What I admire in a writer, however, is so many second lieutenants wearing like generals.

One way of discovering a man's virtues is to examine his faults: they conform to the same structure of personality, as creative and conserving belong together.

The only truly honest answer most of us should make when asked the common question: "How are you doing?" is "Better than I deserve." For most of us, this is the only truly religious answer as well.)

Being in exile is the worst form of slavery; the ancient slave at least was assured of a place to sleep and enough to eat, but intellectuals beyond normal security removes even this security.

It may be true that "travels abroad" but that kind of trip leaves the traveler right back where he started from, for all achievement without love is circular and self-consuming.

How Israel Is Financed

There are some 2,500,000 Jewish people in New York City alone.

That is more than there are in all Israel.

ABITIBI, ONT.

This is a lake in Northern Ontario from which is great quiet and rest, its name. The word is Indian meaning "half-way water." It derives from Abitah meaning "half" and "sipi" meaning water. The name originally was used by the French to designate an obscure band of Algonquin Indians living at the dividing half way between the Hudson's Bay trading posts and Ottawa.

The Hotel Belvedere was recently the scene of the annual general meeting of the local branch of The Garage Operators Association of Ontario. A crowding banquet hall showed the interest and enthusiasm of Hastings and Prince Edward members. Election of officers for 1940 took place and the following directors sit for the ensuing year: Doug. Hooper, Walter Grills, Don Brown, Jack Trudeau, Ivan Scott and Clarence Gibson for Belleville; Roy Hyde and Claude Graham for Trenton; Hurold Wells for Stirling; James Noxon for Picton; George Forestell for Marmora; Milton Burtt for Tweed and Don Dawson for Descronto. From these directors was selected Jack Trudeau of Belleville as President, and it was the general consensus of opinion that a more fitting choice could not be made.

Recognition of six years of efficient service was given County Treasurer Leslie Hagerty on Thursday when he was selected president of the Good Roads Association of Ontario at the annual convention in the Royal York Hotel in Toronto. All Depends On One Man

Chicago Daily News

Under the special powers granted by Parliament, the executive branch of the French Government is going to be straighten out the mess into which the Algerian problem has led it.

The special powers are limited, and the government is bound by the constitution and the Parliamentary grant. For all practical purposes, however, the power has been given dictatorial powers.

The government is Charles de Gaulle. It was his decision that forced the issue at the barricades in Algiers and defeated the ensanited settlers. It was his firm policy of self-determination that carried the day not only at the barricaded but within his own cabinet.

In thus resolved the crisis, he now faces a massive cleanup job. There can be little doubt that he will move quickly to clap his opponents that insurrection against the established Government is not the harmless pastime some of the hotheads have assumed it to be. There is no reason to move faster and farther than the circumstances justify, but there is little doubt that the vote that will decide Algeria's future.

The odds are that he will be given the circumstances clearly a free hand in the task he is pursuing them. Nevertheless, it is disconcerting to see a Western constitutional leader take drastic measures.

Too much now depends on one man. No one else is in sight who could be a substitute should anything happen to de Gaulle. The events made it plain that only that general has the British favor and France and anarchy, and that situation is not changed by the decline of Charles Spain.

The immediate peril for France has passed, and the prospect is bright indeed. But there are still many perilous weeks and months ahead during which France must not only pull back from the brink of civil war but it must travelfully but also find other leaders of such stature that a nation's destiny will not be left hang on the helith or determination of a single individual.

Modern Man Wears Mink

Sudbury Star

"The modern men wears mink" reads a headline in a recent newspaper's London (Eng.) fashion promoter.

"The news broke daintily above fashionable breast-pockets at the smarter West End restaurants' and boys' trade fair," said a cabled newspaper report from "over there."

There isn't a newspaper editor in the land who will be moved to numerous suggestions for fur-trimming — but handkerchiefs would one of the first. And mink, yet! The only mink item in the history of fashion that breast pocket is the mink collar worn by his lady fair.

Can you imagine male conversation on mink-trimmed handkerchiefs?

"Why is the furrier who supplies the mink for your handkerchiefs?

"I wonder if I can get my mink - trimmed handkerchiefs put into winter coats?

"I must ask my wife the best way to get the moths out of mink."

And pity the man with a mountainous mink - trimmed handkerchief in his breast pocket.

"What happened? Did your moustache slip?"

Fashion promoters have tried to impose feminine tastes on the male sex. Trying to make him look like a woman is but the thin edge of a wedge that may be driven at convenience when they should wear mink coats. We went through the "dandy" era without loss of face but it is doubtful that men will be tempted with the "slinky mink" label. Even in small doses — such as on the edge of a handkerchief.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

ENLARGED LYMPH NODES INDICATE PRESENCE OF DISEASE

"Dear Dr. Molner: Would you comment on swollen lymph glands in the neck? — A. B.t

The blood stream carries nutrition to the body cells, and carries away waste and harmful matter. What happens to infected material? The lymphatic system filters them!

Lymph nodes (or lymph glands) are found in many parts of the body, the neck, armpits, groin, above the elbow ,within the abdomen, at the roots of the lungs.

Germs are carried to these nodes, and special cells usually destroy them. Ordinarily the nodes are small. When they become very active, they enlarge — the commonest example probably is the swelling of glands in the neck from chronic tonsillitis. Swollen nodules in the armpit due to infection in the hand, arm or chest.

In children, infected tonsils or teeth cre commonest causes.

It is the infection subsides, the lymph nodes go down in size, often become small enough to be not be felt. Again, however, repeated bouts of infection may leave the nodes permanently enlarged so they can be felt, although the infection is controlled.

That is the principal answer to swollen lymph glands, and they range from small to great importance, depending on the underlying disease. German measles, a trivial matter except early pregnancy, causes nodes in the back of the neck. But enlarged glands also occur with diseases such as syphilis, tuberculosis and other generalized infections.

The other category of enlarged glands involves diseases which attack the lymph nodes themselves, Hodgkins disease, lymphosarcoma, leukemia, the presence of cancer near the nodes, or the metastasis of the armpit resulting from cancer of the breast.

Anyway, one cannot always be certain, immediately, what is causing the enlargement of a lymph node. In a child, or an adult of reasonably good health, or handling.

This may be true in other cases, too, of course, for that is the basic purpose of the nodes. But in older people a single gland that tends to get larger should at least stir up some suspicion that some ailment other than a transient infection is at work, for him to get matter, a chronic infection.

A blood count should be made, to see whether leukemia is present, for instance. If that, and other investigations do not disclose the cause of the enlargement, then a trace of the gland tissue should be removed (a biopsy, that is) with microscopic examination to determine whether one of these other diseases of the lymph glands is present.

The lymph glands are useful organs indeed, and besides their assigned task they can (by swelling) indicate that something is wrong somewhere. But it is just as well to let the glands themselves can fall victims to disease, and it is the exception, not the rule.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am an elderly man, in good health, but I have always been too much of a heavy smoker and cough and spit up phlegm and cough a lot. Do you know of anything I can do to help me? — M. W."

Frankly, yes. It's not too late to quit smoking. An examination by your doctor will tell if there is anything serious in the chest, is certainly in order.

H. M. M.: Hemorrhoids (or piles) are not cause of rectal itching; other itching sometimes can be relieved by placing a small wad of cotton wool where to keep the area thoroughly dry.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A GENTLEMAN

Sometimes we forget that there are a great many Gentlemen in the world. Sometimes we forget very great many. Like everything rare and fine, however, they have to be sought after and brought out.

I do not always know a Gentleman when I see him. I don't always know one when I feel him. There is a knowledge about a real Gentleman that responds to the feel — as when the heart feel fine silk or fabric. One knows something very wonderful is there.

A Gentleman is always a silent man. He is free from all glamour. He moves smoothly along his way. He is never ruffled. He is never afraid. He is never concerned with all the many confusions that may be thrust him from his way.

A Gentleman is a gentle Man — but never weak. Gentleness is never a quality of weakness, but is always strength under control. To be self-controlled is to be strong.

A Gentleman radiates all that he is. He conserves by giving. Men wither themselves by the ways free and ready to serve. A Gentleman is a benefit to all life in the world among men and with men.

If you would know a Gentleman when you see him, know that he is there, feel his hearts. You always want him around. You always want to be around him. Men form a league with him. Nature opens a path before him. Footsteps of every sort in history is honored by his presence.

A Gentleman is a friend de luxe.

THE PACKSACK
By GREGORY CLARK

One of the great mysteries of our time is the apparent prosperity, or at least the survival, of thousands upon thousands of little stores out of sight among the miles of streets of our bigger cities.

Despite the most highly specialized and scientific competition of the great mercantile stores down-town, and the steady increase and spread of the supermarkets and shopping plazas, despite the professional power and force of advertising with millions of dollars behind it, there at their counters up and down and across miles of uptown streets stand the grocers, the butchers, the druggist, the dealers in fancy goods, radios, goods furnishings, ladies' wear, and all extraordinary sprinkling of extremely specialized shops whose goods must appeal to a small limited clientele on very limited premises.

Yet they appear to flourish. Or if they don't flourish, they seem to survive and pass on their keepers.

All right. Where do they get the money to start these enterprises? It requires a thousand to launch a butcher shop. It takes a great many thousands to stock and equip a drug store.

The answer must be that many more people have money than is generally supposed. And a great many more people than is generally supposed like to toddle around and shop in little shops

President of Manitoba Farmers' Union Tells Causes of Farm Chaos

TWEED — A meeting of the Tweed Local of the Ontario Farmers' Union was held in the township hall on Saturday evening.

The guest speaker was Mr. "Buddy" Usick, president of the Manitoba Farmers' Union. Mr. Usick is one of the most outstanding speakers on Farm Union work and is one of the men most responsible for the terrific growth of new locals in the province of Ontario.

In 1954 there were only 20 locals in Ontario. This number has grown until today six years later, there are 230 locals. Manitoba today has a membership of 20,000.

CHAOTIC FACTORS

Mr. Usick pointed out that the chaos that Canadian farmers have got themselves into has been caused by three factors: overproduction, too much efficiency and too many free labor hours, controlled by the governors of farm families.

He deplored a condition whereby a small ten-year-old boy had to operate mammoth tractors and equipment, at a risk of life, that the preservation of the family farm as a unit might be saved.

Overproduction, in the opinion of Mr. Usick, was caused mostly by the government's past system of price support which introduced and promoted vertical integration.

As a result of this, floor price policy whereby producers were guaranteed a selling price for their product the more units produced the greater the profit.

As an example, 50 per cent of the eggs produced in Nova Scotia are done so by four men. One operator had 220,000 hens. This would replace 3,200 small farmers. Again, under this support, the egg wholesaler or egg-grading station was guaranteed 11 cents for his efforts in Ontario whereas in Manitoba the farmer today is receiving 18 cents per dozen for Grade A large, including investment, labor and risk.

As a result of this low price, the farmer today must further increase his production to obtain the necessary money to meet the daily increases in production, the increasing cost of food, clothing, taxes and machinery, and so promotes more overproduction, and so the cycle continues.

Today agriculture has been declared two and one-half times as efficient as any other industry, due party to free family labor and so there is overproduction again, and depressed prices.

FARMER STRIKES

To curb this condition the principle or idea of farmer buying strike is being explored, or as an alternative, farmer production strike.

In Manitoba in 1959 farm production was up 18 million dollars; cattle production was up 30 percent, hog production was up 16 percent, but the cost of production over the past 10 years was up 50 percent and as a result farmer net income was down. In Ontario, farmers are producing hogs for less than cost.

STABILIZATION PRICES

To overcome this, the Federal Government has replaced floor prices with stabilization prices as afforded by the Agricultural Stabilization Act. The principle of this act was instituted by Liberal farmer Union Policy has been delayed with calls for subsidies of one sort or another in its cross-Canada investigation of transportation troubles.

Almost everyone, it seems, wants help on the railways, the Maritimes, the Prairies, the Pacific, agriculture, industry, labor.

Together, the pleas for money add up to millions of dollars.

The railways want a subsidy on export grain shipments.

The Sig Maritime sugar plant wants a subsidy on all shipments out of the Atlantic provinces. The Prairies proposed subsidies for uneconomical branch lines judged necessary in the national interest.

Manitoba wants a subsidy on northern rail shipments.

B.C. REQUEST

And in British Columbia, there has been a cry for a subsidy to the coast industries to compete in the prairie market—a subsidy similar to the $7,000,000 "hedge" payments made annually by the federal government to assist eastwest traffic across Northern Ontario's unproductive "economic desert."

The six royal commissioners, after a hectic five-stop tour of Western Canada, still have to hear from the provincial governments of Ontario and Quebec, entering for the first time into the transportation tangle.

The commission has scheduled hearings for Toronto March 14-16 and Quebec City March 17-19.

Then it returns to Ottawa for a whirlwind series of sittings that extend at least to July.

Child Asphyxiated

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—A two-year-old boy was asphyxiated Wednesday in a fire he apparently started in the basement of his parents' home.

William Leonard Loveday failed to respond when oxygen was administered while he was being taken to hospital.

Fire Chief Walter Drew said the youngster and his four-year-old brother, James, playing in the basement. William put a piece of paper in the furnace and when it ignited he became alarmed and threw it on a pile of waste material.

Charges Papers Feed Readers Prejudice Pill

TORONTO (CP) — Newspapers were chided today for feeding their readers "the prejudices pill neatly parcelled in canned thought."

Energy Resources Minister Macaulay told members of the Ontario Provincial Dailies Association the characteristic he feared most in this age of "predigested information and canned thought" is "the tendency of the published word to be interpretative rather than factual."

"I fear the day we can do no research, that our thoughts are only the prejudices of others—that we in short come to accept the age of the digestion pill, the prejudice pill neatly parcelled in canned thought.

"We have reviewers of reviews so that people not only won't have to read books, they won't even have to read the first review."

Mr. Macaulay rapped readers for having too much interest in sensational stories. "The simplest piece of legislation of the greatest benefit cannot compete for attention with an axe murder or a rape tastefully reconstructed."

"Does the press give the public what the public needs, what the public wants, what the public deserves or what the press thinks the public wants.

"How one replies depends upon one's point of view—namely who is replying."

Documents Show Companies Controlled Trade Is Claim

MONTREAL (CP)—A prosecuting lawyer at the trial of 17 pulp and paper companies charged with conspiring to fix pulpwood prices said Wednesday 1,500 documents seized as evidence "all show that these companies controlled the bulk of the trade."

Replying to a defence motion of non-suit, Dollard Dansereau said that in the seized documents the companies "discussed prices of in a way that showed the prices they set would be the prices paid."

The companies are charged with conspiracy to set pulpwood prices and unduly lessen competition from 1947 to 1954.

Mr. Dansereau said that the meaning of the word "undue" is important in describing the lessening of competition.

"It maintains that 'unduly' is a reference to quality not to quantity. Unduly means irregular, illegal and quasi-criminal . . . It does not necessarily mean less competition."

PRICE SCHEDULES

Mr. Dansereau added:

"Considering the manner in which price schedules were drawn up and how companies were asked to comply, we believe this constitutes an undue lessening of competition."

When a motion for non-suit was introduced Tuesday, defence lawyer J. J. Robinette of Toronto said the prosecution made a "fatal" omission by not establishing what portion of the Canadian pulpwood output was handled by the companies in the 1947-54 period.

Commenting on previous combines charges he said:

"In all these horizontal price-fixing cases the Crown has gone to a lot of trouble to show the extent of the market, its state and control."

Mr. Robinette said it is vital that the Crown show what portion of the market was involved if there was an undue restriction of competition.

Mr. Justice Harry Batshaw said his decision on the non-suit motion may be ready by the end of the week.

"PENNSY" FACES STRIKE

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Transport Workers Union said Wednesday it will call a strike against the Pennsylvania Railroad because it has been unable to reach agreement on a new contract after eight months of negotiations. No date was set for the strike of 20,000 non-operating employees.

The organization planned to hold a euchre later in the month. At the end of the business, Mr. Dryden called on the principal, Mr. Moorcroft, who spoke of the pleasant experience for two weeks as assisting inspector. He would be only too glad to talk over with the parents of grade 8 children on the course most suitable for their child entering high school. He also introduced the guest speaker, Mr. J. G. Demeza, superintendent of the Ontario School for the Deaf. Mr. Demeza illustrated his talk with slides from the time a child entered school until graduation.

The School for the Deaf is known all over the continent for its scientific and sympathetic training of deaf children.

After the showing of the interesting slides he answered several questions covering the education of the children.

Mr. Dryden thanked the guest speaker.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Long, Mrs. Mansfield, assisted by Mrs. McPeak and Mrs. Miller, room mothers of grade one.

ESSENTIAL ITEM

Health experts recommend that children up to the age of 12 should drink at least a pint of milk a day.

Wife Preservers

Most gasoline can be kept now looking with a few minutes' washing in the washing machine. Rinse them thoroughly and dry in a warm —not hot—place.

Zion Church Admits Five Children

At a well-attended service in the newly decorated Zion United church on Sunday afternoon, the following children were received into the fellowship of the Christian Church by the sacrament of baptism; Sharon Mary Zufelt; Phillip John Thompson; Lorna Susan Jensen; Verna Wynn and Cynthia Anne Wammaker.

College Hill EBWA Holds Turkey Dinner

The regular monthly meeting of the Evening W.A. was held in College Hill United Church Sunday School room on Wednesday evening with 14 members present.

The president, Mrs. Charles Gray, presided.

Secretary's report read by Mrs. Reg Fullen, and the report of the visiting committee was given by Mrs. McDonald.

Plans for the "Turkey Supper" in March were discussed. Several members reported good sale of tickets.

Worship service was in charge of Mrs. Boyd Moorcroft, and her group. Mrs. Clare Reid led in prayer and read the Scripture. Mrs. Moorcroft read an interesting devotional about Holman Hunt's famous painting — "The Light of the World".

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Moorcroft and her group, and a social time enjoyed by all.

H-S Assoc. Hears Talk on Post Office

DESERONTO — The regular meeting of the Home and School Association held at the public school on the evening of February 16, was well attended. The president, Mrs. D. C. McVicker, was in charge of the meeting and Mrs. D. R. Castle substituted for the secretary, Mrs. Ryan, who was unable to attend.

The meeting decided to accept the invitation of the Napanee Home and School Association to attend a meeting in Napanee on March 8th.

A portion of the collection was forwarded to the Federation in commemoration of Founder's Day.

The date for the 'Fun Fair' was set for May 13th and the fair will be held at the public school. Members were asked for suggestions for the program.

The next meeting is to be held on March 17th and is scheduled for the high school if that school is again in operation by that time.

The attendance prize was won by the room of the principal, Mr. Booth.

SPEAKER

Following the business portion of the meeting the speaker, Mr. DeRoche, public relations officer of the Postal Department, was introduced by Postmaster James McVicker. Mr. DeRoche spoke of post office work in general, and of some of the problems encountered by postal employees. He advised the meeting of several ways that the public could assist in reducing the amount of undeliverable mail and the work in forwarding mail in general.

He gave the audience some slight idea of the enormous task the post office department has in keeping the service at its present high standard. Mr. DeRoche showed a film which showed the task of distribution in both large and small centres.

Following the film he answered questions of those in attendance for a short period.

The thanks of the Home and School were voiced by Mr. Roach, who mentioned the appreciation of the people of Deseronto for the opportunity of hearing Mr. DeRoche.

Striperama Stole

By TRACY ADRIAN

This French brushed-wool stole is the answer to how to look smart yet comfortably warm at such places as ski lodges, museum treks and country houses.

The stole is in wide stripes of beige, moss green, red, royal and black combinations with a long fringe of wool. Soft and cozy, it is youthful enough for a sub-teener but equally appropriate for grandma.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogle Devolin Celebrate Silver Anniversary

A happy event took place last Saturday evening when 150 guests, including relatives, neighbors and friends gathered in the Orange hall at Madoc to honor Mr. and Mrs. Ogle Devolin, of R.R. 1, who were celebrating their silver wedding anniversary.

The hall was nicely decorated with bouquets of flowers, and a three-tiered anniversary cake decorated in silver and made by Mrs. George Moorecroft, graced the table on the platform with a background of pink and white streamers.

Mr. and Mrs. Devolin were married in Madoc by the Rev. Everend G. W. Rivers, then pastor of Trinity United Church. Their attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Woods, now of Oshawa, who were present for this anniversary occasion. Mrs. Simon Vilneff of Manmoy, was also an honored guest, and was presented with a rose corsage, while those worn by the bride and her attendant were tinted carnations.

The bridegroom's gift to his bride of 25 years was a sterling silver set of necklace, earrings and pin. Her gift to him was a wristwatch.

Mr. George Moorcroft acted as chairman and Mrs. Ronald Johnston as pianist.

Mr. Grant Richardson of Stirling, led in community singing.

An enjoyable program included appropriate numbers chosen for the occasion, "I'll Walk Beside You," a vocal solo by Mrs. Archie Adams of Madoc; "Melody of Love," an instrumental trio by Rosalyn Grayden and Evan Rodgers of Stirling; "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You," sung in harmony by the sisters of the bridegroom, and a humorous reading by Mrs. Milton Robinson, niece of the bride.

PRESENTATIONS

During the presentations Mrs. Harold Barlow presented her parents (on behalf of their family) with a self winding mantles clock; Mrs. Ernest Wammaker of Stirling, read an address which included a poem, "Memories of Childhood Days", and a platform rocker was presented on behalf of the bridegroom's sisters and brothers.

Mr. Douglas Vilneff of Marmora, read an address and relatives of the bride presented a lovely coffee table with two matching magazine racks and chairs.

Mr. Malcolm Bassett, of Peterborough, spoke on behalf of the couple's friends and they were presented with an electric fry-pan.

On behalf of neighbors and friends of the community, Mrs. Arnold Goebel read an address and Mrs. Will Brown presented a beautiful large mirror and a scatter-rug.

Other individual gifts included china, cut glass and table decorations.

The guests of honor each replied, thanking all for the beautiful gifts, paying tribute to the staunch neighbors and friends, and expressing regret that some were absent through illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogle Devolin are members of Trinity United Church and have a family of three daughters, Mrs. Harold Barlow of Bancroft; Mrs. Robert Bateman of Madoc; Sharon, attending Madoc high school; two sons, Ross of Madoc and Fred of Oshawa.

After an hour of dancing tea, coffee and bountiful refreshments were served. Good wishes were expressed and the party closed at midnight.

54 Young Girls Take Vows, Receive Habits

DESERONTO — Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Dorey and Miss Delores Dorey of Deseronto: also Miss Annette Dorey, of Toronto, spent a few days in Montreal, where they attended the Holy Habit Profession on February 16 at the Mother House of the Congregation of Notre Dame, of their daughter, Mary Anne, with 53 other young girls, took her first vows and received her Holy Habit, and religious name of Sister St. Agnes Carmella.

His Eminence Cardinal Leger of Montreal said Mass and performed the ceremony.

Other guests present for this occasion were: the Rev. G. T. Martin of Deseronto, also two of Montreal said Mass and pertigan, of Read, Ont., also Mrs. Edward McKeown, of Toronto.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

The Women of the Moose held their regular meeting of the month in the Moose Hall with Sr. Regt. N. Shandraw presiding.

A pot-luck supper and open meeting is to be held at the next meeting.

The Sr. Regent thanked the girls for the splendid ritual work put on for the mid-winter conference. A rummage sale is to be held later this month.

Reports were given by the committee chairmen.

An auction sale was held by the hospital chairman, Nora Kaiser.

After the meeting closed, refreshments were served by the chairmen and her committee.

Bride-to-Be Feted With Gift Shower

DESERONTO — On Friday evening Mrs. J. Graham and Mrs. Mike Ryan were hostesses to a miscellaneous shower given in honor of Miss Phyllis Bender, a bride-to-be in the near future.

During the evening games were played, after which Phyllis was seated, under a beautiful umbrella, with pink and white streamers, and presented with a pretty corsage.

The table was centred with a lovely cake, in the form of a church, with a miniature bride and bridegroom. She was presented with several prettily-wrapped gifts, for which she graciously expressed her thanks to her friends and relatives for their kind wishes and gifts and to Mrs. G. Fox for opening her home for the shower.

The hostesses served refreshments of many varieties of sandwiches and dainties, and a pleasant evening was spent.

18 Children Receive Rite Of Baptism

Frankford United Church Sunday School, which has been meeting for some years at 10.30 on Sunday mornings, is going to assemble at 10 o'clock beginning Sunday, March 5, in order to accommodate the worship service in the church which, on the same date, is changing from every Sunday evening service to alternate morning and evening services at 11.15 and 7.30.

This Sunday School has a big place in Sunday activities in this community, its budget for 1950 was over $1,200 and $494 was donated to missionary activity. Average Sunday attendance over the entire year was 186 and there are 40 active teachers.

Twelve communicants from the Sunday School were confirmed into church membership in 1950. Mr. Howard Richards is general superintendent and Mr. H. J. Scobourgh, assistant.

In a capacity congregation at the worship service at the church Sunday, Feb. 21, the following 18 children were baptized by the minister, Rev. C. R. Judd, assisted by Mrs. J. K. Beach, superintendent of the primary department of the Sunday School: Cheryl Joan Park; Sieveen Marie Moren; Paul Richard deGelan; George Edward, Ronald Blair and Audrey Elaine Hodgins; Kathleen Mary, Allan William, Donald Roger and Steven Kenneth Heyse; Evelyn Marie, Margrita, Norbert and Hedi Hetzer Huer; Vernon Blain and Kimberley Jean Wannamaker; Candace Davidsen and Douglas Leslie Brown.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a marriage counsellor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. M. S. — My daughter has hurt me.

Ethel A. — She made me angry.

Mrs. M. S. — I am a widow of 65. My husband died a year ago after a long, torturing illness and I nursed him through to the end. I thank God I had the strength to do it.

In all the time my husband was ill my children, a married son and daughter, did very little to help him or me. Their only suggestion was to send him to a hospital or nursing home. I wasn't going to do that while I had the ability to care for him myself.

I have been living with my daughter since my husband's death. We haven't been well, but I can't complain. When I asked my daughter what to plan to do about me when I can no longer take care of myself she laughed and said, "Don't cross your bridges until you come to them." I cried all night to think that that is my return for a lifetime of devotion.

Ethel A.—My mother has always been a difficult woman and age and her widowhood haven't improved her much. My brother and I tried to fulfill our responsibilities to her and our father but it wasn't easy.

In the first place, we were unable to do anything to help when our father was so ill. We had our own families to care for and we felt that if it was too much for mother she should send him to a hospital.

Mother made me angry when she asked what I would do about her when she became ill because she is always hinting that we don't want her and that we have no real feeling for our father. It is just not true.

I have tried to make Mother comfortable in my home, but she always acts as though she is intruding. On the other hand, she gets very hurt if we don't include her in our activities.

The Council: Most elderly individuals fear the waning of their powers even more than death itself. They dread being reduced even more to an infantile state, dependent upon the good will of others.

It is hard for most young people to fully enter into the feelings of an older person on this subject. They have feelings of their own. They resent the suggestion that they might be ossified, ungrateful or lacking in devotion to their parents.

For a better understanding of her problems we suggest that Mrs. M. S. read Shakespeare's "King Lear." The elderly monarch decides to give away all his property, making himself even more helpless than necessary. Then he throws himself on the mercy of his daughters by trying to find out which loves him the most. The greedy elder daughters lay it on thick, taking of their devotion in grandiose terms. The loving youngest one doesn't say much to him and his daughter should love a father. She is dismissed, but it is she who comes to be with her father when the elder daughters have finished with their shortcomings.

This may sound like an oversimplified version of the situation, yet it goes to the heart of the matter. When an elderly person is frightened by the thought of the future he may make childish and foolish demands on the young. The young person, pained at the spectacle of a once-powerful parent behaving in an unworthy manner, may respond coldly. He really wants to tell his parent to have courage and to carry himself proudly as long as possible. And that is wh.' we would recommend to Mrs. .. S. — courage and an active effort to find friends and interests suitable to her age. Then she will be willing to let the future take care of itself.

Resort Suit

By VERA WINSTON

A pale blue spongy cotton and wool fabric makes up into a resort suit that should have a good season at home later on. The jacket is semi-fitted, but not markedly so, and has sleeves slightly belled to stand away from the body. The slim skirt has a separate camisole top. Other blouses can be substituted to make this a versatile suit.

Pancakes For Next Tuesday

by Mary Moore

Sometimes I wonder about myself. I have given you a pancake recipe that readers have adopted and clutched to their bosoms as the "best yet." But I keep on trying to improve on it — and I think I have.

Last night for dinner we had Lemon Pancakes with butter and Havaiock maple syrup with smoked sausage, smoked back bacon and baking eggs. For dessert we had sherbert glasses chuck full of fresh membrane-free orange sections.

A strange meal — but the sequence was right because the oranges were tangy and took away the sweet taste of the syrup.

Do you want to try the new lemon pancakes for Shrove Tuesday next week?

LEMON PANCAKES:

2 teaspoons grated lemon rind, 2 1-3 cups sifted flour, 6 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, beaten, 2 cups milk, 1-4 cup melted shortening or butter.

Sift flour, baking powder, sugar and salt into a bowl. Add grated lemon rind. Beat in eggs, milk and melted shortening or las and top with some more of

Scouts L.A. Celebrate Founder's Day

The Pack and Troop of 2nd Bellerville, their Scouters, with group committee, Boy Scout Auxiliary, District Commissioner, P. L. Allcorn and Mrs. Allcorn, joined with the congregation of Christ Church, on Sunday evening for their service, honoring the founder of Scouting movement, Lord Baden-Powell.

Flowers on the altar were placed by the Auxiliary in memory of the founder.

The colorful bulletin with a scout scene as a cover was donated by the group committee.

During the service, five scouts, Glen Rainbird, Bruce Johnston, Jeffery Gray, Bill Elliott, and Darel Lewington, who had studied under the Rev. H. A. Maslish, received the coveted religion in life award.

Archdeacon J. B. Creegan's sermon theme on "Preparedness" was most appropriate for the occasion.

MODERN MANNERS

QUESTION BOX

Question: I have been put in an extremely embarrassing position. A business acquaintance of mine (whom I know very slightly) has asked me to propose him for membership in a rather exclusive club to which I belong. For a number of reasons I do not want to do so. How can I turn this man down without hurting his feelings?

Answer: To begin with, the business acquaintance himself is definitely in the wrong. Only an extremely close friend should ever be asked to propose or sponsor one for a club membership. My suggestion would be to tell this man that, due to your having proposed several people for the club recently, you feel that at this time you cannot do so again. Perhaps this is a "white lie," but it would seem to be the only tactful way to handle it! He should have seen enough to take the hint!

Question: I am to be married next month; it is to be a formal wedding and will take place in the early afternoon. I would like to have the men in the bridal party wear tuxedos. Does this way this is wrong. Is it?

Answer: It certainly is! Tuxedos should never be worn before six o'clock in the evening. The correct attire for the men, including the bridegroom, best man, ushers and both fathers, should be cutaway coats worn with striped trousers. No other outfit is considered correct for the formal daytime wedding.

Question: So many of the old forms have changed completely, or been modified, that the question arises as to whether or not the length of time one should wait for a lady guest, when entertaining at either lunch or dinner, has been changed?

Answer: A hostess should never keep her other guests waiting more than fifteen minutes for a guest. Too many people cultivate the unpardonable habit of always being late. Perhaps if they were embarrassed a few times by having to seat the dining room where everyone else is seated, they might break this habit. There is only one exception to this rule. If the guest of honor is late, there is nothing to do but wait until he arrives. Actually, he should get in an appearance a little ahead of time, just to be safe. Only an emergency would be cause for forgiving him for arriving late!

Women's Activities

FRANKFORD UNITED W.M.S.

FRANKFORD — The February meeting of Frankford United Church W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. George Spencer on Thursday afternoon. The meeting was opened with quiet music played by Mrs. Fred Charlesworth.

The president, Mrs. McLay, led in prayer. A short story was told of the life of Fanny Crosby, who composed the hymn, "Blessed Assurance."

Roll call showed an attendance of 14 members.

It was announced that the World Day of Prayer will be held on March 4th at the Anglican Church.

The program was conducted by Mrs. W. Scott. A hymn was sung and the Scripture reading given. Mrs. Scott took for her topic, "The Lord's Prayer," and the following ladies assisted: Mrs. Spencer, Mrs. R. Moran, Mrs. Mallory, Mrs. F. E. Bonisteel, Mrs. Dafoe and Mrs. S. Osterhout. The Lord's Prayer was then repeated in unison followed by the hymn, "Breathe On Me, Breath of God."

A reading, "The Ministry of Prayer," was given by Mrs. Charlesworth, and Miss Utting, the missionary for prayer, was remembered.

The study book was presented by Mrs. George Montgomery.

A social half-hour was enjoyed and lunch was served by Mrs. Spencer and Mrs. Scott.

Boy Scout L.A. Plans Father, Son Banquet

The regular monthly meeting of the Boy Scout Auxiliary of 2nd Belleville Pack was held on the evening of February 18 in the parish hall. Mrs. H. Rainbird presided and 13 mothers were present.

Mrs. Rainbird introduced and warmly welcomed a new member, Mrs. C. Walter Skinkle.

Plans were further discussed for the coming "Father and Son" banquet to be held in April.

Mrs. J. Foster gave a report on the sewing accomplished by that committee. Mrs. W. Yates accepted the sewing kit as convener, taking over from Mrs. L. Bisker.

Mrs. Rainbird announced that there would be an auction at the March 10th meeting. Members were urged to bring a guest and at least two articles for the auction.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. J. Norrington and her committee. In celebration of Lord Baden-Powell's birthday cake, each topped by a lighted candle, were served. Mrs. Rainbird presented each member present with new Auxiliary ribbons in the 2nd Belleville colors of yellow and green, as birthday favors.

UNEMPLOYMENT

up secondary industries in such areas as Elliot Lake, which now is wholly dependent on the uranium mining operations.

NFED INDUCEMENTS

If secondary industry was offered the same advantages and inducements as mining companies, labor would flock to areas like Elliot Lake which was relatively close to the Sault Ste. Marie steel mills.

He said the Elliot Lake issue should be taken "out of the political arena" and be considered as an unemployment problem.

There had been suggestions that since it was in the Algoma East constituency of Opposition Leader Pearson the government wasn't too anxious to assist the community.

Mr. Peters didn't think that was the case but "he wouldn't act it past" governments which had acted that way before.

STARR ANSWERS CRITICS

Labor Minister Starr countered charges that his government was ignoring unemployment by listing the steps taken—deficit budgeting, stepped-up housing and public works programs, more extensive unemployment benefits and a cutback in immigration. The government had recognized the seriousness of the situation.

The winter works program would provide jobs for about 40,000 this winter. This had been labelled "peanuts" by the opposition but was not greeted that way by those for whom it provided jobs.

The best the Liberals had been able to suggest was committees and there did not create jobs.

Liberal members renewed their attack on the winter works program as unsatisfactory to the municipalities. The government only agreed to take on half the labor cost for approved programs and this was not enough.

FISHER DRAWS REPLY

At one point, Douglas Fisher (CCF—Port Arthur) interjected to say that winter unemployment in his riding amounts to 22 to 25 per cent of the labor force.

Mr. Starr said many workers at the Lakehead are woodsmen. He had run into one who had not worked during the winter for 12 years. The man had said he earned $7,000 during the summer and drew unemployment insurance benefits during the winter.

Mr. Starr said the winter works program is providing workers with average unemployment of 45 days and that the labor content of the program in terms of money is 35 per cent.

FEWER JOBLESS IN U.K.

LONDON (Reuters)—A total of 150,000 persons were registered as unemployed in Britain as of Feb. 15, the labor ministry announced Wednesday night. The figure represents a drop of 11,000 from Jan. 11.

SHARPSHOOTING

trucks. Only once did he fail to fire at a moving vehicle. This was a school bus carrying about 50 youngsters.

Veteran state troopers hugged the tank as it opened fire. They, too, peppered the house with volley after volley. Finally Raymond tried to make a run for it. He ran a few feet, then dropped as the machine-gun bullets cut through his body.

LIST OF VICTIMS

Those killed by Raymond were:

Mrs. Mary Frances Sissler, 61, and Mrs. Edna Mace, 53, both of Ohiopyle, Pa.; William Burd, 45-year-old highways department worker from Farmington, Pa., and Mrs. May Must of Farmington, Pa.

Wounded were: Harry Cronwell, 31, of Ohiopyle; Lawrence Swen-tush, 18, of Haddonville, Pa.; Carlus Mauss, 22, husband of Mrs. Maust, and two Maust children, Mary 3, and Eddie, 18 months.

Raymond was armed with a telescopic sight. He also had a Magnum rifle which has shotgun-like pellets in its charge.

DIAMONDS WASHED — South Africa hopes political stability — if maintained — will stretch the economic upswing of 1959 into the new decade. A big factor in economic prosperity is the diamond industry. A worker is shown here polishing to diamonds separated from gravel on a specially made pulsating and sloping table. Water pours from the machine to the greased table. Gravel is washed to the sides, away from the diamonds. (CP Photo)

Northport

NORTHPORT — Mrs. David Barker spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carter, R. R. 1 Ameliasburg. Mr. and Mrs. Carter celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Kingerley spent the weekend in Quebec where Mr. Kingerley was guest speaker at the opening of the new church and dedication service on Sunday at Lorettenville appointment, on the Val Cartier charge.

Sorry to report Miss Elaine Mallett is confined to the house with 'flu.

Several from the street attended the buffet supper and euchre party at Demorestville Hall last Saturday, sponsored by Picton OES 272.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Clarke, Burrs, were supper guests on a recent Sunday of their daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Pulver and Mr. Pulver.

Mrs. Elwood Kerr and Mrs. John Kerr attended a quilting and dinner at the parsonage of the Pentecostal church on Wednesday last, at Picton.

Pleased to report Mr. Harold Robinson is getting along nicely after surgery in Prince Edward Memorial Hospital, Picton.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Denyes, Port Hope, were guests recently, of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Baldwin.

Mrs. Harry Smith spent Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Fitzman Pulver.

The Rev. C. W. Coleman, B.A., of Belleville, had charge of the services in Sophiasburg circuit on Sunday while Mr. Kingerley was in Quebec.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Mowbray, and family, spent several days last week with her father, Mr. Joseph Teskey and Harold, in Wellington.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kotchapaw are enjoying a holiday in California with friends.

Mrs. Jack Fraser sang a delightful solo, "Oh Dry Those Tears", accompanied by Mrs. Gilbert Stackhouse at the recent national meeting of Sir Thomas Picton Chapter IODE at the Royal Hotel.

Miss Thelma Robinson is convalescing at Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston. Her many friends will be glad when she is able to return to her home here.'

Social, Political Pressures Between Races in S. Africa Remain as Sharp as Ever

COMMONWEALTH 1960
By ALAN HUMPHREYS

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—South Africa moved into what many here regard as the "sensational sixties" with the economic barometer set fair for a boom.

The year 1959 ended on an upbeat for the economy and a general feeling in the nation's business community is that if political stability can be maintained, the Union will develop further its role as the economic strongpoint of the African continent.

But many do not take political stability for granted. The nation's fundamental problem—the tangle of social and political pressures consequent upon the division of a 24,000,000 population between 3,000,000 white and 11,000,000 non-white—remains as sharp as ever.

RACE RELATIONS

Half a century after the Union was born out of the strife of the Boer War, merging British and Dutch provinces under the Act of Union signed just 50 years ago this year, and with the nation due to become a republic soon, relations between races remain the essential fact of political life here.

The National party, in power since 1948 and with its mandate newly strengthened through general election gains last October, sees the future in terms of a strict separation of the races within its policy of apartheid.

The logical culmination of this policy now is in progress — the separation of the African population into separate, self-administering territories known as "bantustans". The first "bantustans" were established last year and more are to come in the decade ahead.

Organized industry is strongly opposed to this plan. The Federated Chamber of Industries has informed the government that "substantial industrial development in the Union is possible only if the integration and unity of the country as one economic entity is maintained."

NEW POLITICAL PARTY

Moreover, the government's uncompromising application of apartheid has caused the appearance of a new political party. A group of a dozen or so members of the opposition United party last year created the Progressive party, leaning more closely to the idea of an integrated country.

An expelled Nationalist, Japie Basson, also is reported at work with a pressure group, supported by discontented Nationalists outside Parliament.

But whatever the uncertainties of the political outlook, the new decade is full of promise on the business front.

A "marking time" recession which curbed expansion during 1958 evaporated during 1959 and the year finished with some notable records shattered:

1. The nation's bankroll of gold and foreign currencies stood at £151,900,000, 35 per cent up on the year and more than double the lowest 1958 figure.

2. Gold production—the union's chief breadwinner—hit 20,000,000 ounces, topping £250,000,000 for the first time.

3. Diamond sales totalled £91,-100,000, some 20 per cent better than the previous best—1957.

4. Non - African unemployment reached a peak last July at 28,722 after a long rise, then turned down to finish the year around 25,000.

5. The favorable balance of trade for 1959 was £167,400,000, four times the 1958 figure.

EXPORT DEMAND

In recent weeks leaders of government, industry and commerce have been of one voice in forecasting an economic leap forward. Booming industry in Europe and the United States is expected to increase demand for South African raw materials such as wool, hides, and such metals as platinum, manganese, uranium and copper.

This year is expected to yield a gold production record as more new mines come into production to replace the fast-dying workings which originally changed Johannesburg from a rough shanty-town into a great financial capital. And despite the union's swiftly growing industrialization, gold is still the main factor in South Africa's economy.

Capital Punishment Debate Reaches Climax Tonight, Not Likely Vote Will Be Taken

OTTAWA (CP) — One of the most contentious Commons debates in years reaches its climax should substitute life imprisonment for death as the penalty for murder—is to reach a vote tonight.

The outcome is in doubt.

At least 25 speakers are understood to be ready to continue the argument that began last Thursday on the private member's bill of Frank McGee (PC—York-Scarborough) calling for abolition of the death penalty except for wilful treason.

It is expected that those who do gain the floor will continue the first day's non-partisan disagreement, in which nine of 17 speakers of all political stripes supported the measure.

INTEREST WIDESPREAD

Perhaps not since the great pipeline debate of 1956 has an issue in Parliament attracted so much public attention. It was the subject of more than interest that the bill, which normally has to be allotted only one day of debate, was granted an additional day by unanimous consent.

There is uncertainty over what course the House will take when the 7 p.m. adjournment hour for EST adjournment time. Will the bill be "talked out" or will a vote be called?

Some MPs are confident that a free vote will be taken—a division in which no party lines would be observed. Others say the opposition would take up the final 15 or 20 minutes of the sitting.

But there apparently is still no general agreement that this will be done.

MAY TAKE NO CHANCES

The government opposition strategist has suggested that the "talking out" may be done by the Conservatives to prevent a vote and see abolition implemented by the next parliament in some form.

These MPs are said to feel that since the cabinet has committed four out of every five deaths sentences it has reviewed in the last 2½ years the government may be leaning to some sort of partial abolition.

With the risk of Mr. McGee's bill being defeated, the abolitionists may choose to debate the issue to another day. Their reason for vote is possible in order to ensure that the bill will get full consideration vote to inhibit the government if it chooses to introduce legislation on partial abolition later.

Some speculation was that, if it appears near 10 p.m. that the bill will come to a vote, Justice Minister Fulton may state briefly that the government anticipates abolition in the next parliament or in future time. This could be the signal to the Senate.

It was also learned that Solicitor-General Lucien Cardin hopes to enter the debate to defend the government's record on commutations. Since taking office in June, 1957, the Progressive Conservative administration has commuted all but eight of the 40 death penalties to life imprisonment.

Provincial Net Debt Exceeds Billion Dollars

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's net debt has edged past the billion-dollar mark.

Provincial Treasurer Allan in his budget address to the legislature today estimated that when the present fiscal year ends March 31, the net debt will stand at $1,014,063,208.

This represents an increase of $113,531,500 in a year compared with a figure of $1,29,7631,708 the previous year.

Mr. Allan said at a pre-budget press conference the province borrowed $150,000,000 last year, in Canada. There was no intention borrowings would be reduced in 1960-61 unless Ontario succeeded in getting more money from the federal government through adjustments in the tax-rental agreement.

This year, Mr. Allan was able to finance $66,000,000 in capital works from unexpected ordinary revenues. He is budgeting for the same amount on next year's program.

"While over the last decade and a half we have been creating physical assets estimated [illegible] 000,000,000, our net capital debt has increased by only $538,000,000," Mr. Allan said.

"This means we have financed out of ordinary revenue over $1,400,000,000 of these capital and our capital facilities, funding only one-quarter. That is no mean accomplishment."

The debt now could be retired with 18 months of revenue would [illegible] years, gross revenue [illegible] "We off the debt—as it then stood.

"On the other hand," Mr. Allan said, "we recognize our debt has been rising and I assure you that steps will be taken to keep any increase in manageable dimensions."

The gross capital debt increased by $85,880,000 this year to $1,698,003,325. The funded debt increased $107,000,000 to $1,435,500 and contingent liabilities, bonds guaranteed by the province, went up $83,971,000 to $1,490,762,001.

Municipalities Get $27,800,000 Aid Increase

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government has set aside $27,800,000 to municipalities, their school boards and associated agencies in the coming year, Provincial Treasurer Allan said today.

He told the legislature in his budget speech the assistance total represents an increase of $27,800,000 over the $114,900,000 given the municipalities in 1959 present fiscal year ending March 31.

Less the municipalities figure they are entitled to more, Mr. Allan said the province is in existence "is a 16-fold increase in the last 17 years—a record that is made even more notable by the fact that the province's own direct expenditures on services have increased in that period by only six times.

"We have not been unmindful of the needs of the municipalities," he said. "... In 1943-44, 19 per cent of the province's total expenditures were in support of local services. Today, over 38 per cent of our budget is being allocated for this purpose."

For every $100 the municipalities raised in taxation, the province was contributing $60 toward

Set Aside Some $250-Million For Highways

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario plans an expenditure of $251,500,000 on its highways in the fiscal year beginning April 1, Provincial Treasurer Allan announced today.

Presenting his budget in the legislature, Mr. Allan said the appropriation is approximately the same as this year's expenditures — provides $75,500,000 for maintenance and $176,000,000 for capital construction.

In addition the province will hand over $40,800,000 to municipalities to help finance their road construction and another $25,400,000 for maintenance.

"Inasmuch as the municipalities will approximately match the provincial subsidies to them, the combined provincial and municipal road expenditures in the coming fiscal year will total $318,000,000, about the same as this year."

START ON BRIDGE

The new program provides for a start on a high-level bridge over the Welland Canal on the Queen Elizabeth Way at Homer St. Grade work and a start on the Chedoke expressway near Hamilton.

Work on Highway 401 will be continued with the hope of completing the section from Toronto to Cobourg and construction will also be started on the road linking Fort Frances and Atikokan.

During 1959-60, a total of 334 miles of new highway was brought into operation, 425 miles of roads were improved to road arm standards and 91 structures were made permanent.

Substantial progress was made on the Trans-Canada Highway. The link between Arnprior and River, north of Sault Ste. Marie, and White River is scheduled for opening next fall.

Continued improvement on the Queen Elizabeth Way and the extension of Highway 400 from Brown Hill, near Barrie, to connect with the Trans - Canada Highway at Coldwater provided better access to Northern Ontario.

New Financial Deals Sought From Ottawa

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Allan today gave a preoutline of new financial deals Ontario is seeking from the federal government. A larger share of tax revenues was the major objective.

"We do not believe that the present distribution of the two major direct fields of taxation is just and equitable to this province," Mr. Allan said, failed to stress the need for a revision of the tax-rental agreements. He also said in his budget address to the legislature.

"You may be assured that at the forthcoming (Dominion-provincial) conference we will assert our claims to a just recognition of our rights and our needs."

He did not specify what changes the province will request. Ontario receives 14 per cent of federal rates of income tax under the tax-rental agreement. Ottawa also allows a abatement of nine percentage points a year of federal tax on corporation income to Ontario corporations with rates of business income levies an 11-per-cent tax.

LESS THAN FIFTH

Mr. Allan said tax abatements represent less than a fifth of the combined federal - provincial corporation income tax and less than a seventh of the individual income tax.

"We are not asking for half the revenue from these fields as is our right. However, we do maintain that the present abstraction does not adequately reflect the special problems that exist in our rapidly expanding economy."

Mr. Allan listed several other items raised in discussions with Ottawa last year.

Ontario wants more simplified interpretations and a formula for interim advances on federal-provincial conditional grants and shared-cost programs. Often, he said, there are undue delays in reimbursements, with the result that the provinces have to finance the payments.

The province asked the federal government to give logging consideration, a component for the depletion of resources, a special allowance scheme that granted to companies engaged in metal mining or extracting oil and natural gas.

It complained that the federal government claims immunity from provincial taxation on its Crown agencies, while Crown agencies of the provinces are subject to federal taxation. The situation was "illogical and unfair."

Open 10 New Parks in 1960, Plan 8 Others

TORONTO (CP)—About 8,000,000 people visited Ontario's 24 provincial parks last year and the government plans to spend $1,100,000 in the coming fiscal year to increase and improve the facilities, Provincial Treasurer Allan announced today.

Ten new parks will be opened this year and another eight properties were acquired for parks in future development in lines with the province's "parks for the people policy," Mr. Allan said in his budget address to the legislature.

The 3,350-acre Lake Nipigon park near Geraldton, the 2,300-acre Killbear park at Parry Sound and Darlington park, 200 acres in Durham County, are the largest parks planned for development in 1960. Others to be ready for public recreation this year include Five Mile Lake park near Chapleau, Turkey Point park in Norfolk County and Nagagamisis park near Kapuskasing.

Facilities will be improved at Lake Superior park areas as well as at Wasaga Beach provincial park.

Mr. Allan said six parks were opened last year along the St. Lawrence River and the Bay of Quinte, bringing the total to nine. It was hoped to have six others in that area in operation by 1961.

HAVANA (AP)—A Cuban newspaper workers union has voted that any employee who fails to denounce articles "unfavorable" to Premier Fidel Castro's government should be fired.

Farm Income Sets New High Of $867,300,000

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario farmers in 1959 set another new high in cash income from sale of their harvests, Provincial Treasurer Allan reported today.

He said in his budget address to the legislature total is forecast at $867,302,000 compared with $862,409,000 in 1958, the previous record.

Gross value of the province's agricultural production this year was estimated at $1,184,000,000, the same as in 1958 and second only to the 1951 figure of $1,282,068,000.

"The need for expanding our markets both at home and abroad continues to be of paramount importance," Mr. Allan said.

LONG RECOGNIZED

"This has long been recognized by the creation of the agricultural marketing enquiry committee, and the formation of a plan to establish a research foundation at the Ontario Agricultural College.

"This foundation will co-ordinate all research in the province dealing with production and marketing, including merchandising, transportation, processing and packaging, handling, quality control, labor, family farming and vertical integration."

Without giving details, he said a study into the feasibility of public crop insurance is in process.

Dairy products led in the cash income field at $181,800,000, up six per cent. Hogs produced $121,500,000, a 13-per - cent increase.

Each Resident Will Pay $40 On Education

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's education bill in the coming fiscal year will total $770,338,000, an amount equalling about $40 for every resident of the province, Provincial Treasurer Allan said today.

The expenditure is an increase of $26,192,000 from the $204,643,000 spent in the current fiscal year ending March 31.

Presenting his budget in the legislature, Mr. Allan said the province's education was necessary "to ensure that Ontario provides the best education possible for every young people and that adequate facilities and teaching are available to all."

To handle the increased school enrolment—rising in recent years at an annual rate of about 10,000—the government had undertaken a vigorous program to recruit and train teachers, Mr. Allan said.

The embarrassing thing about this ministry of education is that our government may go out of power and another come in. It may be recalled that this happened in 1957. As a result, politicians who had been the lower unemployed in figure now use the higher one in their views.

The tortured and sometimes hilarious explanations for changing figures by Premier Frost are well illustrated in the Commons Wednesday.

Labor Minister Starr quoted Paul Martin (L—Essex East) former health minister, as say-Mr. Martin interjected.

EXPANSION PLANS

Mr. Allan said the Hamilton Teachers' College is planned this year and construction will start on a new teachers' college at the Lakehead, expected to be ready for occupancy in 1962.

Grants to municipal school boards in the 1960-61 fiscal year will total $219,000,000, an increase of $19,500,000 from this year.

For higher education, Mr. Allan said the government proposed grants of $2,195,000 for the year, $1,711,000 over the figure in the current year. Of this, $1,000,000 would be for $15,500,000 in maintenance grants and $13,200,000 for capital purposes.

GRANTS DETAIL

Total grants to each: University of Toronto, $14,007,000; Ontario College of Education, $885,000; Queen's University, $2,500,000; University of Western Ontario, $2,175,000; McMaster University, $2,150,000; University of Ottawa for medicine-and science, $1,530,000; Assumption University for Essex County, $1,265,000; Assumption University for Sudbury, $1,900,000; University of Waterloo, $1,875,000; Lakehead College, $260,000; Carleton College at Ottawa, $185,000; special grant for archaeological research, $810,000; McMaster University for Royal Botanical Garden, $75,000.

To encourage able students of limited financial means to continue their education at university level, the government proposes $1,875,000 in bursaries for Ontario scholarships and bursaries—the same figure as in the current year—and $3,000,000 for student loans.

Other expenditures included $900,000 to schools for retarded children, an increase of $200,000.

South Central Area Gets Most Of Road Money

TORONTO (CP) — Largest expenditure in Ontario's budget for construction in Ontario this year will be in the south central section of the province from Hamilton to Lake Hope, the provincial budget showed today.

This appendix to Provincial Treasurer Allan's budget also disclosed $35,248,000 allocated to the Metropolitan Toronto area. The district compared with $38,355,000 in the fiscal year ending March 31. Ontario's budget estimates for the current year were $251,500,000.

Other major projects include widening, drainage, paving and structure work on the Queen Elizabeth highway from Toronto to Galt; a start on the Chedoke expressway and on the high-level over the Welland Canal on the Queen Elizabeth Way at Homer on the outskirts of St. Catharines.

TO CLOSE GAP

Work on the Trans - Canada Highway in the Huntsville and Sault Ste. Marie areas will require a large amount, $12,000,000, of $75,000 program planned for the provincial and northeastern districts where $38,653,000 was spent in the fiscal year. Included will be completion of the gap on Highway 17 between Marathon and Sault Ste. Marie.

Southeastern districts at Kingston, Belleville and Peterborough have a $24,790,000 allocation compared with $26,000,000 in the year. It includes granular base, hot mix paving and structures on Highway 401.

Spending in southwestern Ontario districts — Chatham, London, Stratford and Owen Sound—is forecast at $18,812,000 compared with $18,295,000.

Allocations in the northwestern district — Fort William and Kenora is $15,050,000 against $16,064,000.

Job Statistics Made Hot Topic on Hill, Just Depends What Party You Belong To

OTTAWA (CP) — The hottest figures on Parliament Hill these days are not those of the stenos.

They are those issued by two government agencies—the bureau of statistics and the labor department—on unemployment.

Which political party you occupy depends on which figure you like.

On Feb. 17, the bureau of statistics estimated there were 504,000 unemployed at mid-January. The estimate is based on a monthly sample survey.

Also on Feb. 17, the labor department said registrations at National Employment Service offices totalled 755,387 at Jan. 14.

If you're a government supporter, you use the labor department bureau of statistics figure on unemployment. If you're in the opposition, you use the latter—and higher—figure. This can be taken as a political axiom.

Mr. Starr said there was no excuse for Mr. Martin because he had been in Commons since 1935.

What about External Affairs Minister Green? Mr. Pickerskill asked. Mr. Green has also been in the House a long time.

"All I can substantiate is my own position in this regard," Mr. Starr said.

"Mac is big in that itself," former health minister, as say-Mr. Martin interjected.

Church Report Suggests Death Penalty Be Replaced By Term of Life Imprisonment

TORONTO (CP)—A report that suggests the death penalty be replaced by life imprisonment received general approval at a Presbytery day night from the board of evangelism and social service of the United Church here.

The report was prepared by a 16-man committee headed by Rev. James M. Finlay of Toronto, will be sent to the next general council at Edmonton in September.

REVIEW CASES

The report suggested life imprisonment as the alternative for capital punishment. It would apply to all prevailing powers of remission and parole, but would be subject to review every three years.

Final authority for release of a prisoner should rest with the Governor-in-Council on advice of a national parole board, the report said.

"Nevertheless, we believe that parole should only be utilized as a form of clemency exercised in rare and not as a remission or as a reward for good behavior."

OTHER PROPOSALS

These other points were also suggested:

That for simple irresponsible acts which have no appreciable significance the system of summary trial and sentence be considered.

That there be opportunity in the courts for psychological assessment for training in the correction field to which the courts may refer cases for the church in the ministry of the laincy;

That the church break into areas "where crime breeds and flourishes . . ."

In other business, Rev. W. G. Berry, Associate secretary of the board of social service and welfare urged that the United Church unite rather than missiles are Canada's best defence.

He criticized advertising that used threatening statements, blatant use of the sexual appeal and photographs of cruelty, violence and bloodshed.

Associate secretary Rev. Homer C. Lane urged that the springs of charity and compassion not be being dried up by legalized gambling. Government support on the liquor trade than on education and religion, he added.

Will Spend $88 Million On Health

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Allan, reporting the Ontario government is pleased with the health program in place during the first 14 months of operation, said today the province will spend $88,100,000 in the coming year to further the scheme and aid other health measures.

The total would be an increase of $11,000,000, over the amount appropriated in the current fiscal year ending March 31.

Mr. Allan, presenting his budget, told members of the legislature the contributory hospital plan now covers 9 per cent of the province's 6,063,000 residents.

Under supplementary estimates to be tabled in the legislature at this session, the province would pay $15 per month for public general hospitals for rioting bed or capital acquisition or improvement. In addition, a number of hospitals with pressing financial problems would receive special grants-in-aid.

GRANTS BREAKDOWN

Some of the payments to be made, Mr. Allan gave this breakdown:

Special grants to public hospitals, $5,000,000; reimbursement of the provincial Hospital Service Commission for expenditures on mental health care, $900,000; Ontario Hospital Association, $100,000; Convalescent Children's Camp, Huntsville, $6,100; Hiabee Lodge, Cobourg, $4,800; Ontario Society for Crippled Children $48,000; Canadian Mothercraft Centre, Toronto, $4,000.

The Rock Memorial Sanatorium at London had been purchased by the province as a centre for examining retarded and emotionally-disturbed children. Building pace at the hospital school at Cedar Springs had been increased and it was expected that 600 beds—half of the planned accommodation—would be available by next autumn.

Mr. Allan said 500 beds have been added in the last year to alleviate crowded conditions in Ontario mental hospitals. "For the coming year approval of the legislature will be asked for a further acceleration . . . to include a 600-bed unit at London and a 500-bed hospital school in Northern Ontario."

In connection with World Refugee Year, Ontario was co-operating with the federal government in providing treatment for refugees who suffer from tuberculosis and would "continue to accept at least one-third of any refugee patients admitted to Canada."

The minister, without disclosing details, said the government would introduce a new program to encourage physical fitness. "No matter what height of industrial or economic growth we may attain, we shall never be genuinely prosperous if our people are not healthy and vigorous."

PREDICTS

teachers' and public service superannuation funds, $5,000,000 in special grants to public hospitals and $900,000 in reimbursement to the Ontario hospital services commission for expenditures in connection with mental health care.

The remainder goes in grants to the Ontario College of Art, the Royal Ontario Museum, the Ontario Heart Foundation, the Convalescent Children's Camp at Burlington, Ilsabee Lodge at Cobourg, the Ontario Society for Crippled Children and the Canadian Mothercraft Centre at Toronto.

Result of the year's operations was more favorable than had been predicted a year ago, Mr. Allan said, for two reasons—improvement in business with a resulting climb in tax revenues and "the exercise of tighter budgetary control which has produced significant savings."

OUTLAYS PARED

When a tight-money situation developed last summer, it was decided to pare non-urgent outlays. Ordinary expenditure was reduced by $12,500,000 below appropriations and net capital cut by $19,500,000.

Next year's surplus, the 18th in a row for the Conservative government, is based on estimated revenues of $770,538,000 and expenditures of $769,902,000.

On the capital side, Mr. Allan predicted gross receipts of $90,567,000 and payments of $200,567,000. These compare with $310,194,000 and $302,788,000 respectively this year. The estimates for 1959-60 were $106,471,000 in receipts and $323,964,000 in payments.

The general business upswing during the year just ending is indicated by a jump in corporations tax returns, the province's biggest revenue producer, to $173,000,000 from $155,000,000. Ontario's share of income tax under the rental agreement with Ottawa rose to $109,804,000 from $89,387,000.

Gasoline taxes, second only to corporation tax on the revenue side, rose $2,000,000 to $152,000,000.

For the coming year, Mr. Allan is banking on $190,000,000 from corporations tax and $115,000,000 from income tax rental. This is based on predicted economic expansion rather than adjustments in the present federal-provincial agreement, although Mr. Allan said Ontario will continue to press for a bigger slice of revenue now going to Ottawa.

LCBO PROFITS UP

Profits from the liquor control board, fourth on the revenue list, hit $16,100,000 in 1959-60 compared with $70,000,000 the previous year. They are forecast at $79,000,000 next year, the first full year in which tax increases announced last summer will be in effect.

For next year, education again heads the spending on ordinary account at $231,000,000, up more than $26,000,000. The health department will spend $92,000,000 against $90,000,000 and highways $75,500,000 compared with $89,000,000.

Highways will lead capital spending in 1960-61 at $176,000,000, down almost $3,000,000. Public works will take $44,000,000, virtually unchanged.

Mr. Allan noted that half the increase in next year's ordinary expenditure will go to education. At a pre-budget press conference he predicted education costs will surpass highways in over - all spending.

For the coming year, municipal aid will be increased $27,800,000 to $342,700,000, a 16-fold increase in the last 17 years while the province's own direct expenditures on services have increased by only 8½ times.

"In 1943-44, 19 per cent of the province's total expenditures were in support of local services. Today, over 38 per cent of our budget is being allocated for this purpose.

MUNICIPAL AID

"In terms of provincial revenue, the magnitude of our contribution is even more impressive. In 1943-44, our municipal aid programs absorbed less than 18 per cent of our revenue; now the proportion is 41 per cent."

Turning to federal-provincial relations, Mr. Allan assured the legislature the government has not changed the stand outlined in last year's budget—that it is not getting a fair share of tax revenues.

Ottawa now pays the provinces 13 per cent of federal rates of income tax and allows an abatement of nine percentage points of its 47-per-cent tax on corporation income to Ontario corporations on which the province levies an 11-per-cent tax.

While not spelling out what Ontario will seek at a Dominion-provincial fiscal conference scheduled for later this year, Mr. Allan said the province will claim "a just recognition of our rights and needs."

He concluded with this look at the future:

"If present trends continue there will be, at the end of 1970, 1,700,000 more people and half a million more motor vehicle registrations in Ontario. This spells more schools, universities, hospitals, waterworks, sewage treatment plants, electric power, highways and roads.

"No one can foresee precisely the dimensions of our public capital requirements, but we know they will be formidable."

Queen's Inaugurates 2-Yr. Business Course

KINGSTON — Dr. W. A. MacIntosh, Principal of Queen's University, announced today the inauguration in 1960 of a two year graduate program leading to the degree of Master of Business Administration. Graduates in arts, science and engineering are eligible for enrolment. The purpose of the course will be to prepare students for professional careers in business management and administration. In addition to the 2 year degree course, the new program will also include a one-year graduate diploma course.

The new program is part of a general expansion of the work of the School of Commerce and Business Administration which will assume the new name of School of Business, a title chosen to represent the enlarged scope of its activities. The expanded role of the School in business education will include the new M.B.A. course, the undergraduate B. Comm. course, the Executive Program, a program of business research and the professional courses for bankers, chartered accountants and trust officers. This expansion has been made possible by the completion of a large new building, Dunning Hall, which is equipped with modern facilities for case - discussion courses, executive seminars, lectures, study and film presentations.

Minors Drop Pair, Win One In Playdowns With Kingston

Belleville Minor Hockey Association teams divided two victories and lost an exhibition game with Kingston squads in the first round of the OMHA goals-to-count series here last night. The second round is scheduled for Kingston Saturday.

Belleville's highly-touted juveniles ran into a snag when they dropped a 9-2 decision to a Kingston team that would give a junior "B" squad a battle any time of the season.

The midgets had a decided edge on their Kingston counterparts, coming up with a well-deserved 6-3 victory.

The bantams were defeated 6-2 but up front were as good as the opposition. Weak goal keeping played a major part in their loss in the exhibition tilt.

JUVENILES

Paced by Tom Carty's three-goal effort, the Kingston juveniles had little trouble turning back their Belleville foemen.

Smartly coached, their passing near perfect and their bothway checking effective, the Kingston youngsters won going away. They turned on the heat from the opening face-off and never looked backward.

They scored four unanswered goals in the first period, outscored the homesters 3-1 in the second and fired home the odd goals in a three-way third-period splurge.

Besides Carty's fine performance, O'Donnell scored two, with Harkness, Jodoin, Brown and Tuttle getting singles for the winners.

Pete Weston and Hugh Pointer triggered the Belleville goals with John Dafoe and Bob Dafoe getting assists.

The game was a hard-hitting affair although only six penalties were handed out. Two of them were majors to Ball and Lewis of Belleville for fighting.

The Belleville team put up a gallant fight against their heavier opponents and were robbed of goals more than once by the fine work of Hordi in the Kingston nets.

Carty, Jodoin, Brown and O'Donnell scored for Kingston in the first period almost before the Belleville youngsters could get untracked.

Carty scored his second goal early in the second period, a minute ahead of Weston's first counter for Belleville. Tuttle got that one back for Kingston at 8.44 on a breakaway and Carty fired his hat-trick to end the period scoring.

Pointer took Dafoe's pass midway through the third to tack up the second Belleville tally but Kingston's Harkness and O'Donnell spelt each to score goals 8 and 9 for the winners.

The teams—Belleville: Dalmagic, Gazz, Duggan, Sheridan, Dahl, Pointer, Dafoe, Harvey, Goldsboro, Yore, McAuley, Weston, Kellar, Scott, Lewis, Bobby Duggan.

Kingston: Horst, Myles, Jarvis, Harkness, Carty, O'Donnell, Tuttle, Long, Jodoin, Tuley, Ball, Patry, Murphy, Brown, Curry.

Referees: Ted Hurst, Belleville; Whitey Watson, Kingston.

SUMMARY

First Period

Third Period

Belleville—Pointer (Dafoe) 12.35
Kingston—Harkness (Carty) 13.10
Kingston—O'Donnell (Carty) 17.16
Penalties: Myles (2), Ball (major), McGuire, Gelsthorpe, Lewis (major).

MIDGETS

Russ Soules' midgets, playing outstanding hockey, had a clear edge over their Kingston foemen, outplaying them in almost every department for their 6-3 victory.

They scored the only goal of the first period but Kingston tied the count midway through the second.

Belleville put on an offensive splurge that netted them three unanswered goals. Four minutes that put the clincher on their victory.

They added another in the third before Kingston reduced the margin, but scored their sixth counter with just three seconds to go.

Gary Duvall, playing outstanding hockey, accounting for two of the winners' goals with Bobby Boyle, Jerry Jones and Bob Jeffery getting the rest. Jay Kisser, Jim Muir and Jones each had two assists with Jerry Si. Denis, Duvall and Bob Ridley getting singles.

The third period roughened somewhat with nine of the game's eleven minor penalties being handed out.

Boyle put the winners ahead with the only goal of the opening period but Kingston's Lavalle came back in the second to knot the count. Duvall, Jones and Jeffery scored in succession to put the game on ice for the Belleville youngsters.

Duvall added his second marker in the third period before Earl skated in to reduce the lead to 5-2. Duvall scored his hat-trick as the clock was ticking the seconds away.

The teams — Kingston: Demmler, Mercer, Davis, Smith, La-Valle, Aylesworth, Martin, White, Reid, Cushman, Shuver, Earle, Dowdell, Clark, Vince.

Belleville — McBride Boyle, Roland, Turner, Kiser, St. Denis, Ridley, Duvall, Muir, Richards, Blakely, Jeffery, Adams, Fisher.

Kingston Earl (Dowdell, Morton) 15.05
Belleville Duvall (Muir-Kiser) 19.57
Penalties — Richards, St. Denis, LaValle, Stower, Jeffery, Smith, Adams, Rowland.

BANTAMS

The Belleville Bantams deserved a better fate and but for a weakness in goaltending in the first half of the game might have come out with a different score.

Kingston scored three in the first period to grab a 3-1 lead and fired home three more in the second before Belleville scored their second goal. David Hurst took over the nets after the sixth Kingston goal and blanked the visitors over the rest of the way.

There was no score in the rugged third period when the homesters had a decided edge but spilt ten penalties with Kingston. Six players were off in pairs including Marcia and Mercer who drew majors for fighting.

Mercer with two goals paced the Kingston kids with Douglas, Kenzie, Rowe and Bruce getting the others. Bruce had two assists and Stinson one.

Boyle, assisted by Leslie and Ethier scored one of the Belleville goals with McGuire getting the other unassisted.

KINGSTON — Stinson, Davey, Hoffstetder, Douglas, White, Irvin, Kearns, Sprott, Roe, Robertts, Bruce, Mercer, Percival, Harkness, Julian, Goodridge, Stinson.

HONEY IS NATURE'S PERFECT FOOD

Honey pops you up, helps you to sleep, and its kills germs, too! Hospitals use it for dressing wounds, bee-keepers live longer than the average, and a spoonful of honey in hot water is a sleep-inducing elightcap.

Honey is manufactured, but not by man! Bees sip the nectar of flowers, mix it with their own salivary juices, and evaporate all the surplus water. When it is ripe, the seals it in cells, and there it is safe for 1000 years, sure food for all time. Germs cannot live in pure honey for the bees put the water on whichthey live. It is truly Nature's perfect food.

The honey-comb is the perfect package, too. Man has never been able to design a better or more economical use of the space. Instead, he has learned from the bee, and adapted its six-sided cell into many of his building designs, because of its strength and arrangement. So the bee not only gives us a perfect food, but a near-perfect packing material as well.

But man has invented many other packing materials, each for its own purpose. One of these is the "Kleen-Pack" material used by Fox Cartage and Storage Ltd., who were the first people to introduce it in Eastern Canada. It is a soft, spongy, papery sheet, far better than newsprint, excelsior, or any other old style packing materials, and it leaves no litter behind.

Couple this wonderful "Kleen-Pack" method with the skill and experience of trained packers, and you'll see why no family need try to do its own moving. You should use Fox methods at Fox very reasonable charges.

Giant 92-Pound BC Salmon Smashes Fish Contest Mark

NEW YORK (CP) — Salmon from Canada's coasts took the spotlight in Field and Stream magazine's 1959 fishing contest. A giant Chinook smashed a record of 49 years' standing.

The new Chinook king is Heinz Wichman of Terrace, B.C., with a 92-pounder caught last July 18 in the Skeena River of British Columbia on a krocodile lure.

The authoritative outdoor magazine, which compiles fresh-water game fish records, announces the first instalment of last year's contest results in its March issue.

Biggest Atlantic salmon was a bruiser from New Brunswick's Restigouche which weighed an even 50 pounds. The record of 79 pounds is held in Norway.

Ontario in a notable achievement shared first place for small-mouth bass.

The top brook trout in the open division — for those caught by methods other than fly-fishing — was caught with spinning gear and the reliable dardevle lure. The big one of 10 lb., 8 oz. took hold in Batument Lake, near St. Jovite, 85 miles northwest of Montreal.

Biggest fly-caught brook trout weighed 8 lb., 1 oz. and was caught by D. B. Roesner of Fullerton, Calif., in Gods River, about 350 miles north of Winnipeg, on a fly he tied himself.

Three other fish in the open division surpassed Roesner's. There were two of 9½ pounds including one caught by Thomas McCormick of North Bay at Blue Lake in Northern Ontario's Chapleau district.

Fish of 50½ and 50 lb., 1 oz., respectively from Gods Lake, Man., topped the lake trout division.

LIVE FROG BAIT

Mack J. Smileszny's 8½-pound Ontario beauty shared the small-mouth lead, usually taken by the southern states, with one caught by Joseph E. Zebrowski in Massachusetts' Forest Lake. Smileszny of Toledo, Ohio, took his on a live frog in Ontario's Three Trails Lake, 20 miles north of North Bay.

In eastern rainbows, Canada placed fourth in the open division with an 11¼-pounder caught by Richard Matsumoto of Toronto in the Nottawasaga River, flowing into the southern Georgian Bay resort area.

No Canadian brown trout or largemouth bass got into the standings. Other prizes included:

On the Track

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Victoria Park was a 9-to-5 favorite today to win Saturday's $100,000-added Flamingo Stakes regardless of who rides the pigeon-toed Cathian colt in the mile and a furlong feature.

Trainer Horatio Luro said there was a strong possibility that Eric Guerin, 35-year-old jockey who rode Jet Pilot in the 1947 Kentucky Derby, will be on Victoria Park in the first big test for derby-age colts this year.

"Victoria Park is an easy colt to ride—it's like driving a Cadillac," said Luro.

Final word on Victoria Park's ride will come from E. P. Taylor, master of Windfields Farm in Toronto and president of the Canadian Jockey Club. Taylor was in Toronto and could not be reached.

Victoria Park, a son of Chop Chop out of Victoriana, was up for sale as a yearling in the fall of 1958 for $12,500 but horsemen took a look at his pigeon toes and passed him up.

Victoria Park won the Coronation Futurity and Cup and Saucer, Canada's Big races for juvenile, last year and took the Remsen Stakes at Aqueduct in November.

Last Saturday at Hialeah he clipped one and 4-5 seconds off the track record for 1 1-16 miles, tying Bally Ache, Greek Page and other Flamingo hopefuls.

Lange and Fetter Open Ford Agency in City

"For A Deal That's Better-See Lange and Fetter!"

This is the motto on which the Lange and Fetter Ford dealership at Trenton has been built. And it is still the firm motto with their recent opening of a branch agency on North Front Street from which to serve Belleville and area.

It was just seven years ago that Yagn H. Lange and John Fetter, both fresh from Toronto, started in business together with the opening of their Ford agency in Trenton. They were new to the automotive business but the success of their enterprise has been proven by volume of business and their recent taking over of the Ford agency at Belleville.

Now operating from the former Duffy service station on North Front Street, Lange and Fetter already are looking toward expansion and their long range plans call for erection of a new showroom, complete with sales and service facilities.

In the meantime the firm has complete service facilities at its Trenton plant to supplement the present limited facilities at Belleville.

Lange and Fetter handles Ford, Monarch and Falcon products, together with Anglia, Prefect, Consul, Zephr, Zodiac and Ford and Thames trucks. In addition to light and medium trucks sold by all Ford dealers, Lange and Fetter also handle heavy models.

Although head office is at Trenton, firm officials are just as near as the telephone for Belleville customers. They have a direct telephone, through to Trenton, Woodland 2-5586.

A native of Alberta, Mr. Lange is a five-year member of Trenton town council. Mr. Fetter hails from Windsor and was formerly in the publication field. So far he has not become active in municipal life although at one time was a member of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce.

A third member of Lange and Fetter is Ray Locke, general manager of the firm. Ray comes from the Trent Valley town of Campbellford and brings with him a wealth of managerial and selling experience.

Open Seasons For Trout Are Announced

The 1960 open season for lake trout commences Tuesday, March 1st in the Counties of Hastings, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac, the Department of Lands and Forests has announced.

Speckled, rainbow (Kamloops) and brown trout season opens this year on Saturday, April 30th.

Lake trout anglers who venture out on the ice March 1st should use caution when using vehicles for transportation because of the poor ice quality on some lakes this year.

Some Tweed district lake, this year had up to ten inches of slush beneath the snow cover and through freezing and thawing at intervals, formed granular ice that may not carry the weight of a vehicle.

Canada, USA Battle Could Be Olympics Key Match

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Has Wren Blair, ebullient hockey mentor of the Whitby Dunlops, Clinton Comets and official looker-over the Canadiens' farm system, been relieved of his job as "co-ordinator" of the Kitchener Dutchmen Olympics squad?

A story from Squaw Valley: hints that all is not well between the blonde bludgeon from Whitby, Manager Ernie Gelman and Coach Bobby Bauer of the Dutchmen.

It says that Blair has not been on the Canadians' bench since the Canada-Sweden game "when an onlooker would have difficulty determining who was running the team."

It goes on to say that a subsequent meeting between the three (Blair, Geman and Bauer), resulted in the decision that the presence of Blair on the bench tended to divide the coaching leadership. Blair agreed to stay off the bench while he did during the games with Japan and Germany.

It was stated Blair has received word from his Clinton team that all was not well and he was needed immediately. The Whitby boss is quoted as saying: "This Canadian team is in good shape and in good hands. Everybody is getting along, pulling together. There's nothing more I can do here."

It was also stated that the CAHA past president Bill LaBel chided Blair (after the three-way meeting) "for his argumentative attitude, and that of some of the Canadian players.

Blair, the story said, was trying to make some arrangements with his Clinton club, but "functionally had had nothing to do with the Dutchmen since last Friday."

"Co-ordinate," the dictionary says, "is to function harmoniously." By that standard Blair is the best little co-ordinator extant in hockey circles. His record with his Allan Cup world champion Dunlops proves that.

When his team is playing, it is as natural for Blair to bellow, blare and burp as lardie is to wallow. He will elephant in a jungle battle during mating season. One winter he ruined six hats by merely tossing them on the play-box floor and grinding them underfoot.

And if his diserciations from the bench have no effect, the little guy with the blonde bewsprit delivers a dressing room oration that cuts the paint on the walls. He is a three competitor, a fighter from the first whistle who brooks no defeat until the siren shrills game end.

From the scoring records of the Dutchmen to date, there is little co-ordination needed in the club. If there is, it is within the Dutchmen membership. The "imports," including four from Whitby, have carried the brunt of the scoring chores.

The Dutchmen, the CAHA and the rest of the badgers would do well to retain Blair and have him within shouting distance, if not on the bench. The most important games of the Olympics tournament are in the offing, especially the big one with Russia on Sunday.

And speaking of that, any of the 1958 world champion Dunlops will tell you the job Blair did in maintaining their morale from the bench early in the Russian game when the score was tied two-all with four minutes to go and the world title was anybody's baby." The little man prayed, exhorted and screamed encouragement to his players—and you know what happened. They went out there and scored two goals to win the coveted world title.

This column was written yesterday afternoon, long before the Canada-Czech game was under way.

Regardless of that—the pressure is on. And it will increase as the games with the United States, Sweden and Russia approach.

There is a possibility, but not the probability, the Dutchmen might crack under the strain. If they do "Dr." Blair will be a mighty handy guy to have around. If he cannot put them back upstairs nobody in "Squawk Valley", or anywhere for that matter can do the job.

We do not believe for a minute. Blair is "glory-seeking" or trying to take the victory blanket from Gelman and Bauer. He is doing what comes naturally. His goal is an Olympics title for Canada. And he will give everything he has to that end.

If the powers-that-be want to keep Blair off the bench, so be it, but it would be a mighty fine idea to have the little firecracker within hailing distance—just in case.

LATER—A news despatch today said Blair has left the Dutchmen and is headed east and home.

Jim Howell Quits as Giants' Coach

NEW YORK (AP) — Plagued by tensions of his own creation, 45-year-old Jim Lee Howell decided Wednesday to quit as coach of the New York Giants at the end of the 1956 National Football League season.

His announcement came at a press luncheon for new NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Howell said he would serve out the last year of a five-year contract in 1960 and then take a new position as director of player personnel for the Giants. He said he had been considering retirement for several years, but wanted to go out a winner.

The Giants have won the NFL's eastern title for the past two years, only to lose to Baltimore in the championship playoff.

Howell explained: "Going down in defeat was becoming more and more unbearable every year."

UP TO 16 TEAMS

Rozelle said he has found a strong sentiment in the NFL for 27, will be back for his sixth seaeventual expansion to 16 teams. son while Del Wachsig, 23, will He said the expansion could be playing for the first time.

take place as early as 1962, but probably would be deferred a year or so.

There has been no serious discussion of the cities to be added, Rozelle said, though owner George Marshall of the Washington Redskins has suggested Montreal and Toronto as possibilities.

Mickey Mantle Still Holdout

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Mickey Mantle is standing pat in a quiet tug-of-war over contract terms with New York Yankees.

He may be a holdout this season for the first time in his baseball career, the slugging Yankee outfielder said Wednesday night.

The word among baseball men was that the Yankees propose to pay Mantle $18,000 less than the $75,000 he drew last season.

Dutchmen Blank Czechs 4-0, Americans Down Germans; Swedes 2-2 Tie Shocks Russ

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP) — Canada and the United States meet today in a game that suddenly has jumped into prominence as the potentially key match of the 1960 Winter Olympics' hockey tournament.

The two North American teams, only unbeaten and united squad in the tournament, face each other at 6:30 p.m. EST.

Canada maintained its victorious pace Wednesday night with its second consecutive shutout, a 4-0 win over a fighting Czechoslovakian team.

The U.S. had chalked up its second win in as many starts a few hours earlier, a 9-1 rout of Germany. In Wednesday's other championship game, Sweden shocked the experts by battling the defending titlists, Russia, to a 2-2 tie.

Canada started the championship round with a 13-0 win over Germany and the U.S. won its first game, against Sweden, 6-3.

Whoever wins in the all-North American match today will have undisputed possession of first place in the round-robin series, although both clubs still have to face Russia. The Americans play the Russians Saturday and the Canadians meet them Sunday.

DEFENSIVE REVERSED

The powerful showing of the U.S. entry has caused some revision of pre-tournament estimates.

The U.S. had been rated the third or fourth-place club, but now American rooters are hoping they can pick up at least the silver, medal for second place, and perhaps beat out Canada, favored for the gold medal.

Jack Riley, coach of the U.S. team, was quietly confident his boys can do it.

"You can't tell about a hockey game on any given day, and I figure we can beat Canada," he said. "We might have to be lucky, but we can do it."

Ernie Gelman, manager of Canada's Kitchener-Waterloo entry, meanwhile was warning his players against getting overconfident.

MUST GO FULL OUT

"We've got to figure every game as tough and not let up," he warned. "The minute we do we're in trouble."

The championship will be decided on the won-lost record alone, and Sweden has played two others once. In the event of identical records, the team with the best goals average will take the gold medal.

On this basis, Canada has a definite edge. Canada is 16-0 after two games; the U.S. 15-4. Russia's goals record after two games is 10-1.

Wren Blair, who joined Canada's entry as team co-ordinator, wasn't happy with Canada's performance against Czechoslovakia.

"We'll never beat the Russians if we play this way," he said. "The Russians will look after us if we don't show improvement, but we'll be okay."

STOPPER BLANKED

Canada's leading scorers, Fred Etcher and Bob Attersley of Whitby, were shut out Wednesday night. Left winger Floyd (Butch) Martin scored twice and Darryl Sly and George Samolenko got one each.

The star for Canada was goalie Don Head, added to the Olympic crew from Windsor Bulldogs. He turned aside a total of 38 shots—16 in each of the last two periods—and was particularly outstanding in the third heat when the Czechs outskated the Canadians. Canada put the game away in the first period with three goals, and finished the scoring midway through the second.

Swedes, play without team captain Lasse Bjorn, who broke two ribs in a game against Canada in an earlier round—held the Russian club off the score sheet until the third period.

Nils Nilsson scored both Swedish goals, the first early in the third to give Sweden a shortlived lead, and the second at 18:32 to tie the score after Russia had counted two quick goals.

Konstantin Loktev and Vesmin Aleksandrov tallied for Russia. Loktev got his goal while Sweden had a man in the penalty box.

CLEARY LEADS U.S.

Veteran Bill Cleary paced the U.S. attack on Germany, scoring four goals and picking up two assists. Cleary, who used to play for Harvard University and now sells insurance in Boston, scored three of his goals on unassisted rushes.

Johnny Mayasich, former star with University of Minnesota, scored two goals to help the rookie Americans hand-fought tie with Russia cost the services of assist-prone player, Cowboy Elmer Graham cracked a rib in the first period, forcing the Swedes to finish the game with only two centres.

Reigle, who once played in the National Hockey League, said his team still has a chance for first championship, although it has only a tie in two games.

"But we've got the team on the right track," he said.

North Ontario Wins Ladies Curling Title

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Northwestern Ontario Wednesday night won the Ontario ladies curling championship by defeating Southern Ontario 14-6 in a sudden-death match necessitated by a tie after Wednesday's third round.

Elsie Everyard's Port Arthur rink led all the way against the Huntsville rink skipped by Vera Hammond. The score was 5-0 after three ends, 6-2 after six and 11-4 after nine. Mrs. Armstrong conceded the match after the 10th end.

Huntsville forced the sudden-death playoff by defeating Port Arthur 11-10 in a five - round match. Both rinks had two wins and one loss after three rounds of play.

The other two divisional champions — Eastern Ontario and Northern Ontario — ended the third round with one win and two losses each.

The Port Arthur rink now advances to the Eastern Canadian finals in Oshawa next month. The winner of that round will play off against the Western titleholders in the first national event of its kind.

The Western champions will be determined at Victoria March 12.

In a third-round match Eastern Ontario, skipped by Jessie Dorinsky of Ottawa, defeated Vi Farmer's North Bay rink, representing Northern Ontario, 12-10.

Twenty Million TV Deal for Major Leagues

BELLEAIRE, Fla. (CP)—Baseball commissioner Ford Frick announced Wednesday a new $20,000,000 deal for television-radio rights for the world series and all star games.

The agreement with the National Broadcasting Company and the sponsor represents a yearly increase of $500,000 and also includes a provision for inclusion of the Continental League, the proposed third major league.

The old agreement, scheduled to run through the 1956 baseball season, paid $3,250,000 a year. Sixty per cent went to the players pension fund, 40 per cent to the 16 clubs.

Under the new terms, players will receive an additional $250,000 this season and after the 1961 series, each club will receive an additional $500,000 for each of the next five years.

Total payments for the radio-rights will amount to $3,750,000 a year.

The 60-40 player - owner split will be retained.

NBC also purchased an option covering any second all - star game played through 1966 at a cost of $250,000.

Speed Skaters Win 3 Medals, Austria Takes Ski Honors; Canada Figure Skater Stars

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP) — Canada's Petkevich, a 19-year-old youngster with a determined will to win, was among the leaders today in the final phase of the compulsory school figures in men's figure skating at the Winter Olympics and Russia, the unofficial champion in total points, was favored to win its eighth gold medal of the games and far surpass the 121-point total it set in 1956.

In the championship hockey tournament, Sweden's resounding upset tie with Russia's defending champions reshaped the standings to tie the eighth, Winter Games, which ends Sunday, into a two-walk-away, and pointed up tonight's match between the two beaten and untied countries, Canada and the United States (6:30 p.m.).

Canada whaled Czechoslovakia 4-0 Wednesday night for its second straight shutout victory while the Americans trounced Germany 9-1. Sweden, stiffled with Hayfever, held the Russians to a 2-2 tie.

It was the first time in Olympic competition that the Soviet hockey team had to settle for less than a win. It went unbeaten four years ago, whipping both Canada and the United States.

CLOSE FOURTH

In figure skating, Jackson, a 19-year-old student from Oshawa, was a close fourth after the first three of five compulsory figures Wednesday, behind Karol Divin of Czechoslovakia, Alain Giletti of France and David Jenkins of the United States in that order.

Two more figures today complete the compulsory figures, which count for 60 per cent of the overall judging. The free skating, in which Jackson excels, is Friday with the battle for the gold medal expected to be between Jackson and Jenkins.

At the end of three figures Divin had 415 points; Giletti 402; Jenkins 400.2; Jackson 399.7; Thomas Brown of the U.S., 389.9, and Robert Brewer, U.S., 380.5.

The other competing Canadian, Donald McPherson of Stratford, was 13th with 364.0.

Two championship events were on tap today—the men's three-metre (3¼-mile) speed skating and the men's 40-kilometre (24.85-mile) cross-country relay race. In the speed skating, Canada has Larry Mason of Calgary and Ralph Olin of Edmonton while no Canadians are entered in the cross-country.

HUGE LEAD

Russia's one-three placing in the 500-metre men's speed skating Wednesday made its unofficial points total 120. Germany has 59½, the U.S. 44, Norway 39, Sweden with 38, then Austria 30, Switzerland 25, Finland 20, Japan 19, Italy 19½, Italy 13½, Canada 13 and Poland 12. Points are on a 10-5-4-3-2-1 for the first six placings.

World champion Eugeni Grishin, despite a slip, brought Russia her fourth gold medal in speed skating by winning the 500 metres (568.8 yards). The 26-year-old Russian Army lieutenant's time was 40.2 seconds, the same as the world standard he set at Lake Misurina, Italy in 1959.

Bill Disney of the United States was second with 40.3 while Russia's Rafael Grach took the bronze medal in 40.4.

Johnny Sands of Montreal was 27th with 42.8. Ralph Olin, Edmonton, placed 30th in 43.1 and Larry Mason, Calgary, was timed in 44.2 for 41st place.

Ernst Hinterseer, a 26-year-old Austrian farmer and veteran racer, won the men's slalom to restore some of Austria's pre-game hopes in skiing. Countryman Max Leitner was second.

MAKE TWO SUNS

Hinterseer's time for the two runs of the tricky down course was two minutes, 9.9 seconds. Leitner had a total of 2:10.3 and Charles Bonon of France captured the bronze medal in 2:10.4.

Of who 87 started, 13 failed to finish, including Swiss star Roger Staub, the gold medallist in the giant slalom, and Willy Bogner of Germany, who led after the first heat.

Verne Anderson of Rossland, B.C., was 34th, Don Brunesti of Rossland was 38th, Fred Tommy of Ottawa 34th and Jean - Guy Brunet, Ottawa, was 44th.

Guy Perillat, a Frenchman who won the gold in the giant slalom, sixth place in 2:11.8 and thereby sewed up the unofficial world championship title. He had a third in the downhill and a sixth in the giant slalom.

Napanee Wins Over Lightfoots By 68-52 Score

Led by Mike Church and Al McAllister with 23 and 16 points respectively, Napanee Tuesday night defeated the Lightfoots 68-52 in the final game played at the Napanee Collegiate.

The Napanee took a first quarter lead of 17-6 and maintained the lead until midway through the third quarter when the Lightfoots moved ahead 33-32.

Tapped in the last quarter took complete command, outplaying and outscoring the Lightfoots 36-20 to win the balance of the game to coast to a well deserved victory.

John Rodgers with 17 points was high scorer for the Lightfoot team followed by Farnsworth with 12 points. Mowers chipped in with 10.

Hockey Patter

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP) — There was no end in the Canadian hockey camp Wednesday night as the big row in the Winter Olympic hockey contingent split the United States.

"I'm not satisfied with the team," said Coach Jack Riley of coach Bobby Bauer after Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen locked goalies in the back of a 4-0 victory over Czechoslovakia Wednesday night.

"They didn't have the fire."

"They'll never beat the Russians if they continue to play that way," said Vern Kelly, team coordinator who watched from the stands.

One interested spectator, who had reason to cry the blues but who was cheerful and smiling, was Russian coach Arkadi Chernyshov. A few minutes earlier his defending champions were held to a heart-stopping 2-2 tie by Sweden, placing Russia one point behind Canada and the U.S. in the six-country round-robin tournament after two games.

"Everything is normal," beamed Chernyshov, a retired Tarzan who coached the Russians to the Olympic title in 1956.

"We didn't play too well, but it is not necessary for us to play well every day," he added explained. "Everything will be okay on Sunday when we meet Canada for the title."

Tarasov apparently was counting out the Americans who have been freely predicting they'll beat Canada in the season's windup day. The Americans plastered Germany 9-1 on Wednesday in other game and looked fairly impressive.

"That's the kind of talk we like to hear," Bauer said when told of Tarasov's boast. Bauer added Riley: But that was before Canada's game which failed to ease the misery in the small crowd of 1,500.

The Canadian-Czech match was a rough, tough and tumble Russia-Sweden match that had the near-capacity crowd of 1,500 on its feet almost throughout the 60 minutes.

The indoor arena became a madhouse when the battling Swedes tied it up with less than three minutes remaining.

"I didn't see our tying goal," said Canadian born coach Arne Reigle of the Swedish team. "The only thing I saw was the red light go on," he said. Reigle, who has coached in Sweden the last three years, formerly played with Oshawa Juniors and for 11 years was a professional in the American Hockey League with Cleveland and Hershey.

The Big Seven

Whitby Clinches Top Spot By Downing McFarlands 5-2; Penalties Play Major Role

By GARRY ALEXANDER

WHITBY — Whitby Dunlops clinched the OHA Senior "A" hockey league pennant before a handful of fans here last night with a deflating drive that carried them to a 5-2 victory over the cellar-dwelling Belleville McFarlands.

The Dunnies scored three goals in the final ten minutes of the game to subdue the wire in an evenly contested and hard-fought battle. It was a 1-0 game in Whitby's favour after one period and 2-1 for the victors at the end of the second. The Macs tied the score early in the third but penalties proved costly as Whitby potted a pair while enjoying the extra man in the last half of the period.

The rugged schedule will wind up Sunday, but the Macs have no more games remaining, that at home against Windsor on Friday night. The loop's other remaining games pit Whitby against Windsor on Friday night and against Windsor in a home and home set Saturday and Sunday.

A round-robin playoff series will commence next Tuesday with Sheffield visiting Whitby. The second game will be back here against the same opponents the following night, Wednesday, March 3.

Last night's tilt was a ragged one from the opening whistle and when it was over referee Stan Hooker had called out 21 penalties in all, Belleville picking up 12 and one to that number. All penalties were of the two minute variety except a couple assessed to Ken Solly and Jim Harrison. Chaszewski got a misconduct and Whitby's Jim Minner penalty to teammate Lou Smrke at 10.13 of the third and when he conducted Hooker had called out 21 penalties in all, Belleville picking up 12 and one to that number. All penalties were of the two minute variety except a couple assessed to Ken Solly and Jim Harrison. Chaszewski got a misconduct and Whitby's Jim Minner penalty to teammate Lou Smrke at 10.13 of the third and when he conducted Hooker had called out 21 penalties in all, Belleville picking up 12 and one to that number. All penalties were of the two minute variety except a couple assessed to Ken Solly and Jim Harrison. Chaszewski got a misconduct and Whitby's Jim Minner penalty to teammate Lou Smrke at 10.13 of the third and when he conducted

Ten seconds later, with Smrke in the penalty box and Chaszewski in the dressing room, Ralph Hosking scored the tie-breaking goal with a blistering drive from just inside the blueline. That made it 3-2.

Earlier in the period another Whitby goal had been nullified by the Macs tie it at 2-2. Treen drew a penalty in the early part of the period and Whitby's Jim Gendron was the culprit. Ken Gribbon' fanned on passes and whipped a short backhander past goalie Jack Jones' 20th goal of the campaign, allowing him to join Hildebrand, Brown, Smrke and Treen with the charmed circle.

Sandy Air with a goal and two assists and Ken Hassard with three assists were the only players who collected more than one point. Donc Brodie, Pete Babando, Ralph Hosking and Jack Kane had the other Whitby goals. Defencemen Ted O'Connor, Don Smrke and Ken Gribbon drew assists.

Whitey Youngberg and Jones were the Belleville snipers. Single assists went to Floyd Hillyard, Bert Bradley and Leroy Gribbons. Denis Boucher was dismissed from the lineup last night because of illness but it is expected he will be back in action Friday. The Hildebrand's are having shoulder separation hopes to be back in the Belleville lineup next week.

Whitby had a wide edge in play in the opening period but the excellent work of Bob Senior kept Belleville in the game. They came up with one of his best efforts of the season in the third. He robbed the Dunlops left and right while John Henderson at the other end also made many key saves although he had much less to do than his counterpart. Brodie's low shot from close-in at 15.24 was the only first-period scoring play.

The second period, probably the fastest heat of the game, saw some outstanding work by both goalies. Whitby's Brodie made it 2-0 at 15.31. Just over two minutes later Youngberg took Crawford's pass, stickhandled nicely inside the Dunlop zone before beating Henderson with a low slider to the stick side. None of the penalties, to McBeth at 40, Treen at 3.41 and Bolty at 10.35 figured in the period scoring and it ended 2-1.

Then in the third came Jones' equalizer, the penalties and Hosking's winner. Brodie was thumbed for roughing at 13.27 but the Macs could not take advantage of the extra manpower. However with Gribbon sitting for 'fooling' shortly after Kane sunk a backhander for the 4-2 score. The sides were even when Babando completed the scoring at 17.10.

Tempers threatened to flare on numerous occasions. Smrke and Babando had to be kept apart but received no penalties at that. Williams and Smrke clashed with high sticks and drew minors with one minute left to play.

Hockey Hints

By Lloyd Percival
WHEN TO "DEKE"

Whether to shoot or go in and "deke" the goal past the goalkeeper is often a problem. Generally, it is better to shoot. However, there are times when the odds favour going in.

Goalie Howe solves this problem by "deking" any time he is closer than eight or nine feet to the goal or if the goalkeeper has come out a little too far to block a possible shot.

When you get close to the goalkeeper, the odds are that a shot will fail because the angles will be covered. When you find yourself close, a good idea is to fake a shot to slithen the goalkeeper and then deke over the puck, come out and around him. If his legs are open or he is down on the ice a shot is effective low if he is on his feet and moving in to you, try to carry it around him.

When your chance comes — keep cool.

Leafs Upset Canadiens 3-1 As Wings Slip Into 3rd Spot After 2-2 Tie With Rangers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The brilliant clutch play of goalie Terry Sawchuk enabled Detroit Red Wings to slip into third place in the National Hockey League Wednesday night. Sawchuk held the surging New York Rangers scoreless in the third period as New York to salvage a 2-2 tie for Detroit.

In a hard-checking battle at Toronto, the Maple Leafs consolidated their second-place position with a 3-1 upset of leading Montreal Canadiens.

In the NHL's tight middle positions, Detroit now has a one-point lead over fourth-place Chicago Black Hawks. Boston Bruins are in fifth place with 54 points, two behind Chicago.

The Rangers, with 40 points and 11 games remaining, still have a slight chance of making the playoffs.

Simon Nemy goalie Al Rollins joined the club from Winnipeg last Saturday, the Rangers have played two games and two goalies played another good game for New York. Gump Worsley and Sawchuk made 29 saves.

Toronto, checking fiercely, bottled the Montreal power play and were ahead 3-0 before Andre Pronovost scored Montreal's only goal in the third period.

Ron Stewart, Bob Pulford and Allan Stanley tallied for Toronto. Centre Pulford got his first goal and was outstanding as a penalty-killer. Tommy was shorthanded when he scored. He was still being treated Wednesday for a back injury suffered last Saturday against Chicago.

Leafs goalie Johnny Bower and Montreal's Jacques Plante both made 24 saves to the penalty-filled game. Toronto took nine minors and a major, Montreal six minors and two majors.

Sawchuk's sometimes spectacular net-work was best in the final frame, when he stopped 12 New York drives. He picked up a 20-minute misconduct penalty in the second period for heatedly protesting defenceman John Hanna's tying goal. Sawchuk said Hanna was in the crease when he scored.

Alex Delvecchio gave Wings a first period lead but Pulford and Ilis with a screened shot. Harry Howell tied it for Rangers.

NBC's Star Parade Special Was Most Entertaining Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—When just about every show that is not a western or situation comedy is referred to as a special, it was pleasant Wednesday night to see a real one. It was special because of its performers—none of them familiar on the guest star circuit.

The special was NBC's Star Parade, and its format gave Beatrice Lillie, Cyril Ritchard, Tammy Grimes and Tony Randall opportunities to clown, untethered and unrestrained by the usual supervision of a host or hostess.

Miss Lillie sparkled in a couple of typical Lillie numbers, The elegant Mr. Ritchard had the dexterity to kid a comedy—around the World in 80 Days—and even pulled it off. Tammi Grimes had a charming singing manner, and Randall, that performing jack-of-all-trades, engaged in a series of satiric blackouts, all very witty.

Earlier, CBS' Playhouse 90 presented a well-acted drama which posed an insoluble problem. The question: May evil means be used to good ends?

Van Heflin played a French captain in Algeria who must decide whether to torture a 15-year old boy if it is the only way information may be obtained to stop more murders and atrocities by rebel leaders. Reginald Rose's drama struggled with the question but never came to grips with any real answer.

The rumor is that the Alfred Hitchcock show will take over half the Tuesday night Startime hour when its moves to NBC next season. The sponsor will be an automobile company reported dissatisfied with the Startime costs and ratings.

The first of a new NBC mystery series will be The Bat, a 1920 Broadway play adapted from the Mary Roberts Rinehart's The Circular Staircase. It is scheduled for March 31 and will star Helen Hayes and Jason Robards, Jr.

Maria Schell will have Greta Garbo's role in ABC's April 20 filmed adaptation of Nitoctka.

Will Honor Pair Champions

TORONTO (CP) — Barbara Wagner and Robert Paul, Canada's gold medallists in the Olympic pairs figure skating championships, will be honored with a ticker-tape parade, a city hall reception and a banquet March 7, board of control decided Wednesday.

"The youngsters have brought fame to Toronto," said Mayor Nathan Phillips. "We should give them a reception worthy of them."

Miss Wagner, 21, and Paul, 22, won the pairs title last Friday at Squaw Valley, Calif. They are the first North American couple to win a gold medal for this event. Their smooth they were named Canada's outstanding athletes of 1959.

Indians Whip Buffalo 6-4

BUFFALO (CP)—Bill Sweeney scored three second-period goals and added an assist Wednesday night to squelch Buffalo Bisons' expectation of taking over second place in the American Hockey League.

The 6-4 loss leaves Buffalo behind Providence Reds by 1 point while Sweeney's league - leading Springfield Indians coast along 12 points ahead of Providence.

Seven goals were scored in 10 minutes of the second and Sweeney got his three in less than seven minutes.

Bill Gadsby, Parker MacDonald and Brian Kilrea got the other Springfield goals. Danny Lewicki, Phil Maloney, Billy Dea and Dick Gamble scored for Buffalo.

FIND MORE MINE VICTIMS

BERGLEN (AP) — Four more bodies were recovered today from the fire-filled Karl Marx coal mine in East Germany and almost no hope was held for 75 miners still trapped. A gas explosion touched off a fire while 172 men were working 3,520 feet underground Monday. Fifty - one miners were dragged out alive but two died later. With the removal of the four bodies today the known dead rose to 43.

Hull Defeats Kingston 6-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hull - Ottawa Canadiens, with three injured players back in action, clinched out of last place in the Eastern Professional Hockey League Wednesday night, whipping Kingston Frontenacs 6-3.

The Habs now are a point ahead of Frontenacs and a point behind fourth - place Trois-Rivieres Lions.

Sammy Pollock, Hull - Ottawa coach, said before the game his team was over the "hump," working into good shape physically in a few weeks, and strengthened by the return to full-time duty of Chuck Hamilton, Jean-Claude Tremblay and Frank Chirelli.

Hull-Ottawa took a 3-0 first-period lead, and though Kingston tied the game in the first 10 minutes of the second period, the visiting Canadiens got two more goals before the period ended.

TWO FOR ELLETT

Bob Ellett led the Habs with two goals, and singles were fired by G. E. Tremblay, Bert Gourcy, Gilles Tremblay and defencemen Jean Gauthier. Frontenac goals were by Willie O'Ree, Reg Fleming and Red Ouellette.

Gourcy now is alone in third place in the goal scoring with 35 goals. He had previously been tied with teammate Bill Carter.

A minor fracas developed in the second period after Canadiens' Johnny Annable got a 10-minute misconduct for argument with a linesman about a face-off.

Seconds later Kingston scored their third goal, and Annable shouted something to referee John Ashley which earned him a game misconduct.

Tiger Rallies To Verdict Ace Armstrong

CHICAGO (AP)—Nigerian Dick Tiger, British Empire middleweight champion, rallied late to take a unanimous 10-round decision from favored Ace Armstrong in the Chicago Stadium Wednesday night.

Although all three officials voted for Tiger, No. 8 ranked middleweight, the televised bout was close all the way and Tiger's spirited last-round attack won the title.

Last Sept. 2, Tiger won a 10-round decision over Armstrong in Camden, N.J., for Armstrong's only previous loss.

There were no knockdowns, but Tiger bled from cuts over his left eye from his nose and from his lip.

Referee Walt Brightmore voted for Tiger 49-43, while judge Bill Doty called it for the British scrapper 47-44 and judge John Schreiner saw it for Tiger 47-45. Tiger, 30, weighed 160½ and Armstrong 159½.

FLOODS HIT CEYLON

COLOMBO, Ceylon (Reuters)—A father and young son were drowned in a rain-swollen stream in north central Ceylon Wednesday and 2,000 persons were forced out of their homes by floods following heavy rains in the eastern part of the island, reports reaching here said.

American Indian Is Getting Bum Break From Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Is the American Indian getting a bum break from Hollywood? Nineteen tribal chiefs think so, and so does today's most successful screen Indian.

Recently 19 chiefs of Oklahoma tribes sent a letter to President Eisenhower and other high officials decrying the way Indians are portrayed by the film-makers. They drew hearty support from Michael Ansara.

Mike is no more Indian than comedian Danny Thomas. Like Danny, his forebears came from the tiny country of Lebanon. But his broad face and big build made him ideal for Indian roles. Now he's starring as the full-blooded Indian who is U.S. marshal in the TV series, Law of the Plains, man.

TREATED BADLY

Says Ansara: "I agree that the Indians have been treated badly in movies and TV, just as they were treated badly in history.

"With the advent of the western film the Indian became stereotyped as the villain. I think it's wrong.

I even object to the childhood game of cowboys and Indians, because it means the Indians are automatically the villains."

Ansara agrees with the Oklahoma chiefs in their proposal that the way to counteract the libels against the Indians is to present a TV series depicting their way of life.

"I would like to see a series that would deal with the Indians as human beings," said the actor. "It would take them back before the advent of the white man and draw from their great fund of history and lore."

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Friday, February 26

General tendencies: This is a day when you certainly are able to see the overall aims and ambitions that are yours and to reduce them to a workable expression. This applies to whatever has to do with art, culture, music, etc., as well as in the marts of trade or financial outlets. See your own sign following for your best use of these fine aspects.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — A day for secret conferences with vital personalities which will prove of great benefit to you. Isolation would lose you a great deal, so be sure to get busy early. Be well-prepared with the vital facts needed, too.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Endeavor to increase prestige in which influential people hold you now so that you get further backing and can reach your cherished goals. P. M. go about socially - and have a delightful time meeting fine new contacts.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — If you contact the most powerful experts now, worldly affairs can be very successful for you. Don't be afraid to express your desires and aims. They will be only too glad to co-operate with you and give you needed support.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Get on the beam now and learn the most modern methods used in your field of endeavor so that you can become far more successful. Meeting new and interesting people will be of great help, to you in the future, too. Be adroit.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Daytime is ideal for garnering vital information that will make your work easier and bring in greater profits for you. P. M. be particularly devoted and attentive to the one who means most to you in personal life.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — It is possible to get excellent guidance and advice from a clever partner now so that you can have more harmony in your relationship as well as greater profits. Stick to business all way, then forget it and have fun in P.M.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — Exercise that penchant for perfectionism in home or business affairs today. Make surroundings both beautiful and efficient. P. M. improve health and get wardrobe in order.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — If you are properly attuned astrologically, you will arise feeling in fine fettle. Be sure you spread good will and show vital persons you are happy to be allied with them. P. M. excellent for social life or favorite sports.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — It is possible now to bring greater harmony and happiness within the sphere of own home. Later, find ways and means of having a greater abundance in a very ethical and efficient way. Step into a new outlet quickly.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — It would be wise to impress those whom you want to be allied with in the future with your excellent managerial qualities and how precise you are. Later, do your shopping, get accounts in order, come to meeting of minds with all.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Fine opportunity now to increase abundance. Be sure you are allied with influential persons who appreciate your ideas, your down-to-earth approach. Later, make repairs to real estate that are vitally needed.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Be direct in going after your cherished desires and goals today, tonight, but be sure you first know exactly what those are. Don't let any grass grow under your feet. Meet new people, be very sociable and clever.

If your child is born today — The wonderful child born today may appear to be rather soft and inclined to cultural attainments only, but underneath is a definite practical fire. So, be certain you give fine spiritual training as well as a most thorough academic education. The chart is then most promising of remarkable success in whatever field he, or she, is most interested. A delightful personality here.

SPRING

One might think that it will never come — but — how quickly the time goes and then wouldn't you be pleased with yourself if the Spring you can say — this place is all mine — it costs that is if you don't wish to pay cash — but you don't have to pay rent — you have your own payments that would be less than any rent after a little down payment of about $3,000. or less and much more right in just as if you did pay rent. What's this all about — well, it's about a cottage on the bay just about 5 miles drive and a half hour by boat to the bay with water frontage. The price is under — and a 2-bedroom bungalow with an attached garage. All modern — on 100 ft. lot — with full price — only $10,000. Commissioners Of Parks Under Fire for Expenses

TORONTO (CP)—Expenses of Niagara parks commissioners were investigated Wednesday by members of the legislature's standing committee on public accounts.

Parks auditor Lawrence Crawford of Niagara Falls told the committee total expenses for the 1958-59 fiscal year amounted to $6,588. Of this, $1,563 was spent for liquor and refreshments.

"In one month $1,000 was spent for liquor alone," said CCF MPP Donald Macdonald. He attempted to read a list of expenses from 1955 prior to the current accounts, but was ruled out of order.

Kenneth Boyden (CCF—Toronto Woodbine) asked whether a record is kept of each commissioner's expenses.

Maxim Gray, general manager of the commission, said he could only compile a record of meal costs. Commissioners do not have to sign a bill when they give a guest refreshments.

Other commissioners' expenses were listed as $2,061 for meals eaten in the park, $779 for tobacco and meals (these are eaten in private rooms), $774 for flowers and $1,411 for miscellaneous items.

PUBLICITY ACCOUNT

Additional expenses for entertaining parks visitors are listed under a public relations and advertising account, which last year amounted to $33,603, Mr. Gray said.

Both the Liberal and CCF parties have demanded a complete inquiry into the operations of the parks commission. The purchase of property recently belonging to the parks system by Labor Minister Dana Porter, chairman of the commission, is being investigated by the committee of privileges and elections which has powers of reference beyond the current public accounts.

TO LIST FIRMS

The commission agreed to prepare a list of firms which do business with the NPC and which have at one time or another had members of the commission on their payroll.

Mr. Macdonald urged the committee to invite George Inelis, a former commissioner, and Walter Haufchild, a former parks police officer, appear next week to answer questions. Mr. Inelis resigned from the commission after a disagreement with Mr. Daley.

Allan Grossman (PC—Toronto St. Andrew), committee chairman, said he would take the matter under advisement.

MUNICIPALITIES

local services as against only $19 in 1942.

Increased assistance has been especially large in the education and roads fields, Mr. Allan said, "yet we have made important revisions in various other ways."

Among these in the last decade were the establishment of the Ontario Municipal Improvement Corporation to make capital funds available to municipalities; providing for payments in lieu of taxes on certain government and public utility properties; unconditional grants to all municipalities; setting up the Ontario Water Resources Commission to provide water and sewage works; and last year a new program to relieve civic governments of the burden of hospital deficits and the cost of indigents in hospital.

Assistance to school boards in the coming year would be raised to $170,600,000, an increase of $30,900,000. Subsidies for construction and maintenance of roads would be $66,200,000, up $2,800,000 from the current fiscal year's appropriation.

Unconditional grants in the coming year would be $28,700,000, an increase of $2,700,000. In addition, mining municipalities would receive a total of nearly $3,300,000, some $2,000,000 more than allocated in the current fiscal term.

Mr. Allan said he is aware that municipalities, as well as the province, are confronted with heavy demands for education and other services and added this word of caution:

"We believe the municipalities should undertake a conscientious examination of all phases of their expenditures with a view to retailing them to the growth in their real property assessment and the provincial assistance program."

CO-OP STORE BURNED

CAYUGA (CP) — The Haldimand Farmers' Co - operative store here was destroyed by fire Monday night. The building, on the main street of this village 22 miles south of Hamilton; was believed to have contained large stocks of farm produce.

UNION DISPUTES

could investigate and decide who should get the work. This would be done only after the dispute had lasted too long, and the decision of the commission could be appealed to the Labor Relations Board.

ALTERNATIVE CHOICE

The bill, in another change to the act, offers an alternative present conciliation services.

Unions and management will be given the right to choose a mediator, instead of a conciliation board, who will have the same powers and the same final say in the settlement of a dispute.

The conciliation procedure is also speeded up by new powers given to the minister whereby he can replace a member of a board if there is any indication he is delaying proceedings. The legislation sets a time limit on conciliation board hearings and handing in of a report to 30 days. The minister may grant another 90 days at his discretion.

Union or management may complain to the minister over delay in arbitration proceedings and arbitration decisions must be implemented within 14 days or the decision may become enforceable as a court order.

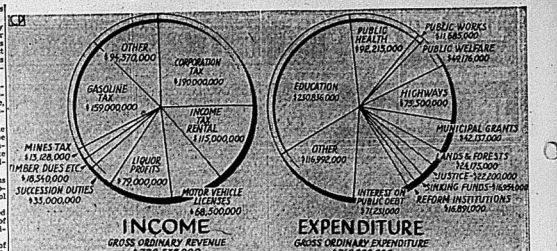
Certification will not be allowed any union if it shows discrimination "because of race, creed, color, nationality, ancestry or place of origin."

Other sections set the date when a strike or lockout may be lawfully instituted after conciliation and call for a strike vote to be taken by secret ballot.

In trusteeships, parent unions that take over control of locals must relinquish control within 12 months.

All unions will be obligated to "annually supply each one of their members an audited financial statement."

Annual audited statements of all pension and welfare funds must be filed with the labor department "whether operated solely by a trade union or jointly between a trade union and employer or through a trust."



RECORD BUDGET — Ontario's biggest-ever budget was presented to the legislature today by Provincial Treasurer Allan. Graph gives breakdown of major items of revenue and expenditure for the coming fiscal year. Gross ordinary expenditures are estimated at $769,992,000 and gross ordinary revenue at $770,538,000. 90 Die In Irish, Brazilian Air Crashes

U.S. Navy Band On Plane Which Hits Airliner

23 Survive at Shannon, Many Horribly Burned

SHANNON, Ireland (CP) — A New York-bound Italian airliner with 52 persons aboard crashed and exploded in a tiny Irish cemetery today, with at least 29 lives.

Twenty-six of those aboard the Alitalia airliner — many of the passengers were said to be Italians bound for new homes in Canada and the United States— died instantly and three others later in hospitals.

Of the 23 survivors, many lay near death, horribly burned, their bodies broken.

One Italian, Pietro Russo, a 23-year-old mechanic from Bisignano, was flying to Toronto with his wife and two-year-old daughter to start a new life as immigrants.

He survived but there was no immediate news of his wife and child.

CLOAK WEATHER

The four-engine DC-7 crashed immediately after taking off here in cold and clear weather. It was set out from Naples, landed at Rome to pick up more passengers, and refuelled at Shannon to refuel.

The airliner crashed through the wall of the cemetery, near the airport, and plowed through a line of tombstones and across a sheep pasture, leaving a mile-long trail of fire and bodies.

"There were bodies scattered all around," said a Roman Catholic priest, Rev. Thomas Comerford. "People were mixed up with the remains of sheep the plane had killed. Most of the bodies were horribly mutilated.

"People were screaming, sheep were bleating and dogs were barking. It was like a scene from hell."

SOME AMERICANS ABOARD

The plane carried 40 passengers, Airline said 15 were Americans, but it could not say if any had survived.

The crash — at 2 a.m. within hours of an air collision in Rio de Janeiro that claimed 34 lives —brought to more than 325 the death toll in eight major plane disasters since Jan. 1.

People 17 miles away heard the terrific explosion of the crash at Shannon.

"It seemed as if the petrol (gasoline) tank must have gone up with a shattering roar," said one of the first persons to reach the scene. "How anyone survived is a miracle."

URGES YOUTH SYMPHONY

KITCHENER (CP) — Formation of a national youth symphony orchestra in Canada was suggested Thursday by Sir Ernest Helme, the Australian conductor. The conductor, making a survey of symphony orchestras for the Canada Council, said a national youth symphony orchestra is functioning with great success in Australia.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — The worst winter storm of the last few years dumped eight to 16 inches of snow across most of Southern Ontario during the night. Parts of the area were hit with 13 inches. Northeastern Ontario which got two to four inches, and the Lake Huron area, to six inches of new snow as the storm centre moves northeastward across Eastern Ontario. Most of Southern Ontario will get only light snowflurries today but at times they will be heavy near the Lake Huron area. Some sunshine can be expected on Saturday with continuing strong winds. Snow and severe drifting is forecast for Northern and Central Ontario, changing to snowflurries.

HOUSE DEFERS DECISION ON ABOLITION BILL

Will Debate Further At Future Date

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons Thursday night wound up a second day of inconclusive, soul-searching debate on abolition of the death penalty for murder— then postponed the moment of decision.

With more than a score of MPs still waiting to speak, the House agreed to another day's debate on a date to be chosen by the party leaders.

Chances appear slim for approval of Tory backbencher Arthur Hales' bill seeking abolition, sponsored by Frank McGee (PC — York-Scarborough).

In the House Thursday an increasing number of members said they either prefer the Criminal Code's present mandatory death sentence, or favor some form of partial abolition without going all the way.

The day's tally showed 13 speakers opposing and three supporting the McGee bill. One speaker was undecided.

The count for two days of debate: 29 speakers against the bill, 12 in favor, two undecided.

MAJORITY AGAINST

Although the pattern could change during the bill's third day of argument, it appeared that the majority of MPs are not prepared to vote for the bill—if it comes to a vote.

More to their liking, apparently, is another private member's bill far down on the Commons order paper—one proposed by John Drysdale (PC—Burnaby-Richmond) to eliminate capital punishment for murder except for but retain it for such crimes as murder of a policeman or prison guard, second murders, murders in the course of theft and robbery or those involving firearms or explosives.

Except for this expressed preference by many of the McGee bill opponents, only one definite trend became apparent—Quebec MPs are mostly against it.

Of 13 Quebec members speaking so far, only one, Marial Asselin (PC — Charlevoix), has supported the bill. Ten have spoken against it. Two are undecided.

There has been no other political, religious or occupational solidarity on the issue.

Most MPs do not list their religion in the official parliamentary guide.

Generally, there was no trend except for the Quebec members.

Defence May Claim Doctor Guilty In Desperate Move to Save Girl

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Carole Tregoff's lawyers launch their last-ditch defence today.

It probably will be their final chance to convince a jury that Carole didn't conspire with her lover, Dr. R. Bernard Finch, to slay his wife. The couple is charged with murdering socialite Barbara Jean Finch, 36, last July 18.

Miss Tregoff's three lawyers launched closing arguments Wednesday with a strong hint that Dr. Finch, 42, could be guilty and his 23-year-old mistress innocent.

Then a juror's toothache halted the trial for a day and Dr. Finch and his lawyer time to prepare their defence.

Will Carole's lawyers claim the doctor is guilty—in a desperate move to save the girl?

The pretty redhead's testimony corroborated the doctor's story that they went to the suburban home of his estranged wife to discuss a divorce—but Mrs. Finch pulled a gun.

The doctor claims the pistol discharged accidentally as he struggled to get it away, fatally wounding his wife in the back.

Princess Engaged

LONDON (Reuters) — Princess Margaret is engaged, it was officially announced tonight.

She will marry Anthony Armstrong-Jones, 29, a photographer who has taken many photographs of the Royal Family.

The announcement was issued from Clarence House, the princess' London home.

Argentina Capital Tense, Bombs Precede Ike's Visit

BUENOS AIRES (CP) — President Eisenhower, continuing his South American tour, flew into this Argentine capital from Brazil today as an atmosphere made tense by four bomb explosions nearly after midnight gripped the city.

An orderly crowd of 5,000, including Argentine President Arturo Frondizi, greeted Eisenhower.

In a brief airport speech, Eisenhower expressed satisfaction that "our commitments and common aspirations provide one stone in paradise.

armored, into the Sinai Peninsula from the Suez Canal area—the biggest military move since the 1956 Suez crisis.

Usually reliable Israeli sources added that Egyptian infantry had moved into the coastal Gaza Strip between Egypt and Israel for the first time since the 1957 Israeli withdrawal from the strip but this was denied in New York by a spokeswoman for United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold.

The Gaza Strip is patrolled by the UN Emergency Force, sent into the area after the 1956 Anglo-French-Israeli attack on Egypt.

Israeli Minister Consults Big Four on Border Threat

TEL AVIV, Israel (Reuters)— Foreign Minister Golda Meir continued her talks with the Western and Soviet ambassadors today on the reported buildup of United Arab Republic troops on Israel's bodes.

She met British envoy Patrick Hankey last night at her request. She also arranged to confer with the United States, French and Russian representatives.

The buildup was reported by Israeli newspapers to involve the movement of two Soviet-equipped divisions, one infantry and one the structure of peace."

The explosions rocked downtown Buenos Aires and one of them damaged the stock exchange building only four blocks from the government headquarters. No one was injured.

Police believed the bombs were set off by dichard followers of ousted dictator Juan Peron, who never misses a chance to embarrass President Arturo Frondizi's government.

Eisenhower was to spend a weekend here, placing more emphasis on diplomatic talks than on parading.

U.S. Tries to Put Missile Detection Satellite in Sky

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) The United States sent up an experimental Midas satellite today but partially lost radio contact with it just after the launching.

The air force announced half an hour after the firing:

"Preliminary indications are that separation of the second stage occurred. However, because of partial loss of telemetry, it may be some time before we know if the second stage ignited."

Midas' mission is to increase the warning time on enemy missiles by detecting them seconds after their launching.

The 88 - foot rocket rose smoothly into a clear sky at 12:25 p.m. EST and arched toward the southeast. The bright flame from the first big thrust - stage engine was visible for more than three minutes before burning out.

An announcement whether the satellite achieved orbit is expected here in about two hours, after it has had a chance to make

The intended orbit for the device of more than two tons is between 100 and 200 miles above the earth.

Midas, which stands for Missile Defence Alarm System, is the first United States satellite launched for a purely military purpose. The army has kept most details about it secret.

Officially it is described as a only an experimental vehicle, a forerunner of a series of satellites planned to whirl about the earth on constant watch for enemy missile activity. They will carry infra-red sensing devices to spot the heat trail of a hostile rocket as it is fired.

This warning would be flashed immediately to the U.S., which then would have about 30 minutes to brace for a nuclear bombardment and to send retaliatory weapons on the way.

This first Midas contains the infra - red equipment. The plan is to test it on missiles launched from Cape Canaveral and Vandenberg Air Force Base in California.

GERMAN RUMOR SAYS U.K. WANTS BASES IN SPAIN

British Spokesman Vigorously Denies It

BONN (Reuters) — The uproar over West German plans for mili-tary facilities in Spain took a new twist today with a suggestion Britain also wants to establish Spanish bases.

Questioned about it, a West German defence ministry spokesman told a press conference he could not say whether his government had such information.

The British foreign ministry was the first to confirm the West German plans for Spanish bases which have touched off a furore on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

In London, the British foreign office denied the suggestion in West Germany that Britain wants Spanish bases. Said a spokesman: "I can deny absolutely that there has been any move whatever of that kind."

Spain is not a member of NATO although the United States has bases there.

Thursday night, Defence Minister Josef Strauss declined to be the author of the German plan, defended his connection that because West German territory is so narrow it must have supply depots in other countries.

The West German defence ministry said Thursday night Strauss will visit Greece March 10-16 for talks and visits to military installations. That the Greek government promptly announced it has nothing to do with establishing bases.

The Strauss plan has won support from newspapers in Spain and West Germany.

In Oslo, Norway, NATO supreme commander General Lauris Norstad declined comment on reports that he was "livid" about the West German plan and on whether he thought Spain should join NATO.

The British press again splashed news of the West German plan over its front pages. The Liberal News Chronicle said it was a blunder "as appalling as more of a fool than a knave."

Canada-Russia Game on CBC

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC announced today it has completed arrangements for a Canada-USSR Broadcasting System for the purchase of television rights for Saturday's Canada - Russia Olympic hockey game beginning at 4 p.m. EST.

The telecast will be carried on the CBC's standby circuit, the announcement said. But it could be subject to interruption should the British regular circuit break down and the American network have first claim on the standby circuit.

The CBC will telecast the game from the Squaw Valley at 9 p.m. EST "providing the pattern of Sunday's Olympic events is not altered."

Mechanical Defect in Switchbox Forces Delay of Bomarc Test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (CP) —A mechanical defect in a small black electrical switchbox has delayed the first launching test flight of the controversial Bomarc-B missile on which Canada has agreed to arm its air-craft interceptor.

The defect in the operation of a tiny cam, causing burnout of a few tiny copper wires, was uncovered by Boeing Company technicians, as they prepared for a launching Wednesday.

The United States Air Force at this big missile base facing the Atlantic Ocean is conducting a "scrub out" of the Wednesday launch. Officials say the test would be prepared to try again next week.

The shot is crucial, for the first six test flights ended in failure during a testing period that started in May, 1959. Bomarc manufacturers need a successful shot to pep up lagging public confidence in the slim, black missile to be incorporated in the North

Worst Blizzard In Sixteen Years Cripples Traffic

Activities Paralyzed; Two Die Near Hamilton

TORONTO (CP)—Southern Ontario was waist-deep in snow today and haggard traffic officials were prescribing a new set of measures for the province's clogged roads after the worst storm in 16 years.

A snowfall varying from 10 to 15 inches, whipped into high drifts by winds gusting to 50 miles an hour, covered most of the southern sections of the province and brought traffic to a virtual standstill by midnight.

Toronto, in the centre of a storm front ranging from New York City to Chicago, was smothered under 12 inches of snow. The weather office said snowflurries will continue throughout the day but the worst has passed.

At Burlington, near Hamilton, two women were killed in a two-car crash on Highway 2 at the height of the blizzard. Dozens of minor front ranging from New road crews busy during the night.

WORST SINCE 1944

Harold Bradley, Toronto works commissioner, called it "worst storm since the big blow in 1944." Even with equipment donated by private industry to aid the city's 400 snow-removal machines, he said Toronto's streets will not be fully cleared until Sunday.

On Dec. 12, 1944, the worst snowstorm in Toronto's history paralyzed all normal activities and caused 14 deaths. A total of 22 inches of snow fell that time.

Accompanied by freak lightning flashes and thunder, Thursday's blizzard hit Windsor in the afternoon and moved quickly toward the Niagara peninsula at two feet onto.

London, St. Catharines, Hamilton and Toronto all were hit hard. Police issued warnings warning an hour or more behind schedule. Rush-hour motorists and late-night commuters were delayed as much as six hours, and city streets and rural highways were littered with abandoned cars.

From the central districts of the province came reports of trains and buses turned back or stalled. Police cruisers were pulled off the roads except for emergencies.

MOVE INTO HOTELS

Many Toronto businessmen, afraid of struggling their cars, took shelter overnight in hotels. One downtown hotel said the Toronto residents were booked in.

At the mobile home show at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds, 30 girl employees camped in the mobile bedrooms on display.

Three taxi companies called off the streets at 10 p.m. and police officials reported most of their cruisers were stuck in snow banks or otherwise immobilized. Traffic tangles were reported across the city and by midnight there was little or no movement on the city's main streets.

Most flights in and out of Detroit, Windsor, London, Malton and airports in northern Ontario

Anne Heggtveit Wins First Leg Olympic Slalom

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP) Canada's Anne Heggtveit apparently won the first leg of the women's Olympic slalom today as she barrelled down the course in 54 seconds fist to take a good lead over two Austrian and two American. Her nearest rival was Betsy Snite of the United States who had a time of 57.4.

Penny Pitou of the U.S., No. 1 favorite in the race, made the first run in 53.5. There were 43 skiers entered in the event.

TRANS-OCEAN CABLES — Canada will contribute $25,000,000 toward building the trans-Pacific leg of a world-circling Commonwealth communications system.

Completion date of the proposed Pacific link—from Vancouver to Auckland, New Zealand, and Sydney, Australia—will be about 1964, subject to final negotiations between the countries involved. Canada, through the crown-owned Canadian Overseas Telecommunications Corporation, will own a 2,700-mile section of the $75,000,000 Pacific cable from Vancouver to a point near the Hawaiian Islands. The remaining section will be owned jointly by Australia, New Zealand and Britain.

The global cable project started in 1956 with completion of a transatlantic cable from Newfoundland to Britain, and a second Oban-Newfoundland link is planned for completion next year. Both are jointly owned by Britain and Canada.

The microwave relay system across Canada will join the transocean cables.

Negotiations are planned to extend cables from Australia to Britain via the principal Commonwealth countries in Asia and Africa to complete the world-wide system. (CP Newsmap.)

Trans - Canada Air lines cancelled some early flights but by today but reported regular service resumed at 10 a.m. A spokesman said heavy snow on the Malton runways has been cleared to permit normal takeoffs.

Police early today appealed to the public to give assistance to people stranded by the storm. Telephone services were down, and many of their vehicles will not be able to get through.

In suburban Scarborough, hard est hit in the Toronto area, police mounted attempts to reach motorists Thursday night. A blood donor clinic called for 600 dairy trucks to deliver blood to Toronto Red Cross headquarters in time for refrigeration.

With more than 600 workers pressed into service, Metropolitan Toronto hoped to have most major streets cleared by today morning. Plowing was hampered by the many cars abandoned in the streets.

Weather officials said the main force of the storm has been spent but another is developing over Pennsylvania and heading towards Montreal.

Seven-Inch Snowfall in City, High Drifts Plug Highways

Any hopes of district residents that with the end of February close at hand Old Man Winter had shot his final bolt were completely dashed last night when seven inches of snow fell over the area.

And this morning the Weatherman assured it was to be more of the same throughout the day.

As it was, the nightly wind supplied the blankest of snow into high drifts that made heavy going on many highways in the area and completely clogging others.

Despite the all-night efforts of the city public works department snow plows and snow removable gangs, it was tough going in the city today. Motorists were finding it difficult to negotiate many of the steeper grades as standing crews were just unable to keep up with the continued snowfall.

School buses generally were behind schedule and a high school principals expected that quite a number of the rural students would be unable to make it because of the heavy going.

"We are admitting all students without late slips this morning," reported the high school principal. "Even some of the teachers were late for the beginning of classes."

Principal Wallace F. Reid at Quinte Secondary School said that at 10.30 a.m. two of the school buses were stalled on Sidney township — Frankford area, and another in Thurlow township — Read are — still had not reached the school. About 75 students normally ride on these two buses, it was stated.

Mr. Reid said the mother called in to say that two snowplows were stuck on her road and that the children would not be able to school today.

Many city motorists took the wise course and leaving their cars in the garage or on the driveway, took the bus or found other means of transportation to their jobs.

Although police reported a number of minor motor mishaps, there were no highway accidents of a serious nature. In the city there was a rash of minor fender bumps due to snow conditions on the road-ways.

The snow removal crews went to work in earnest this morning and were plowed to the centre of the streets in the downtown area was being loaded on trucks and hauled away for dumping in disposal areas.

Mayor Frank Bowen spoke of snowfall here, the Belleville Public Utilities Commission reaped what in some districts is being called the worst storm of the winter.

A Colonial bus due here from Toronto last night failed to reach it after being bogged down just east of the Queen City. The bus was forced to turn around and the passengers, A check by the local bus terminal in Toronto early this morning indicated there would be little delay between the two Eastern Ontario centres today.

Obituaries

GEORGE E. WILSON

In failing health for some time, George E. Wilson, of 111 Chatham Street, in this city, died in Hospital on Thursday evening. He was born at Windsor Mills, Quebec, 74 years ago, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wilson.

Mr. Wilson was a resident of this city for the past 33 years. He was employed with the CNR for 40 years, first starting as a fireman and then becoming a conductor. He retired some years ago. He was a valued employee of the road and enjoyed a wide circle of friends, in management and with fellow employees.

He served in the First World War with the Canso Fourth C.M.R., and was awarded the military medal for bravery in Vimy Ridge. He enlisted with the C.M.R. in Toronto and served overseas with that unit.

Mr. Wilson was a member of St. Michael's Church and also a member of the Holy Name Society. He leaves four sons: Earnard Wilson of Vancouver, John Wilson of Toronto, George Wilson of this city, and Robert Wilson of Nanticoke. His wife, the former Helena Dorey, died five years ago.

Seed Judging Contest Held In Stirling

The annual Hastings County seed judging contest is being held today at the Stirling Community Hall where Junior Farmers and 4-H club members will vie with each other for county honors.

Teams from the Belleville high schools made early trip to Stirling where the contest was scheduled to get underway this morning. The contest is under the direction of the Stirling Agricultural Office.

Company Will Operate 'Free Shop' at Border

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—John David, president of International Resort Facilities Limited, outlined Wednesday a $2,000,000 project which would allow United States visitors to buy duty-free luxury items at this border city.

The first "free shop" is scheduled for the summer at a hillside island near the Ivy Lea bridge in the Thousand Islands chain between Kingston and Brockville. A second is expected to open here next year.

Jack C. McCauley, company merchandising manager, said the luxury goods would be brought into Canada in bond and stored in one of a number of small warehouses. American tourists would make their purchases from samples taken out of bond.

Mr. McCauley said Canada would not lose any revenue since the goods sold "would not come into Canada in the first place if the shop wasn't set up. The government would collect all customs duties and excise tarrifs on goods on exhibit, sales tax on samples, corporation taxes on profits and income taxes and indirect revenues from employees." He said the government representatives from this area use "free shops" would not "do any harm to anybody in this area. The enterprise would attract more tourists."

International Resort Facilities is controlled by Canadians who invested 45 per cent of the capital, he said. United Kingdom interests invested 40 per cent and United States interests 15 per cent.

It is a Canadian company with a dominion charter.

China Criticized By Minister

TORONTO (CP)—External Affairs Minister Green criticized Communist China Thursday night for its "aggressive" attitude in Asia.

"There has been evidence that Peking is willing to use its growing military power against its neighbors," he said in what he evidently considers to be its natural interests."

He evidently was referring, in an address to the board of governors of the Canadian college of the United Church of Canada, to the Chinese seizure a generation ago of the Himalayas and its suppression of Tibet.

Mr. Green cited Premier Chou En-lai's statement that any country desiring to establish diplomatic relations with the country must sever ties with Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist regime on Formosa.

The Canadian government was not prepared to take any step that would facilitate the Communist seizure of Formosa.

Mr. Green also suggested that the United Nations must eventually reassume a responsibility for disarmament.

"As progress is made in disarmament it will, I think, become necessary to set up an international disarmament agency under the United Nations," he said.

She was the widow of Robert James Seymour, who died last February 6th, and daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Green.

Surviving are one son, Arthur, owner of the Seymour Hardware Company of Belleville, and two grandchildren, Mrs. Thomas (Phyllis) Burke of Belleville, and Allan Weatherhead of Belleville.

She was a member of the Wellman Christ Church of Athens.

HOUSE DEFERS

Eight Ontario members were nearly divided in their arguments.

Eleven of the 14 lawyers who have spoken so far have opposed the measure.

WILL EXTEND DEBATE

So far no cabinet minister has entered the debate. Prime Minister Diefenbaker spoke on the matter Thursday—but only to say he would participate in the debate extending the debate by a speech "sometime" next week.

Speaking in the question period preceding the debate, the prime minister said the abolition issue has engendered more public interest than any other question during his 20 years in Parliament. It was the type of debate that "transcends ordinary considerations and touches the conscience of individual members."

The truth of this was evident in the house attendance. Approximately 200 of the 264 members were in their seats Thursday and public galleries were jammed.

Those who got in heard some of the finest pieces of parliamentary oratory in years. MPs who normally rise only to present documents to their party's big guns gradually eagerly at the chance to get their own pro-parties and original views on capital punishment.

FORCEFUL SPEECH

One of the most forceful speaking Parliament has seen in years, Stormont), 37-year-old lawyer. He declared the issue was "similar to the old one for prohibition—only a vociferous minority campaigning for abolition."

Mr. Campbell contended that if a man has due regard for the sanctity of human life and is not to outrage the sensitivity of society, the only alternative to execution of murderers is life imprisonment, with no reprieve.

But he favored the death penalty for murder in cases where society is saved by executing the murderer, like Evelyn Dick, who, after getting off for life, he turned over to the next-of-kin of the murder victim.

DANGER OF EXECUTION

Among the bill's opponents was Noel Dorion (PC—Bellechasse), Que., who was hanged Feb. 10, 1956, for the murder of three American bear hunters in the Gaspe in 1949. Dorion said he prosecuted Albert Leary, Quebec lawyer executed March 14, 1950, of murdering his wife by placing a bomb on the family plane. Leary, Mr. Dorion also prosecuted Mrs. Marie Rose Ouellette, executed for their parts in the Guay case. They too were innocent.

Frank Howard (CCF—Skeena), 34-year-old B.C. logger, said the courts have the right to take the past. Coffin was hanged despite "grave doubts as to his guilt."

Yvon Dupuis (L — St. Jean-Iberville-Napierville) called for a country-wide plebiscite on the issue. "Let the voice of the people be heard," he said.

Among speakers opposed to the bill were Wilton Hourd, (L—Niagara Falls), 67, businessman; John Kucherepa (PC — Toronto High Park), 46, metal worker; Gage W. Montgomery (PC — Victoria-Haliburton), a lawyer; Hober Smith (PC — Simcoe North), 44, a lawyer.

ASKS GOVERNMENT LEAD

Mr. Houck urged the government to take the responsibility for introducing its own legislation. The question was too important to be decided by backbenchers.

The former mayor of Niagara Falls repeated a favorite trial of partial abolition. The death penalty would be suspended for all crimes except murder, the slaying of a policeman or prison guard, a second murder and the most brutal forms of homicide.

Mr. Montgomery, incidentally opposing the bill, defied anyone to prove that the murderer gives due consideration to the victim "and I'm not prepared to give the murderer more than he did."

He saw "no reason why the brutal crime of all (murder) shouldn't carry the heaviest penalty of all."

With regard to the method of carrying out the penalty, he said: "I don't care whether you do it by hanging, electrocution or the gas chamber. I'm not particularly stuck on anything. You pay your money and take your choice."

Mr. Smith said penologists, judges and those connected with police work apparently favor retention of capital punishment. They were people best fitted to know and for that reason he would oppose the bill.

REV. D. R. McKILLICAN

Rev. D. R. McKillican Guest Speaker at Farley Ave. Church

Rev. Donald R. McKillican, Dean of Students at Knox College, Toronto, will be guest minister for the Sunday morning services for the Presbyterian congregation on Farley Ave. Following the service here he will go to Kingston where he will spend two days at Queen's University, interviewing students planning to enter the Presbyterian ministry.

A member of the RCAF for five years during World War II, Mr. McKillican completed his high school training at the Veterans' Rehabilitation School in Toronto following the war. He later attended University of Toronto, graduating in 1950.

He took a course in Theology at Knox College, graduating in 1953, and has since taken postgraduate courses at Knox and at New College, Edinburgh, Scotland. He was minister at Markham and Stouffville for 11 years, resigning in November, 1959, to accept his present position at Knox College.

Ask Downtown Streets Cleared By Midnight

Citizens are requested to have their cars off the downtown city streets shortly after midnight tonight in order to facilitate the snow removal operation which the public works department is engaged in. An all-out effort is being made to clear the city streets and sidewalks by as short a time as possible and the city engineer advises that all available equipment, both that of the department and that of private contractors is being put into use.

As of this morning three extra graders, two extra loaders and about a dozen additional trucks were on hire to speed up the operation. Fourteen men have been employed in addition to the current roster of the Public Works department employees, bringing the total engaged in the work to over two dozen.

The work commenced last night at 8.30 p.m. when the first sidewalk snow plow went to work. They are expected to continue until tomorrow in order to give close to complete coverage to the city.

Both main and side streets are being applied to hills on both the roadways and sidewalks. Sand is available to any citizen who cares to go down to the public works yards on Church St., below the CPR tracks to collect it, Mr. Turnbull stated.

Defence Motions For Non-Suit Are Considered

MONTREAL (CP)—Mr. Justice Harry Batshaw of Superior Court Thursday took under advisement defence motions for non-suit submitted at the trial of 17 pulp and paper companies charged with conspiracy to fix prices of pulp.

The case was adjourned after Mr. Justice Batshaw said he will rule next Thursday on one application of non-suit and five individual motions of non-suit.

Should the general motion be upheld the trial would end. A decision on the individual motions would reduce the number of defendants but in that case continue.

The Crown charges that the companies conspired to limit high competition by setting prices to pay for pulpwood in Quebec, Ontario and New Brunswick between 1947 and 1954.

Aluminum Export Products Steadily Rising Says Speaker

TRENTON — A future with air-cushioned "hover" cars, which will be able to cross land or water with equal ease, including a few feet off the surface, thus eliminating the need for highways; painted aluminum houses, which resemble wood so much that only close examination will disclose the difference, and fine products made of aluminum or plastic containers, designed and made in the food processing plant, was envisioned by Garrick Austin, superintendent of the Kingston plant of the Aluminum Company of Canada, speaking at last night's meeting at the Trenton Lions Club.

Mr. Austin said that in 1940, aluminum products produced less eighth on the list of Canadian exports. By 1954, they had risen to fifth place. Aluminum, the speaker said, was the only one of the top five products which is a "fabricated" product, the others being such things as newsprint, wood pulp and wood.

All the materials of which aluminum products are imported from other countries. The manufacturing process was developed in the Church of God by the Right Reverend C. H. Evans, Ph.D., D.D. Lord Bishop of Ontario, assisted by visiting clergy of the Diocese. The Ordinand will be presented by the Venerable J. B. Creegan, B.A., L.S.T., Archdeacon of Ontario, and the preacher at the service will be the Reverend W. G. Riesberry, B.A., brother of the ordinand and rector of the Church of St. George the Martyr, Toronto. The University of Trinity College, where the ordinand received his education in arts and theology, will be represented by the Reverend C. H. Fielding, S.T.D., Dean of Divinity.

The service of ordination will be in charge of the rector of the parish, the Reverend Canon A. S. Woodruff, M.B.E., LL.D., Chaplains to the Lord Bishop will be the Reverend Canon J. D. Richardson, of Belleville, and the Reverend K. F. Blachford, of Trenton. The Music for the service, which will include the Litany, the Ordination of Priests and the Choral Eucharist, will be in charge of the parish organist, Mr. D. W. Davenport, with the adult and boys' choir in the chancel and the Junior choir in the gallery. The Lord Bishop will be the celebrant for the Communion service and the Litany will be sung by the Archdeacon of Ontario.

The Reverend J. C. Riesberry, who has been assistant curate at St. Thomas' Church since his ordination as a deacon last spring, was born in Brampton, Ontario, and following his education at Trinity College has had considerable experience in the Toronto west both in city and rural congregations in Ontario and in the United States. He has entered fully into the life of the parish here and has made a valuable contribution to the needs of the parish in assisting the rector and in organization work among young people and in the Church School. His ordination to the priesthood at the hands of the Lord Bishop of the Diocese is most acceptable to the people of the congregation.

Boys Admit They Set Convent Fire

MONTREAL (CP) — Two boys admitted Thursday they set fire to the kitchen cabinet on Nun's Island off Montreal.

The boys, 11 and 12 years old, were arrested Thursday night by police of suburban Verdun after an anonymous telephone call.

The abandoned three - storey grey stone convent had stood since 1722 and was the Congregation of Notre Dame, Roman Catholic religious order which owned the island until 1857, had been it would be preserved as a national historic monument.

Little but the walls were left standing after the fire Wednesday evening.

Police said the boys admitted making a pile of hay on the second floor of the building and lighting it with a match.

Trenton Legion Notes

TRENTON — At a meeting of the local branch of the Red Cross Association held in the Dominion Canadian Legion on Monday, it was decided to wind up the Trenton group and amalgamate with the Belleville Association. In 1959 the Trenton group was formed under the supervision of the Canadian Legion, and the majority of the executive were active Legion members.

Treasurer Dick Chittam gave figures of the 1959 campaign which showed receipts of $1,500. Collected from: retail trade $181; industrial $325; individuals $1,022.62 total $1,528.62.

"Last year was very disappointing to us," said Mr. Seeley president of the local group. "It was difficult to get the necessary willing workers to canvass and without any reflection on those who unstintingly contributed, the collections were very poor.

"A definite lack of interest was shown," said Carry Pearce, who was chairman of the blood donors. "Only slightly over 100 donors turned out and the attendance at this site is too bad. Those who did turn out will be glad that the Trenton people would now come under the jurisdiction of the Belleville clinic as they and those who contributed in the Belleville campaign would be given the opportunity to go to the one clinic or the other."

"At a public meeting held in the Legion Hall on Monday night, as mentioned previously, all income tax and downstairing will be utilized for this event. Miss Dawn Craig reported that the advance sale of tickets has exceeded expectations. In view of this advance sale it would be wise to procure tickets as soon as possible. Don Cam reminded of proper treatment in case of emergency.

Thorough training and consistent practice is part of the duty of the Legion Auxiliary. All kinds of literature are available to conduct training classes but after the knowledge is gained regular and frequent practice in application is essential.

Mr. White, who is safety officer in the East Central Region Ontario Hydro, came to Canada from his native England in 1921. He has had 36 years hydro experience, has operated in power generating and transformer stations, small and large in several parts of Ontario. For 10 years he was load supervisor or regional headquarters in Toronto. In 1950 he was placed in charge of the accident prevention program and in that capacity has been closely associated with supervisory departments, conference leadership training and contributed much to making hydro working safety-minded.

He was thanked for his letters by Howard Hanton, assistant works manager of International Hardware Company of Belleville.

SAFETY RALLY PLANNED

The chairman announced that a giant safety rally was being planned for the entire area in April under the sponsorship of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association as part of the nation-wide safety campaign for the month. The board is arranging a program of top-flight entertainment and the presentation of an outstanding guest speaker who will deal with the matter of safety in the home, at work and on the highway.

Through the efforts of the association, Trenton achieved a record which it should maintain that set the pace for the entire district. It was with great regret that the report included one fatality through an industrial accident in the year, however the town still gave leadership to the district through the number of accident prevention under the supervision of the Safety Council of the Central Bridge Company, who also have an association programs last year.

NEW STYLE

LONDON (CP) — The general post office will equip postmen in a new grey uniform. The old-style blue uniform has been in use since 1837. The red stripe will be retained on the trousers.

Basket Weaving Being Taught To Retarded

TRENTON—The eleven children at the Trenton Children's School for the Retarded are now receiving instruction in basket weaving from Mrs. Lawson and John Wauters and Mrs. "Em" Campbell. The baskets are made of soft foam rubber strips. The children are really making quite an elegant job of the finished basket. The association has plans to hold an open house at the school in April, where the handiwork of the children will be on sale and to raise funds to help with school projects.

Every Thursday afternoon the children are taken in their new bus to the swimming pool at the RCAF Station, Trenton. There they have been learning to swim and the others are making rapid progress.

Basket weaving is becoming "Retarded Children" concious. Many groups have been busy with cash donations or help in some other tangible way. The Ivan Eyre Club recently donated $25 at Brezdner School, donate $20 to the school association. The Knights of Columbus have kindly given the use of their facilities during the Lenten period, when the bingos would normally be discontinued. The members of the association will meet at the school Wednesday night in the Knights of Columbus Hall, over Simpson's, on Dundas Street.

Service clubs have forwarded fair-sized donations to the association in recent weeks. The Rotary Board of Directors has a project under consideration to supply a large school room in one of the Rotary Clubs with the children in the fall. The small schoolhouse is overcrowded, has been used, free of charge, since the school was started in September, 1958. The number is growing and new quarters must be found.

Skunk Causes Panic

TRENTON — In spite of waist deep snow drifts on Trenton side streets that are keeping Trenton in the house, early this morning there was excitement a-plenty as big way down Mercia Street, entirely oblivious to the weather conditions, a skunk was sticking his way down Mercia Street, entirely oblivious to the weather conditions. Several children who were old enough to realize the imminent danger of the situation, and sending frantic shrieks into the streets to rescue children who were not quick enough to want to pet the cute little black and white "pussy."

James Duncan Heads Trenton Concert Group

TRENTON — At a recent meeting of the Trenton Community Concert Association, the following officers were elected for the 1960-61 season: president, Mr. James Duncan; vice-president, Miss Neal Parker; recording secretary, Mrs. Ruth Crewe; corresponding secretary Dr. C. W. Wilson.

Miss Farley is also the ticket manager and in the case of a campaign will be held in April, the membership will close on May 1st and next season's concerts will be: The Jean Templeton Trio will perform on April 22nd.

NEW IMMIGRANT FARE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian Pacific Airlines announced Thursday it will introduce a low-cost immigrant fare to Britain to Canada when it inaugurates regular Montreal - Rome flights March 4. The $250 fare for an adult immigrant travelling alone — which will apply from 17 major Italian cities on a year-round basis—will be $87 less than the lowest regular fare now offered. Special fares for wives and children of immigrant families will also ge

Accident Prevention Meet Attended by 100 Supervisors

More than 100 men of supervisory staffs of 21 Quinte District industries gathered for a meeting of the Belleville-Trenton district, Industrial Accident prevention Association, Mr. Fred Pilsher, personnel manager of Stewart-Warner Company, was chairman of the Belleville section, presided.

In his opening remarks the chairman pointed out that 102 industrial representatives from 21 companies had registered. They represented a total of 8,500 workers in the Quinte area and each took away something of worth from each of the regular meetings, said Mr. Fisher. He outlined plans for a giant safety rally in April which would be open to the general public and would be held at Trenton High School.

Weekend Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP)—The demand for slaughter cattle remained sluggish for the most part during the week and steer and heifer prices declined unevenly 25 cents to $1 per hundredweight lower.

Cows opened steady but closed at prices 50 cents lower and replacements were in less demand.

Veal calf prices were steady.

Hog prices were $1.50 per hundredweight lower and sows $2 lower. Slags were $1 per hundredweight lower and sheep and lamb prices generally unchanged.

Cattle receipts were 850 head less than last week and 500 less than the same week in 1959. Receipts from Western Canada were 298 cattle and 47 calves. There were also 298 hogs and 3 lambs received.

There were no shipments to Eastern Canada or the United States, and no exports to the United States.

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers 22-22.50 with early sales at 23; good 21-22; medium 18-20; common 15-18; good heifers 19-20 with choice to 20.50; medium 17-18; common 14-16; choice heifer yearlings 24-25; good 22-24; good cows 14-15 with early sales to 15.50; medium 13.50-14.00 common 12-13; canners and cutters 9-12; good heavy bologna bulls 17.50-18; common and medium light bulls 14-17.

Calves: Good vealers 34-36; with choice to 38; medium 27-33; common 20-26; boners 12-18.

Heavy Grade A 20; heavy cows 13; lights 15; stags 11 on a dressed weight basis.

Sheep and lambs Good handyweight lambs 23-23.50; medium and heavy lambs 18-22; common 15-18; sheep 3-10 according to quality.

Brotherhood Week

We have on our desk a bulky docket of releases on "Brotherhood Week." We look eagerly forward to the day when we shall be able to take such a package and toss it, unscanned, into the wastepaper basket—and so, we are sure, do the members of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews (Inc.), which annually sponsors the week. When it is possible to ignore the Week, when no reference to it is necessary, it will mean that the brotherhood of mankind has become universally accepted—and accepted not merely in theory but in fact, in deed as well as in word.

Meanwhile, though with no great assurance that such an oft-repeated assertion on this page will work any great changes, we have a duty to join with other newspapers throughout the land in asserting that neither race, nor color, or creed are the measure of a man, that men, everywhere, are entitled to the enjoyment of certain basic human rights and fundamental freedoms and as long as one man is deprived of these rights no other man ought to be content with things as they are.

"Unity without uniformity" is the motto for this year's Brotherhood Week, being observed this week. It is a good one. It is good, too, to realize that this week is being sponsored by men of different religious beliefs, by Protestants, Roman Catholics and Jews. Council members, we are happy to be

Chevrier Says Canada Needs New Trade Policy

MONTREAL (CP) — Lionel Chevrier, Liberal member of Parliament for Montreal-Laurier, said Thurs. the federal government must adopt a new tariff policy if Canada's international trade is to prosper.

In an address to students of Montreal University, he said to encourage trade European nations had lowered their tariff barriers while Canada raised its tariffs.

The text of Mr. Chevrier's speech was released to the press in advance of delivery.

Canada's existing tariff policy, he said, has resulted in reprisals on the part of the United States.

The U.S. had imposed a quota on imports of Canadian oil, zinc and lead and had announced no more uranium would be bought from Canadian sources when present contracts expire in 1962.

With regional trade blocs throughout the world menacing the Canadian export trade, the Liberal party has encouraged the establishment of a trade community among Atlantic nations, he said.

Mr. Chevrier said such a project is the only realistic and positive manner in which a democratic Canada's economic independence from the United States can be diversified and increase Canadian trade.

PENNY WEIGHT

The English penny is so named because originally 240 pence, which make £1, were equivalent to one pennyweight of silver.

Sunday School Lesson

Dangers of a Half-Truth

By ROY L. SMITH

Nothing in this world is more dangerous than a mastered truth which is in possession of a half-truth.

The Apostle Paul had preached some hard-hitting sermons in the city of Ephesus which had created a riot. The silversmiths of the city — the beer-organized body of workers in the town — had become infuriated because of his attacks on idolatry, and under the leadership of one of their officers — a man by the name of Demetrius — they had stirred up such a disturbance that it had been necessary for the aging preacher to leave town. Among some of the Jews of Ephesus it had aforded some satisfaction for it had rid them of a religious competitor who was giving them no little trouble.

BROKE OUT IN JERUSALEM

Not long afterwards, the Apostle, in Jerusalem with a considerable sum of money he had collected in Europe with which he proposed to buy food, clothing and medical supplies for the destitute Christians there, was accused of having violated the sanctity of the Temple. The gentile who had been caught in sacred precincts usually closed to all gentiles, was seen in Paul's company on the street and that was all the evidence the troublemakers needed.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for February 28: "A Prisoner for Christ," Acts 21:17 through 22:29.

Three small facts, in the hands of a hateful person, can be manipulated until they become a monstrous truth. In Paul's case a series of microscopic facts were inflated, until they became a riot.

Neither the religious nor the civic authorities in Jerusalem would pay interest in the welfare of the silversmiths of Ephesus, but the hatred engendered in that city broke out in bitter fruits in the Temple courtyard. Evil has a way of changing color like a chameleon, and continuing evil.

There had been some truth in the charge that the silversmiths of Ephesus had brought against Paul. He had preached against idolatry, and hundreds of people had quit buying images. But the Apostle had never attacked the craftsmen as such.

There come times when, if it is to preach righteousness, the Church finds itself under the necessity of speaking out against some mistaken good people. In a certain western city a militant pastor felt himself constrained to wage a war on the city administration on moral grounds. At the same time there was on his official board a highly influential member who served in an important post in the city government. It was extremely difficult for that preacher to convince that layman that his opposition to the politicians was not a personal matter.

On the lips of the Ephesian clerk the report of Paul's preaching in Ephesus sounded very damaging. And the Jerusalem Jews, not overly squeamish about ascertaining the exact facts, found a charge tailored to their measure.

The Ugly American, a highly dramatic recital of the activities of Americans in foreign countries — especially government representatives — contains many truths, but portrays them abundantly lustfully. The damage done to American prestige by the incompetents, the provocative, and the self-seekers, has been tremendous. But that is not the entire story.

The good that has been accomplished by honest and sincere servants of the government, working under difficult conditions and far removed from their usually comforting conditions, has been enormous.

To extoll the one group and condemn the other, without qualification, is wicked. The popularity of half-truths has done us great damage.

A well-poised business executive found himself one day in the midst of a situation which exhibited all the symptoms of an incipient crisis that moment he rendered one of the greatest services of his life. In spite of a natural reticence he managed to get to the platform and, in quiet tones, gave the greatest service we can render our country today is to hold our tempers and keep our heads."

Latest in Spring Fashions Shown by Christ Church Group

The latest in spring fashions were eloquently introduced Wednesday night to a capacity audience at Christ Church Parish Hall when the Contact Club was hostess at its second annual fashion show.

Guests entered the auditorium amidst a profusion of spring flowers and ferns, reminding us that spring is just around the corner.

Club president Doris Stewart introduced Florence Leaney, commentator for the fashion show.

Centred by a maypole and accompanied by French poodles, the first three models were introduced.

June Woolley, Betty Ling and Margaret Shapes were radiant in their frocks of pastel organza, with shades of heavenly blue, golden yellow and mint respectively. The beautifully bouffant skirts were accented by attached crinolines.

As the models came on stage and walked down through the audience showing the latest in pastel dresses, suits, hats, sportswear, ensembles and furs, Florence charmingly commented on the styles, colors and details of the costuming.

In the first group of party and special occasion dresses, it was evident that organzas, floral prints, unpressed pleats and cummerbunds are the current trend in lights of milady's wardrobe.

Fashions for a lady-in-waiting were modelled by a newer model, Joan Massiah, showing a neat coffee three-piece suit. She was accompanied by petite Linda Sands, wearing a full embossed pink nylon frock with matching hat and purse.

Sally Honey, another new model, was exquisite in printed brilliant blue taffeta with a full skirt. Sally later modelled a beige three-quarter coat over a turquoise suit of nubby rayon and acetate. For casual living, Sally's brown linen topped by a nautical striped shag sweater was a comfortable outfit.

HOLIDAY CLASS

Looking towards summer and accenting the holiday mood, the models took to the scene in wonderful collection of sportswear. Matching sweater sets, peppered slims, sweaters, pastel tartans are the "news" this season. The popular colors were big browns.

Myra Cresswell modelled town and country wear which requires a practical outlook for busy days. Her full-length, lined fur coat was mink-toned with a taylor style jacket with mink as collar. Powder blue and a plaid skirt and matching completed her ensemble. For special occasions, Myra showed a floral print silk.

The striking Highland Queen suit in soft muted tones of green and beige worn by Margaret Wiggins topped with a beige wool and tuxedo-style mohair topcoat met with immediate approval of both the model and the audience. The matching luggage sets which adorned the stage were beauty in their own field.

Highland Queen tartan was again popular with Nadine Thorpe, sporting tapered slims, matching weskit and showing a matching skirt. She also wore tan leather jacket and tan cuffed blouse. Nadine previously wore a fully lined organza in mint gold shades with large collar and cummerbund. Later she modelled a hunter green plaid rainsmaster topper over a waffle weave suit in moss and white diamond check.

Next came the hats in fitting variety — the setting of hat decks and an artistic pink dress-ing table added charm to the display.

This year, the popular sherry-drop tones, the Pelmalac and Milan straws, dainty flowered wigs, pill box, sailors and pic-ture hats with their delicate trimmings of flowers and ribbons captured the "tops" in hat fashions. The white rose held priority among the trimmings.

SPRING SUITS

Back to the spring garden again with its white garden bench, the models displayed the latest in spring suits, dresses and top coats of nubby linens and washable fabrics.

Dorothy Sinclair modelled a Chesterfield-styled black and white gallery plaid top coat with a black velveteen collar and trim. The material looked like home linen but was almost weightless. The accompanying suit was an attractive black model, featuring a row of black buttons, tiny bows at the nipped in hemline and slight fullness in the back of the suit coat. The skirt was pencil slim. For sportswear, Dorothy wore a matching green sweater set and skirt.

Joan Hamish was lovely in a washable two-piece dress of "Sonarela" fabric in a greyed olive shade. The large rounded collar was caught at the front with a bow of narrow ties, the sleeves being all in one with the bodice. Topped by a shaggy wool coat in large grey and white plaid, the ensemble was a happy choice for the model's coloring. Her sportswear included black slims, shaggy cardigan and white blazer.

Mature fashions of the day were introduced by a charming model, Mrs. Annabelle Kempson. Her choice of deep green silk bengaline for special occasions, navy silk shantung suit for sportswear and an attractive suit of olive green shantung pleased many women in the rose mature age group.

The radiant lady-in-waiting returned to show a beautiful Wedgewood silk dress with large white collar. She was again accompanying her debonair three-year-old Sands, whose well-polished shoes made a graceful exit and brought forth an abundance of smiles and applause from the audience. Linda's frock was powder blue brocade featuring a hat pocket.

RED TOPCOAT

Betty Ling was striking in a bright red topcoat and Arnel dress. A perennial favorite, red, this coat had soft lines, raglan sleeves and fullness in the box-pleated back below a small rounded collar. A useful and practical addition to the wardrobe, the fabric is stain and lint-repellent.

Spring fur fashions held the audience spellbound as June Woodley modelled a 32-inch black Persian Lamb in natural shade. Earlier, furs this year have large collars, and set on cuffs. The sleeves styles included new length jackets, a motor coat of sheared brown lamb, trimmed with collar of Canadian beaver, grey Persian Lamb and a delightful Russian squirrel stole which was lightweight and extremely low. Examples of sapphire mink, jackets of muskrat and China-mink trim, stoles and cape, showed the very excellence in furs.

Margaret Shapcos modelled a Canadian sapphire mink stole in a natural shade. Earlier, she wore a matching duster in tunic length over an empire evening gown. The fabric was nubby linen in golden yellow and the accessorizing fabric was white with olive dots. This charming model carried a smart matching handbag and wore matching gloves.

June Woolley also showed a beautiful blue wool coat with plunge sleeves over a sleeveless blue suit of "Enteto" nubby fabric with a gently bloused top, rounded peplum and back buttoning.

At the conclusion of the show, the models appeared again and received enthusiastic applause for their efforts.

Dorothy Sloan, pianist, who provided the music during the evening, was introduced, as were club president Doris Stewart and conveners Joan Ford and Trudy Sands. Mrs. Sands presented flowers to Miss Pearl Vintner who directed the show. Miss Vintner of London, England, is a professional window dresser and the artistic decorations in the hall were a credit to her ability.

Lucky recipients of door prizes were Mrs. DeBoer, Mrs. J. Hunter, Mrs. R. Bell and Florence Whitefoot.

PERSONAL

Friends of Mrs. Robert (Ines) Lloyd, 39 Sixth Street, will regret to learn that she is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

YOUNG SCULPTOR — Dorita Peer, 7, shown here with examples of her sculpting talent, has attracted attention of her Grade 1 school teachers and Louis Shore, assistant supervisor of art in Toronto schools. Her work has been described as amazing for her age and Mr. Shore says he has never seen anything like it in his 20 years of teaching. Dorita's favorite subjects are horses. Her work is in plasticine, papier mache, asbestos paste and regular sculptor's clay. (CP Photo).

Girl of Seven Is Sculptor With an Amazing Future

TORONTO (CP) — Dorita Peer, 7, is a sculptor with talent well beyond her years.

The pretty, pig-tailed Grade 1 girl so impressed her teacher, Marian Scott, with her artistic ability that Miss Scott called for expert advice.

Louis Shore, assistant supervisor of art in Toronto schools, came to look. His advice: "Don't inhibit her by giving her adult prejudices." He recommended that Dorita be given materials to work with, shown how to use them but not told what to do or how to do it.

Dorita's ability to model expressively with her hands led Miss Scott and Mr. Shore to introduce her to sculpture. Plasticine is her favorite but she has turned out work in papier mache, asbestos paste and sculptor's clay.

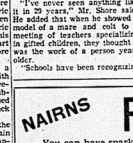
The result has been a series of increasingly good models, particularly of horses, her favorite subject.

"I've never seen anything like it in 20 years," Mr. Shore said. He added that when he showed a model of a mare and colt to a meeting of teachers specializing in gifted children, they thought it was the work of a person years older.

"Schools have been recognizing gifted children for a long time but we're only beginning to do more for the artistically gifted child," Mr. Shore said. However, this didn't mean Dorita would be forced into art courses in later years.

She would be permitted to move at her own speed—and she has a nimble, mind—in whatever course she chooses. He said she may decide to use her talents as a decorator or designer.

Her work in other subjects is good although not quite as advanced as her art work. And the attention attracted by her ability has influenced other children in her class, many of whom have begun to create artistically.



OSD Brownies Hold Thinking Day Party

On Tuesday night, the Brownies of the 10th Pack, Ontario School for the Deaf, had a Thinking Day Party. It was in honor of Lord Baden - Powell, the founder of Guides, Brownies, Cubs and Scouts.

Each six was a different country. Dale Kasarda's six represented England, Mary Michelson's six represented Poland, Brenda Bowen's six represented Holland and Nancy Charles's six represented the USA. A birthday cake was decorated with birthday candles and tiny flags of the country. Miss Shantz, (the Brown Owl), told the Brownies a story about Lord Baden-Powell. Each sixer lit a candle for her country. Miss Anglin, (Tawny Owl), lit a candle for Japanese Brownies and Miss Dennis, (Tawny Owl), lit a candle for the Brownies in Canada. All the Brownies did the Grand Howl and saluted. Then the girls sang "Happy Birthday" for Lord Baden-Powell.

ST. ANDREW'S CHOIR AUX.

WELLINGTON — St. Andrew's Choir Auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. F. Quick on Thursday afternoon. The Rev. J. J. Rogers opened the meeting with a hymn.

Mrs. Quick, the president, welcomed the members and guests.

Mrs. Tripp and Mrs. Roiston reported that all the vestments had been examined and were in good shape. Some hats are needed for the younger members of the choir. It was voted that Mrs. Way and Mrs. Tripp purchase material to make the hats that are needed.

It was decided to hold a euchre party in the Town Hall on March 17th at 8 p.m. A discussion took place on the annual "Easter Bunny Tea" and bake sale. It was decided to hold it on Easter Monday, April 18th.

The president thanked Mrs. Upton for a gift of a cribbage board to be used at their card parties. It was also voted that the secretary purchase cribbage boards, plates and other necessities for their card parties.

Final arrangements were made for the pancake supper to be held March 1st in Town Hall. Mrs. Tripp to be the convener of the supper.

Next meeting to be held at Mrs. Delbert Boyles on March 10th.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Blower.

Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Barriage Happily Wed for 56 Years

The strike threat as a weapon to enforce demands for higher pay is not a new idea but was found to be effective at least a half a century ago.

That is the recollection of Thomas D. Barriage, 77 South Church Street, who, with Mrs. Barriage this week celebrated 56 years of married life.

A one-time switch operator with the Grand Trunk Railways, Mr. Barriage recalled that 50 years ago he received but $1.50 per day for switching in the yards.

"You couldn't keep a family on that," he said.

With other switch operators he went on strike for higher pay back in 1910. The strike lasted for 18 days.

The anniversary celebration for Mr. and Mrs. Barriage was a surprise affair held Tuesday at the home of their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Paul St. Pierre of this city.

LIFETIME RESIDENTS

Lifetime residents of the city, Mr. and Mrs. Barriage still enjoy fairly good health, although Mr. Barriage had the misfortune to lose a leg by amputation a few years ago after he contracted gangrene. He is 78, while Mrs. Barriage is 74. She is the former Lillian Rushlow.

All of their six children one son and five daughters, were present for the anniversary celebration. A buffet lunch was served along with a piece of wedding anniversary cake which, before the cutting ceremony, bore a full quota of 56 candles.

A guest at Tuesday's anniversary was Mr. Barriage's brother, Harvey Barriage, aged 80, of Oshawa.

Children of the 56-year-wed couple are Charles Barriage, Mrs. Lottie Storms, Mrs. Lola Bentley, Mrs. Daisy St. Pierre, Mrs. Nellie Harris and Mrs. Fred Waite, all of this city.

There are 23 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

V.O.N. Gives Report For February

At the regular monthly meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses held February 15 at the Y.M.C.A., a report was brought from the annual meeting of the United Appeal. The campaign chairman requested personnel for the campaign period. Publicity is required throughout the year, and they would like a board member from the V.O.N. to serve on their publicity committee. Mrs. James Nelles will serve in this capacity. Each agency should always stress that they depend upon funds from the United Appeal for their operation.

V.O.N. ANNUAL MEET

The annual meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses is to be held in Ottawa on May 5 and 6th. Miss D. Connor will be sent as representative to it. Any subjects to be discussed should be sent in to head office. Mr. C. Lusk, the president is the official delegate to that meeting.

The local branch is asked to assist the educational program of nursing students and to take two students from April 19 to May 13. It was decided to carry on with this training as in previous years.

Mr. Harold Parker consented to be representative once more at the general annual meeting in Toronto on May 27th.

VISITING DONE

Miss D. Connor, head nurse, gave her report which was as follows: In January, 304 home visits were made to 111 patients. Of these, 364 were for nursing care, the remainder being for health supervision. Of the 304 nursing care visits, 240 were to medical, surgical and chronically ill patients.

School nursing service at the Douglas Atkins School on Elmwood Drive, started January 13th. Two half-days were spent at Douglas Atkins School, two half-days at Cannifton - Corbyville school and four half-days were spent assisting the Belleville Department of Health at the Child Health Conferences at the Kiwanis Centre.

"World Refugee Year" Topic At C.W.L. Regional Meet

"World Refugee Year" was the topic of the guest speaker heard Sunday last at a Regional Conference of The Catholic Women's League of Canada, held in St. Michael's Auditorium. C.W.L. members from Batawa, Trenton, RCAF Station, Picton, Point Anne and Belleville assembled to hear the Reverend A. C. Hendrikx, of Kingston, deliver his address and obtain the latest information on League policy and resolutions from the Diocesan officers and convenors.

Mrs. R. E. Barrett in her introduction, mentioned that Father Hendrikx came to Canada in 1922 and has worked constantly among the Dutch speaking Catholics in Kingston Archdiocese and neighboring dioceses.

A Hollander by birth, he spent three years as a political prisoner of the Germans including a year and a half at Dachau concentration camp. He was released by the 7th Allied Army. He is a member of the Advisory Committee on Catholic Immigration Services and Diocesan Director of Immigration for Kingston.

WHAT IS A REFUGEE?

What is a refugee: the Geneva Convention has defined a refugee to be a person who has left his homeland because of fear of persecution. Living in a free country it is difficult to understand that persecution and oppression can be synonymous. A Yugoslavian refugee in reply to the Zellerbach Commission on 'What is a Refugee', said: "Your question proves to me that the West understands little of the real nature of the Communist system. In by persecution, you mean a term of imprisonment, then I have not been persecuted: but there are a thousand little pressures in the every day life of every person which taken together make life unbearable. I have not been arrested, but one midnight the UDBA called at my apartment house and took away the man who lived above me. The next night someone from across the street was taken. If one is known to be artiestic and a non-supporter of the Regime, then he must live in constant fear of a visit from UDBA.

"Moreover, I am religious, the churches are open in Yugoslavia, but they, too, are oppressed in many different ways. Religious marriages are frowned upon and discouraged. In the schools the youth are incited against religion and when it comes to advancement in one's work or arranging for better housing, those who are considered as Godless in their personal record are given preference over those who have remained faithful to their religion. There is the impossible economic situation and the fact that the State is the only employer to whom one can turn.

"In Yugoslavia I cannot say that I was singled out for individual persecution. But like the great majority there, I have suffered oppression. It is from this, that I am a refugee — it is because of this that I do not wish to return." Father Hendrikx said "The problem of the refugees, is a challenge of our times."

GUESTS PRESENT

Among those present for the conference were: Rt. Rev. J. F. Sullivan, Pastor of St. Michael's; Very Rev. J. G. Clancy, Picton; Rev. R. C. Pickett, Kingston; Rev. Michael Simson, Holy Rosary, Belleville; the Diocesan president, Mrs. H. B. Slaven; Mrs. B. A. McNamee, Provincial convener of Education; Mrs. G. O. Saunders, Civic Action; Mrs. Harmsworth, J. F. T. Lemieux, press and publicity; Mrs. J. B. Fisher, report formula; Mrs. W. G. Pearson, Canadian League Magazine, all of Kingston; Mrs. J. E. Boyd, Diocesan secretary; Mrs. B. E. Burley, past Diocesan president; Mrs. J. Bond, regional convener of Picton.

Mrs. Herbert Brown, president of the hostess council opened the meeting, and following the directives given by each Diocesan convener and the reports of the parish councils, the two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Brown delighted everyone with two tap-dancing numbers. Accompanying music was supplied by their father, on the violin and Mrs. William Grant at the piano.

Delicious refreshments were served under the supervision of Mrs. Frank Domenico, chairman of the hospitality committee. Mrs. A. Wilkinson, Mrs. D. Moran and Mrs. Bruce Simon.

Pouring at the beautifully appointed tea table, were: Mrs. Godfrey Donohue and Mrs. Walter Allore.

Mrs. A. F. McFadden, expressed appreciation to all those who took part in the program of the Conference.

TRAPPED FINGERS

GALT, Ont. (CP) — Eight-year-old Vicky Westrop spent two hours with four fingers locked tightly in a collapsed metal chair. The accident happened at a Brownie meeting. The little girl was taken to hospital, where rivets were drilled out of the chair to release her.

FRANKFORD UNITED W.A.

FRANKFORD — The February meeting of the Frankford United Church W.A. was held recently in Rose Lowery Hall.

The membership pot-luck dinner was well attended with 30 members and 16 visitors present.

The meeting afterward was opened with quiet music by Mrs. S. Martin. Mrs. A. Stickle read a poem, "Time."

The devotional service was taken by Mrs. G. Harrington and her group, Mrs. W. Scott and Mrs. B. Stickle. The theme was "The Spirit of Man Is the Candle of the Lord." The Scripture was read by Mrs. W. Scott. Mrs. B. Stickle gave the theme topic and the devotional service was closed with prayer by Mrs. G. Harrington.

Mrs. A. Stickle took charge of the business. The bazaar date was changed to October 26th. Keep the date April 6th open for a pageant, "A Pattern for Peace" from Switzerland.

The program was as follows: reading, "Strawberry Shortcake," by Mrs. R. Moran; Mrs. Grills sang a solo; "Try Again" was given by Mrs. J. Charles North; Mrs. B. Stickle read a selection, "The Making of Friends"; Mrs. S. Martin rendered a piano solo; Mrs. J. Morrow gave a reading, "Point of View" and Mrs. G. Harrington read "Co-Operation"; Mrs. Scott "Mr. Simpson's Valentine."

MOIRA W.A.

MOIRA — The monthly meeting of Moira W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. Ross Ketchabaw with a good attendance. The president opened the meeting. Scripture from Colossians 1:1 to 14 was read by Mrs. Jeff Calvert and the commentary on the Scripture by Mrs. Naftel with prayer by Mrs. C. McKinney.

Business was dealt with and plans for a bazaar in the fall were made; thank-you letters were read.

The conveners, Mrs. Earl Thompson and Mrs. Don Meinroy had charge of the program which included a reading by Mrs. Edith Vanderwater, "The Better Way," a duet by Mrs. Angus Mumby, "Pray Without Ceasing", reading by Mrs. Dorothy Thompson, "A Little Bunch of Sheep" and a solo by Mrs. David Mumby on the guitar.

The topic was given by Mrs. Gilbert Thompson, "The Women of the Bible."

Lunch was served by the hostess and helpers.

Readers' Friday Column

As conducted by Mary Moore

LETTER:

The story goes that this . . . Shepherd's Pudding — was the nourishing dish the Shepherds made and took to Mary after the birth of Jesus, so it often enters Christmas Eve after-returning from church, eaten with spicy currant bread and cheese. But after making it myself this year for the first time and finding it both delicious and economical I thought I'd pass it on to you — as it can be used when-ever the season . . . Mrs. R. D.

SHEPHERD'S PUDDING:

(Courtesy Mrs. R. D.)

Take 4 cups fresh milk, add 1 cup pearl barley and pinch of salt. Put either in double boiler or heavy saucepan and cook slowly for 2 or 3 hours until barley is tender and has absorbed most of the milk. Add 1 cup white sugar, 3-4 teaspoons cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon nutmeg. Mix well together. You may need to add more milk. If at this stage you want to, add 1-2 cup currants and 1 egg mixed well and put in casserole in oven for 1-2 hour at 325 deg. F. Or you may omit the egg and currants and serve as is with pouring cream. Either way delicious.

ANSWER:

am pleased with this particularly because it calls for barley. Nutritionists are telling us we should include more whole grains in our North American diet to consume to full advantage all of their vitamins and minerals.

QUESTION:

We are planning on having about 16-20 (mixed) for a bowling party and returning home for refreshments afterwards. Have you any su- ns- tions? I like the casserole idea, my husband likes the cold meat, rye bread idea. Also what about dessert? Is it necessary or are cakes and Christmas cake enough? Amounts required are a problem . . . Lucy N.

ANSWER:

Since your husband expressed his preference I think you should concede. It makes less work for you too. Buy a variety of fancy meats such as salami, pepperoni, smoked salmon, Polish sausage, liverwurst and some of the uncommon sausages that the Italian and German stores feature. Roasted and sliced smoked loin of pork is ever so popular. Slice your rye bread thinly. French bread should be thicker and very fresh. Provide lengthwise thin slices of dill, and some slices of cheese for the addicts. Celery and carrots curls would be popular relishes. As for amounts, they are variable. You will need approximately 3 or 4 pounds in all of fancy meats to serve 16 or 20. Allow 3 slices of buttered bread each, since after bowling your crowd will be hungry. A tossed green salad or cole slaw or potato salad would be welcome. I think a dessert is superfluous. Your cakes and Christmas cake would be sufficient.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. E. K. — Paula has no friends.

Paula K. — My parents should leave me alone.

Mrs. E. K. — My husband and I are quite concerned about our 21-year-old daughter, Paula, who is suddenly without social life.

Paula went to a junior college for two years, hoping to transfer to a regular college at the end of that time. Unfortunately, her marks weren't what they should have been and she didn't get into the college she wanted. She came home and started a secretarial course, but dropped it in the middle. She goes out sometimes looking for a job, but never finds anything suitable.

We don't mind her staying home and not working as we can well afford to take care of her. The only trouble is that she isn't meeting any people and rarely sees any of her old friends. She has one elderly boy friend whom she goes out with every weekend, but she admits he's a jerk.

Paula K. — My parents keep telling me to call up my old friends, but I just can't do that. Most of them have gotten married. Some of them are away at college and rarely come home. I don't have much in common with either group.

I realize I have to find some social life, but it isn't easy when all your friends are away or married. Of course, I could meet people at a job, but I don't have the qualifications for a job in a good place.

I feel that I'm at a sort of crossroads in my life and my parents should leave me alone until I'm sure of what to do next. If worse comes to worse and nothing comes my way I can always marry Faithful Fred.

The Council: Most of us encounter a crossroads or uncertain period in our lives and we need to be left alone to figure things out. Paula is right in asking for a let-up of pressure from her parents.

Yet we wonder whether she is actually going through such a period or a general slump that does not bode well for the future. We think her difficulties may go deeper than her parents suspect and that her lack of friends is just one sign of inner trouble.

We get the impression that Paula is retreating from taking an active role on behalf of her own life. She is too ready to leave things to chance. She should recognize that chance is a good friend of the industrious and senselessly and few of its moves are in favor of the individual who depends on it.

Paula's failure to get into college was a blow, but judging from her general attitude we suspect that she did not make an all-out effort to succeed. Some wrong idea or emotional obstruction stood between her and her goal and we think she should try to overcome it.

We don't think this can be done by sitting at home and mulling. Paula should force herself to make a decision about the immediate future. Dropping the secretarial course was a bad idea because she is setting a pattern of failure and half-attempts. This can go on endlessly. She should set a reasonable goal and make up her mind to go through with it.

Paula shows that she is far from ready for marriage. If she wants marriage now or in the near future, she should make an effort to meet people and attract desirable men. She should ignore "Faithful Fred" as a substitute for the necessary course of action.

Color in Home Decoration Told Coronation WA

On Monday evening the February meeting of Bridge Street United Church Coronation W.A. was held in the church parlor with a large number attending.

The president, Mrs. B. M. Kerr, welcomed the members and guests and conducted a short business meeting.

Mrs. G. Shaver gave a report on the plans for the 'hat show,' tea and bazaar to be held in March and asked that each member donate to the bake table, handicraft bouch and white elephant table.

Mrs. Kerr thanked Mrs. D. Vice and her helpers for assisting at the February meeting of the A.O.T.S. Men's Club.

Mrs. J. E. Dickens and her group were in charge of the devotional period. The Scripture was read by Mrs. Welbanks. Mrs. R. Bateman gave the meditation and Mrs. Dickens led in prayer.

The guest speaker for the evening, Mrs. John Grant, president of the Arts and Crafts club, was introduced by Mrs. C. Bristol.

Mrs. Grant spoke on the art of using color in home decorating.

During the social hour, refreshments were served by Mrs. Dickens' group.

This coat is well geared for both travel and resort duty. It is of pastel plaid lining which is also used as facing or the casual collar. Patch pockets and a wrap-around sash are other details. The coat can also be worn swinging loose, minus its sash.

30 Neighbors, Friends Shower Bride-Elect

WELLINGTON — About 30 friends and neighbors of Mrs. Vivian Lawrence met at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Preston, on Monday evening to honor her with a miscellaneous shower prior to her marriage.

The evening was spent playing bingo. At about ten o'clock Mrs. Lawrence was seated in a chair and Mrs. Sid Broadbridge read an appropriate address, after which the two young sons, Larry and Raymond Lawrence, of the honored guest, carried in many lovely and useful gifts. Vivian thanked her friends for their kindness.

Refreshments were served by the sponsors of the party, Mrs. Sid Broadbridge and Mrs. Dick Hubbard, assisted by Mrs. Vader and Mrs. Preston.

SIGNATURE TIPS FOR THE BRIDE

After the honeymoon is over, a young bride faces the realization that she has assumed a new and important station in life. By attaining the important title of "Mrs.," she has assumed many responsibilities. Among them is knowing how to perform the social amenities expected of a married woman. She must not lose sight of the importance of the so-called "little" niceties that differentiate between one who knows the right thing to do, and when to do it, and one who does not.

For example, it may not seem particularly important to know the proper way in which to sign one's newly-acquired married name, but not doing so correctly is a definite give-away that the signer either doesn't know how, or, even worse, doesn't care. To those in the former category, the following will prove helpful:

When signing her name on a business letter, or when writing to an acquaintance, a married woman uses her maiden name and the surname of her husband, "Mary Gray Doe." To the left, and little below this signature, in parenthesis, her husband's name should be placed (Mrs. James H. Doe). The latter is merely a means of furthering one's identification. When writing to a friend, the signature would, of course, be simply "Mary," or "Mary Doe."

It is considered extremely bad form to use a husband's full name, preceded by the prefix "Mrs.," as the actual signature on a letter. However, when registering at a hotel, the correct signature is "Mrs. James Horace Doe."

The signature used when signing one's checks is up to the individual. Most commonly used today is the maiden name and married surname, "Mary Gray Doe." However, "Mrs. James Horace Doe" may be preferred in this instance, and this form is not open to criticism. After all, it is one's personal preference that makes this decision.

The married woman who uses her maiden name and married surname, in her business or profession, would not use the identifying husband's name on the left when placing her signature on business correspondence. Another variation is the woman who does not use her husband's name at all in her business affairs. In this case, she would, of course, use only her maiden name for the signature on her business letter.

Question: I am confused about what is said when one is introduced to someone, particularly a woman. I was taught to say "pleased to meet you," but I am wondering if this is correct. Most of the people I meet do not seem to use this phrase. They say "how do you do."

Answer: It is not considered good form to use the phrase "pleased to meet you." "How do you do" is absolutely correct when meeting either a man or a woman.

Question: I recently became a widow and am at a loss to know what is the correct use of my name. Do I use my maiden name, followed by my married surname, or do I use "Mrs. John Francis Doe"? What do I use when having cards engraved?

Answer: A widow always continues using her name in exactly the same way she did when her husband was alive, "Mrs. John Francis Doe" is correct. Her cards would be engraved in the same manner.

Question: I want to announce my daughter's engagement. The father of the man she is to marry is deceased. Should only his mother's name be announced?

Answer: No. In announcing your daughter's engagement you should mention that the man she is to marry "is the son of Mrs. Thomas Smith and the late Mr. Smith."

The Experts Say
Too Much or Too Little Makeup Frequent Mistake

By EDNA BLAKLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"With Canadian women it's generally a case of too little makeup," she said in an interview during a visit to Toronto.

Miss Harmer's own face mirrors the look of "natural beauty" which she says can be achieved with the proper use of makeup. Proper colors, artfully applied with the proper implements, produce the right effect.

"We don't want the perfect statue look." Even worse is the theatrical look that some women get by using too much makeup, she says.

FIRST STEP

"Of course, all beauty begins with cleansing." She advises a cream cleanser. Facial cleansing is not just a soap and water treatment, she says.

Regular beauty care should take 10 minutes at night and 10 minutes in the morning. "Every woman, even a busy housewife, can spare 20 minutes a day."

A veteran of 21 years in the beauty business, Miss Harmer says rouge is most important to Canadian women who are under the impression that outdoor exercise gives them enough natural color. Outdoor weather gives color to the nose and the area around the nose, where it's not needed. Color should be applied high and wide on the cheekbones to draw attention to the eyes.

Many tricks can be done with lipstick to give the face the desired oval shape. With a brush, guide the lipstick from the outer corners to the centre. The lower lip should be curved down for "a smiling, or kissable, look." A tiny mouth will look larger with a light shade.

EYE MAKEUP

Even the most conservative of women can wear eye makeup if they begin by experimenting with "timid" shades, says Miss Harmer, whose choice for a first eye shadow is soft blue.

The color of eye accent, as with rouge and lipstick, is dictated by the costume.

For pastels and navy, Miss Harmer recommends rose or rose-red with a touch of blue for lipstick and blue accent for the eyes.

The new bamboo shades are best with golden-toned lipstick and green eye accent.

Mauves, fuchsias and pinks are enhanced by blue-toned makeup with an orchid cast.

She says mascara for the upper eyelashes is a must for everyone, and eyebrows should never be unrestimated.

The higher the brow the younger the face, Miss Harmer says. She cites television and movie actresses Loretta Young and Ann Sothern as examples of her theory.

Executives of TV Stations At Kingston To Appear Before Governors

OTTAWA (CP) — The executives of two privately owned television stations in Kingston have been told to appear before the board of governors Monday to explain their operations, it was learned Thursday.

The stations are CKWS-TV Kingston and CKLW-TV Windsor. They are among 14 private stations across Canada seeking a renewal of transport department broadcasting licences due to expire March 31.

Operations and policies of the two Ontario stations will be examined by the governors during their public hearing opening in Toronto March 14. The same hearing will consider nine applications to operate Toronto's third TV station.

Other broadcasting outlets whose licences expire next month include the 13 other privately-owned TV stations, two French-language stations, 24 private and five CBC AM and FM radio stations, and four of the CBC's low-power relay transmitters.

However, none of these has been called to appear at the Ottawa hearings.

NO AUTOMATIC ACTION

Informants said that the board, which met for a week last year that it doesn't want to continue the virtually automatic renewals of licences in the past. Is concerned over the programming of both Kingston and Windsor stations.

In the case of CKWS-TV, operated by Frontenac Broadcasting Company Limited, the BBG is expected to ask the licencee to answer the governors' questions on the station's policy.

CKLW-TV, operated by Western Ontario Broadcasting Company Limited, has been asked in writing to expect BBG examination of its "extensive" and "unique" Canadian-content requirements.

Under regulations adopted last fall, the BBG will require that all TV stations must broadcast a minimum of 45-per-cent Canadian content a month in their programming starting April 1, 1961. A year later the requirement will be 55 per cent.

The Windsor station has a special problem in meeting this rule because it is affected by heavy competition from TV stations in Detroit.

Other licences scheduled for renewal April 1 all were issued last year. The BBG has decided to stagger the new licences to expire in two, three, four or five years.

The same procedure, designed to avert a flood of work dealing with dozens of licence renewals in the same year, was followed by the BBG last year in ruling on 171 applications for renewal. Of these 170 received five-year licences of 104 privately-owned radio stations. New licences were issued in four groups of 26, 39, 52 and 53 stations for one, two, three and four years, and others in 1961, 1962 and 1963.

The board ordered a public hearing only of seven of the applications it considered representative of the whole group.

Says Doctors Being Seduced By Drug Industry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Haskell J. Weinstein, a former research director for a big drug manufacturing company, said Thursday doctors are being seduced and brainwashed by the drug industry.

And his predecessor on the job with Charles Pfizer and Company—Dr. Martin A. Seidell—told a senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee in a prepared statement that he resigned in protest against the firm's "perverted marketing attitudes."

Weinstein aimed his testimony at the drug manufacturing industry in general, rather than at Pfizer, he said he had never met Seidell before Wednesday.

Weinstein criticized promotional activities by the drug industry, which he said sometimes gave physicians less than a full picture of the effect of new drugs.

He charged that the result is that "the patient . . . is often exposed to drugs which have been incompletely evaluated and which not infrequently are hazardous."

DRUG MAKERS NAMED

"He (the physician) has been taught, one might almost say brainwashed, to think of the trade mark names of the drugs at all times.

"And, new disease states have been invented to engourage the sale of some drugs.

"He (the physician) has been exposed to remarkable claims in literature concerning the efficacy of the drugs he is asked to prescribe . . . He has been seduced with gimmicks of all sorts in an effort to induce him to use a particular product or a particular drug, with relatively little attention being given to the benefit-risk merits of the drug."

The Pfizer company issued a denial of the allegations of both men. The statement, from Pfizer's public relations department, said:

"As to Dr. Seidell's alleged reason for leaving Pfizer, it is sufficient to say that he resigned only after his assistant received a promotion to which Dr. Seidell thought he was entitled himself."

The statement called Weinstein's charges unjust.

Radio Operator In Third Day Of Testimony

BOSTON (AP)—A Dutch ship radio operator today plunges into the third day of testimony through which he hopes to free himself of a charge that he murdered his pretty classmate near the end of a long voyage from the Orient.

After 20 hours of direct testimony and cross examination, William Van Ile, 31, continues under the gruelling interrogation of the prosecutor, Assistant District Attorney John F. McMahon.

The cross examination furnished an opportunity—which Van Ile took—to assail the credibility of the prosecution witness.

The government charges that Van Ile beat Divorcee Lynn Hoffman, 23, in an argument over her possible pregnancy and cast her overboard to drown last Nov. 1 in the Strait of Lombok, departed Boston for New York, then set sail on a voyage from Singapore.

BODY FOUND NEXT DAY

Her bruised body was found on a harbor island next day. An autopsy showed she was not pregnant.

Van Ile admitted Thursday he had had a shipboard affair with the girl had left her pregnant. But he said he left Singapore a month after her death, when he thought her a suicide.

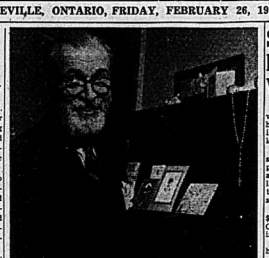
Van Ile also admitted one of the first places he searched after the Chicago divorcee disappeared from the ship Sept. 28 was his own cabin—where their final tryst is said, had occurred in the early morning hours of the same day. But he denied he was trying to find and eliminate evidence that might have incriminated him in her death.

In emotional testimony Wednesday, Van Ile denied killing the girl.

Trainman Killed

...IGNACE (CP) — CPR train...man Paul Mulski, 36, of Kenora, was killed here Thursday when he fell beneath a moving train.

Railway officials said Mr. Mulski was attempting to board a caboose during switching operations and lost his footing.



NON-CONFORMIST — Frederic Alden (Perky) Warren, who retired as president of a large rubber company in 1952, regarded himself as a democratic Individualist. Last December he rented a New York restaurant and treated a group of former employees—including bellhops, clerks and waitresses—to an off-Broadway musical. Mr. Warren is shown here in his Toronto home at the piano he bought after his retirement. Born in Toronto in 1877, he was educated at Upper Canada College there and Royal Military College, Kingston. He became president of the family business, Gutta Percha and Rubber Ltd., in 1932. He got his nickname from the dog that symbolized the company. (CP Photo).

Former President Rubber Co. Refuses to Act Like Retired Business Magnate Should

TORONTO (CP) — In Toronto's Rosedale business district lives a retired business magnate who refuses to act like one.

Frederic Alden Warren, nicknamed Perky, was president of the family business, Gutta Percha and Rubber Ltd., from 1932 until it was sold in 1952.

"It damn near killed me," he says of the burdens of the business. "I took me two or three years to snap back after that. I've been relaxing ever since."

The ways of relaxing are sometimes surprising to many of his afluid former associates.

Last December, at the urging of New York theatrical promoter Joseph Bruhl, he decided to throw a theatre party for some of his lesser-known friends in New York. These included bellhops, porters, clerks, bank tellers, waitresses, telegraph girls and assistant buyers at Simpsons during frequent trips to the city.

To entertain them he bought all the seats to an off-Broadway production of Leave It to Jane, a musical comedy he first saw in 1917 and has seen some 30 times since.

"It's the only clean show in New York," he explained, adding that it never fails to cure him of anything that ails him. "Why take medicine when you can see that?"

The small Sheridan Square Playhouse was his for $300 for the night. Interrogation of Warren across the street and carried it about eight inches at a time, had food sent in, and figured the entire party cost less than $500.

Now deaf nearly in both ears when Bruhl got word that Mr. Warren decided to appear on stage during the performance for the first of opening. Some of the actors felt this would detract from the dignity of their act.

The party finally made a speech before the play, only once it got really rowdy, and a good time was had by all.

Mr. Warren's individuality, as reflected in his off-beat parties, is in contrast to his background. He was born in Toronto in 1877, from an awe-inspiring line of ancestors that left many a Toronto Trumbull, governor of Connecticut during the American Revolution.

He was educated at Upper Canada College in Toronto and the Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont., and served in the Royal Canadian Dragoons and as lieutenant from 1916 to 1918.

After the war he came home and stepped into the family business.

"I'm a democratic soul," he says. "In business I had to be. I had to deal with a same people."

Even now, when he meets a former employee he may take him into a bar for a drink and chat.

The nickname Perky came about after an advertising manager at Gutta Percha complained that while competitors had a snappy, one-word name, such as Firestone and Goodyear, he had to deal with a name some people couldn't pronounce. (It is pronounced Gutta Perka.) The advertising manager decided the company should be symbolized by a dog named Perky. Mr. Warren approved and the more conservative members of the Gutta Percha hierarchy never got over it.

In retirement, Mr. Warren refuses to identify himself with any of the interests of others with wealth.

"I don't go to the races and I don't have a lot of friends," Winter Fair, So I have enough trouble to go a few other things."

Always fond of music, he used to be frustrated because he could play only in the key of C. Then he found a piano with a lever to shift the keys up and down, transposing automatically. This enabled him to play in any key he likes.

Although he used to lie awake dreading the days he had to deliver a presidential address, he now has no difficulty without notes on any subject "as long as it isn't serious."

He looks the part of a non-conformist. Tall, lean, facing a beard to see if it would make him look like his father. It did.

He is bright without a sentence of excess weight, and given to tweeds, flannel shirts and vests, he has lived quietly since his New York adventure. But the sparkle in his eyes, and his gravelhorn - rimmed glasses suggest things won't stay quiet long.

Liberal Move to Again Study Unemployment Has Failed

OTTAWA (CP)—Another Liberal move to launch a study of Canada's unemployment problem has been defeated in the House.

Tuesday Commons industrial relations committee rejected a suggestion by Paul Martin (—Essex East) that the committee be permitted from the Commons to study unemployment and propose methods of dealing with the problem.

Five Liberals and one CCF member voted in favor, 13 Progressive Conservatives against.

Last week a similar Liberal move was turned down in the Commons.

Mr. Martin said the industrial relations committee could not overlook "a matter of such urgency" when it had nothing else to occupy its agenda.

William Benidickson (L—Kenora-Rainy River) said "we're hearing lots of talk about members of Parliament being unemployed or under-employed and we're not doing much about it."

Hazen Argue (L—Nickel Belt) said committees, able to call witnesses and gate matters close study, are designed for just this sort of work, whereas the Commons itself is not.

The industrial relations committee was one of four standing committees launched Thursday.

Harry McGibbon (PC—Comox-Alberni) was elected head of the committee on mines, forests and waterways, succeeding J. W. Murphy, (PC—Lambton West), who may be assigned to head a special committee on science.

Cage W. Montgomery (PC—Victoria-Carleton) heads the veterans affairs committee. Hayden Stanton (PC — Leeds) was re-elected head of the agriculture and colonization committee. Mr. Small of the industrial relations committee.

Seattle Woman Has $18,817 Waiting for Her

OTTAWA (CP) — A Seattle woman — if she still is living — has last $18,817 waiting for her in a Vancouver bank for the last 10 years.

The credit of some 11,000 persons, who, forgetfully or on purpose, have left money sitting around in banks since 1950 were listed in documents tabled in the Commons Thursday. The sums total $438,404.

The largest account was the $18,817 savings deposit of Mrs. Christiana Hill Wilhamson, who in 1950 had a Seattle address.

Most of the inactive accounts, however, are only a few dollars.

The law provides that all of the amount still unclaimed by the end of this year will be turned over to the Central Bank of Canada. Accounts of over $10 will be held by the central bank for 20 years and then turned over to the government.

Unclaimed amounts in Ontario included: $2,185 deposited with Canadian Pacific Railway Centre, deposited in the Royal Bank at Ingersoll; $2,431 deposited by John Bezpalko, Pine Portage, Ont., in the Bank of Nipigon and $2,856, deposited by the estate of John Henry Meerbeck in the Bank of Montreal, Schreiber.

Third Storm In Two Weeks Hits Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal-ers were waking up today to their serious snowstorm in two weeks.

Six inches of heavy, wet snow fell since midnight and the city weather office said as much as five inches may fall before the day is out.

The city roads department sent 300 men and 200 pieces of equipment to work during the night but by the morning only main roads were clear.

"We're going all out now, but this doesn't happen often," a department said.

City buses were running at a near-normal clip, the Montreal transportation commission said.

Montreal Transportation company reported some bus services to the suburbs had been curtailed but most were running.

Snow was also gusting to 40 miles an hour in the open areas piled snow onto the streets almost as fast as it could be removed.

There were a major problem last Friday during a 13-inch snowfall. A total of 25 inches has fallen in the last 10 days.

Reduce Charge To Manslaughter

TRAFALGAR (CP) — Mrs. Norah Cousins, 34, was committed for trial Thursday on a charge of criminal negligence in the shooting death of Ernest Pettitt, 37, a guest at her home here, Feb. 9. She was released on $2,500 bail following a preliminary hearing.

The court was told Beatrice Pettitt, 36, testified she told her wife, Hazel, of having improper relations with Mrs. Cousins' husband, John.

Mrs. Beatrice said she first met Mr. Cousins in Fredericton, N.B., in 1945 and was once engaged to him.

After her husband's accusation she noticed Mrs. Cousins standing in the back yard with a gun in hand. After a shot, she saw Mrs. Cousins leaning over with saying: "Don't die."

Storm Rakes Northern States

CHICAGO (CP) — A fast-moving storm which raked the south and midwest Thursday hit northeastern United States today with heavy snow, sleet and strong winds.

The violent storm dumped heavy snow on western New York state and some sections of Pennsylvania. Atmospheric in Maine, fresh falls measured seven inches in Buffalo, N.Y.

Sleet and ice storms bore fanned the falling snow into huge drifts in many areas, including Detroit.

Gale warnings were displayed along the New England coast and the southern half of the Great Lakes region.

The stormy weather which inundated the midwest Wednesday spread to Florida Thursday, was blamed for at least 22 deaths.

Spanish Bases Issue Shows Britain and Germany Fail To Understand Each Other

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The violent emotions aroused in Britain and Germany over the proposal to establish German bases in Spain emphasize a basic lack of understanding between the two countries.

In Britain, where memories of the events leading to the Second World War are still strong, the idea of German forces using Spain as a training ground conjures up the unpleasant picture of bombers with swastika markings levelling Spanish towns in the Civil War, which proved to be a dress rehearsal for the Battle of Britain.

Paradoxically, it is West Germany's desire to avoid any such bad memories that is the source of the present difficulty.

The stand Chancellor Konrad Adenauer over the outburst of anti - semitic incidents last Christmas proves West Germany's vulnerability whenever it is confronted by the spectre of Hitler's not quite dead. His spontaneous solution was to urge rightthinking citizens to beat up old fenders on the spot.

REMEMBER THE YOUNG

The suggested remedy of greater efforts to teach the evils of Nazism to the younger Germans take into account the reluctance of the young Germans to be prolonged lectures about failings of their own country for which they refuse to be held responsible.

Adenauer, too, points with justifiable pride to his unquestionable anti-Nazi record as a guarantee of the purity of his motives and reacts with great sensitivity to the attacks of a British press that passeth all misunderstanding.

40 ON STRIKE

HENSALL (CP)—About 40 employees of General Steels Wares here walked off the job Thursday after conciliation board negotiations in their contract talks continued. Members of Local 904, International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners (CLC), the employees are asking an increase of 16½ cent-an-hour increase recommended by the conciliation board. The hourly rate now is $1.21.

Red Skelton Will Be Headliner For One Week

TORONTO (CP) — Comedian Red Skelton will be the headline attraction for the first week of the Canadian National Exhibition grandstand show this year, the CNE board of directors announced Thursday.

Skelton will be paid $55,000 for seven evening performances, Sunday afternoon performance fee the CNE has ever paid.

The CNE is seeking Vicinity Jackie Gleason or Eddie Albert for the second week.

Storm Oddities

TORONTO (CP) — Many trains in Ontario Thursday were late when a car stuck in a deep snow in a Toronto suburb derailed and buffered a heavy attack and tried to set him to hospital in their answer. Then a freight car struck and they carried him by stretcher to a nearby apartment where the patient was later reported in satisfactory condition. The driver was not named.

In suburban Scarborough, volunteer Red Cross workers continued to dig out snow clinic bowered a neighborhood blizzard and pulled it and the night's blood collections to the nearest dairy for overnight refrigeration because trucks could not get through heavy snow to the public school where the clinic was held.

Some Metropolitan Toronto suburban schools announced they'd in a car stuck in deep snow in the schools were open as usual. Garbage collection was suspended for today and men and equipment were switched to helping in the snow removal.

Some motorists sought refuge in apartment houses when they found themselves in cars in mounting snow drifts during the night. At one apartment, Murray Godkind said after helping push many vehicles out of drifts he retired to be apartment lobby about 3:30 a.m. where "they had coffee and drinks. It was almost like a party."

Two Women Killed

BURLINGTON (CP) — Two women were killed, three persons injured Thursday night in a three-car collision on Highway 5 west of this Hamilton-area city.

Police identified the dead as Mrs. Larry Colenbender, 71, of Burlington City, Iowa, and Mrs. Esther Oostveen, 28, of Cookville.

Police said the driver of one of the cars said the other vehicle, driven by a 20-year-old woman, was driving on the wrong side of the highway when it struck him head-on.

Two of the injured were children.

Says Canada Must Sell Gas Now or Risk Losing Market

VICTORIA (CP) — Canada should consider the export of natural gas on the same basis as it exports such commodities as grain, timber, pulp and paper and minerals, says D. B. Finn, Vancouver, president of the Canadian Pipeline Contractors' Association.

The resource isn't worth a dollar, he said in an address here Thursday night, unless it is paid for and put to use. And it will be paid for and used in N.B. because Canada is not the only country which has large deposits of the new, post-war industry.

France is using its natural gas and petroleum industries in the Sahara Desert and South America, Finn said, and not wasting any time exploiting their resources.

NEW DEVELOPMENT

Mr. Baldwin said recent developments in the transportation of natural gas would make Canada, a country with vast resources, a "real force" in world markets.

Experiments have indicated that it can be economically transported in its liquid form—methane.

The infant industry is growing now will continue to grow, he said. But it should not keep all its profits in Canada.

"We must sell when and where we have a market after satisfying our domestic requirements. We don't open this valve someone else will."

The National Energy Board, currently studying applications to export Canadian natural gas to the United States, is expected to hand down a decision next month.

Mr. Baldwin, here to attend his association's convention, said experiments in the use of new types of pipe may solve the problem of installing natural gas lines in muskeg areas.

Bob Perreault blocked 30 shots for Hershey, Al Millar 16 for Aces.

The clubs are the low two in the league with Hershey 19 points ahead of Quebec.

DEPEND ON RICKEY

QUEBEC (CP) — Harry Simmons, secretary of the International Baseball League, said Thursday he proposed Continental League, "will have to do a million other things before being accepted by the majors—and the project is still far from realization."

He told the Kiwanis Club the main problem is not to find players of a calibre to staff a third major league but a question of player distribution.

"We can easily have a third major league but the Continental League will have to depend on Branch Rickey (league president) for its success, Mr. Rickey is really a genius but he is the only genius around."

Quebec Aces Shade Bears

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Aces nipped Hershey Bears 3-2 Thursday night in an American Hockey League game in which 86 minutes of penalties were meted out.

Fights were frequent as 3,516 spectators saw four majors and three misconducts included in penalties.

Some hockey was played. Myron Stankiewicz counted the winning goal with five minutes left in the game.

Bob Barlow and Michael Harvey also scored for the Aces. It was Barlow's 30th goal of the season.

Hershey scorers were Dunc Fisher and Willie Marshall.

Aces took a 2-0 lead in the first two minutes of the game, but Hershey came back with a first-period goal and another in the third period.

Cubs Defeat Biltmores 3-1

HAMILTON (CP) — Tall-end Hamilton Tiger Cubs nipped Guelph Biltmores 3-1 in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game before 440 fans Thursday night.

The loss prevented Bills from moving into fifth place in the standings. They still trail Peterborough Petes by a point.

The game was more than two hours late starting due to snow-blocked roads between here and Guelph.

On numerous occasions the players helped to push stalled cars before the bus could continue.

As a result, the teams played straight time with the exception of the last two minutes of each period.

Jim McLellan put the winners ahead at 7:27 of the opening period and Lowell MacDonald made it 2-0 at 19:29 of the second. Mike McMahon registered the one Guelph tally early in the third and Bert Templeton fired the clincher into an empty Guelph net with 17 seconds left.

Hunter Favored Over Machen

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Hunter, the sweet swinger from Detroit, is an 11-5-10 favorite to defeat Eddie Machen, one-time top-ranked challenger, in their 10-round heavyweight bout tonight.

Although Machen is ranked No. 5 and Hunter No. 7 in the latest National Boxing Association rating, the odds-makers apparently are guided by the fighters' most recent efforts. Hunter is unbeaten in his last four starts. Machen dropped a 12-round decision to Zora Folley Jan. 18, his last time out.

The bout will be telecast by NBC and CBC.

BOUT SET

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Undefeated welterweight Luis Rodriguez of Havana was matched Thursday with middleweight Chico Vejar of Stamford, Conn., for a 10-round bout at Miami Beach auditorium next Wednesday. The bout subs for a Ralph Dupas - Florentino Fernandez match. Dupas pulled out after suffering a flu attack.

Sport Snapshots

By MARVEN MOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Frequent disappointments have made Canadian boxing fans cautious about homebred prospects. For that reason, they're reserving judgment on Bob Cleroux, leading contender for George Chuvalo's Canadian heavyweight title.

Pick 24 years the French-speaking Montreal fighter has campaigned as a professional. With a wild-swinging style that makes artistic - minded oldtimers wince, he has had 18 wins, 15 by knockouts, and a draw in 20 fights.

But apart from one or two, his opponents have been what the trade uncharitably refers to as "nobodies."

His knockout victims include such little-known fighters as Ray Batey, Honey Jackson, Miguel Alvarez and Mickey Carter.

BEAT BESMANOFF

Cleroux's last outing produced his No. 1 ring achievement. At New York's Madison Square Garden Feb. 5 he won a unanimous 10-round decision over German-born veteran Willi Besmanoff.

Although Bruce Woodcock has skidded from the division's top 10, he's still considered a class A heavyweight by Ring Magazine.

Bob was tagged solidly in the early round and bled heavily from the nose the rest of the fight. But he fought tripically. Like a truckdriver in a backroom brawl, he threw punches both hands from every angle and with admirable ferocity but with a shameful waste of energy.

MANY MISSED

By far the majority of Cleroux's punches missed, some swishing through the air more than a foot off target. But he landed enough to get the decision. Besmanoff, weaving and bobbing, pedalling furiously, had little change to unload his own heavy punches.

Al Bachman of New York, who manages the 21-year-old Cleroux jointly with Bob's father, says he's not worried about the boy's impulsive attack.

"That's something to be straightened out with more experience. He'll learn to pinpoint his punches and let fire when they'll do the most damage."

Bachman, 40, has been around boxing all his life. His father Frank managed three former world champions, Maxie Rosenbloom, Lew Jenkins and Bob Olin.

THREE-YEAR CONTRACT

CLEVELAND (AP) — Frank Lane was given a new three-year contract as general manager of the Cleveland Indians Thursday. The club said Lane's original three-year pact, due to expire in November, was torn up and replaced with one that runs to Dec. 31, 1962. Lane lifted the Indians from a sixth - place club in 1957 to a perennial contender which finished second last year.

In Cleroux's opponents to date, Bachman says with a shrug:

"What do I care what they say? I'm bringing Bob up slowly, picking his fights carefully. For him until he's ready for the fast company.

"This way, if he has it, fine. If not, we find out fast and nobody gets hurt."

Bachman said he has "a few more schooling bouts" scheduled and then he'll try to line up a shot at Chuvalo for June in Montreal's baseball stadium. There would be a return match in Toronto if Cleroux won the crown in Montreal.

Bob is a muscular, heavyset youngster who fights at 205 pounds. He speaks virtually no English and is the eldest in a family of two boys and a girl.

Cage Crown To Tillsonburg

TORONTO (CP) — Tillsonburg Livingstons captured the Ontario Senior A basketball championship Thursday night by edging Toronto West End YMCA 89-79 after five minutes of overtime.

Livingstons were delayed almost two hours by the heavy snowstorm and played without Bob Gardner, injured when the car he was driving collided with a truck near Ingersoll.

—West End were ahead 40-33 at mid-game but Tillsonburg tied it up after four minutes of the final half. The scores were 72-72 at the end of regulation time.

Fred Ingalsson and Ray Monnoe each scored two baskets in the overtime.

Ambi Gardner topped Livingstons with 20 points, Ingalsson had 17, Monnoe 14.

Ed Bognadi led West End with 23 points.

Tillsonburg now plays Ottawa Fellers for the right to enter next month's Olympic tournament in Montreal.

Vancouver Park Suggested For 1968 Olympics

VANCOUVER (CP) — An anonymous writer once wrote that Garibaldi Provincial Park in British Columbia has "produced more colorful description per square foot than probably any other area in the world."

This is the area suggested recently for the 1968 Winter Olympic Games.

It is easily developed now and access to it is extremely limited, but its potential is said to be staggering.

It is an alpine playground with an overall area of 1,000 square miles. First snow comes in late September and the last of it leaves in early July.

Though only 50 miles and less than 90 minutes from downtown Vancouver by car, the last 20 miles into the first of the playground's sites is accessible only over rough, privately-built road fit for little more than jeep travel.

First suggestions that Garibaldi Park might be a fine site for the 1968 Winter Games came at the start of the 1959 Winter Games in Squaw Valley, California.

The subject now has been discussed by cabinet ministers and recreation authorities. It is estimated it would cost between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 to develop facilities.

Delighted Russian Coach Kisses Americans' Riley

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — "Imagine me getting kissed by the Russian coach," said Jack Riley, whose United States hockey team took the lead in the Olympic hockey tournament by upsetting Canada 9-4 Thursday.

The Russian coach made a beeline for Riley after the Americans knocked the Canadians into third place.

Coach Anatoli Tarasov of the once-tied, second - place Soviets hugged and kissed the surprised Riley in the bedlam that followed. But Riley promised that the Slavic affection won't be reciprocated on the ice Saturday when the United States meets Russia in the game that may decide the gold medalist.

"We won't let down against the Russians," said the 39-year-old former Dartmouth star.

WON CANADA'S GAME

The American dressing room rang with glee after the game.

"We beat Canada at its own game," was the cry.

"Beating Canada in hockey," shouted winger Bill Cleary above the din, "is like beating us in baseball."

"It was a great victory—team victory—for us."

Coach Jack Riley, surrounded by well-wishers and jubilant team members, said:

"This is a good spot to go all the way in the Olympics. We wanna be the first United States to win the Olympics."

In the Canadian dressing room, filled with gloom, coach Bobby Bauer complained of a lack of tough competition earlier for the Dutchmen.

"This isn't an alibi, but we haven't had enough tough games for too long," Bauer said. "The puck was just not going into the nets for us and the American goalkeeper played a great game."

Hotspurs Meet Blackburn for League Title

By E DSIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON (CP)—Jolted by two successive home defeats and elimination from the Football Association Cup competition, Tottenham Hotspur tackles a tough assignment Saturday at the start of a campaign to nail down the league championship.

Blackburn Rovers, the side that beat Spurs 3-1 at White Hart Lane to kill North London dreams of a league-cup double, meet them again in their own friendly Lancashire surroundings, where only three of 15, visitors this season have scored victories.

The outcome, particularly if Tottenham wing half Dave Mackay is fit for action, could give a good indication of the Spurs' prospects for the title.

A single point currently separates Tottenham from Wolverhampton Wanderers, the defending champions who are at home to West Bromwich Albion Saturday, with a cluster of three other teams within striking distance.

A big factor working in Tottenham's favor is that all four of the clubs contending for league honors still are involved in the cup competition, which could lead to a pileup of postponed league matches in the closing weeks of the season.

Third - place Burnley, three points off the pace, is already severely hit. Moved into replays in all three cup rounds, the Lancashire club also has to make up two matches postponed because of bad weather.

Burnley's Saturday date is at Bolton against a side still on the fringes of the championship race. Fourth-place Sheffield Wednesday is at home to Chelsea.

In the Second Division, relegation Cardiff City took advantage of Aston Villa's cup commitments last week to edge into first place by a single point, the Welshmen replacing the Villans. Scots-born Leyton Orient while Villa entertains Sheffield United, another side with lingering cup hopes.

Hull, Birds Whip Royals, Lions

By The Canadian Press

Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds and Hull-Ottawa Canadiens, tied for last place in the Eastern Professional Hockey League a week ago, won their games Thursday night and now are third and fourth in the six-team loop.

Thunderbirds whipped Trois-Rivieres Lions 5-0 and advanced to within two points of second-place Montreal Royals, while Royals lost to Canadiens 4-2, enabling the Habs to stay within two points of Thunderbirds.

At Sault Ste. Marie, the Thunderbirds led 3-0 in the first period, and 3-0 in the second. Scorers were Mervyn Kuryluk, Walter Bradley, Wayne Hicks, Matt Ravlich and Milne Marcetta.

The fifth and sixth positions are occupied by Lions and Kingston Frontenacs respectively while Sudbury Wolves, with 64 points, have a four-point lead over Royals.

World Figure Skating Slated For Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—A record 89 skaters from 13 countries will compete in the world figure skating championships opening here Tuesday.

Included are four defending champions—Carol Heiss of the U.S. in the women's singles, David Jenkins of the U.S. in the men's singles, Barbara Wagner and Robert Paul of Toronto in the pairs and England's Doreen Denny and J. C. Courtney-Jones in the ice-dancing.

Don Jackson of Oshawa should provide Jenkins with his toughest opposition. Jackson was second in the 1959 world championships.

OFF FORM

SYDNEY (AP) — John Konrads and sister Ilsa won their 800-yard freestyle races Thursday night in the Australian swimming championships, which also are Olympic tryouts but both fell short of their world records. John, 17, holder of six world freestyle records, won the men's race by 25 yards in nine minutes 21.3 seconds, Ilsa, 15, splashed over the course in 10 minutes, 17.5 seconds.

Member Wants Probe Into Horse Racing

TORONTO (CP) — A Liberal opposition member of the legislature called Thursday for an investigation into racing after charging that the "sport of kings" is being subsidized by the government.

Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury), in debating the Gordon report on the organization of government in Ontario, said the Ontario Racing Commission also should be investigated.

The ORC collects $76,000 a year for 196 days of racing from the Ontario Jockey Club to pay for its operations. However, Mr. Sopha charged, the legislature's current estimates show that $192,000 is provided for the commission.

Racing is also "treated in a preferred manner" by an inequal distribution of the profits, Mr. Sopha said. The pari-mutuel take between 1950-59 rose to $84,000,000 from $32,000,000, while Ontario's share only rose $900,000 during that period.

Reds Scream At Americans Bowls "Attack"

VIENNA (AP) — "Bowling imperialism!" screamed the Communists Thursday after an American firm introduced Austrians to the modern U.S. 10-pin bowling.

The firm called a press conference to announce plans for a $150,000 13-lane bowling establishment in Vienna with automatic pin-setters.

Traditional European bowling — or bocce — is done with nine pins, short alleys and a lightweight ball. Pins are set by hand.

The Austrian Communist Party's daily Volksstimme commended: "Grand assault on the Austrian bowling sport."

Ontario levies less tax on the pari-mutuel take than any other racing jurisdiction in North America, Mr. Sopha said.

He also urged that all hearings by the commission be open to the public.

Peewee Tourney In Late Stages

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec's International peewee hockey tournament today headed into quarter-final, semi-finals and finals in all four divisions. The four teams winning divisional championships will play Saturday for the grand tournament title.

Corner Brook, Nfld., came up with the tournament's greatest performance Thursday by winning three games in 14 hours. Corner Brook meets unbeaten Kimouski, Que., this afternoon in a game that will probably decide one title.

Six teams — Scarborough and Peterborough, Ont., Sherbrooke and Drummondville, Que., and teams from Montreal's Rosemount and Loyola — remain in contention in one knockout division for the Quebec Cognus Trophy.

Peterborough and Drummondville have qualified for semi-final play in that round. The other four have qualified for the quarter-finals.

TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT!

Tonight the Macs' Booster Club, and, it is hoped, a generous section of, the otherwise faithful, will honor Gordie Bell.

A capacity house in Memorial Arena would be small enough tribute to one of the most popular hockey players ever to wear a Belleville uniform.

Besides there's a hockey game, too. The McFarlands will, with the assistance of the Windsor Bulldogs, ring down the curtain on the 1959-60 schedule.

Booster president Jim Matthews, Barbara Graham, and the rest of the executive crew, with their committees have done a man-size job in making a success out of tribute night to the Macs' coach.

Not forgetting, of course, the magnificent contributions made by merchants, individuals and organizations in making the huge prize list possible.

Tickets for the prize bonanza, over sixty all told, are still on sale, and will be sold at the arena until the end of the first period.

The presentations, a special gift, and a purse of money, will be presented to Gordie between the second and third periods. The draws for the tickets will be made immediately following the game. The prize winners' names will be published in this newspaper Saturday.

The presentation ceremonies will be brief. There will be no long-winded speeches or eulogies. Everything will be straight to the point.

And just to keep the record straight, the prizes will be awarded in order of drawing sequence. In other words, the prize will be numbered when the ticket is drawn. The first drawn will get Number One prize, and so on.

JUNIOR PICTURE

The two top clubs in the OHA Eastern Junior "B" grouping will clash here Monday night in what will likely turn out to be a preview of the league playoff finals.

Peterborough Laton-Canucks, who have first place all wrapped up, will meet the Belleville Lumbert-Rollins, up until the other day, thought they had second place in just as safe a package.

Belleville has 49 points, nine back of the Canucks, at the present time. Kingston Wards down the third spot with 34 points. And as Kingston has but two remaining games, it would seem that the locals are secure in second place. However, such is not the case.

Kingston can tie Belleville, at least in points, though not in victory column, if the Cobourg Rockets a four-point game in Cobourg tonight and taking the tall-end Trenton crew in Kingston Monday. The Limestone crew had a pair of scheduled four-pointers with Cobourg. They won the first at home and will be going all out to take the other tonight. Thus the Peterborough-Belleville game here Monday, which was originally set back on January 25, must be played. Belleville has another postponed home game against Cobourg, but it will not be played unless necessary.

Actually all that is at stake in this battle for second place is the extra home game in the semi-final playoff series between Belleville and Kingston.

While six teams compose the "B" grouping, only four live up to the billing. Peterborough, Belleville, Kingston and Trenton are the "B" teams. Cobourg and Picton are dropping back to Junior "C" for playdown purposes.

The club finishing in first place, in this case Peterborough, has a choice of semi-final playoff opponents. The Petes have already selected Trenton, so that leaves Belleville and Kingston to fight it out in the other half. Both series are expected to get under way around the middle of next week. Lambert-Rollins, who have won ten and split a pair of their last eleven games, should be able to handle the Molsmen from Kingston. But anything can happen in a short playoff series. Meanwhile, Monday night the Richards' crew will be attempting to chalk up second place, keep their undefeated streak intact and collect its first win of the season over Peterborough.

While with the juniors, here are the dates for the first four games of the Cobourg-Picton "C" series. That set opens on Friday, March 4, with Picton at Cobourg. The next three games are at Picton on March 5, Cobourg, March 7, and Picton, March 10. Further dates will be set later, if necessary. The series winner will advance into the next round of the OHA Junior "C" playdowns.

Americans Defeat Dutchmen 2-1 In Stunning Upset

Yankee Goalie Invincible Against Unclicking Canucks; "We're Not Out Yet"-Blair

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP)—This eighth Winter Olympiad could be 1956 all over again as far as Canada-Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen hockey team is concerned.

That year the Dutchmen learned Canada can't win an Olympic title on its reputation as a hockey power and finished an unbelievable third, lowest in Olympic history.

Nothing much has changed.

The best amateur team Canada could gather is back in the same rut following a stunning 2-1 loss to the United States Thursday night in the third round of the six-country round - robin championship series.

Its chances of regaining the title now would send a statistician crazy.

BLOW THE BIG ONE

The game with the U.S. was a must for the Dutchmen but they blew it, just as they did four years ago at Cortina, Italy, when the Americans walloped them 4-1. The Russians, making their first Olympic hockey appearance, followed with a 2-0 victory to win the gold medal and the Dutchmen limped home with a third place bronze.

Now, there are only two games left and Canada, with two victories in three outings for four points, is two points off the pace set by the Americans who hold a 3-0 record. Russia, which benched three of its first-stringers Thursday and won 4-0 over Germany, is second with five points on two victories and a surprising 2-1 tie with Canada.

The standing of the top three teams:

	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
United States	3	0	0	17	5	6
Russia	2	0	1	17	8	5
Canada	1	1	1	9	7	3

FRIED HARD, BUT...

The Dutchmen tried hard against the Americans, who hopped into a lead in the second period and made it stand up until 13:37 of the third period when the desperate Canadians got their lone goal by right winger Jim Connelly, who, with centre Kenny Laufman and left winger Bobby Burton, Marrin played on the best line coach Bobby Bauer threw at the Americans.

The green - and - white shirted Canadians moved inside the U.S. blueline for nearly two-thirds of the game but, apart from a Laufman tip-in, couldn't organize an effective assault. They banged pucks straight at American goalkeeper Jack McCartan's pads and at other times the lanky, 6-foot-2 spread - eagling McCartan appeared to be operating with radar to smother shots.

Bob Cleary of Boston and Paul Johnson of St. Paul, Minn. scored the American goals, both unassisted. The first came in the opening session while Connelly was serving a tripping penalty and the other in the second period on a breakaway while five Canadian players were up the ice.

RILEY ELATED

"If we played the Canadians another 19 games, they'd win nine of them," said U.S. coach Jack Riley after the game.

Riley may be right, but it the Dutchmen played as they did Thursday they'd lose again.

"We didn't give it to them," observer Bauer, who piloted the Dutchmen in 1956 and took the job again this year when no one else wanted it.

it over McCartan who had sprawled to the ice.

But that was it for the Canadian attack. Instead Heafit in the last minute and the crowd roared as the final minutes seconds as the Americans forcedthe Dutchmen to a stand still.

McCartan, an all-star college goalie from the University of Minnesota and also a star baseball player who turned down a pro contract, is now a corporal in the U.S. Army, serving a two year hitch. He made 39 stops Thursday night while Head had that.

In the other games Thursday Uri Tsilsinov and Stanislas Petrov each scored two goals to lead Russia to its easy victory over winless Germany, and Czechoslovakia won on Karel Pantucek scoring twice, defeated Sweden 3-1 to move into fourth place.

Soviet coach Anatoli Tarasov didn't use goalie Nikolai Puchkov, captain Vladislai (Solly) Sobolev and high-scoring winger Konstantin Koktev, apparently saving them for Russia's battles with the Americans Saturday and the Canadians Sunday.

In the consolation round, Finland peppered Austria's goal although it finally licked it 12-3.

The victory gave Finland a one-game lead over Japan in the consolation round.

'Buck' Rollins Rides Again Snatches Blues from Rangers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The tall man rode in from the West last Saturday night and casually slopped 46 shots by the fastest guns in the East.

The dark hero was Elwin Ira (Al) Rollins, 31, who will return to the National Hockey League.

Lanky Al, a point for the New York Rangers, faced tough odds in his first NHL game in two years.

His last-place Rangers were playing front - running Montreal Canadiens in the Montreal Forum.

Al's smooth net-work resulted in a 3-3 tie and broke a three-game losing streak for the Rangers. Since then, the Blueshirts have tied another game and won one.

It's unlikely that Rollins can do much to get New York into the playoffs. The Rangers are 16 points away from fourth place, the last playoff position, with 11 games remaining. But it looks as if he'll make the club a tougher opponent after a season as the league patsy.

WHIP BRUINS

New York handily whipped Boston Bruins, the fifth-place club, 7-2 last Sunday and tied third-place Detroit Red Wings 3-2 Wednesday night.

In both games, the 33-year-old Rollins made a creditable showing. He stopped 23 shots against Boston and 28 against Detroit.

The six - foot - one goalie was called up from Winnipeg Warriors of the Western Hockey League to replace Lorne (Gump)

Worsley.

Worsley suffered two severed tendons in his right wrist last week when struck by Bobby Hull's skate in a game with Chicago Black Hawks.

Rollins began playing professional hockey in 1948 and entered the NHL briefly in 1949-50 with Toronto Maple Leafs.

HART, VEZINA WINNER

His career reached it's zenith in 1953-54 when he won the Hart Trophy. Rollins was with Chicago then.

He won the Vezina Trophy as the NHL's most valuable goalie in 1950-51 while with Toronto.

After two full seasons with Leafs and three with Chicago, he spent the 1958-59 season with the Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League. He returned to Chicago for two seasons before going to the NHL, when the Hawks acquired Glenn Hall, their present goalie.

The Rangers face Canadiens Saturday night in Montreal and another test for the aging Rollins. In other games Saturday, Detroit is at Toronto and Boston at Chicago. Sunday's schedule has Toronto at New York and Detroit at Chicago.

Let a TeeNee trailer handle your boat... most Canadians do!

Most of the features, now taken for granted, on a modern boat trailer have been pioneered by TEE-NEE during 20 years of progress. TEE-NEE for 1960 brings you 13 models — for boats from 400 to 2400 lbs.

The new Tipper Tongue design, (standard on A-Frame models, optional on T-Frame models), permits launching of boat without unhooking trailer coupler from car bumper. Rubber covered nylon rollers in grooved tongue on T-Frame models, adjustable centre rollers and roller cradle on A-Frame models ensure effortless launching and loading — complete support for boat. Micro adjustment of running gear to frame ensures a level keel for maximum safety on the highway.

Ports and service are available throughout Canada and U.S.A. New, lower prices range from $129.50. Ask your franchised TEE-NEE dealer for a free Catalogue today.

TEE-NEE trailers are manufactured in Canada by Canasco.

Soviets Have Bag of Metal, National Interest Centres On Figure-Skating, Hockey

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP) —With three days left in the eighth Winter Olympic Games, Russia has equalled the bag of 16 medals Soviet athletes won in the 1956 Olympics, leaving little interest here nationally except in the men's figure skating and the hockey championship.

Canada's Don Jackson goes out today for the finals in the figure-skating championship trailing in fourth place and Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, disgusted with their 3-1 loss to the United States Thursday night in the third round of the hockey round-robin final, look to Sunday's game against Russia as the one that will decide the title.

Wren Blair, team co-ordinator, predicted the six-country tournament will go right down to the wire.

CHANCE FOR ANNE

Anne Heggtveit of Ottawa gets another chance today to redeem herself in the alpine skiing. The 21-year-old Canadian woman athlete of the year in 1959 was in both the downhill and giant slalom despite good times.

Today she is the No. 2 starter in the women's slalom with Theodie Ladon, one of three French sisters in the race, drawing the choice No. 1 position.

Russia, with six gold medals, three silver and seven bronze and 137 unofficial points credited already, is expected to pick up more in both the women's 15-kilometre (9.3-mile) cross-country ski relay race and the men's 15-kilometre speed skating.

On tap in the men's figure skating today is the final free-skating phase in which Jackson, a 19-year-old New York University student from Oshawa, and three-time world champion Dave Jenkins of the United States engage.

CZECH LEADS

Upon completion of the two-day compulsory section figures Thursday, Karel Divis of Czechoslovakia was the leader with 797.7 points, Jenkins scored 775.4 and France's Alain Giletti 761.7. Jackson had 751.4 and Tim Brown of the U.S. 748.9.

The Europeans are not at their strongest in free skating and the performer coming up with a spectacular show could take the gold medal, Jackson and Jenkins both stress spectacular acrobatic routines, and Jenkins has mastered the jump with a triple spin that won the gold medal for his brother, Hayes Alan, in the Olympics four years ago.

In the unofficial team scoring, based on the traditional 10-5-4-3-2-1 point system for the first six placings, Germany held second place with 53½ points, the U.S. third with 44 and Sweden fourth with 42. Canada was far down the list with the original 13 points it won on the first day of the competition in the pairs figure skating.

FINNS GET GOLD MEDAL

The two gold medals in competition went to Finland and Russia. Nineteen of the 27 championships in the Olympics now have been decided.

Finland's 35-year-old veteran Veikko Hakulinen rallied on the anchor lap of the four-man, 40-kilometre cross-country relay to pick up a badly needed 20 seconds and nip Norway's Haakon Brusveen by eight-tenths of a second in a time of two hours, 18 minutes, 45.6 seconds in the 24.8-mile distance. Russia took the bronze medal for third place. No Canadians competed.

Russia's Viktor Kositchin captured the 3,000-metre (3½-mile) men's speed - skating race in seven minutes, 51.3 seconds. Knut Johannesen of Norway was second in 8:00.9 and Holland's Jan Pesman third in 8:05.1. Ralph Olin of Edmonton was 28th with a time of 8:36.8. Larry Mason of Calgary skated last in the field of 37 with 8:23.5.

Not Averse To CBC Video Of Final Game

NEW YORK (CP) — A Columbia Broadcasting System spokesman in New York said Thursday that CBS would have no objection to the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation televising the Toronto-Montreal Olympic hockey game from Squaw Valley Sunday.

CBS said the Canadian corporation would have to provide its own crews and equipment. Other Olympic commitments Sunday made it impossible for CBS to handle the game for relay to Canada.

If Olympic officials give approval, CBS said, it will not ld its exclusive Olympic rights stand in the way of a CBC telecast.

The CBC said in Toronto on Thursday that a decision is expected shortly on a CBC request for permission to set up their own microwave system and move in men and equipment.

GIRL DRIVER

PAISLEY (CP) — Shirley McLean, 20, has been licensed by the trotting association and will be seen this year driving on the tracks at Toronto and Hamilton, Batavia. She is following her father, Hugh McLean, who has 30 race horses at his farm north of this Bruce County town, 30 miles south of Owen Sound.

Tab Annable With $25 Fine

OTTAWA (CP) Forward John Annable of Hull-Ottawa Canadiens of the Eastern Professional Hockey League has been fined $25 for receiving a game misconduct in a game between Canadiens and Kingston Frontenacs in Kingston Wednesday night, it was announced by league headquarters Thursday.

President Red Houston will seek an explanation from Annable following a Feb. 21 game at Hull, Que., between Canadiens and Sudbury Wolves and will decide whether further action is necessary.

He also announced that a Feb. 19 game between Canadiens and Trois - Rivieres Lions, cancelled because of a blizzard, will be played March 11 at Hull.

On the Track

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Victoria Park, speedy Canadian trotter that was a 6-to-5 favorite today to win Saturday's $100,000-added Flamingo Stakes, first real test for colts of derby age this season.

Peter Paul, owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto, set a track record last Saturday in a 1 1-16th mile event.

Eric Guerin will ride Victoria Park, winner of eight of 11 starts.

Second choice probably will be Bally Ache, winner of eight races

Ageless "Satch" Will Tour The Caribbean

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Many months of heartwarming baseball words and baseball ares ahead for Leroy (Satchell) Paige, the durable Negro pitcher.

Satch is going into his 34th consecutive year of hurling and this season he'll be with the touring Caribbean all-stars.

But before that 150-game tour of the country begins, about May 15, Paige will be on the after dinner circuit-dishing out his own personal brand of humor, philosophy and advice.

The ageless athlete regards the chicken and pea circuit as a conditioning tour.

"Man, when you're 6-3½ and weigh only 180 you got to eat all that chicken and mash potatoes so you'll be fat enough to lift one of those heavy baseballs," he pointed out.

And all his talking won't be devoted to baseball. Satch covers many fields — except he won't give out one secret, his age.

For instance his advice for staying young is "to go very light on the wines, such as carrying on in society. The social rambler ain't restful."

His observation is that love "is a mighty powerful lure as doughballs is to carp."

Snow Halts Junior Game

PETERSBOROUGH (CP) — The scheduled Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game here Thursday night between Toronto Marlboros and Peterborough Petes was called off at 9.30 p.m. when word was received that Marlboros' bus was unable to get through the storm and turned back at Toronto. The referee and linesmen were land-unable to get past Ajax.

A crowd of nearly 4,500 was present. They, stayed for the presentations made to Petes' star winger, Wayne Connelly, it being Wayne Connelly Night.

He received many gifts from the city and district fans and friends in Toronto and his home town, Bouryn, Que.

It was not known when the postponed game will be played.

PRIZE DOGS

Today's Radio Disc Jockeys Tomorrow's TV Comedians

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Today's radio disc jockeys will be tomorrow's television comedians, says veteran comic Ken Murray.

"Vaudeville's dead, burlesque is dead, teh shows (small musical revues) are dead," insisted Murray, "and there's no place left except disc jockey shows on local radio where a young comic can practise and be bad."

Murray is one of the TV pioneers. After years in vaudeville he became one of TV's biggest comedy stars with a show of his own for three years.

"Then I had to get out — the tension was just too much because I'm the guy who has to know every line in the script, every note in the music," said Murray.

NO WORK, PLENTY OF PAY

He moved into producing, with a fat network contract, but immediately got caught in the middle of one of those broadcasting reshuffles which left him with nothing much to do but collect his pay. Then he became an independent producer, and was busily turning out pilot films when his old friend, Maurice Chevalier, shamed him back into performing.

"He told me I had no right to give up comedy," said Murray. "He said that people who can make others laugh and be happy must do it."

Murray and Marie Wilson built themselves an act, and now they are working about half of each year in the top night clubs. They will turn up on Sunday night's Ed Sullivan show.

"This is the life," said Murray. "Just the right amount of work, enough money and none of the terrible responsibilities."

Brundage Says Winter Olympics Are Success

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP) —California's nearly completed Winter Olympic Games have been proclaimed a great success by Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee.

Nearly all of the nations represented "have come to me and said they were not only happy but enthusiastic about the Squaw Valley games. It's almost unanimous," the Chicago business executive said in an interview Thursday night.

"The fact that these Games have been a great success will be a strong argument for continuing the Winter Olympics," Brundage predicted.

Proposals to discontinue the Winter Games after 1964 will be debated by the IOC this summer in Rome. There is some sentiment for holding world championships in skiing, skating and hockey separately and on a smaller scale.

Brundage said that as IOC president he is neutral on the question.

AT THE PARK — A scene from the powerful out-door action feature "The Broken Lance" in CinemaScope and Technicolor starring Spencer Tracy with Robert Wagner, Richard Widmark, Jean Peters and Katy Jurado, showing today and Saturday at the Park Theatre. On the same program in CinemaScope and Technicolor the thrill feature that beats them all, "Hell and High Water", starring Richard Widmark. Continuous show Saturday from 1?00. Doors open at 12.30 p.m.

AT THE McCARTHY — James Garner, Natalie Wood and Dean Jagger star in "Cash McCall", Cameron Hawley's best-selling novel brought to the screen by Warner Bros., is now at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. Nina Foch, E. G. Marshall and Henry Jones also star in the Technicolor production.

Movie Business Declining? You Can't Prove it by 'Oscar'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It is 2 p.m. and 30 reporters are milling in the lobby of the Academy Theatre in Beverly Hills, as only reporters can mill.

They discuss a variety of things. A few of them get impatient and climb the stairs leading to the Academy library.

Finally, the library door swings open. Each reporter grabs a sheaf of papers. Those with deadlines head for a long table laden with typewriters and phones. Cameras whir and click. Writing machines clack. Academy biggie beam as the news goes out to the world of the 32nd nominations for Hollywood's annual hysteria.

The movie business may have suffered a decline, but Oscar is still big news everywhere. Folks from Tokyo to Munich read the nominations eagerly.

WELL WATCHED

The best picture race seems well matched. Any of them might win—Anatomy of a Murder, Ben-Hur, The diary of Anne Frank, The Nun's Story, Room at the Top.

Likewise, the star contests seem pretty well chosen. Sole exceptions might be Jack Lemmon and Doris Day. His performance in Some Like It Hot was a triumph of comic skill, but comedy seldom triumphs in the Oscar race. Doris Day's nomination for Pillow Talk raised eyebrows. Her role in the fluffy farce was lightweight. She impressed more as an actress in Love Me or Leave Me.

The supporting player contests are weak. The nominees are able performers, but few had meaty roles. This may reflect Hollywood's growing concentration on star roles with the consequent neglect of character actors.

The nominations reflect the sad state of musicals. None of the songs was a hit. The best scoring of a musical lists one real musical (Li'l Abner.), a folk opera (Porgy and Bess), two films with incidental music (Say one for Me, The Five Pennies) and a cartoon (Sleeping Beauty).

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By CARROLL RICHTER

General Tendencies: Now you have a day and evening when you, as well as everyone else, are apt to be too eager for their own personal desires and wishes, but if this potentially greedy urge is controlled, the energies can be placed in very worthwhile directions and then this day can have the possibility of bringing a big advancement to most everyone.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) You have a very definite feeling of being hemmed in and would like very much to kick over the traces. But running away from obligations would only make matters worse. Putting up a determined and courageous front and all will soon be well.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) This is one of the conservative days when you think comrades are imposing upon you, when the situation could just possibly be the other way round. Generosity is its own reward and be truly helpful now, cheerfully and gladly.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Avoid getting into an altercation with a higher-up and a partner or you may find both teaming up against you. Get busy on matters of credit inland and labor diligently as that this day brings wonderful accomplishment.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) Follow that inclination to go off to new places and look into more interesting outlets. Forget that private anxiety. Meet new people. Go out of your way to show your really good connections that you appreciate being allied with them.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) Be certain to sit down and write cheerful letters and notes to those whom you wish to have as associates in the future. Steer clear of any criticism or words that may have a double-meaning. Diplomacy will bring fine results.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be certain to sit down and write letter into any altercation existing between an acquaintance and a close tie, or you lose the respect and smile you enjoy. Neutrality and a gentle manner smooths everything over very quickly.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Forget any fussy cleaning now and be off to do your shopping, have conferences, get out those important statements, etc. Get all th..se vital matters nicely handled. Be precise.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Provided you do not try to force your will on others today, you can realize a most satisfying and happy, prosperous- day. However, do not be extravagant in any way. Let your charming personality see you through nicely.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Though the situation is rather difficult at home, it can be ameliorated if you curb that tendency to give voice to your dissatisfied thoughts. Show devotion and understanding instead. P.M. enjoy own fireside.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Every opportunity is open to you now to get rid of frustrations. Be out to the out-of-doors activities that are most important right now. Forget all that angling, and hubbub that is going on all around you.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Impress others with your excellent financial acumen, business ability. Then inter you can enjoy the company of interesting people who are truly congenial. P.M. very fine for the social amenities. Be bright and cheerful.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) You must concentrate on personal affairs today and discuss them freely with those persons who can help you with them. Forget the mundane, the bills and collections since this is not the right day for them. Improve health.

If your child is born today . . . The very handsome child born today will also have a tremendous amount of energy, but there will soon be a tendency to want the lion's share of what is about. So be sure to give fine spiritual and ethical training early. This will soon round out the personality so that real happiness and success in life can be achieved through the right relationship with fellow man. A very interesting chart.

LOSES DARE

WATERLOO (CP)—John Bidpolice stopped him as he attempted to walk almost three miles stripped to his waist. It was seven degrees above zero when Constable Kenneth Schneider broke up the walk. The policeman said Eidner was blue with cold.

May Establish Colleges at London, Kingston

TORONTO (CP) — Colleges of education may be established permanently in London, Ont., and Kingston if summer courses for secondary school teachers are a success this year, Education Minister Roberts said in a television address Thursday.

Speaking on the problems of teacher training, Mr. Roberts said the department hopes by providing summer courses in Eastern and Western Ontario "we will attract into the teaching profession young men and women from the communities in these areas."

"If the courses are successful," he added, "we may anticipate the establishment of permanent colleges of education in these areas."

$60,000 SCHOOL FIRE

KIRKFIELD (CP)—A gas explosion and fire destroyed St. John's Roman Catholic separate school Wednesday night in this Orillia district community. No one was injured. The three-room school was valued at $60,000.

Macmillan Hopes to Double Britain's Standard of Living By 1977 as Outlook Bright

COMMONWEALTH 1960
By RONALD WILLIAMS

LONDON (Reuters) — Britons entered the 1960s with a year of increased prosperity behind them and hope that the decade ahead will bring them even greater rewards.

Prime Minister Macmillan's Conservative government is confident it can double the nation's standard of living by 1977. Its slogan in 1959 was "YOU never had it so good," and Britons, harking back to the bad old days of pre-war unemployment and post - war austerity, generally seemed to agree.

In last October's general election, Macmillan's government was returned with an increased majority—the first to win three elections in a row. But even the Conservatives had expected a reduced majority and the post-mortem experts deduced that the average Briton had never before felt—so well off.

LABOR PONDERED DEFEAT

The Labor party went away to kick its wounds and ponder why colonial brutes and the H-bomb question failed to return it to power. Its officials argued whether the nation wanted more or less socialism. Party leader Hugh Gaitskell set the pattern of rethinking when he indicated that perhaps nationalization in a prosperous Britain had become an unpopular word.

For the government there is every reason for confidence in 1959 the pound reached a stage when it was more sought after than the dollar.

Pegged to the U.S. dollar at a range between $2.78 and $2.82, the pound ended the year around the $2.80 mark — a far cry from the bleak days of devaluation or the long period when it was barely able to rise above the lower limit of $2.78. In terms of Canadian currency, the pound was around $2.67.

Industrial production in 1959 was almost nine per cent above the previous year. The cost of living held almost stable while wages were up, the stock market was booming and the trade gap narrowed.

PAID DEBTS

The sterling area's reserves of gold and convertible currency did well during the year. And although the £1,052,000,000 was slightly lower than at the end of 1958, it was explained by the fact that Britain was able to pay off some of her debts ahead of time.

Unemployment was down to less than two per cent of the working population of more than 23,000,000 but 250,000 jobs were waiting to be filled. There were 431,000 out of work in December. The coal industry in Scotland and the cotton industry in Lancashire were isolated black spots of unemployment. The government introduced a bill to direct new industries to the depressed areas.

Prosperity is reflected in the standard of living. What Britons once thought of as luxuries now are becoming necessities. One family in nine now has a refrigerator and one in four a washing machine.

Sales of TV sets are also leaping. At the end of 1959 two out of three families had their own sets, 10,000,000 TV licences had been issued and for the first time leading firms were looking to a future where their main job would be replacement of old sets.

AUTO SALES UP

There are nearly 5,000,000 private cars on the roads—one in three families owns one—and the number is increasing by about 500,000 a year. The two-car family is a new development.

But the motoring boom has brought its headaches. The traffic jangle has jammed cities and country lanes. A new road program has been launched though many doubt whether this island with a population of about 52,000,000 ever will really cope with the increasing volume of traffic.

Latest figures show Britons are spending more on food. They are consuming more milk, cheese, butter, fish, fresh fruit and sugar. But they are eating less meat and, surprisingly, are drinking less tea.

More people are buying their own homes. One-third of the houses, about 5,000,000, are either privately owned or being bought.

MORE CREDIT BUYING

A lot of the good things are being obtained on credit. The government, in a bid to stimulate industrial development, cut interest rates on loans and eased restrictions on borrowing. More than £800,000,000 is owed under instalment-plan buying.

Britain's strong position is also reflected in overseas trade. Exports were higher in 1959 than in 1958 and for the first time since 1955, when Britain was selling arms to the southern states in the Civil War, she had a favorable trade balance with the United States.

But prosperity is not without its problems. Unions are seeking a bigger slice of the national cake and industrial stoppages — many of them wildcat—cost the nation more than 5,000,000 working days.

PROBLEM INDUSTRIES

Some industries are facing hard times. The state - owned coal industry has 38,000,000 tons of unsaleable stocks. Plans have been made to close 200 pits in the next six years.

The cotton industry has been hard hit by foreign competition. Many mills have closed. The government has introduced legislation offering compensation to get the industry to streamline itself.

Many consider taxation, too high, with a top standard rate of 38% per cent. But all in all, the prospect seems to be for more money, more leisure and more luxuries.

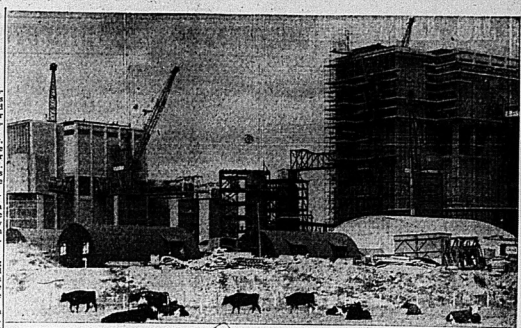
RCMP Chief Retires Apr. 1, Name Successor

OTTAWA (CP) — RCMP Commissioner C. E. Rivett-Carnac is retiring and will be succeeded April 1 by Deputy Commissioner Clifford W. Harvison, Justice Minister Fulton announced Thursday.

Commissioner Rivett - Carnac, 56, who became head of the force only last April 1, is retiring for health reasons, the minister said.

His 57-year-old successor has been senior deputy since the same date.



PROSPERITY MOVES IN — Emergence in the atomic age in the United Kingdom provides some striking contrasts. At Berkley, Gloucestershire, cows graze placidly in a meadow in the shadow of massive buildings of a £40,000,000 nuclear power station. The No. 1 reactor (left) is expected to be in operation at the start of 1961 and the No. 2 reactor shortly after. (CP Photo)

PROJECT BRINGS PROTEST

TORONTO (CP) — Board of control Wednesday received a delegation of more than 100 people protesting against the filling in of the Canadian National Exhibition lakefront to within 75 feet of the breakwater. Spokesman Hamilton Cassels said the new parkland being created will prevent races and regattas being held. The parkland will replace acreage taken for construction of the Fred Gardiner Expressway.

Britons Delighted With Margaret's Marriage Choice

Queen Likely to Confer Title on Brother-in-Law

FIANCE OF BRITAIN'S PRINCESS MARGARET

LONDON (CP) — A talented commoner with a taste for informality has been cast in the role of prince charming.

Antony Armstrong-Jones, fatherhaired royal court photographer whose engagement to Princess Margaret was announced Friday, has never appeared content to rest on a reputation created by his striking portraits of royalty.

Favoring a black suede jacket and denim trousers, the 29-year-old photographer emerged from his Pimlico flood studio next door to a laundry to train his camera on all aspects of London life. His one - man shows leaned more heavily on photographs of street fires than high society portraiture.

COLUMNISTS RUEFUL

Gossip columnists were rueful over their failure to penetrate an immaculately kept royal secret, recalled that they had made a suspected something when Armstrong-Jones appeared at an unaccustomed white tie and tails last May to help celebrate Queen's box at the West Side Story, an American musical, in the first of their rare appearances together.

Invariably on such occasions there were others in the party. Columnists, eager to link the names of eligible bachelors with the princess, ascribed the frequent presence of Armstrong-Jones at the royal residence to his photographic duties.

It is considered likely that the Queen will exercise her prerogative of conferring a title on the future brother-in-law before the wedding date of which has not been announced—as she did with the Duke of Edinburgh, who was Lieut. Philip Mountbatten when they became engaged.

As matters stand, the princess would be known after her marriage as Her Royal Highness Princess Margaret, Mistress Armstrong-Jones. Both she and her father are 29.

Marriage to a commoner would not affect her ranking in the procession where she follows the Queen, Prince Charles, Princess Anne, and the week-old royal baby. Her descendants take precedence over those of her uncle, the Duke of Gloucester.

Princess Margaret also continues her rank as second behind Prince Philip in the event of regency.

Armstrong-Jones shares Princess Margaret's interest in the theatre as well as photography. He has designed sets for an unsuccessful musical a few years ago where virtually every aspect of the production that won the approval of critics and he has been staging the show for its New York west-end plays.

Budget Deficit Not Far off Level Of Year Earlier

OTTAWA (CP) — With two months remaining in the current fiscal year, the federal government had a budgetary deficit of $108,500,000—not far off the level a year earlier—Finance Minister Fleming reported Friday night.

His treasury statement for the 10-month period April - January showed a surplus of $12,400,000 $12,400,000 less than the $120,900,000 for the corresponding period of the 1958-59 year.

The question now remains whether the customary rush of bills to be paid before year-end on March 31 will bring government accounts back to near the $292,000,000 deficit forecast in Mr. Fleming's budget speech.

The 1958-59 deficit was $509,000,000.

The accounts reported Friday night showed that a buoyant rise in tax revenues has been almost matched by higher expenditures.

Operations in the month of January added a $21,300,000 deficit compared with the small $18,000 surplus in January 1959.

The old age security fund—not included in these budgetary accounts—showed a $9,700,000 surplus in January. It was the second monthly surplus so far in the fiscal year and left the fund with an accumulated deficit of $34,500,000 for the 10 months.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — Winds will gradually decrease in most regions late today becoming light tonight under clearing skies. Mainly cloudy skies with snowflurries will be general over most of the province today, and considerable drifting will continue in the snowbelts.

A new disturbance in the United States southwest will give increasing cloudiness Sunday over southwestern Ontario, possibly followed by some light snow.

PARTISAN AIRING GIVEN PLIGHT OF ELLIOT LAKE

More Criticism Of Jobless Issue

OTTAWA (CP)—The plight of Elliot Lake, Northern Ontario uranium centre where heavy unemployment looms, received an extensive and at times strongly partisan airing in the Commons Friday.

At one stage Joseph Slogan (PC—Springfield) called on Opposition Leader Pearson to apologize for suggesting that the government's proposed new nuclear research centre should be located at Elliot Lake rather than the Whiteshell area of Manitoba.

Mr. Slogan's constituency takes in Whiteshell, Mr. Pearson's Algoma East riding includes Elliot Lake, where uranium production is to be cut due to the approaching loss of U.S. markets. Several thousands will be thrown out of work.

STILL NO VOTE

Under consideration Friday was a supplementary estimate of $15,000,000 to finance federal participation in a winter works program aimed at relieving unemployment. The proposal went through in the day of debate without coming to a vote.

Several opposition speakers renewed criticism against the government of failure to deal effectively with unemployment problems.

Mr. Pickersgill (L—Bonavista-Twillingate) and J. C. Van Horne (PC — Restigouche-Madawaska) found themselves in agreement in calling for more vocational training as a weapon against unemployment resulting from automation.

Mr. Slogan, replying to suggestions that the new research centre be located at Elliot Lake, said relocation of the project could not in any way relieve the unemployment situation there.

It would be 1965 before the research project could get under operation, he said, and at that time only 200 would be employed—all of them technicians.

PARTY EMBARRASSED

Provincial Liberals in Manitoba "were embarrassed" by the attitude taken by their party, Mr. Slogan said. "It is not a question of saying we are not pleased with provincialism," he urged Mr. Pearson to change his attitude, and to "apologize to the people of Manitoba."

Mr. Pearson said not in the House when Mr. Slogan spoke.

There has been a lot of talk and much exaggeration in connection with the situation at Elliot Lake, Mr. Slogan said. Private reports said 1,000 telegrams protesting the site termination of the U.S. contracts were sent to Trade Minister Churchill. There were actually 500.

It had been reported 500 Elliot Lake workers were marching to

'Torture' Cry Southern Senators Facing Round-Clock Sessions

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States Senate is about to witness some of the longest, bitterest and despair of a civil war that seems to have no end.

Thousands of southern Negroes are presently blocked from voting through intimidation and red tape designed specifically to prevent the Negro from gaining any political power.

Next week the U.S. Senate will go into round-the-clock sessions to break southern filibustering against legislation to ensure that the grave injustice will be ended.

This collection would be provided through federal referees who inspect voting rolls in southern counties. Wilful or caught preventing Negroes from voting could become liable to court prosecution.

There is no doubt southern whites fear the proposed legislation and that their Senate representatives will do everything in their power to block passage of the bill.

Party loyalties have split wide open.

A Democratic president-hopeful, Senate majority leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas, heads the forces which hope to ram the legislation through the chamber.

Senator Dem ocrats have charged those supporting Johnson in imposing compulsory debate with imposing "tyranny, torture and inhumane treatment" on southern filibusters. Florida senator Spessard Holland, a Democrat, says those who insist on round -the - clock sessions "are going to have their hearts and hands and consciences the responsibility for the health and lives of every member of the Senate who should not be subject to the strain of this movement and who may not be able to survive it."

In the end, the chamber may have to vote to force closure of debate if filibustering continues past such an extent that other vital legislation cannot be considered. If a closure motion is approved, it would be the first time in modern history that the chamber voted to shut off a long Dixie filibuster against civil rights legislation.

Second Major Storm in Week Smothers Quebec, Maritimes

By The Canadian Press

For the second time in a week, Eastern Canada suffered under wind-driven snow that clogged highways, closed schools and claimed lives.

The storms reached from Southern Ontario through the Maritimes from Thursday to early today.

Southern Ontario dug out from under the thick blanket of snow Friday. Montreal was coping with a slush removal problem left by the 10 inches or snow dumped on that city in mild temperatures.

Quebec City had all available workmen out Friday night trying to remove from six to eight inches of snow mixed with deep drifts by winds gusting to 60 miles an hour.

The Maritime provinces were hit by rain, freezing rain and blizzards. Winds reached 100 miles an hour in some coastal areas.

The death toll included two women killed in a car crash near Hamilton Thursday night. Seven men—three in Toronto, two in Windsor and one in Lindsay — apparently suffered heart attacks while shovelling snow.

Another was reported dead in the snow at Preston.

Thursday's storm centred around Toronto where 20,000 cars were abanded—on city streets. Toronto escaped the brunt of the storm last weekend when 12 inches of snow Thursday, the greatest amount in 16 years.

All through Eastern Canada Thursday and Friday the story was the same: Wind and snow stalled cars, closed schools, airlines and trains cancelled and business disrupted.

In Gaël, an expectant mother was carried from a hospital delivery room on a toboggan Thursday night after a hurried trip through a snowstorm. She gave birth to a boy 30 minutes later.

Traffic was moving again in Toronto and Montreal Friday night but light snow was still falling in Quebec City and more expected to continue. Officials of Quebec's Winter Carnival hoped the storm might keep thousands of visitors away from the weekend.

Heavy snow and drifting was reported in northern Nova Scotia and in northern New Brunswick. Some areas expected gusts of wind up to 90 miles an hour today.

Steel Union Head Credited With Averting Sault Strike

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—A strike threatening to idle 5,000 persons was averted Friday night by settlement of a labor dispute at the Algoma Steel Corporation's plant here.

An agreement signed by the company and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (CLC) will put Canada's second largest steel plant back into production Monday, the union said.

Settlement was announced by Ross Diefenbaker, brotherhood president of the brotherhood, and Reginald Armstrong, Algoma's general manager of labor relations.

Both men credited William Mahoney, vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress, for playing an important part in the talks.

A walkout was called by the Brotherhood after negotiations broke down in a dispute involving 74 locomotive workers operating trains inside the company's yards. It had been scheduled for 12:01 a.m. today.

Algoma began laying off men Thursday in preparation for a shutdown. Dec. 31, 1959, the contract was signed about 2,500 men were out of work. More than 3,500 would have been idle by today.

Douglas Joyce, Algoma's vice-president of operations, said employees would be called back to work gradually as possible.

Said the dispute was over incentive pay. The company said it didn't know how an incentive plan could be negotiated. The union urged that an incentive plan be negotiated before the details could be worked out. Apparently the settlement was not disclosed.

Mr. Mahoney flew here Thursday in his capacity as executive director of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC), bargaining agent for most of the Algoma workers.

Tighten Security Measures After Riot in Buenos Aires

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Argentina tightened security and military precautions today as President Eisenhower arrived on his visit to Buenos Aires after a tri umphant welcome marred Friday night by an anti-United States demonstration.

The president's brief appearance Thursday night were without incident, however. He was met at the airport by a guard along the route he followed between the airport and the palace for the re sort of Mar del Plata.

Police kept the crowd on the rim of the city. Many persons barbecued, placed a wreath at the monument to Argentina's hero de San Martin, Argentina's national hero. Usually the public is permitted to walk up the monuments at close range.

About 500 socialist demonstrators tore down U.S. flags Friday night in the heart of the capital.

The demonstrators were members of the Argentine Socialist party, a small left-wing splinter group which broke away from the Socialist party in opposing communist ties with imposing tyranny, torture and inhumane treatment" on Argentina's people. Florida senator Spessard Holland, a Democrat, says those who insist on round -the - clock sessions "are going to have their hearts and hands and consciences the responsibility for the health and lives of every member of the Senate who should not be subject to the strain of this movement and who may not be able to survive it."

In the end, the chamber may have to vote to force closure of debate if filibustering continues past such an extent that other vital legislation cannot be considered. If a closure motion is approved, it would be the first time in modern history that the chamber voted to shut off a long Dixie filibuster against civil rights legislation.

ONTARIO FOLKS DO NOT WANT MANSION--NIXON

Might Be Considered "White Elephant"

TORONTO (CP)—The people of Ontario don't want a lavish, ant-governor's mansion or Premier Frost would have mentioned it in his election campaign last June, Harry C. Nixon (L—Brant) told the legislature Friday.

Mr. Nixon raised the matter during debate of the 1960-61 estimates for operation of the lieutenant - governor's department.

He suggested the gift of a 30-room mansion in the Ontario government by Sigmund Samuel of Toronto might be considered a "white elephant" by the electorate.

Mr. Nixon said Mr. Frost had not mentioned the government's plans to turn the home into a home for Lieutenant-Governor J. Keiller Mackay because the voters might not have approved.

"I didn't want to win all the seats," Mr. Frost replied.

He said he appreciated Mr. Samuel, a philanthropist and patron of the arts, that he would not divulge the gift until Mr. Samuel passed on a time.

HOW GREAT A COST?

Mr. Nixon said before the government committed ahead with its plan it should know how much the maintenance costs will be for the "monstrosity or what ever you call it."

Cries of "Shame" came from the Progressive Conservative benches.

Mr. Nixon also wondered whether the government has considered the amount of succession duties which would be lost to Ontario now that the mansion is removed from the Samuel estate.

Mr. Frost called the donor "a great citizen" and said many of the antiques from the last lieutenant-governor's mansion, Chorley Park, have been offered by individuals for the new residence.

CHECK ON MORTGAGES

Attorney-General Roberts said the Liberals may be interrogated this session to regulate and control persons in the business of mortgage field who charge excessive rates of interest.

He said the area field is being studied by W. Commons, deputy attorney-general, and evidence to date indicates there may be a number of cases of fraud connected with the mortgage business.

Later, in an interview, Mr. Roberts said he was unable to say what he said constitutes an excessive rate of interest. Usina a figure of 20,000 per cent per year might be charged an additional $1,000 for the purported cost of arranging for the mortgage and then be charged 18-to-12 per cent on the remaining sum of $1,000.

"There may be a necessity for the Liberals to interrogate in this respect people," Mr. Roberts said.

Princess Wears Engagement Ring, Ruby, Diamonds in Flower Shape

WINDSOR, England (AP) — Princess Margaret wore her engagement ring today, a ruby surrounded by diamonds set in the shape of a flower.

She appeared happy as she admired the ring at the Royal Lodge with the dashing young man she will marry, society photographer Antony Armstrong-Jones, 29-year-old commoner.

Margaret, together, they stood on the grounds of the lodge, watching the bright sunshine make the ring sparkle on her hand. Red for long happiness, said members of the household. Princess Margaret was 29 last Aug. 21.

Armstrong-Jones was at the lodge, about 30 miles west of London, as a weekend guest of the Queen Mother who happily announced the engagement of her youngest daughter Friday night.

After admiring the ring, Armstrong-Jones and the princess strolled about. Yellow crocus buds are beginning to peep out in the six guest rooms in the stone and stucco lodge, and he picked a few to present to the princess.

Margaret and her fiance were expected to return to London Monday or Tuesday. They were scheduled to attend a performance of the Royal Ballet with the Queen Mother Tuesday night, marking Armstrong-Jones' first appearance in the royal party at an official engagement.

Mother And Four Children Victims Of House Blaze

Father Escapes Fire Without Serious Injury

CAMPBELLFORD, Ont. (CP) — A mother and her four children were burned to death early today when fire destroyed a farm home about 10 miles southwest of this Peterborough district town.

Dead are: Mrs. Margaret Bateson, 39; Kathy, 12; Robert, 10; Kenneth, 8, and June, 4.

The father, William Bateson, escaped without serious injury.

AWAKENED BY NOISE

The father, William Bateson, is said to have been awakened by a noise or explosion downstairs and had gone to the lower floor to investigate.

He found the lower floor of the home filled with smoke and flames and on his way back up the stairs was cut off.

He ran outside and awakened his wife and family by shouting but they refused to heed his pleading for them to jump to safety from the second floor window.

When his family would not make the jump to safety, Mr. Bateson ran on a neighboring home for help and to spread the alarm. When he returned his wife and children had disappeared from the upstairs window and the fire had gained such progress that would-be rescuers could not get near the burning structure.

The Campbellford Fire Department battled bought heavy roads to get to the scene but were unable to do anything to save the farm home.

Three Engines Carry Airliner Safely Home

LONDON (Reuters) — A fourengined British airliner from Montreal with more than 60 passengers aboard landed safely at London airport today after developing engine trouble over the Atlantic as it neared Ireland.

The plane landed on only three engines.

The pilot had radioed he would have to feather one propeller but added he was not in any serious trouble.

'Spy' Satellite Fails to Orbit

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The United States attempted to launch a huge military "spy" satellite into orbit Friday but the rocket failed.

The Atlas intercontinental ballistic Midas satellite into position for a low orbit but the second stage did not separate and the entire assembly was consumed in a fricition heat as it fell back into the atmosphere.

In an attempt to launch a 14-ton Polaris missile also ended in failure when the range safety officer had to destroy the missile after it was fired. It had veered off course.

Form National Body on Hazards Of Radiation

TORONTO (CP)—Formation of a 45-member national committee to tell Canadians about radiation hazards and help form public opinion on what should be done to prevent an increase in such hazards was announced Friday night.

The National Committee for the Control of Radiation Hazards was established to outline these specific objectives:

1. The immediate cessation of nuclear tests by all countries, to be enforced by a system of inspection, preferably under United Nations auspices; 2. Intensification of research into the effects of all types of ionizing radiation; 3. Enforcement of regulations designed to minimize radiation hazards; 4. Restriction of all scientific and medical techniques involving the use of radiation to persons competently qualified by scientific training and operating under standards established by competent scientific bodies.

Provisional chairman is Dr. H. L. Kronkvale, chairman of the British Columbia Power Commission and former director-general of the United Nations Technical Assistance Administration.

NATIONAL CONFERENCE

The announcement said the committee will organize a national conference to be held in Montreal in March or April "at which its activities will be submitted for endorsement to a large number of like-minded people drawn from all parts of Canada."

"An increasing number of people in Canada . . . have become deeply concerned over the possible effects of our own and future generations of the hazards resulting from the increase of radioactivity in the world and its atmosphere," the manifesto declares.

Municipal Law To Be Rewritten Says Minister

TORONTO (CP) — A study which could result in the rewriting of all provincial legislation relating to municipal law will be undertaken by a new legal branch of the municipal affairs department.

Deputy Minister L. H. Cumming said on Friday the legal branch, established in the recent reorganization of the municipal affairs department, will look at all public and private legislation affecting Ontario municipalities.

The study will try to root out "horse and buggy" clauses and duplications in various acts, Mr. Cumming said.

The department would like legislation reorganized so that municipalities don't have to come to Queen's Park every year for special, permissive legislation.

A revision would be a means toward stopping municipalities from spending "big money" on projects without approval of the municipal board, Mr. Cumming said.

Would Be Nice To Honeymoon On West Coast

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Province speculated today that Princess Margaret, whose engagement to photographer Antony Armstrong-Jones was announced Friday, might spend her honeymoon in British Columbia.

"British Columbia should waste no time in extending a reminder to the princess that she is the legal owner of an island in the province," the news-paper says in an editorial.

"An island is a honeymoon on. We can offer privacy, gleam-ing water and a lot of it — sunshine."

The B.C. government presented the princess with Portland Island, in the Georgia Strait, when she visited the province during its centennial celebrations in 1958.

HERCULES (HARK) ROLLINS

The funeral of Hercules (Hark) Rollins, life-long resident of Cooper, was held from his late residence on Thursday to Cooper United Church, where service was conducted by Rev. V. A. Pigeon. The many relatives and friends in attendance paid the profusion of beautiful floral tributes testified to the very high esteem in which he was held in the community.

Pallbearers were borne to his final place of rest in Cooper Cemetery by Fred Irwin, Earl Greene, Fred Bailey, Russell Moore, Earl Wartman and Mel King.

MRS. MARY W. CLARK

MADOC — Funeral services for Mrs. Mary W. Clark, formerly of Madoc, who passed away on Sunday in Roseville, Michigan, were held on Thursday from the MacKenzie Funeral Home, Madoc, where services were conducted by Rev. R. H. Hobbs of Trinity United Church. The many relatives and friends in the Madoc district in attendance testified to the very high esteem in which the deceased was held.

The bearers were Gene Jarvis, Jack Jarvis, Donald Prince, Timothy Clark, Jack Clark and William Nicholas.

Interment was in Lakeview Cemetery.

WILLIAM HENDERSON

The funeral service of William Henderson of Millbridge, Ontario, was held from the Eric Kenzie Funeral Home, Madoc, on Wednesday afternoon. The service was conducted by the Rev. C. Betts and interment was at Plainfield Cemetery.

Mr. Henderson died at the Ashcroft Home, Queensboro, on Monday in his 89th year. He was born in Hillier, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. Henderson and lived in the early days of Rawdon and Glanmire area. He was employed in the lumbering industry, and for a number of years in Millbridge schools, and was a very highly esteemed member of his community. He was a member of the Glanmire Anglican Church and was a past master of the L.O.L. at Millbridge.

He is survived by his sister Ethel Lumsis, who predeceased him. Surviving are a son, Charles of Millbridge, and a daughter, Mrs. D. D. (Hazel) Lavender of Marmora.

The bearers were Allan Henderson, Marmora; Armstrong, Elvin Armstrong, Glen Lavender, Ian Lavender and Charles Henderson, Jr.

ANNIE ELIZABETH BELL

The funeral service of Annie Elizabeth Bell was held from the chapel of the John R. Bush Funeral Home on Friday afternoon with the Rev. Gordon Woodcock officiating. Interment was at Belleville Cemetery.

The bearers were Robert Tullock, Frank Butler, Lee Collier, George Mullen, Harry Morrison, and Percy McWilliams.

MRS WILLIAM JAMES

In falling health for over a year, Mrs. Lottie Mae Barber died at her home, 34 McAnnany Street, early this Saturday morning. She was born at Mount-ain View 81 years ago, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Foster and had been a resident of Ameliasburg township until this city all of her life. She had resided in this city for the past 25 years and was highly regarded and well known to a wide circle of friends.

She was a woman of charming disposition, fine conversationalist and enjoyed meeting and keeping friends. Her death will bring sincere regret to a wide circle.

Mrs. Barber was a member of Bridge Street United Church and active in church work when health permitted.

Surviving are three sons, J. Stanley Barber, William Reginald Barber and Clifford F. Barber, all of the Mountain View community, and two sisters, Mrs. Ernest (Ethel) Wallbridge of Mountain View and Mrs Catherine Taylor of Pittsburgh, Pa. Also surviving are seven grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. Her husband, William James Barber, died in 1920.

Heads of Civic Departments Consider Mutual Problems

TRENTON — The second, of what civic administrators heads in Trenton hope will be regularly scheduled meetings of heads of various departments connected with the running of town affairs, was held yesterday afternoon in the board room at the municipal office. The purpose of these meetings is to allow the department heads to discuss mutual problems and prevent differences arising from a lack of understanding of the problems besetting each other's departments.

Present at the meeting were: O. W. Larry, town clerk-treasurer; Chief of Police F. J. Taylor; Fire Chief Cecil Ellis; Fred Page, manager of Trenton Public Utilities; A. Gordon Davis, welfare officer; Walter Murray, town engineer; Arie Hoornveld, assistant engineer; Alan Weaver, tax collector, and Allan Smith, assessor. W. J. Fairbairn, supervising principal of Trenton public schools, and secretary of the Board of Education, was unable to be present.

Items under discussion were joint janitor service possibilities, the cost of operating a new one or more department trucks, the handling of garbage and oil companies for servicing municipal needs and contracts for annual tire requirements for town vehicles.

BUDGETING NEXT

Capital budgeting of town funds was discussed. The town pegged a total debenture debt of $2,769,469, a certain amount of which is recoverable by means of rates over the years, together with the recoverable amount considered. The danger is gradually near the saturation point of the town's borrowing. The Department of Municipal Affairs stipulates that a municipality's debt must not exceed a figure of 20 per cent of its current assessment value. In the case of Trenton, it is 13.3.

Meantime, the town is faced with a number of needed capital improvements which cannot prove to be costlier at a future date.

It was suggested that the heads of departments make up budgets covering the requirements of their departments for a number of years for the consideration of this year's council and future councils.

PUC HAS BUSINESS

The Public Utilities Commission has compiled a budget covering a five-year period of the probable needs of the water department. No allowance has been made in the budget for the servicing of sub-divisions several of which are being tentatively planned for this district. The PUC is responsible for extending existing water mains to the boundaries of the new subdivisions.

As an example, the sewer facilities must be extended along Sidney Street to the south side of Dufferin Street. This must be timed to coincide with the development of a housing project which is being planned in the north Byron area within two years.

Walter Murray informed those present that he had been considering the advisability of having a plan of the town drawn, which would include existing and sub-divisions. This plan would be drawn to 100 feet to the inch and every registered plan of a corporation would be numbered and registered in its proper dimensional relation to neighboring lots. The plan would cost $600. It would include integrated features of all existing registered plans.

Mr. Murray stated further that he would with an additional plan with the addition of contour lines. This second plan would cost around $350. He said he felt the Public Utilities Commission should benefit from such a plan, as would also the Trenton Hydro Electric Commission and that those three bodies might be asked to share the cost with the town. Mr. Page said that the PUC would definitely be interested in the plan.

NEW LOOK

The mayor's office in the municipal building has taken on a new look. With Mayor James McDougall occupying the chair, and a town employee doing the brush work, the walls of the office are now a pastel green tone and the woodwork is a cafe au lait color.

FILL POT HOLES

Thursday afternoon, workmen connected with the Department of Public Works, filled several pot holes on Front Street and two blocks off Dundas Street on Ontario Street, with gravel, and declared them will be considered a step in the right direction by all motorists who have occasion to drive in this part of town.

RALLY POSTPONED

A camp rally, scheduled for Friday evening at Trenton Street United Church, was postponed until another date, because several groups had planned to go over to Trenton from other points to discuss plans for next year's camp at Quin-Mo-Lac.

Snow Removed From Main Street In Quick Order

TRENTON — Yesterday in Trenton, public officials and private citizens alike were concerned with one thing only . . . Operation Snow Removal.

The trucks, shovel loaders, snow plows and graders belonging to the Trenton Department of Public Works started early Thursday morning to wrestle with the problem, and continued all day Friday.

Six additional trucks were hired to supplement those of the department and a number of snow piled at the side of the road by the snow plow. One additional shovel loader was rented to assist the two owned by the department.

By ten o'clock in the morning all the streets and thoroughfares were cleared and the snow piled at the side streets.

Meanwhile, residents were out en masse armed with snow shovels to clear their walks and driveways.

The children loved it. Snow forts were built, gigantic snow balls rolled in the back yards, and many motorway citizen had occasion to regret that he had given up his weapon for the snowbound. One mother reported that she had discovered Junior packing snow balls in the cookie dough before he left for school.

Sought $110,000 For Lost Dog, Accepts $550

DETROIT (AP)—Judy Ferren, the 17-year-old Canadian girl who attracted world attention in her search for her missing dog, Jinty, settled out of court today for $550 in a damage suit against the New York Central Railroad.

Circuit Judge Thomas E. Brennan approved the settlement.

Judy, a native of St. Thomas, Ont., originally had sought $110,000.

She said she planned to use the $550 to continue advertising for her year-old Alsatian shepherd.

The dog was lost while Judy and her mother were traveling from Southampton, England, to St. Thomas just before Christmas.

After Judy reached St. Thomas and learned the dog was missing she hitch-hiked to Detroit and started a search on her own. Railroad officials say they still are looking.

Health Assoc. To Move Head Office to Toronto

OTTAWA (CP)—In a rare display of unanimity, the Commons approved in principle Friday a private member's bill that will empower the Canadian Public Health Association to shift its Ottawa headquarters to Toronto.

The bill's sponsor, Dr. John Buchanan (PC—Victoria Park), received a ministerial blessing from the health minister Paul Martin (L—Essex East) for his action in setting up clinics to inoculate Asiatic flu victims against the viral anti-polio vaccine.

The bill was sent to a committee for further study.

Approval in principle also was given a private member's bill to allow the Algoma Central and Hudson Bay Railway Company to make administrative changes in its setup, to hold annual meetings in Canada at other than Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and to make increases in the number of directors.

BRITONS

An enthusiastic amateur carpenter, he did most of work himself, constructing the staircase out of wooden planks and brass water pipe.

One of first bits of news that followed the announcement of the royal engagement was that Armstrong-Jones will accept no further professional work.

All Britain was agog and a gossiping today about the engagement.

The press swept front pages clear of most other news to trumpet the romantic tidings.

Gossip columnists, taken by surprise like everyone else, belatedly pieced together inside stories.

Meanwhile, the betrothed couple slipped away from London to the royal lodge in wooded Windsor Park, near Windsor Castle.

MAKING PLANS?

Columnists speculated they were making wedding plans there with Queen Mother Elizabeth.

Announcement of the engagement by the Queen Mother Elizabeth did not mention a wedding date.

Conjecture on whether the petite, blue-eyed princess would marry has been a recurring pastime here ever since she announced the hand of dashing air force officer Peter Townsend in the fall of 1955.

Perhaps mindful of the fuss and gossip surrounding that affair, the Royal Family kept the current courtship a closely guarded secret.

Princess and lesser aristocrats had been named as possible suitors of Queen Elizabeth's sister. But Margaret chose a commoner, son of a twice-divorced lawyer and a woman who now is a countess following her remarriage.

FACE SOON FAMILIAR

One of the few understatements on the romance in British papers was the caption on a picture of Armstrong-Jones telling readers: "This is the man whose face will soon be very familiar to you. . . ."

The slim, blonde Armstrong-Jones moved in London's high society as much by reason of his background as because of his skill in photography. He was educated at exclusive Eton College and Cambridge University.

Professionally speaking, Armstrong-Jones now relegates to the attic his camera and tripod which has brought him love and success. He will move into Buckingham Palace to live with Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip while the wedding is being planned.

Armstrong-Jones is an elegant young man who got to the top of his profession by enthusiasm.

FATHER ON HONEYMOON

His father is Ronald Owen Lloyd Armstrong-Jones, 60, a clever Welsh lawyer, who celebrated his third marriage only 16 days ago to Miss Jennifer Unlle, 31-year-old beauty. They are honeymooning in Bermuda.

His mother is the present Countess of Rose, who in the 1930s was known as "the loveliest woman in Mayfair," London's society land. She married Lord Rosse in 1936 after the breakup of her marriage to Tony's father.

Billy Wallace, a close friend of Princess Margaret and regarded for years as one of her suitors, said Friday night: "I am overjoyed at the news."

Queen Elizabeth approves of the match. The official announcement from Clarence House, London home of the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret, said she "has graciously given her consent."

Prince Philip is known to be an admirer of the young photographer and his work.

In Montreal, John Turner, a favorite dancing partner of Princess Margaret when she visited Canada, expressed pleasure at their engagement.

In Paris, the bride of Peter Townsend, said "Peter and I have known about this for a long time."

"We are very pleased about it."

Townsend was not available for comment.

TO WITHDRAW PLANES

OTTAWA (CP) — The United States Air Force will withdraw its jet interceptor squadron from Ernest Harmon Field, Nfld., this year, informed sources said Friday. The move is part of a general plan to place more emphasis on missiles controlled electronically and less on manned interceptors controlled by voice instructions from the ground.

High School Activities

By STEVIE DAHL

One of the most thrilling basketball games ever played at BCVS's ended in defeat last Tuesday for our junior team.

Moira Secondary School won by a slim three-point margin gained in the last minute of the game, but both teams seemed evenly matched as they played fast and furious basketball.

MSS since won the Bay of Quinte COSSA Junior championship.

Our Key Club was host, Saturday to several other clubs at a district Key Club cancus. Due to bad weather, some members were unable to attend, but the ones who did spent a busy day at meetings, discussion, a banquet, and a dance a BCI.

A few weeks ago a regional cherry pie baking contest was held and the winner was Donna Boomer of 12B1 at BCI. The sponsors awarded Donna a gold watch. She then competed for the grand prize at the national contest in Toronto. This goes to show Belleville girls can cook, and not yet taken over the art of cooking, it pays dividends to listen when mother explains how not to burn the crust!

Another BCVS prize-winner was Wayne Soble who was awarded the trophy for the junior championship in the Quinte District public speaking contest. Wayne will advance to further competition and with his excellent material and presentation we know he has a good chance of winning.

MANY FACETS

In last Wednesday's assembly we all learned of the many different facets and phases concerned with pharmacy.

Flt. Lieut. Beale, pharmacist at RCAF Station Trenton, was introduced by Mr. Seldon. Both guests spoke briefly about their occupations.

A film about pharmacy as a career was shown and several students remained afterwards to ask questions of Mr. Seldon and Flt. Lt. Beale.

B.C.I. prefects now have real power in their hands. Once again the prefects longed for the ability to give that "butting-in-and-so a protection just once." Realizing the need for some disciplined lawyers who eat in the wrong section!

Associate Agricultural Representative Clinton Nesbitt of Stirling (centre), reads scores for members of the Belleville Collegiate judging team which took honors at Friday's seed judging competition at Stirling. Left to right are team members Arnold Ritz, David Stanton, Mr. Nesbitt, Lyle Vanclief and Lloyd Spencer. Absent is team member Clare Treverton.

Speed Blamed For Belleville Man's Death

OTTAWA (CP) — A coroner's jury Friday night blamed excessive speed by Robert Gallinger of Belleville, in a fatal accident near here last June 20 that took his life. Gallinger, 40, died of multiple injuries after his station wagon, passing traffic on a curve, hit a highway shoulder and overturned 12 miles west of here. Truck driver Rene Brazeau testified his heavy transport was travelling between 50 and 55 miles an hour when Gallinger passed him just before the accident.

Parliament to protest. Then the count was reduced to 150.

Murdo Martin (CCF—Timmins) suggested Elliot Lake become the site of a Northern Ontario university.

He said the community cost Canadian taxpayers twice what it should have because a level site for building five miles away had not been used. Now the taxpayers would lose this money and have to spend still more for the university centre in Manitoba.

Mr. Martin read a letter which he said he had received from an Elliot Lake businessman who described himself as a Progressive Conservative. The businessman said he is disgusted with the federal administration for letting Elliot Lake become a ghost town.

Mr. Martin said Mr. Pearson had befogged the problem more than he thought it possible to do.

Small Market Due to Storm, Rough Weather

A cold west wind and rough roads after Thursday's snowstorm got together today and kept the number of farmers at market to a handful.

Pork sides were again available at 25 cents a pound for fronts and 32 for hinds.

Apples: Greenings and Snows, $1.50 per bushel; Mace and Sweets $2.25; Russets and Delicious 75 cents per basket.

Pears sold a t 75 cents per basket.

Vegetables: cooking onions 60 cents per basket; carrots 50 cents; Spanish onions 75 cents; potatoes 65 cents a basket or 75 pounds for $3; turnips three for 25 cents; parsnips three pounds for 20 cents; acorn squash 20 cents; cabbages two for 20 cents.

FIRE TWO TOLL MEN

OTTAWA (CP)—Two toll officers on the Jacques Cartier bridge at Montreal have been dismissed for depositing toll fees in the collection equipment, the national harbors board announced Friday. Regulations state all fares must be deposited by the patrons themselves, it said.

Lyle Vanclief, BCI Student, Wins 3 Cups in Seed Judging

A Prince Edward county high school student attending classes at Belleville Collegiate took top honors in the annual Hastings County Junior Farmers seed judging competition held at Stirling Friday.

Lyle Vanclief, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Vanclief of Ameliasburg township, not only led his BCI judging team to victory, but was also top Intermediate boy and made a clean sweep of the Bishop Trophy; the H. R. Tompkins Trophy, and the Sid MacDonald Trophy.

Lyle rolled up a total of 553 points as top Intermediate boy. Doug Farrell won the senior section with 814 points, Brian Skinner was top novice boy with 736, and Wayne McPherson topped the junior section with 668 points.

Despite heavy roads resulting from the seven inch fall of snow which fell over the Quinte area the night previous, close to 50 juniors competed in the competition which saw both coarse grains clover seed judged. With fine weather close to 70 juniors would have taken part.

The competition was under the direction of Stirling Department of Agriculture officials Sidney McDonald and Clinton Nesbitt. Accepting reasons and marking the boys' cars were Agricultural Representative Newton Ashton of Napanee, and Don Taylor of Picton. Also assisting were Bruce Bishop of Belleville, and Byron Beeler, fruit and vegetable branch fieldman for Hastings and Prince Edward County.

WIN RIGHT TO BUILD

TORONTO (CP) — After an eight-year battle, Snow Properties Limited finally has won permission to build a shopping centre in Oakville, midway between here and Hamilton. Oakville council had rejected three applications since 1952. Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow Friday granted the company a court order for a building permit to erect one-story commercial stores on its land.

ALL SET — For four-in-one birthday party Sunday is Debbie King, smiling daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William King, 6 Holden Street, Belleville. Born Feb. 29th, 1956, Debbie will be celebrating her first actual birthday, although she is now four years old. Sister Sandra and brother Billy will be party guests.

Two Injured In Accident, Heavy Damage

Two persons were injured and property damage amounting to approximately $1,200 resulted early today when two vehicles collided head-on on Pinnacle Street near the National Grocers warehouse.

Injured were Roy Sanford, driver for Central Taxi, and his passenger Henry Hobbs of Station Street. Sanford suffered a fractured elbow, while his passenger was said to have suffered a fractured jaw as he pitched against the dash or windshield.

Police said that Albert Brenton, 19 Donald Street, driver of the other car involved, was southbound when he was reported to have turned out to pass another car and collided with the northbound taxi.

The Brenton car had front end damage amounting to about $700, while the taxi had about $300 damage. The accident occurred at 12.30 this morning.

Youth Admits Shooting Clerk At Airport

BRAMPTON (CP) — "I shot him with Terry's gun. I guess I shouldn't say anything more."

John Hartford, 19, of nearby Port Credit, charged with murder in the rifle slaying of Miss Beverly Wright, 29, of nearby Oakville, made the statement to police after his arrest.

The statement was admitted as evidence Friday as the Crown concluded its case in Hartford's Supreme Court trial.

Wright, a Trans-Canada Air Lines senior clerk, was found in the company's operations office at Malton Airport Nov. 24.

Hartford's brother Bruce, 16, said Hartford did not appear normal when he arrived home on the night of the crime. John was half talking and half laughing, he said.

He said his brother had not spoken to him for five or six weeks before the shooting and his family had not before, concerned they had a round-table discussion on the matter.

Under cross - examination he said he told police the morning John was arrested that he thought John was insane.

THREE-YEAR SENTENCE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gordon Sears, 37, an ordained minister, was sentenced Friday to three years on a charge of having sexual relations with a 12-year-old girl. Sears, father of three and leader of the Youth for Christ Movement here, pleaded guilty last week.

Must Destroy Noxious Weeds

TORONTO (CP) — Property owners who refuse to destroy noxious weeds will be faced with prosecution and a fine this year under legislation introduced in the legislature Friday by Agriculture Minister Goodfellow.

The bill gives exrolicit designations to municipal and county weed inspectors and prescribes the authority of each.

When an owner fails to comply with an order to destroy noxious weeds he faces prosecution and the inspector is authorized to destroy the weeds in accordance with regulations. Previous legislation delayed enforcement until it was too late to control the spread of the seed.

Mr. Goodfellow also introduced amendments to the Warble Fly Control Act and a bill to dispose of dead animals.

Few people who saw it, we imagine, left the theatre entranced. The true measure of the film's stature was that its full impact came later. It was one of those movies which stir regret that the phrase "thought-provoking" is almost universally applied to any movie, book or speech which attempts to convey even the most trivial message, leaving one groping for a fine, stiff stipulate phrase which will pay fitting tribute to the movie and at the same time not dishonor it by descending into the morass of Hollywoodian exaggeration.

"On the Beach" has a massive theme—a world dying by radioactivity following a nuclear war, and yet it is unpretentious—it does not endeavor to go into details but only relates the last few weeks of life of a handful of people in Australia, the last land to be smothered by the slow-moving radioactive dust. Amongst these people is the crew of a U.S. submarine, safe sunning themselves in the waters near Australia. By this device, we are taken north into the already dead world whose horror is chillingly depicted by showing, instead of rotting corpses and ruined buildings, a San Francisco untouched but without a single living thing on its streets as viewed through the periscope. The final scene is of a street and park in Melbourne, now similarly deserted. The world is dead.

"On the Beach" is based on a book by Nevile Shute, who recently died. It was, we believe, his last work. His first, or at least the first to come to our attention, appeared during the gruelling days of the Second Great War, a story of an aging Englishman shepherding a group of children through the French countryside ahead of the advancing panzer divisions of the Nazis, bringing them finally to the sea and across it to haven in England. If memory serves us aright, it was published in Collier's, a famous magazine now as dead as the tale he told. In the short space of two decades the essential story of war has changed from one of flight from terror to one of learning to accept the inevitability of oblivion.

That is Shute's message in "On the Beach" and he tells it so well that there is a danger the purpose which one senses behind the tale may be defeated. As the screen fades out, we see a banner in a Melbourne Park where a few days ago the Salvation Army preached. Over the deserted scene, in a breeze now unfelt by any living thing, flaps the message "There is still time, Brother." That is what Shute appears to be telling the world, that there is still time to avert this horror. Yet, so convincingly does Shute tell the tale of brave men and women accepting the inevitable, that the banner seems to flap not in warning but in derision. "Men are so blind," says an Australian girl, as she sips his suicide pill in sherry. The banner nods in mocking agreement. "Time, still time," is its lying message in a world where time has run out.

It is only after the movie that reason stirs against this passive acceptance of fate and one regains the healthier view that the nonexistence on viewing is a lifeless homeland. The intervening period of acceptance, though, forces us to examine this horror. What is it that so repulses us? Surely it is not the thought of death, for every living thing comes under the sentence of death the moment it is born. Not one of us but lives under the shadow of "the slow doom," to quote a partially remembered phrase from some unremembered source. (Is it Thomas Hardy?) Nor should a dead world offend the most of us. It, or a non-existent world, is what the Christian expects after the second coming. The scientists tell us much easier by automatic washing machines, they now be on the way out of together.

Many Can't Cook

Peterborough Examiner

Too many Canadian girls do not learn to cook although there are notable exceptions; there is some excuse because kitchens are now so replete with gadget baggage that even the skilled have little chance when confronted with formidable arrangements of magnetic can-openers, automatic coffee-makers and stoves that look like the machinery of a research laboratory.

FBI Theme Questioned

Washington Post and Times Herald

Isn't it paying a sort of compliment to the Communist Party in America to assert that with a high loss of membership, the party becomes more menacing than ever? At its national convention last December, reports placed the party's membership of the party at between 6,000 and 10,000 persons — as compared with a membership of 64,000 in 1945. Surely this is an indication that American Communists have been a miserable failure, and that even Mr. Khrushchev's visit has failed to pump new life into a slavishly alien party. Yet a recent headline proclaimed: "Hoover Sees Greater U.S. Red Peril."

This is a theme that J. Edgar Hoover, the FBI director, has reiterated many times. The smaller the party, the greater the menace . . .

In his testimony to the House in 1906, the Associated Press reported, Mr. Hoover advised that "the scuttling of the Daily Worker, far from being a sign that the Communist Party in America is collapsing, indicates that it is definitely under control of the Soviet Union." And now, in 1958, Mr. Hoover traces the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee that, in the wake of Mr. Khrushchev's visit, the dwindling party is "more powerful, more dangerous and even more of a menace to our republic."

To be sure, mere size does not tell the whole story. Party size does not include muddle-headed fellow travellers, and in some countries a handful of Communists have indeed been able to seize power. But in those countries — Russia after the Second War, a story of an aging Englishman shepherding a group of children through the French countryside ahead of the advancing panzer divisions of the Nazis, bringing them finally to the sea and across it to haven in England. If memory serves us aright, it was published in Collier's, a famous magazine now as dead as the tale he told. Can Discard Paper Shirts

Bess Ballstin

After the new paper shirt, which found great favor among bachelors but also among newlymarrieds, comes the next improvement in the finer points and complexities of civilization. Currently ironing a man's shirt, the Wife of German chemical industry has been one bething. Now it is succeeding in developing a special type of synthetic fabric to be used for many ufacturing items of clothing which can be discarded after use.

The Association of West German Chemical Industries has disclosed that the raw material for this purpose will not be made from cellulose as is most ordinary paper but from fully synthetic fibres. It is suited for such personal wearing apparel as shirts, blouses and collars, and also for table cloths and curtains. The "paper-cloth" which can be colored and given printed patterns, has great strength, is dirt repellent and moisture - resistant.

It means that laundry chores, already much easier by automatic washing machines, may now be on the way out of together.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

OUR GREAT OPPORTUNITY

Growth.

God's object in giving us life appears to be His extension to us of an opportunity to grow. We start as mere cells, we grow into huge persons. We begin with no purpose in life, we try to eat and sleep; we end by managing projects and enterprises. Our religious faith is that in the world beyond we will be associated with God Himself in the extension and management of great enterprises.

It is a dreadful thing when one growth in one aspect of the life. Some people grow physically and even intellectually without growing morally; they are cold, terrible extent. Still others lack growth in the physical or moral realm. One of the most horrifying realities to confront in life is the person who has grown physically and mentally but not spiritually. There are nature, by some people who appear to have almost no conscience at all. Sometimes they are brilliant, even beautiful, both attractive, powerful or wealthy. No one would trust them out of his sight.

The marvellous thing about Jesus was that He grew "in wisdom and stature, in favor with God and man." The night He was born most of the population of Palestine would simply have regarded Him as another mere baby. Jesus grew, and He is the ideal of those who look forward to the expansion of life into great purposes.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

February 27, 1940

Filling celebration of the 118th anniversary of Bridge Street United Church Sunday School was observed Sunday when Rev. Dr. Charles A. Myers, Associate Secretary of Religious Education of the United Church addressed both services and a special Sunday school service in the afternoon. A review of the history of the school which featured about the late Senator Billa Flint who came from Brockville to Belleville in 1820 was the highlight of the afternoon gathering. "In 1830, it was brought out, a census was made of the village and over two hundred children enrolled in the school, proving the names of the two hundred scholars are retained in the Church's history," said Dr. Myers. Immediately these "two hundred" are still living in this city and district.

The Senior B.Y.P.U. of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church heard an address Monday evening when Miss Kathleen Anderson spoke on the subject, "The Common Bond." The Bible with the Ten Commandments and teachings fixed a sane level or common bond for all mankind, stated Miss Anderson. The devotional group was in charge of the meeting with Mr. W. Hales in the chair.

Mr. and Mrs. G. MacDonald and son Bruce of Kingston spent the weekend in the city as the guests of the parents of Mrs. MacDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Ber. Way.

Mr. D. L. Bennett, a population and voting member of the choir of Tabernacle Church is leaving Belleville, having been called by the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, in which he is a lieutenant.

Arthur Clare, son of the late Sheriff James H. Clare, has been appointed by the Attorney K. C. Donnan as acting solicitor, which appointment will have been appointed by the attorney-general.

Belleville's Men's Basketball team won the intermediate championship of Eastern Ontario at Kingston last night by a score of 42 to 36. They will likely play against a Toronto club next in the Ontario playdowns. The local players were Armstrong, Weir, Faulkner, Walters, Buck and Davidson.

Mr. Stephen Licence is a delegate at the Methodist Deaconesses' Association convention at Hamilton.

When Mr. Charles Treverton drove his car into his garage at Consecon the other night he was confronted by an individual who gave his name as Charles Smith of unknown address who apparently was looking for a place to spend the night. The man told some weird story, maintaining that he came to this country with plenty of money on a pleasure trip but had lost it all in speculation.

The dummy policeman at the corner of Bridge and Front streets recently rough treatment last night. He was struck by a motor car and carried some distance. The driver of the car did not stop.

Hundreds of young and old skaters gathered at the Pres open air skating rink in the harbor last evening and the sight was worth seeing. The band was in attendance, also many spectators.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Belleville Agricultural Society was held last night in its rooms in the Robertson Block on Front Street. Charles E. Hanna, the president, occupied the chair. Mr. R. H. Ketcheson, the efficient secretary, was confined to his home through illness. R. T. Philbin recorded the minutes of the meeting. Fred A. Trow, a director for many years, was appointed as treasurer. Mrs. R. Hanley of this city is spending a few days in Toronto.

Messrs. Harry and Charles Greenleaf are attending the Automobile Show in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Slater are visiting friends in Toronto.

The Rev. Canon Starr of Kingston was a visitor in the city today.

KILDONAN, MAN.

This is the name of a historic parish in the city of Winnipeg. It was founded by the Selkirk settlers who came from the Hebrides in 1812. Latterly the name was perpetuated in East Kildonan, recently incorporated city on the east bank of the Red, and in North Kildonan and West Kildonan. The word is derived from the Gaelic "Cill Donain," meaning church, and "St. Donan" - the church of St. Donan.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

To me, one of the weird things about New York is the way the train bearing you into it, in the morning, passes through station after station in the far-flung suburbs, where the thousand commuters wait for their local train to follow yours; and not a soul of all those hundreds, lined up fifteen feet away, so much as raises an eye to watch your train flash by.

Not you. There they stand, people of all ages and styles, denizens of one of the greatest cities on earth, who have mastered completely the art of insitention. Few of them appear to be with companions or even acquaintances. By the thousand, they are alone. Their eyes are downcast. Or averted in an expression of indifference so complete that it is vaguely frightening. You peer at them from the billiard window for the first glimpses of the great city into which your thundering train is rushing you. Your eyes are full of expectancy. But not theirs. Not the hundreds of ship past another platform where you momentarily encounter six or three were as train racing by. Not a face turned to yours with the look in it as if you were on a ghost train.

Perhaps it is only in small towns that people on platforms wave and greet the passing of trains. Maybe some of them some just to see the train go by. It is a kind of pity that when a city grows big and full and loud enough to drown out the sound of

U.S. Manual Under Fire

Christian Science Monitor

The latest training manual blunder for the United States Air Force is by far its worst.

It seems incredible that a writer of distinguished publication could baldly state that "Communists . . . are trained operatives have successfully infiltrated into our churches" without being corrected by an authority until an airman showed it to his minister.

The Pentagon has now repudiated the booklet, and the chief of the National Council of Churches of Christ and recalled the manual. It is to be hoped that the investigation of how such a blatantly false allegation got so far will not be a superficial one aimed only at finding a scapegoat.

Even now, six years remote from McCarthyism, occasional self-seeking and hypocritical attempts are made to smear an innocent group as "Communist" in order to discredit it. Such calumny for instance, turns up in some cases of racial strife, business-union differences, and diplomatic rivalries.

Happily the story of the Air Force manual is not typically publicized, despite a second paragraph in the booklet which reads: "Another foolish remark often heard is that Americans have a right to know what's going on." Most people realize the foolhardiness of such a suggestion.

Fortunately, most people realize the foolhardiness of the mass-writer's whole warped thesis.

Strange Spot For Snooping

Vancouver Sun

Argentina's prolonged cat-and-mouse game with a submarine has had the qualities of suspense, mystery and menace. Now, Rear-Admiral Rodolfo Ketcheson, the efficient secretary, was confined to his home through illness. R. T. Philbin recorded the minutes of the meeting. Fred A. Trow, a director for many years, was appointed as treasurer. Though some committee of the fair board will meet in the near future when a program of racing will be on the program this year, something sensational in speed may be expected.

The submarine does not appear to be a submarine. It has the themselves the possessors of a coastline with plenty of remote bidey-holes, there is the added thrill of a mystery to solve.

And yet the only thing really remarkable about the episode is its value. For it has revealed the Patagonian coast in an area that would seem devoid of military interest.

For the rest, it represents simply a visible climax in a war which is growing hidden from the public eye.

The war of snooping.

There is no doubt that Russian submarines have operated off the Argentine Atlantic coasts.

There is little doubt that the submarines have collected fishing vessels in the western North Atlantic has other interests than the harvesting of protein from the sea.

It would be surprising if craft from Western navies were not likewise operating in near as they dare to the shores of the Soviet land mass.

Certainly, Russian aircraft have been doing that, regularly.

The stakes are high in this silent war. A submarine, lying off a missile testing range, can monitor military radios, locate radar stations, keep a check on missile tests.

It can also search out areas in which the submarine detection or regular temperature gradient of the water, which makes the detection gear is ineffective. They offer a hiding place a wary submarine.

An aircraft flying a few miles off a missile range can take long distance inland photographs—and a lot from a comparatively safe distance.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SMILE VALUE

The simplest, easiest, happiest, greatest value in all the world is a smile. The reason for the great smile value is the axis on which the total world revolves.

Smile and your own character is affected. Everybody who is close to you is affected. Then that smile smiles in response to other smiles and so on but who can measure the end!

Most of us smile when we think we do not know, never expect to see again, nor talk to. And, sometimes, that is the only smile that may travel a million miles, but it is the smile that reaches once again.

You never have to give up anything when you give out a smile, because you get it right back again!

Who could ever measure the depth of a mother's smile — or a baby's smile — or the smile of a sweetheart — or the smile of sympathy, or of co-operation, or of love?

Almost the one thing that makes one feel sure there is a very wonderful God in the world is that He inspires smiles. Never in the history of history did an unhappy smile ever get out. For a smile isn't truly a smile unless it is a happy smile.

Smiling is very simple — just a stretch of the lips, the starting of a little sunshine, the opening of a few gold mines and the sparkling of a few diamonds into the atmosphere. That's all it is — but isn't it wonderful? Smile!

All Babies Are Royal

Christian Science Monitor

"It's a boy!" Yes, but it's a baby! And that baby is royal by nature a royal being.

It is royal, not intellectually on a finger, or a clothespin, or anything the shape of a corpuscle, but royal by the royalty royal grip. The eyes of never ask "What do you do for me?" but only "What am I to think of you?" The unconscious condition does not condescend to reason or to wheedle; it is simply a royal demand for an expression of disappointment.

To Your Good Health

PSORIASIS AND PITYRIASIS ROSEA—MINOR SKIN DISEASES

Pityriasis rosea usually involves the trunk, rarely the face. It doesn't itch and the patient doesn't feel ill, and even without treatment it usually disappears in from four to 12 weeks. Treatment with ultraviolet light, medicated baths or mild iodine may speed healing.)

Because there is one reason why a doctor should be consulted in this disease. It is not something else, perhaps more serious, which it resembles. Allergy to medicine is one; psoriasis of another; psoriasis is a third. Otherwise, don't worry.

It is rare for a person to have a second attack of pityriasis rosea as presumably an attack results in subsequent immunity. This leads us to suspect that a spore virus may be the cause, although we are not sure.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My aunt's doctor told her she has vitiligo. She looks terrible with all the white spots on her hands, arms and face. Is she going to continue getting more of these spots?" T. R.

It is impossible to predict. Should a new spot appear it does disappear spontaneously, sometimes more appear. The cause is not known. The reason the skin loses melanin, the pigment which gives it its color. The condition fortunately is not dangerous. Once applied, without iodine stain can help mask the light area. The "sun-tanning" pills which looked hopeful at first have proved disappointing as a treatment for vitiligo.

Women List Home Faults

Windsor Star

The Royal Architectural Institute has been told bluntly what women think of most modern homes: they are inconvenient, costly nuisances; the bathrooms are small; the bedroom windowy too high.

We have been wondering when women would get together with housing designs. These are attractive to many ways, easy and efficient to manage compared with the big old houses. But they have much to be much desired by many who spend most of their lives in them.

A woman likes to have some room to move about in whether it be in the kitchen, bathroom or elsewhere, without bumping furniture and equipment. Some modern kitchens are designed to give a woman claustrophobia.

One of the faults of modern architecture — perhaps of ancient architecture also — is that it does not provide enough attention to the wishes and requirements of people who have to live, work in a building. Yet, building being for the use and convenience of people, we think this an elementary consideration.

A Lift for Living

Magical Quality of Courage

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Courage is a virtue of which I hesitate to write, because those who talk most about it usually have the least of it. Brave men seldom advertise their valor.

Genuine courage is marked not only by modesty, but by magic. The brave spirit succeeds in doing things which defy explanation. Courage waves its wand over seemingly empty resources and brings something out of nothing. A dashing heroic deed arouns the jaded spirit of a world which has become fed-up with artificial and material comforts. That common, everyday variety of courage, called pluck, perseveres in the face of disaster until it transforms them into triumphs.

That quiet unspectacular brand of bravery which we call fortitude, stands up to trouble until it taps reservoirs of strength. St. Paul described both its nature and its source when he said: "Suffering produces endurance, and endurance produces character, and character produces hope, and hope does not disappoint us, because God's love has been poured into our hearts."

When, some years ago, devastating floods struck our land, the grandeur of individual courage rose higher than the surging waters. Life, for a time, lost its dimensions. The American people responded in the hours of crisis.

SAVE COURAGE!

Thousands of victims had lost everything, including the lives of loved ones. One man stood in front of his shop, surveying the ruins. A reporter questioned him. "What will you do now?" he asked. The owner smiled wryly and replied, "Begin to rebuild." Yes, all was lost — save courage!

This magical quality of courage is a timeless trait. In all ages it has been the keystone of the other virtues are of little avail.

Integrity, purity, good motives have little force unless one has the courage to stand up for them.

For one thing, courage has a magic power of clarifying our vision. Fear befogs and befuddles the mind. Fogs come in the mind as on the high seas. Anyone who has been aboard a foghound ship and heard the eerie sound of the fog horn warning likewise, one might know the sense of danger instilled by the surrounding clouds of mist. Similar conditions arise in the mind. We cannot see our way through. Our resolutions come to a halt.

Those hours of mental fog courage helps clear the atmosphere. These blinding mists of the mind are so largely of our own creation. Our minds are sometimes like our closed cars on a wintry day. The air inside the car becomes so saturated and impure that the windows are filmed over with vapor until we can hardly see out. So it is with our minds. We keep breathing out and over again our jaded emotions, our half-settled resolutions, our unresisted temptations, our shadowy suspicions until the windows of our minds are filmed with fear. Into such a situation courage comes like the opening of a window and clears the air.

OPENS THE WAY

Bravery of spirit not only helps to clear the air, but it also aids us in finding a way through while the air is clearing. We sometimes say we are so bewildered that we don't know what to do next. But in reality we seldom, if ever, get into such a puzzling situation that we do not know the thing immediately next at hand to be done. And if we have the courage to do the thing immediately at hand it usually opens the way to the one which follows.

Thomas Carlyle repeated so often, the basic question which every man has to face and answer for himself is this: "Will thou be a hero or a coward?" There is a coward and there is a hero in each one of us. The coward desires to play safe until he can see his way through beyond the shadow of a doubt. On the other hand, the hero in us takes the lantern of faith and launches out into the darkness. The testimony of experience is that such a spirit comes through whether the darkness or fog be that of business distress, personal difficulty or religious doubt.

STORIES OF FAMOUS HYMNS

By HORACE B. POWELL

AWAKE, MY SOUL, STRETCH EVERY NERVE

Awake, my soul, stretch every nerve,
And press with vigor on:
A heavenly race demands thy zeal,
And an immortal crown.

'Tis God's all-animating voice
That calls thee from on high;
'Tis He whose hand presents the prize
To thine aspiring eye.

A cloud of witnesses around
Hold Thee in full survey;
Forget the steps already trod,
And onward urge Thy way.

Blest Savior! introduced by Thee,
Our race have we begun;
And, crowned with victry, at Thy feet
We'll lay our trophies down.

When Philip Doddridge brought out this popular hymn, in 1755, he gave it the title: "Pressing On in The Christian Race".

It is based on a Bible verse the passage in Philippians III forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth-unto those things which are before; I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus".

Doddridge, one of the most gifted of the English hymnists and a close friend of Dr. Isaac Watts, who also contributed generously to the world's treasury of sacred song, was the youngest in a family of 20 children. Born in 1702, he entered the ministry when he was but 19 years old. Most of his hymns were composed to be sung at the close of his Sunday sermons during pastorates which he held, in turn, at Kibworth, England and at Northampton.

His ministry at Northampton extended over 20 years and in addition to preaching on Sundays and meeting other pastoral responsibilities he conducted school for young preachers.

Many church leaders and students of hymnody hail the song listed above as the greatest and most inspiring of the many which Philip Doddridge wrote. Another very well-known hymn in his list has this opening stanza and chorus:

"O happy day that fixed my choice
On Thee, my Saviour and my God!
Well may this glowing heart rejoice
And tell its rapture all abroad.
He taught me how to watch and pray,
And live rejoicing every day:
Happy day, happy day,
When Jesus washed my sins away".

Ex-Service Women Meet At Trenton

A most memorable meeting was held in the Trenton Legion hall, by the ex-service women of Bay of Quinte Branch.

The guest speakers were Comrade Donaldson, Zone F2 and Comrade Sweeney, Service Pensions officer of Fort Hope.

There is much to learn in this great organization and points of interest brought forward by Comrade Donaldson were an elaboration on Legion affairs which we women are ever interested to know.

Comrade Donaldson is a great worker for the welfare and high standing of the ex-service men and women.

The Branch was honored by his presence at Trenton on February 23rd.

Comrade Osborne again offered his great help, which was of untold service in the formation of the branch over a year ago.

These memories will live in this active branch always.

Another very good gift auction was held, the proceeds of which are for welfare work.

The women's new service caps are in prominance, making the ex-service woman an outstanding figure in the Canadian Legion of which all are proud.

The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the guests. The branch once again calls to ex-service women to join the ranks and help further the cause in the Canadian Legion, the secretary, Mrs. E. Seager, is at your service, evenings, call WOodland 2-3697 of the Sgt. at Arms, Mrs. B. Kurby, 2-4071.

Proves Again He Is Master Of Couture

By PEGGY MASSEN

PARIS (Reuters)—Balenciaga has proved once more he is the master of Paris couture.

The stabilization of his past silhouette has been softened, refreshed silhouettes, he goes for the introduction of exquisite cottons, flattering hats and sensational jewelry.

For the first time he appears to enjoy dressing up his models and making them look as lovely as his clothes demand. Unlike other designers, who have branched off into many new or rehashed silhouettes, he goes for faultless wear, heeding neither the princess line nor the popular sack.

Balenciagi has affirmed the classic line which is precious collection, although today he modified the shoulder widths of coats and suits.

Although there is no basic difference between his suits do look chunkier because of the tie-belt he uses on jackets. The same goes for the little sleeveless wool dresses that appear so simple but which a sequin can crisp them off with style.

Although skirts remain very short, they always are balanced with the bodice or the jacket, and there is an easy, supple look and noticeable in topcoats as in sheer wool.

Curves are everywhere, shaped by waistlines, by the new wasteline, and shoulder move with ease beneath wide raglan sleeves.

Concealed fastenings or one-button closings predominate.

Color contrast is typical of this designer who uses a reseda green clubsuit worn with a pearl pink silk blouse.

All the natural and natural oatmeal and shantung colors are featured in dress and jacket ensembles with a fair sprinkling of pastel wool checks and fancy black and white plaids.

This - - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

There is little doubt that today's column should be entitled "Winter 1960" rather than "Winter Club." The best laid plans of mice and men will certainly be knocked awry this weekend. When you look out the window there it is in all its glory. It is weather at its best or its worst according to our several attitudes. Watch the children as they scamper to and fro" from school, throwing snowballs and wrestling in the white delight. Then down the way you will probably see some weekend motorist shovelling, huffing and puffing, and mumbling things that must be censored.

Since our interest is in the discovery of, and then the distribution of, little items with interweaving of human consequence, we constantly amazes us consciously to concede the stupendous to the much maligned weather. Stop to consider it momentarily. A royal baby gets the billing for a few days; a man breaks a flag pole sitting contest; somebody swims a lake; de Gaulle's search for the renewed glory of France; a Hollywood star flips her lid, and oh so many sensational and often vital happenings can crisp a transient splash, but look at old man weather.

T & T would hazard a small bet that not all in all, over the years in Old Man Weather himself is champion headline hogger. It is for those unsung heroes—or villains—of whom we hear so much. Review any tape recording of our minds the number of headlines since January 1st that have been devoted to storms and their effects. Almost complete top to top billing goes to the kiddies who have so much fun, however Old Man Weather, like Tom Thumb River, just keeps rolling along and likely he will never be chosen any year's top news item.

For the skiers, the winter sports enthusiast and the kiddies a great big hurrah for snow and for the vast majority a pox on your socks.

There crops up every now and then a little more evidence of wishful thinking to remind us that the British Commonwealth of Nations is disintegrating so fast that we can be ignored. Before the concentrated material might of the USSR and the USA the BCN does appear to crumble in a divided confederation.

There could be room here for a dissertation or a debate on the relative merits of integration and disintegration of power. And believe it or not our introductory remarks concerning headlines brought to mind two small back page items of news from India and Australia.

Australia has a new Governor-General. Governor Sims in his farewell message to Australia reminded his fellows that the moral power of the Commonwealth although unsung grows stronger and stronger as the world that looks askance at the Commonwealth is appreciative. In his mind there is no question about the future of the Commonwealth's position with its disintegrated family of many offers and its many loosely cobbled and most powerful individual members in unity of peaceful purpose.

February 18th the Commonwealth Broadcasting Conference ended its session. Delegates from Australia, Canada, Ceylon, Ghana, India, Malaya, New Zealand, Nigeria, South Africa and the U.K. attended at New Delhi. There is no need to remember the nations of this conference without nuclear power. But the most conference emphasizes the strength. Educational programs and exchange of ideas. Broadcasting was recognized in particular as a medium whose high standards were essential for international and technical programs in sound and television that cut the Commonwealth." Their concern was for the peoples' others' programs could be jammed but there is no interchange of ideas could be expedited so each could learn and know the other.

T & T has seen no two inch or inches at new Delhi seeking Commonwealth and co-operative mediums of interchange of ideas. We cannot fail to see the co-operation of the Far East countries Asia and his vicious threats or and Nehru and Mr. E and his wonderful tour of South America. This is as it should be but at least it is there. It is unfortunate we hear so little of the constructive efforts of our disintegrated Commonwealth as it goes about its difficult task of co-operation and understanding.

Perhaps for this week-end might be a hope that news headlines will be devoted to disintegrate the hopes for peace to be found on the back pages.

Near Capacity Crowd Attends YFC Rally

A near-capacity crowd saw and heard the Ontario Youth Choir rally under the direction of Mrs. Doug Young in Bethesda Church, Tuesday evening.

The enthusiastic crowd joined in a hearty song service.

Harry Dunham, a teenager just out of school, who is very active in YFC work, played "The Assurance March" on the trumpet, after which the YFC choir, assisted by the Chorettes, sang the hymn, "How Can I Keep From Singing."

The big item on all the programs in the area which the choir has been competed on the book of II Timothy, Tweed beat Quinte 2nd, but we have now lost eight of them, but we will assure you that their Dad did a fine job. They were shown a picture of deep desire that they become men and women of outstanding ability. They were always assured of his protective presence in the home. They knew that when they were anxious to climb to a higher peak of endeavor in school or sports or community projects, Dad would always be on hand to cheer them on. He early placed their feet on a high pinnacle of Christian faith in home. He glorified his fatherhood by adherence to the parental duty. He placed his children first in his life and he gave them respect for home and parents and a deep and true reverence for the things of the spirit.

The next rally will be held March 3.

These Questions and Answers May Help You Plan Vacation

Concerning our recent piece about not letting bashful fears stand in the way of travel ambitions, Miss Helen C. Andrews of St. Petersburg, Fla., volunteers: "I agree with you that bad weather should not discourage the tourist from visiting any country. But I am sure that for anyone planning a first trip, such an observation as 'the weather is never good in Ireland' may do a lot to discourage travel there.

"During 1955, 1956, 1957 and 1958 I spend a total of 62 days in Ireland and experienced 10 days that were rainy and cloudy. "Ireland is a delightful country and one almost any tourist would enjoy. But that its weather is never good is inaccurate. I can vouch for that."

(Q) "We plan a driving trip to California about the middle of March via U. S. 66 and Needles to Los Angeles. What are driving conditions like at that time of year?" Mrs. W.W., Port Arthur, Ontario.

(A) Snow is always a possibility along this route through April, and it sometimes comes in March. Also, in March, both panhandle and northern New Mexico are fortunately free of no superior alternate route. You might like to map your car tunes to the car radio for driving pleasure and to help up for a while they do so. Postponing the trip by a month would be an added safeguard.

VISITING BANFF

(Q) "We are going to Banff, Alberta, this June and would like to know what type of clothing to have — winter, summer or both?" Mrs. E.B., Sherbrooke, Que.

(A) They say in Alberta that they expect snow any month of the year except July. Lady, you can take it from there.

(Q) "What is the usual charge for accommodating dogs in motels?" — W.C.M., Baton Rouge, La.

(A) So far as we know, those motels that permit pets make no charge for them. However, you may have to post a damage deposit, refundable if Fido doesn't chew up the mattress after all.

(Q) "We are traveling through South America in March. On March 1, the weather in Rio de Janeiro is hot as our end of July? Are white shoes and white clothes dangerous with heat, as the autumn is staying?" — Miss Mary, Bristol, Conn.

A WARM MARCH

(A) Generally you can figure the seasons in lower South America by reading — or subtracting — six months to find the month comparable with our climate. Thus March 1 would likely match our Sept. 1 in climate — pretty warm.

The white clothes season traditionally is extended as far as possible throughout South America.

(Q) "I am a lover of pretty scenery and I'd like to find a really beautiful place to live in the United States, if you know of a small village surrounded by superlative scenery, or perhaps nestled at the foot of mountains!" — Mrs. H.H.C., Wichita, Kans.

(A) Our personal favorite is Manchester Center, Vt. There is no place more scenic. Nor can many small towns boast of places like Lee, Mass., Sebring and Winter Haven, Fla., and Carmel-by-the-Sea, Calif., all setting for a city instead of a village are Asheville and Hendersonville, N.C., Colorado Springs, Colo., Tucson, Ariz., and Scarsdale, N.Y.

Dr. G. Hooper Delights Large Audience by Holiday in Holland

"Among the beautiful pictures that hang on memory's walls are those of Holland — fields of windmills, dykes and beautiful flowers," was the opening Thursday evening at the Collegiate auditorium under the auspices of the Kinsmen Club of Belleville. This is the seventh travelogue series, and in it a large number of interested spectators is any criterion, despite the wild weather. Many of the travelogues are not only maintaining their popularity, but steadily growing in interest.

The narrator, Gerald Hooper, director of a travel film and television, World Color Film Studios, not only produces documentaries and produces commercial sound films for foreign governments leading airlines, coach and tour agencies, both at home and abroad.

"Holiday in Holland" film was "arranged in sections, delightfully' a spots of deep interest for the viewers-to-be who would like to visit the countries and see they were.

Dr. Hooper, with his highly educational background, held the intense interest of his audience from the time the DC-7B Liner cago until the final picture of Leaving the airport in Chicago. Dr. Hooper's film ride soon saw the willie cliffs of Dover, and the renowned clock, Big Ben. Here they boarded a Pullman train and transported the small English car which took them from place to place in Holland. The English Small cars are taken across the Channel at approximately half the price of the larger cars, the cost depending on the length of the car.

AMSTERDAM

Their first visit was the largest city in Holland, Amsterdam, a most charming place with its royal palace, sidewalk cafes, the statue of Rembrandt, its art galleries and museums. Here the famous paintings of Van Gogh were seen. The scenes of tulips in bloom tree-lined and flowers are everywhere. One can take a streetcar and ride for a few pennies for miles and miles. Here, too, the royal ballet was seen in all its graceful movements.

Other scenes included the digging of tulip bulbs, great fields of Sweet Williams, gorgeous begonias, and acres and acres of red, white and yellow tulips, in season; canal scenes; the making of pottery at Delft; a cheese scene; the shooting festival at Zaam and Zoye; the fine dress of the Puritans with their hedgears and wide collars.

The Dutch people are energetic, making use of every inch of land. Of the outstanding accomplishments was the reclamation of land by the use of windmills, the largest being Zulder Zee flowed, now is growing pasture land for cattle horses.

Dr. Hooper, who was introduced by Dr. Craig, appreciative thanks are tendered for a most delightful and educational entertainment, and to Mrs. Hooper for her delightful musical interludes effects which accompanied the film.

"The Longest Day" . . . June 6, 1944. Dynamic, gripping, moody invasion from the points of view of German, British and American commanders and troops.

"Lt.": Year of Discovery" (Chapman). Scientific accounts for the general public of what research was conducted during the International Geophysical Year.

"Virus Hunters" (Williams). An account of the first years research on viruses and the work of today's scientists.

"Twenty Seconds to Live" (Land). One night in 1958 an American airforce was making a routine training flight when one of the engines exploded. Pilot and air navigator bailed out but the co-pilot seeing the plane abandoned and unconscious gambled his life in an attempt to land the plane.

"Arabian Sands" (Theiger). The author, an English explorist, Karl Menninger, collected by a committee of his colleagues.

"From Galaxies to Man" (Pfeiffer). The story of evolution based upon the theories illustrated with photographs and pictorial records.

"Turnoosie, Trailors and Hero" (Bahcless). An account of superstition, superstition, or legend, of never transporting the milk of a white cow, it to come sour. Horses and cattle are taken from place to place on low snow boats.

Fishing is one of the industries, as is the making of cheese, some in the form of balls resembling basket balls, while others are flat and round.

DOORN

Doorn was seen the castle where Kaiser Wilhelm passed his exile after the end of First World War, and the "storybook" castle built over 800 years ago. A visit to Keukenhof was made to make room for gardens and flowers. The great bulb is most beautifully designed and had 800 rooms. The festival at Zdam and Zoye were held. Completing the film a Dutch wedding party was seen in their colorful dress, some of which reminded one of the dress of the Puritans with their hedgears and wide collars.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Dolores L. — Can I believe my husband?

Bob L. — She should have defended me.

Dolores L. — After what I thought was a happy marriage of ten years, I have discovered that my husband is the worst kind of philanderer and I don't know what to do about the future.

A few weeks ago, the parents of our teenage babysitter came to us and told us that their daughter had revealed intimacies with my husband. They didn't want to take legal action because they feared exposure that the daughter, but they said they would do everything possible to "make it hot" for us in this community.

My husband denied everything and said the girl had "misinterpreted a goodnight kiss he gave her once when he drove her home. I don't know what to think. I am half crazy with worry and ashamed to hold my head up in my town.

Bob L. — But my wife's business to come to my defence as soon as these people made these crazy accusations. Instead she turned on me and started to scream and cry and insist that my parents immediately took it as a confession of guilt.

"The girl involved is a real little tramp at age 15. She has been making eyes at me and talking in a wised-up way, since the first time she came to our house. I talked to her about both her friends and the things she admitted and made my hair stand on end.

After a few sessions of this kind of thing I gave her a good help lecture and she promised to be good. We sealed the promise with a goodnight kiss and that was that. The rest was pure imagination on this kid's part. I should think my own wife would believe me.

The Council: It is entirely possible that the girl's story is imaginary, but that does not absolve Bob from misconduct.

We have no doubt that the girl is a flirt and a menace. If she were not, she couldn't have gotten so involved. When she suspected a married, older man of misconduct she should have simply removed herself from the household at once. But this still doesn't absolve Bob from misconduct.

From Bob's story we consider his misconduct very serious. We are certain that he has the intelligence to understand that having a business engaging a "wised-up" teenager in sexy talk is dangerous. We find it hard to think he knows enough . . . relative to his family to have babysitter goodnight or accepting promises from her about her conduct is not considered to be involved.

That sort of behavior can only result in disaster. Misconduct is perhaps not of so serious a nature as the girl contends because not only has there been the fear and anger of any set of parents but a guilty wife.

Bob should face himself more honestly and reconcile his behavior with himself. Instead of turning back an accusing finger at his wife, he should ask for forgiveness and help. His wife should not allow herself to be led him into increasingly dangerous situations. If he feels he needs help to get his emotions under control, he should get psychiatric help.

Shrove Tuesday -- Pancake Day

By VIVA RICHMOND GRAHAM

"Pancakes for two: 1 cup flour, 1 tsp. baking powder, 1 egg, ½ cup milk, 2 tbsp. fat. ¼ cup sugar." — Marguerite Gilmore. (Sir Thomas Church Cookbook, '53).

* * *

What theme variations: blueberry, apple, buckwheat, whole wheat, even sour milk pancakes!

All listed in a cook book here, but while looking, listen to what a Belleville housewife is saying: "Though I only spent one Shrove Tuesday in Belleville it made an impression. At that time, I was living in a small village where I had rooms kept by an elderly Englishwoman, a cultured artist, and a spoiled cat who considered herself her lodger and the service of the local gentry, as their cook.

"One noon I came down to lunch to find her making pancakes.

"Today's Shrove Tuesday, you know," she reminded me, expertly pouring white, creamy circles of batter onto a smoking-hot griddle. "Oh, I know people don't make pancakes like they used to, when everyone got together in the square for games and sports; the last chance for merry making for six weeks. Even now in some places, the day begins with the ringing of the morning bell to summon the people to confession or to be shriven for the Holy Season which follows, as you know, on Ash Wednesday." (Edit. note: March 5.)

"But, really, now, what has that to do with pancakes?" I interrupted, while she continued to turn cake after cake with skill and ease, and answered, "Oh, well, the story goes that one harassed housewife upon hearing the Shriving Bell in the middle of her cooking, dashed off to the church with the frying pan still in her hand. And now to think it's a universally observed custom that has been handed down; eating pancakes. But in early times, the eggs and butter weren't allowed. So the pancake in various forms solved the problem of using up stock."

She stacked up a small column of the cakes and put them side. "But if you would really see how the Pancake Race is run, you should go to the village a week or two before lives . . ." and as she poured, flipped and added to the growing luscious stack of cakes, I heard Olney Bay in the distant time. How the bell is still rung every Shrove Tuesday in this Buckinghamshire village, a town of some 2,500 people about 57 miles northwest of London. Here the annual pancake race believed to have started as far back as 1445 is still run.

PANCAKE RACE

The women contestants must be residents or natives of the district and over eighteen years of age. Aprons and headdresses, such as scarves, must be worn. Each must carry a frying pan containing a pancake, while running a distance of 415 yards, from the parish church to the parish church.

At 11:30 the bell rings to summon the starter of the race who is dressed in a scarlet uniform and tricorn hat. He also gives the contestants fifteen minutes to prepare their pancakes.

A second bell rings, and the contestants must be at the starting place.

At 11.55 the final bell indicates the race is about to start. Contestants are instructed to (1) toss their pancakes and catch them in their frying pans; (2) get ready; (3) go!

They're off. "The time is carefully recorded by a "timekeeper" who rides a bicycle.

The winner is greeted (a) by the verger with the "Kiss of Peace"; (b) by the vicar with the words "The peace of the Lord be always with you."

Then, before being declared the winner, she is required once more to toss her pancake. If she does so successfully, she receives as the traditional prize of a kiss from the ringer of the Pancake Bell.

One final stipulation: All contestants who finished the race must afterward attend the Shriving Service at the church. Otherwise the winner is disqualified.

Thus realizing Shrove Tuesday's significance, never did pancakes taste so special as those placed now before me and topped, not with our traditional Canadian maple syrup, but with sugar moistened with lemon juice.

Bellevigneite: Says Mrs. S. J. Gilmore, 220 Charles Street, whose recipe heads today's column, "It was one I learned and used when she and I were alone; we were most fond of pancakes." Many thanks, Mrs. Gilmore.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Yanover, city hotel and motel owners, say pancakes have become a popular family item at the breakfast menus. "But pancakes served in most places in North America are of a heavier quality than are served, say, in Jamaica," Mrs. Yanover observed. "There they are of tissue paper weight and served like crepes suzettes, all rolled up and most delicious."

Food-Flash Note: Have you sampled "Cashew Nut Butter" now available in Belleville? It's wonderful.

TO PLAY IN RUSSIA — Margaret Ann Ireland, 21-year-old internationally-known Canadian pianist, will visit Russia in April for a series of concerts at the invitation of the Soviet ministry of culture. She is the fourth Canadian artist to receive such an invitation. Born in Winnipeg, she is the wife of Saint John, N.B., lawyer Norwood Carter, and lives near Saint John with her two children. (CP Photo).

Fifth European Tour Will Take Pianist to Russia

By GEORGE McNEVIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SAINT JOHN, N. B. (CP)—When Margaret Ann Ireland plays the piano, she likes to be in tune with the audience.

"When I feel the total concentration of members, I really play my best," says the 21-year-old pianist who will make a concert tour of The Netherlands, Denmark, Germany and the Soviet Union in March and April.

It will be the fifth European tour for the attractive, dark-haired musician, a native of Winnipeg who now lives in Fair Vale, near Saint John, with her husband, lawyer Norwood Carter, and their two children.

She has won critical and public acclaim wherever she has been a visitation of the Soviet ministry of culture, will become the country's first classical artist to tour the Soviet Union. Others were Toronto pianist Glenn Gould, Toronto singer Lois Marshall and conductor - composer Jacques Beaudry of Montreal.

THRILLING PROSPECT

"I'm immensely thrilled at the prospect," she says of her Soviet tour which will take her to Leningrad April 5-4, Kiev April 5-8, Kharkov April 12-13, Vilnius, Lithuania, April 16-17, Riga, Latvia, April 20-21 and Moscow April 23-24.

She is particularly anxious to meet Russian musicians and hear Russian music. Her repertoire for the tour will include Russian compositions, notably Rachmaninoff's Second Piano Concerto. She will also play piano selections, without orchestral accompaniment, by Schubert, Beethoven, Prokofiev and Chopin. And an auxiliary program will include works by Canadian composer Dr. Arnold Walters of Toronto, Bach, Barbara and Villa Lobos.

Miss Ireland received her early training at the Royal Conservatory of Music in Toronto. She made her first major public appearance at 16 as soloist with the Toronto Symphony and continued studies in Vienna, Salzburg and Paris.

A student of contemporary music as well as the works of the old masters, she plays modern Canadian, Brazilian, American and British compositions. Her favorite composer is Beethoven.

CAREFUL ROUTINE

On her tour she will follow her usual routine. The day of a concert she practises four hours in the morning, sleeps all afternoon and eats a steak two hours before the performance. She says she is usually too excited to be conscious of fatigue during a concert but afterward is completely exhausted.

Although she strives for the undivided attention of her audience, she laughingly recalls one occasion when she didn't get it.

She was playing a Chopin sonata in a small Quebec town. During a movement entitled Funeral March, she became conscious of titters in the audience. Then she noticed a small dog on the stage looking at her mournfully. She stopped playing, "very, bowed to the audience, laughed and walked off-stage followed by the dog.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

Faithful or Fickle

In Birdland faithfulness (or fickleness) comes about not because of individual temperament, but because of a family trait. The little screech owl is one of the faithful lovers, remaining mated for life. Non-migratory, the pair may occupy the same hollow tree winter and summer, until driven away by some more powerful predator on the march of civilization; soon after, they or the new home will be as near as possible to the old neighbourhood.

UNION FOR LIFE

The white-breasted nuthatch, although on the air except at its nesting period, actually maintains a winter's as well as a summer territory. As in the case of the screech owl, there is no migration flight to separate the couple. Union for life is the ordinary procedure.

Whether we live in a crowded city or in a country district, we have the chance of finding either of these two species in settled friendship any day of the year. But it will be a month before we can expect to see large, noisy flocks of those most faithful birds, the Canada Geese. Then, "en famille", they will be cavorting in their spectacular V formation from their winter holiday resorts south of our border to their breeding grounds which lie north of our settlements. Not only do Canada Geese mate for life, but if one dies the other will not take another mate. In spite of long semi-annual flights, the young birds remain with their parents until nearly a year old. The family group grows apace by year, Canada Geese are so plentiful, each group isolated from the others on the breeding grounds, that no distinct local species are produced.

WILL MATE AGAIN

The majority of eagles and hawks form a fondness for their homes, returning each summer to the nest and making necessary repairs. Red-tailed, red-shouldered, and the fish hawk (ospreys) are all especially noted for doing this. It is a question whether the same two birds occupy the nest, but it seems to be quite certain that both bald eagles and peregrine falcons mate for life, although unlike Canada Geese, when one dies the other at once promptly chooses another partner.

Polygamy is more common in Birdland. The male long-billed marsh wren ordinarily has two or more spouses with headquarters in adjacent territory. There is no real pairing of either wood cocks or prairie chickens. However, the majority of birds take a different mate each year, and some change several times in one season.

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Hagner Shaw

MANNERS IN PUBLIC

"The other evening I attended a movie with Mrs. Inexperienced. The feature picture had already begun and we were forced to stand in the back of the theatre for quite some time. Mrs. Inexperienced kept up a steady stream of conversation about nothing in particular, completely oblivious of the fact that others who were waiting for seats were trying to see, and listen to, the show.

Every time several people would come up the aisle to make their departure, she would start pushing and shoving those waiting ahead of her, announcing in loud tones to the usher that she wanted two, seats. By the time we were seated, my face was red with embarrassment and I'm sure all those with whom we had stood elbows were glad to get rid of us.

Once seated, Mrs. Inexperienced settled down to business. After she had received several looks that could mean more than words, from those seated near us, a brave woman in front turned around and quietly said, "Will you please keep quiet! We can't hear the picture, even if you didn't!" Perhaps you might say that this wasn't particularly polite, but Mrs. Inexperienced got just what she deserved in this instance.

Mrs. Inexperienced wasn't done in her thoughtless actions. On all sides I observed infractions of good taste and lack of consideration for others.

People who are guilty of any of the following actions can feel assured that they all come under the heading of extremely bad manners.

The person who fights his way down the aisle to get a seat and then, spotting another seat in the same row, stands up and waves frantically to get the friend sitting at the back of the house, completely disregarding the fact that those unfortunate enough to be seated behind him.

The selfish people who go in to a clinch. Not only do they block the view of those behind them, but they are displaying very poor taste in affronting common decency by their public love-making.

The person who refuses to remove her hat, even when asked to do so. This is an unpardonable example of thoughtlessness.

Those who rustle programs, candy or peanut wrappers during and above all, talk or whisper while the show is going on should in my opinion, be ejected forcibly if necessary.

The person who infringe upon the rights of others seems to be evident in the way he or she handles movie-goers. Whether or not you like it, this urge is something to think about!

Question: I recently made the acquaintance of a young man whose wedding invitations and then announcement engagement I have received a number of gifts and am wondering what to do about them. Should I return them?

Answer: They should be returned immediately, accompanied by a note expressing appreciation and explaining that the wedding will not take place. It is not necessary to go into details but a brief statement of the facts will do.

Science Books In Big Demand At Corby Library

Technical and scientific titles were in great demand last year at the Corby Public Library, librarian Olive Delaney said in her annual report.

The medical biography, travel and history is always great but we found it becoming increasingly difficult to keep up with the demand for titles of a technical nature," Miss Delaney said.

Of the 203,447 books circulated, 1,821 were classed as science.

"There was an increase in circulation of 23,273 books over the previous year," she added.

Members of the library board elected Tuesday night at the annual meeting were: E. E. Bateman, C. L. Hyde and L. D. Read, representing city council, J. M. Cousins, R. A. Dunmore and M. M. Hackett of the public school board, A. J. Black and P. T. Morrocco of the separate school board.

Mr. Bateman was elected chairman; Mr. Cousins, vice-chairman; Mr. Hackett, chairman of finance; Mr. Read, chairman of property and building; Shepherd's Pudding (see Friday); Milk or Cream Coffee.

QUESTION:

. . . I have 8 youngsters with a tremendous appetite. The reason for writing: My brother, whom I have not seen for 14 years, will be coming for a visit in the spring. She will be flying from Amsterdam (my hometown) per K.L.M. We are very happy about it and want to make her visit as happy and memorable as possible. The trouble is she has diabetes, however, she is allowed to eat sugar-free cake now and then. Back home she can buy it at the store. Could you please give me a recipe for sugar-free cake and/or other such desserts? . . . Maria R.

ANSWER:

I am delighted to help. The load below is my best idea. It is really like a cake.

SUGAR FREE BREAD (Sugarless):

2 cups sifted flour, 1 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-3 cup skim milk, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 tablespoon sucaryl solution or 24 tablets, crushed, 1-2 cup chopped walnuts.

Combine flour, baking powder, soda, and salt in a mixing bowl. Combine skim milk, egg, butter, sucaryl, and add to flour mixture. Stir only until all flour is dampened. Fold in marmalade and chopped nuts, mixing as little as possible. Spoon batter into lightly greased 9 x3" loaf pan. Bake at 350 deg. F. about 1 hour and 10 minutes. Cool before slicing. I have added to you more sugarless recipes.

LIMBO DANCERS — Popular among the fun-loving people of the West Indies is the limbo, a difficult dance that combines rhythm and a good measure of physical agility. The dancers, such as those shown here in Jamaica, bend backward as they dance under a bar, lowered a bit each time. Dancers are not allowed to touch the ground as they dance and must keep time with music. (CP Photo)

British West Indies Enter Next Decade With Political Question Hanging on Future

COMMONWEALTH 1960
By ASTON FRANCIS

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters) — The 10 island territories of the British West Indies enter the 1960s with a political question mark hanging over the future of their infant island federation.

A clash between the two largest islands, Jamaica and Trinidad, will come to a head in Trinidad next month at an inter-governmental constitutional conference.

Jamaica, with about half the federation's 3,000,000 people, wants to keep full control over its growing economic affairs. Prime Minister Norman Manley has said Jamaica will leave the federation if she does not get her way. She might even try for full Independence.

Trinidad, 1,000 miles away from Jamaica at the other end of the Caribbean, believes the federal government—at present a loose structure—should be much more closely knit. Its prime minister, Eric Williams, is demanding an "absolutely and completely independent" government with much more power.

ADAMS BACKS TRINIDAD

Sir Grantley Adams, federal prime minister, also advocates stronger federal powers. He doubts whether Jamaica could by herself ask for independence. She could get financial assistance within the federation but is unlikely to get it outside.

All these points will be thrashed out at the conference.

The federation of 10 island groups was established in January, 1958. It includes Trinidad and Tobago, Jamaica, the Barbados, St. Vincent, St. Lucia, Grenada and Dominica and the Leeward Islands of Antigua, Barbuda, Redonda, Monserrat, St. Kitts, Nevis and Anguilla.

It has a Parliament of two chambers, a 10 - member Senate and a 45 - member House of Representatives. A council of state, or cabinet, is presided over by Governor-General Lord Halles.

Jamaica has 17 seats in the present 45 - seat federal house. Trinidad 10.

WANTS MORE

In the new house, Jamaica is demanding 49 percent of the seats in accordance with her greater population.

1,600,000 to Trinidad's 750,000.

One reason Jamaica wants a minimum of interference with her economy is the growing prosperity of her industries.

No longer is she so largely dependent on bananas. The magic word now is bauxite, the raw material of aluminum. Bauxite and alumina, with combined capital investment of £100,000,000 have climbed to the top of the exports —£22,500,000 out of a total of £46,500,000.

Foreign capital is vigorously pushing industry which is also urged by government incentives.

BANANA INQUIRY

Sweeping reforms have been recommended by a commission of inquiry that has just investigated the £6,000,000 banana industry, beset by under-production and rising costs.

Tourism, steadily growing in importance, is getting a boost from the by-passing of troubled Cuba. Last year 200,000 visitors spent a record £11,500,000.

Employment, housing and medical programs are at their peak and emigration to Britain is consequently declining.

Many more people are buying their own homes. Cars, refrigerators and other electrical appliances are being regarded more as necessities than luxuries. One in 50 Jamaicans owns a motor car. But more than 90 per cent of the business is on credit.

"WAVE OF CONFIDENCE"

Mr. Manley has said 1960 dawned "with a great wave of confidence sweeping over the country." The governor, Sir Kenneth Blackburne, has said it will be a year of excitement and interest.

The other side of the picture was painted by the opposition leader, Sir Alexander Bustamante, who said: "The wish for a happy and prosperous 1960 can never come true, particularly in a place like Jamaica where so many people are suffering from poverty, unemployment, low wages, lack of proper housing and insufficient medical care."

In Trinidad, with a long - established industrial base in its oil and pitch, progress is relatively less spectacular than in Jamaica.

The public has known for a long time that visual trouble causes headache; but it should be realized that the headache is a symptom of nerve and muscle exhaustion and not simply a product of poor eyesight. It is not the seeing that causes the headaches, but the straining to see. Many, many sufferers who have excellent eyesight are afforded prompt relief from Optometric procedure.

Safari for Souls

With Billy Graham in Africa

BY TOM McMAHAN

Religion Editor, The State, Columbia, S.C.

BULAWAYO, SOUTHERN RHODESIA — Last week I preached my first sermon in central Africa. It was a new experience. This Africa is as different from the other seven countries we have visited as the Carolinas are unlike Mexico.

Looking back over our West African tour I felt very much as the Queen of Sheba must have felt when she viewed the magnificence of Solomon's court and exclaimed, "half was not told me". None of the many books and articles I have read about Africa prepared me adequately for the sights, sounds and feelings that crowded in upon me and the members of the team during the past five weeks.

It would take volumes to describe all that we took in. Not so a dozen-major cities and dozens of tiny villages. Here the seven nations are emerging into uncertain freedom. One still had marks of conflict in its streets.

We travelled by plane, motor launch and on a tiny trolley that reminded me of the Disneyville comic strip. We also travelled by that most dependable mode of transportation the motor car, driven by missionaries intent on telling about their work.

WILD GAME SEEN

As we arrived in Victoria Falls we got an eyeful of everything an American can see in Africa — the wild game. Cliff Barrows and I had a bird's eye view over great herds of elephants, zebras, antelopes and buffalo.

We went by-boat up the Zambezi River above the falls and spotted hippopotami coming up for breath and a crane standing in lonely splendor on a protruding rock. Cormorants dived expertly over the water as they must have done when the first Livingstone neared the falls in his little canoe and breathed in the "smoke that thunders" as the natives described the spray-generating cataract, must be numbed by the wonders of the world. It is easy to understand why Livingstone called Victoria Falls the most wonderful sight of all the travels.

It would be hard to describe my feeling as I stood at the foot of Livingstone's statue at the edge of the falls and thought back on the lonely marches and tremendous hardships he endured in order to open up this dark continent and pave the way for coming Christian civilization. I am unworthy to polish the shoes of missionary heroes like Livingstone, Mary Slessor and Calabar. I am deeply moved and grateful for the privilege of reaping where they have sown. The most lasting memories of our West African tour, I am sure will be the people themselves and the heroic missionaries who are working to bring healing to the body and soul, as well as enlightenment generally.

It was startling to move within 30 minutes from seven of modern skyscrapers to primitive marketplaces which beggar description. The extremely able political leaders with whom we talked and Stone-Age Africans in mud huts have one thing in common, however, and it was to God common need for Christ's love and forgiveness that we directed our efforts as we preached to some of the greatest crowds it has ever been our privilege to address.

REVERENT CROWDS

The response to the Gospel in West Africa amazed and humbled us. The crowds were quiet and reverent. There was actually less emotional display than we have seen in some American and European cities.

In most places we did not invite people to come forward to accept Christ. Instead we asked those wanting to break with their sins and enthrone Christ to remain after the crowds had dispersed. Actually we urged them not to stay unless they were ready to do so for the first time. Under these conditions hundreds gathered around the platforms in great race courses and stadiums. We didn't hesitate to lead them in prayers of repentance and trust, often in their own languages and in little clusters that dotted the broad greenswards as counselors explained the way. My message was the same that has been blessed of God around the world — Jesus Christ and Him crucified. I tried to preach with the authority inherent in the Bible and with utter simplicity. The Gospel was accepted by hundreds of keen students, many brilliant Europeans, and thousands of ex-cannibals who were very like those who heard Jesus gladly."

The people in villages and along roadsides were extremely friendly. They flashed broad smiles and returned our salutes. We found almost no trace of anti-American feeling; of course, many villagers have no national or racial consciousness. Practically their sole concern is where their next meal is coming from; but even political sophisticates seem to differentiate between colonial Europeans and Americans.

Practically all West African leaders seem to appreciate the role of European administrators and businessmen who are willing to let the African lead but who have shed all feeling of racial superiority. Governments want most Europeans to stay and help them grapple with their problems. These problems vary enormously from country to country and even from tribe to tribe within countries. Actually, there is no African question. There are, rather, many compelling questions, and often differences are more striking than similarities.

INTERTRIBAL RIVALRY

One common denominator in the main areas is intertribal rivalry. It exists in Ghana, in Nigeria, in the republic which replaced French Equatorial Africa and even in Belgian Congo, just now in the Belgian Congo.

Mr. K. Says Jap Treaty With U.S. Threatens Peace

JAKARDA, Indonesia (Reuters) Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev said Friday Japan's new defence treaty with the United States threatens world peace.

Khrushchev addressed the Indonesian parliament after a tour of the republic's outlying islands.

He asked why Japan continued to accept the role of a military bases on its soil when "all know pretty well that Japan is not threatened by anyone and no one will invade it."

"Have the ruling circles of Japan really the opinion that the nations have forgotten the aggressive actions of the militarists of Japan who recently tried to enslave the nations of South-east Asia?" he asked.

"It is important to state frankly and firmly that this gambling performance is very dangerous for Japan itself."

Khrushchev's speech was read for days by interpreters.

Javelin Mines President Freed Of Fraud Charge

MONTREAL (CP)—Judge Redmond Roche, Police Court Judge, president of Canadian Javelin Limited, charges of conspiracy, theft and fraud involving $4,800,000 worth of Javelin stock.

Judge Roche delivered his decision despite an effort by the private prosecution to have him removed from the case on the ground of partiality.

Dollard Dansereau, one of the lawyers for the private prosecution, said outside of the court that the judge's ruling was "illegal." Mr. Dansereau said Judge Roche had refused to be served before going into court with a temporary writ of prohibition aimed at preventing him from giving his decision and from having anything further to do with the case.

Mr. Dansereau said the writ, signed by Judge Roger Ouimet of the Quebec Superior Court, alleged partiality on the part of Judge Roche during the preliminary hearing that has continued intermittently since Feb. 8.

Mr. Dansereau and other prosecuting lawyers who have been conducting the case were not in court to hear Judge Roche's judgment. Mr. Doyle said after the finished reading lengthy reasons for judgment: "Thank you, my lord" and walked out with his lawyers.

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

It took a hockey game to make the Russians admit, and not grudgingly that the capitalistic Americans were good for something besides a lousy way of life, and an occasional satellite in orbit.

In fact the puck-chasing tovariches celebrated uproariously but perhaps with longing in cheek, the stunning upset victory of the Yankees over the Canadian Olympics favorites.

Mr. Tarasov, the Conny Smythe of the Soviets, waxed sentimental. Elation, garnished with secret gratitude overcame him, and he rushed to Jack Riley, the American coach, and bussed him without taking a shot of antiseptic.

They say Mr. K. when told the news, gutturalled "to helitsky with the diet," and guzzled a couple of goblets of vodka without benefit of a chaser.

The Tarasov kiss which almost changed the life of Riley, could very well be a "first" attitude. It was in appreciation of the American unwitting helping hand that gave the Reds a far brighter chance of copping the Olympic hockey gold medal.

In fact, this corner would almost give 2-1 odds the Muscovites will clobber the Canucks by a decisive margin in today's battle of the key teams.

It's the fortunes of war, but Canadians will be rooting for the Russians today. For if the Americans beat the Russians it will be all over and Uncle Sam's hockey boys will claim their first Olympics hockey championship. If the Russ trim the Yanks and the Dutchmen beat the Isvorichces and Sweden then the medal will rest in Kitchener.

But don't burn that Russia-Canada bridge until you come to it. A lot of Canadians think the Dutchies can turn the trick. There are a lot of others, including the Reds, that do not.

BETTER CLUB!

The Americans were the better team on the night's play. That was plainly evident. The Yankees were "up" higher than their last Cape Canaveral missile while they had a goalie that could have stopped a tank battalion with a battery of bazookas thrown in.

Old Lady Opportunity tossed a bouquet in the face of the Americans and they took full advantage. The Canadians battled desperately but were not clicking. Team play was there but the shots were whizzed through the entire Yankee team and doked the goalie missed an open net by feet.

And as if listening to the usual bonafide sponsor commercials was not enough extra time was forced by gumtie plugs for the "Rocket" and the Montreal Candiens.

Mr. Thomas Foley who can never be accused of double-crossing Mr. Clarence Campbell, or his Habitant bosses, by putting in a good word for the Dutchmen, almost smiled audibly when one of the American goals was scored. "Just like the Rocket, eh Andy," he chortled over the microphone.

Foley, like friend Campbell, apparently cannot see anything good in losing clubs. His comment, after the Dutchmen defeated the Czechs was, had the goalies been changed the Czechs would have won 2-0. He failed to make any statement like that after the American victory when the Yankee goalie practically won the game.

It was the same way in Prague, Czechoslovakia, last year after the Macs defeated the Russians when another "pro expert" from Canada decried the Canadian effort. And Rocket Richard was not much better in his post-game comment.

It seems this gentry who gaze at hockey through National League spectacles always fail to see any merit in the Canadian "amateur" teams of the day. He defended they "didn't play hockey." If victorious they didn't play hockey either because they didn't double the score, or if the "goalies were changed the result would have been different."

Bower Thinks Gordie Howe Is 'Most Dangerous Forward'

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gordie Howe has won another trophie—Johnny Bower's award as the National Hockey League's most dangerous forward.

Bower, a veteran goalie now playing with Toronto Maple Leafs, wasn't exactly going out on a limb in picking Howe as the netminder's nightmare of the NHL. The great Detroit forward holds the all-time NHL scoring record.

"Howe in many cases actually has two chances," said Bower. "He is an inventive player. He shoots the puck and bulls his way in. If there's a rebound, you're really in trouble."

BOOM BOOM SECOND

Bower placed Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion of Montreal Canadiens next to Howe. Geoffrion "has a real terrific shot, perhaps the fastest in the league."

Jean Beliveau and Henri Richard, both of Montreal, placed Geoffrion on Bower's rod-alert list. Then came Bobby Hull of Chicago, Black Hawks. And Ralph Backup of New York Rangers and Bronco Horvath and Gus Gendron of Boston Bruins.

Henri Richard "likes to set up his brother or he'd have a lot more goals." Brother Maurice is "still dynamite" though he has slowed down a bit, said Bower. Gendron "is a pest with his corner-picking shots."

LEADING NHL SCORER

Howe has 900 points in his NHL career, which began in 1946-47. Maurice Richard has 999 points, having lost the lead to Howe this season.

Tonight's hockey action finds New York at Montreal, Detroit at Toronto, and Boston at Chicago. In games Sunday, Toronto goes to New York and Detroit to Chicago.

Toronto has been plagued with sickness and injuries. Out of the Bruins' lineup are: Vic Stasiuk, broken ankle; Fleming Mackell, groin injury; Fleming Mackell, pulled groin muscle; and Leo Labine and Gendron, the flu.

"If we can just hold our own in the next two road games we'll be okay," Boston coach Milt Schmidt said Friday night. "Our scorers have us—we play six of our last nine games at home."

Offer Moore Two Fights

NEW YORK (AP)—Offers for two championship fights were extended Friday to veteran light-heavyweight Archie Moore.

Jack Fuzgay, managing director of Pauture Sports Inc., said he had wired separate offers to Jack Kearns, Moore's manager, for the aged scrapper to meet the winner of the Ingemar Johansson-Floyd Patterson heavyweight title bout this September and also German lightheavy contender Erich Schoppner. The Moore-Schoppner bout would be held early this summer,

Canada's 2-Medal Day Best In Olympics History

GOLD MEDAL FOR ANNE — Ottawa's Anne Heggtveit seen swinging through gate on her first slalom run Friday, won Canada's first-ever Olympic skiing medal at Squaw Valley, Calif., when she won the women's slalom. The 21-year-old blonde topped 42 women, including European and American stars with a total time for two runs of one minute, 49.6 seconds. (CP from AP).

Ottawa's Anne Heggtveit Wins Gold Bauble on Skis; Don Jackson Takes Bronze

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP)—A bashful 21-year-old blonde and a 19-year-old youth who looked his years rushed to save money combined Friday to give Canada probably its greatest day in Winter Olympic History.

Ottawa's Anne Heggtveit won a gold medal on an unprecedented performance by a Canadian in Olympic skiing and a third-place bronze was added by Don Jackson of Oshawa in the men's figure skating.

A few hours after the Ottawa miss made beautiful runs down two 82-gate courses to beat world-cracking skiers in the women's slalom, the International Skiing Federation (FIS) named her world champion for the slalom and the women's title. Indeed, another unprecedented honor for a Canadian.

The FIS awards world titles to winners of Olympic races and also additionally honors the one with the best marks in all three—slalom, giant slalom and downhill. A Swiss miss, Yvonne Rueg, captured the Olympic giant slalom while a German teen-ager, Heidi Biebl, took the downhill. But Miss Heggtveit, who finished 12th in the giant slalom and the downhill, had the best over-all performance.

SECOND GOLD MEDAL

Miss Heggtveit's victory gave Canada its second gold medal of the Olympics and together with Jackson's third place in the figure skating boosted the country's unofficial team point total to 27.

It marked the first time that Canada had added to its unofficial international points score at the Eighth Winter Games since Bob Paul and Barbara Wagner of Toronto won the pairs figure-skating championship a week ago Friday and Otto and Maria Jelinek of Oakville placed fourth.

Russia Friday won its seventh gold medal—six of them in speed skating—to run its team point total up to 148½ based on the traditional 10 points for first and 7-6-5-4-3-2-1 for the next five places. The United States moved into second place with 36½ followed by Sweden 43½, Norway 40, Finland 34½, Austria 31½, Canada and France 27, Switzerland 26½ and Italy 15½.

SPEED SKATING ROCKET LOSES

The Canadian honors came just a day after Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen absorbed a stunning 9-1 hockey loss to the United States team, so far unbeaten.

The feeling around the tournament was on tap today with U.S. hopes hinging on its game against defending champion Russia. The Americans play Czechoslovakia tonight.

Russia, once tied, meet Canada Sunday after beating the Americans. The Canadians play Sweden tonight and Czechoslovakia meets Germany. All the clubs had a day's rest Friday.

Speaking interest in today's U.S.-Russia hockey match far outstripped that for the 10,000-metre (6¼-mile) men's speed skating and the 30-kilometre (31-mile, 120-yard) ski marathon that preceded it. The indoor Blyth ice rink was sold out.

Canada has a trio in the speed skating—Larry Mason of Calgary, Ralph Olin of Edmonton and Johnny Sands of Montreal—while the Servold brothers, Clarence and Irvin, of Camrose, Alta., will compete in the cross-country. Both are gruelling events and the Europeans are expected to sweep them.

PROTEST PENDING

Twenty-two of the 27 championships have been decided with one other completed but under protest. The two today and the hockey and special jumping Sunday wind up the 11-day games.

Russia Friday broke its medal record of 18 set in its first Winter Games in 1956. Soviet athletes now have captured 19 medals—seven gold, four silver and eight bronze.

Still to be settled was the Games' first gold medal beef between women from Sweden and Russia. The Russians charged that in the 15-kilometre (9.3-mile) cross-country ski relay, Sweden's leadoff skier Irma Johansson ran her skis over those of Russia's Radia Eroshina on a turn. The Russian fell and victory went to the Swedes.

Motion pictures were sent out for development to decide the protest. Olympic officials won't make the decision known until tonight.

Speed skater Eugeni Grishin of Russia won a gold medal in the 1,500-metre (metric mile) event Friday for a double slam in two straight Olympics. Earlier this week he won the 500-metre event.

But for the second straight Games, he was tied in the 1,500-metre event. His time of two minutes, 10.4 seconds matched that of Roald Aas of Norway. Both collected gold medals.

Ingy Wants To Defend Title at Home

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP) — Ingemar Johansson wants to defend the world heavyweight title at least once right here at home. This may happen in September against Archie Moore, or at the latest in April. Edwin Ahlquist, the champion's adviser, said Friday. If Johansson can't work out a fight against the aging Moore, he will try to arrange a bout with another challenger, Ahlquist said.

Johansson expects to meet former champion Floyd Patterson in a rematch in June in New York. Ahlquist said this bout now is "99 per cent sure" and that he and Johansson both are confident "Ingemar will retain the title.

Unprecedented Triple Slam Recorded by Anne Heggtveit

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP) — Anne Heggtveit, 21 - year - old blonde daughter of a Canadian bank official, has scored an unprecedented triple slam in women's Olympic and world alpine skiing for Canada and brought her country its greatest honors ever in the international winter sports specialty.

The modest Ottawa miss, who first strapped on skis when she was 2, capped her impressive International skiing career Friday by winning the Olympic slalom championship at the Winter Games, a victory that gave her enough points to clinch the world alpine combined and the world slalom titles as well. In all, she got three golds medals — the Olympic and two from the International Ski Federation (FIS).

FIRST FOR CANADA

No Canadian had ever done that before although another skiing great, Lucile Wheeler of St. Sovite, Que., won the world downhill in 1958 and finished second in the world combined.

Miss Wheeler, who before Miss Heggtveit's shattering performance Friday was the only Canadian to win a medal for skiing at the Olympics, was here to cheer Anne on to victory.

"This was the most wonderful day," said Miss Wheeler, who placed third in the downhill at the 1956 Winter Games.

The tousle-haired Miss Heggtveit had refused to look at the course the day before because "I didn't want to ski it in my sleep."

ACHIEVED AIM

"This was the race I'd been pointing for," she said.

She hit the gate of the top 10 in the downhill and giant slalom earlier in the Games, finishing 13th and 19th.

The event Friday consisted of two different runs down the hard Papoose Peak. Each had 53 tightly placed gates.

Miss Heggtveit shot down the first course in 54 seconds, digging, swishing and swinging as she went. She said that she almost went to a dead stop at the 10th gate. She was elated when her time was announced.

WATCHED COURSES FINISH

From then on she watched the runs of Americans Betsy and European stars as Penny Pitou of Gilford, N.H., favored to take both Friday's race and the world title, Betsy Snite of Norwich, Vt., Heidi Biebl of Germany, the downhill gold medalist, Therese Leduc of France, and Yvonne Ruegg, the giant slalom winner, and Madeleine Chamot-Berthod of Switzerland, the 1956 Olympics downhill winner.

None could match here.

Then came the second run.

"I decided I was going to crash or almost crash," she said.

She stood up, and her time was 55.6 seconds — almost a full second behind Miss Snite's second-run time. But the Canadian girl's total came to one minute, 49.6 seconds while Miss Snite had 1:52.3, good for the silver medal.

Germany's Barbi Henneberger was third with 1:56.6.

WELL AHEAD

The FIS announced that in the official count of penalty points Miss Heggtveit won the world combined and world slalom with the lowest number—69.90 points. She won the world combined for the best over-all performance in the downhill, giant slalom and slalom.

Sonja Sperl of West Germany was second with 10.08 points and Miss Henneberger third with 10.36. Miss Pitou, leader after the Olympic downhill and giant slalom, dropped to eighth place because she fell in the concluding slalom.

The skiing events are recognized as world events although the International Olympic Committee does not recognize the combined title.

At Austria House Friday night, FIS president Marc Hodler handed two more gold medals to Miss Heggtveit for her slalom and combined titles — the first the Canadian raised an extra salute for her performance.

SALUTE THE WINNER

"This is the greatest thing to happen to Canada in any Olympics," declared Canadian team manager Andy Tommy of Ottawa.

"Anne made two beautiful runs and I know she had it after the first run."

Montreal's 17-year-old Nancy Holland, who also made a remarkable showing in placing 12th, said "my biggest thrill of the games came when Anne won."

Ski coach Pepi Salvenmoser, an Austrian who guided both Miss Wheeler and Miss Heggtveit to championships, commented: "Anne is wonderful. She skied beautifully.

"And Nancy—well, if Anne retires, Canada has a good younger coming up."

Booster Club, Team, Management Honor Gordie Bell

Coach's Mother Furnishes "This Is Your Life" Surprise As Climax to Gifts, Cheques

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Modest Gordie Bell, ex-goalie coach of the Belleville McFarlands, stood in the glare of public acclaim here last night.

Fans, management and team-mates paid tribute, tribute to one of the most popular hockey players to wear a Belleville uniform.

To a thunderous ovation in Memorial Arena, the central figure of "Gordie Bell Night" was presented with a cheque and a "lazyboy" chair from the McFarlands Booster Club; a cheque from sponsor H.-J. McFarland and a portable radio from his fellow McFarlands.

But one of the best "gifts", one with a "This is Your Life" touch, was the "presentation" of his mother, Mrs. Edith Bell, whose and son had not met since the McFarlands hailed at Portage La Prairie on their return from the successful Allan Cup quest in Kelowna, B.C., two years ago.

Mrs. Edith Bell, 163 Broadway Avenue, Portage La Prairie, was flown here secretly by the Booster Club. The element of surprise was complete. Gordie gasped when his mother stepped on the ice.

Equally surprised were Gordie's wife and his two attractive children, Addie, 7, and Lou Anne, 5. Mr. and Mrs. Hicknotts-old Randy had another engagement and couldn't be present.

MANY TRIBUTES

Bell was appointed coach of the McFarlands, succeeding Ike Hildebrand, when the latter changed "horses in mid-stream" a short time ago. He has been a member of the Macs for four years, and suffered what may be a permanent eye injury in a game against Whitby on October 27, 1956.

With the McFarlands and the Windsor Bulldogs hockey teams lined up on their blueline, Booster past - president Dick Bearss paid verbal tribute to Bell.

"Tonight we pay tribute of appreciation to a man loved and respected by all of us for service rendered to the Macs and hockey club. Since his arrival four years ago, he and his family have become an integral part. We are proud of them."

Bell has spent hours with the city's less-talented youngsters. Bearss said. "His popularity with them is fantastic."

"He was a great team man and no player has been held in more respect by his colleagues than Gordie Bell. There was gloom in the dressing room when he decided to hang up his skates."

Booster president Jim Matthews then presented the coach with a handsome lazyboy chair and a cheque for $400.

Alderman Robert Temple representing Mayor McLean Hagerman, paid the city's tribute. "Gordie Bell has meant much to Belleville not only as a hockey player but as a citizen. We are all better for having known him."

"Gordie has always held the respect of Belleville and district fans," said Booster proxy Matthews. "We shall never forget his fine sportsmanship that was one of the main factors in Belleville winning the Allan Cup and the world championship at Prague. Not only that but we all admire him as an outstanding citizen."

Team manager Keith MacDonald then presented Bell with a cheque on behalf of Mayor H. J. McFarland of Picton, sponsor of the club, who was unable to be present. On behalf of the rest of the club, am proud to have played on the same team as Gordie," was his tribute.

Team captain Floyd Crawford echoed the sentiments when he handed Gordie a handsome portable radio, the gift of the McFarlands' players.

Gordie in his modest manner briefly expressed his appreciation of his "Night". "My family and I thank you from the bottom, of our hearts," he said. "When I came here four years ago I did not know a soul. I have found since it was the wisest move of my life. Everybody has been wonderful to us and I hope we can become valuable citizens to the community." Cheers rocked the rafters as Gordie, visibly moved, turned away.

"Best Wishes" cables were received from former teammates Fiori Goegan, Johnny McClellan, Bep Guidolin and Marv Edwards. Mayor the Rev. L. Henderson of Portage la Prairie, and a number of Bell's relatives living in the western city, cabled their "best", as did Eddie Shore, manager of the Springfield Indians club of the American League, with whom Gordie spent several seasons.

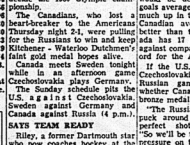
SLAP OR WRIST SHOT?



80% ERROR
37% LESS ACCURATE

The other day I saw the coach of a "pee wee" team teaching his players the slap shot. He coached them he said "The slap shot gives more speed and is more accurate". This is a misconception.

Sports College tests have shown that the slap shot, on an average, is slower and more inaccurate than a sweeping wrist shot. It is far less accurate, Punch Imlach and other N.H.L. coaches prefer the normal shot under most circumstances.

The slap shot is effective when the puck comes out to a player who has time to get behind the blueline zone and he has little time to get his back at the goal or if during a scramble, there is no time for anything else but a quick slap at the puck.

Most certainly the young player should learn to control with a sweep of the stick and a hard wrist of the wrists before he bothers with the slap shot. Hard, accurate shooting is still an undeveloped art by most youngsters.

Canada's Chances in Hockey Depends on a Lot of "If's"

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP) —"We won't be able to out-pass them, so we're going to have to out - hustle them," says coach Jack Riley of the unbeaten United States hockey team which meets Russia's defending champions today in a game that could decide the Olympic championship ploomlip.

The Canadians, who lost a heart-breaker to the Americans Thursday night 2-1, were pulling for the Russians to win and keep Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen's faint gold medal hopes alive.

Canada meets Sweden tonight while in an afternoon game Czechoslovakia plays Germany.

The Sunday schedule pits the U.S. against Czechoslovakia, Sweden against Germany and Canada against Russia (4 p.m.).

SAYS TEAM READY

Riley, a former Dartmouth star who now coaches hockey at the U.S. Military Academy, reported there had been no letdown for his charges since the upset win over Canada.

The Americans are 3-0 in the tournament and have six points. Russia is second with two wins and a tie for five points and Canada is third with two victories and a loss of four points. An American win over Russia would put about sew up the gold medal.

"We've been looking forward to playing the Russians for a long time," Riley said. "An American can hockey team has never beaten the Russians and we've got to be the first." In 1956 the Russians blanked the American club 4-0 to win their first Olympic hockey title.

Kitchener coach Bobby Bauer kept after his charges Friday, a day off for the hockey clubs, and hoped for a Soviet victory.

TERRIFIC TENSION

Both Bauer and Riley admitted the tension has been terrific.

"The tension gets as high as you can mountain," said Bauer, pointing to the High Sierras. "It's almost even carried through the rubber-legged. I mean that all ways. Some of the players actually bowed their legs in key situations."

Bauer for years starred on the famed Kraut line — later the Uniteds — with Milt Schmidt, Bryan Hextall and Woody Dumart of the National Hockey League.

Was there more tension in the Olympics or the Stanley Cup playoffs?

"The Stanley Cup is nothing compared to this," said Bauer. "This is international competition against the best amateur teams of the world. And the best is always on Canada. Everyone expects us to win and everyone is out to beat us."

Riley agreed. "The pressure is fierce. After we beat Canada no one thought we could. I can just imagine how those Canadians feel."

Canada's chances in the tournament depend on a lot of "ifs." If the Russians beat the U.S. and then bow to Canada, the Canadians, provided they get the extra tie-breaking goal, would end up in a tie with the Americans, who also would have to beat the Czechs. The gold and silver medals then would be decided on the best goals average—which still is very much up in the air although the Canadian average just now is better than the American. Canada has 17 goals for and two against compared with a 17-5 record for the Americans.

If the U.S. beats Russia and Czechoslovakia, the Canadian-Russian game will determine whether Canada wins a silver or bronze medal.

"The Russians like to pass the puck around and wait for the perfect shot," Riley said. "So we'll be trying to put all the pressure on them we can."

The Americans haven't got that kind of a precision attack. "We like to 'Ken'em up and pray they go in," Riley added.

The Russians had very little to say. Russia's veteran goalie, Nikolai Puchkov, a star of the 1956 games, commented only: "The team has the most puck and the one that wins. This is the strongest American team I've seen."

In a consolation-round game Friday, Finland fired a six-goal salvo in the second period and beat Japan 7-2 victory over Japan. The game ended in a near-free-for-all.

Mention Banff For 1968 Games

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP) —Talk of holding the 1968 Winter Olympic Games in Canada got a boost here Friday from Avis Haggiwell's victory in the Olympic slalom race.

Banff, Alta., was mentioned as a possible location by several Eastern Canadians.

Sidney Davis of Montreal, Canadian member of the International Olympic Committee, said it was too early to seriously discuss hosting the Winter Olympics but Anne's victory provided a wonderful inspiration to the idea."

The 1964 Winter Games have been awarded to Innsbruck, Austria.

SIGN 'FEAHEAD'

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Giants of the National Football League Friday signed D. C. (Peahead) Walker, veteran college and pro coach, as their chief talent scout for the southern area of the U.S. For the last eight years Walker coached Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four.

O'Connor Jewellers opened the fourth quarter of the Quinte Classic Bowling League last night with an 11-point win.

ART ATKIN

The results were: O'Connor Jewellers (11) 2698, Elaine 1037 (3) 3677, McDougall Insurance (5) 3566, Parson's Cleaners (3) 3349, Bradley Sunoco (2) 3305.

Art Atkin had high four-string of 1152 (316-312).

Other good scores were: J. McKenzie 1062 (311), W. Bateman 1047 (319), W. Lavergne 1037 (354), W. Godby 992 (303), J. Wardhaugh 972, G. Anderson 970 (303), W. Dingman 964, W. Fralick 951, A. Toronto Horse Favored in $100,000 Stakes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A Canadian-bred horse gets its big chance today.

When E. P. Taylor's Victoria Park bursts from the No. 6 post in the starting gate it will be 7-to-five favorite to win the $100,000 added Flamingo Stakes—and be just a Canadian-bred horse in the top ranks of American racing.

The race is the first big test of the year for three-year-olds and Victoria Park, first Canadian-bred horse to qualify for the Triple Crown, will be favored after setting a track record at the same track — Hialeah—last Saturday.

The second choice is the horse Victoria Park beat last week, Bally Ache, 5-2. Another dozen of the best derby-age colts are entered.

The winner will be a favorite for the Kentucky Derby and other big races in the spring and summer circuit headed for three-year-olds. The net is $90,880.

The day's other big star is the mare Tosmah, owned by Mrs. Ethel Jacobs and the big question was whether national champion Willie Shoemaker would ride after he fell and was kicked in the head by a horse Friday.

Shoemaker said he expects to ride the favored Bardella in the race. Bagdad will be making a bid for "horse of the year" honors.

If he wins, it will give Shoemaker four Santa Anita triumphs, equal to the record of Johnny Longden.

Royals Call Wayne Connelly

MONTREAL (CP)—The slumping Montreal Royals of the Eastern Professional Hockey League Friday night dipped into junior ranks for some scoring punch and called up Wayne Connelly, right winger with Peterborough Petes of the OHA junior league.

Connelly, who has scored 47 goals, the league high, and 33 assists so far this year in the junior league, will join Royals for Sunday's game here against Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds.

Royals, who have but five of their last six games, have a slim two-point edge on the Soo team for second place in the standings. The Thunderbirds are unbeaten in their last seven games and currently are the hottest club in the EPHL.

Connelly, 20, impressed the Montreal Canadiens brass at training camp last year, scoring six goals and 10 assists. He was one of the last players to be cut from the squad. In four years at junior hockey, Connelly has scored 121 goals.

Master Maniago Big Factor In Windsor Bulldogs Win Over Macs In Final Contest

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

It was "Gordie Bell Appreciation Night" in Memorial Arena last night—for everyone but the Windsor Bulldogs.

The popular ex-goalie, one of the McFarlands, received presents and cheques from fans, team and management—but nothing from the Bulldogs.

Nothing that is—outside of a 4-1 defeat. And the stinglest of Lammy Lamfrande's puck-chasing pooches was Cesare Maniago.

"You won't see many better games than that played last night, albeit meant nothing, standing-wise, to either club. And you won't see much better goalkeeping than that staged by the long lanky youngster who (1967) to wear a Macs uniform.

Outshot 32-28 by the McFarlands, the Dogs spotted the Bell-boys a first-period goal, tied it in the second heat and exploded for three unanswered tallies in a wide-open final frame.

Windsor's Erwin Gross practically clinched the league scoring leadership with a pair of goals. Peplin and Jack Costello scored the others. Walker had two assists with Bendo, Brown and Servias getting one each.

Wiener's Brown scored the McFarlands' lone tally, assisted by Denis Boucher and Barton Bradley.

The Bulldogs play the Whitby Dunlops tonight in the Ted Reeve Arena, Toronto, as the Whitby arena has been condemned because of too much snow weight on the roof.

The game was basically rugged and at times with the Bulldogs drawing the odd minor in five penalties. The Macs had an overall edge in the play outside of that explosive third-period three minutes, but Master Maniago took care of every puck that one they threw at him.

The Macs had a decided edge in the shots-on-goal department, racking the Bulldogs 13-6. Kenny Gibbons broke through alone but Maniago smothered him on both occasions.

The Bulldogs' goalie tossed back some hard drives while the Dogs bounced one off the post on one of their power forays.

Ulendale and Crawford were chased for high-sticking, Crawford through the heat with nothing resulting and at 15.39 Marineau got the gate for a high-sticking foul which paid off in the scoring column.

The Macs drew first blood as the seconds ticked away, scoring from a face-off near the Windsor net with Boucher and Bradley in on the play.

Maniago came up with some brilliant saves in the second heat especially when Peplin was chased for tripping. They fenced bounced three off his pads at point-blank range.

It was fast, playoff hockey at this point with both sides missing passes or overstaking the puck.

Peplin tied the count at 5.15 when he fired a high one past Chaszewski on the right boards near the Belleville net. He whirled, raced in and drove a low, hard shot into a corner for the tally.

Near the period end Ron Mullen broke into the clear, whipped it close to Maniago's pad but the goalie coolly kicked his drive away.

Maniago was again brilliant in the third frame, racing out to the right boards to smother the puck.

The Dogs held off a sustained McFarlands attack, then exploded for their trio of goals.

Costello climaxed a neat passing play with Bendo for the first tally and a minute later Gross scored his first of the night on a form Walker. Fifty seconds had elapsed when Gross scored after a goalmouth scramble with Walker and Brown in on the play.

Bendo broke into the clear but missed on a shot and Dietrich was chased and the Macs put on the pressure but Maniago again proved a stumbling block.

CO-OP LISTINGS

Some 19 months ago the Real Estate Brokers of this City organized a local Real Estate Board. This is an association of Real Estate Brokers who have agreed on a constitution of good Real Estate practices incorporating a code of ethics for the benefit of the Public when they use the services of a Real Estate firm. The local association is a member of the Toronto and Canadian Real Estate Boards. Each member of the local Board may hold themselves out as a "Realtor".

The Belleville Realtors felt that they could render a greater service to the Public by incorporating a co-operative sellers market, thus co-op service placing the listed property in the hands of Realtors and gives the widest exposure and has proven to be the fastest way to dispose of a property. The record of sales in dollar volume one of the highest in the country for cities of similar size.

For the past months we have entered the photo co-op field, and the presence of pictures in our offices has done much to the satisfactory marketing of Belleville property.

Call our offices and discuss the benefits of Belleville photo co-op and get results.

TIPS

by JOHN WETTLAUFER

Television aerials which are kept in proper repair will withstand a good deal of punishment from the weather . . . but when they are neglected they often end up as a pile of twisted metal after even a mild wind storm.

Wind damage to TV aerials was at one time included in the fire insurance policy, but this is no longer the case. Unless you have a separate policy covering your aerial it is not insured against wind damage.

The point is this: it is probably cheaper to keep your antenna in good condition than to pay the extra premium for insurance or to replace a damaged antenna. Grey with rust and weaken or become loose and invite trouble unless checked regularly.

Don't risk the expense of having your aerial and rotor damaged or destroyed! CIRCLE TV SERVICE, 364 Coleman St., have the experienced men and equipment to put your aerial in safe, tip-top condition. The cost is small . . . far less than a new aerial! Phone WO 6-5791 for a free estimate.

Scarboro Team Favored in Peewee Tourney

QUEBEC (CP)—A team from Scarborough was heavily favored to win the grand championship of Quebec's international peewee hockey tournament today on the basis of three outstanding performances Friday.

The Scarborough team, sponsored by Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, waltzed through the opposition for 24 goals in three games while giving up only one.

They blanked Sherbrooke, Que., 9-0 and Montreal Rosemount 7-0 and then followed up with a 7-1 triumph over Peterborough in the Maurice Gagne Trophy.

Scarborough meets Rimouski, Que., in one grand championship semi-final round and the Quebec City Cup today while Montreal Concy, Que., will meet either Sherbrooke, Que., or Beauport, Que., in the other. The final this afternoon is in Quebec's 12,000-seat coliseum.

Bersimis, an all-Indian team from the Montagnais Indian reserve at Baie Comeau will open early in the morning for the Carnaval Trophy and the right to advance to the tournament final.

Syl Apps, Jr.,—son of the former Leaf centre star got three goals for Scarborough.

Peterborough scored a first period goal, added two in the second and then coasted to a 5-1 triumph over Drummondville, Que., to qualify to meet Scarborough. James Bell scored twice for Peterborough while Terry Blewett, Norm Bean and Perry Shittick added one each.

Eddie Machen Stops Hunter In 9th Round

NEW YORK (AP) — Eddie Machen, the Redding, Calif., heavyweight, ended the long road back Friday night when he stopped Billy Hunter of Detroit in the 9:11 of the ninth round of scheduled 10-round fight in Madison Square Garden.

Machen, who weighed 196 to 191¾ for Hunter, had only one problem. For the first three rounds he couldn't keep out of the way of the 6-foot-2-inch Hunter's left jab.

But once he took care of that, it merely was a matter of how long Hunter would last. He was game to the end and still was standing when referee Al Berl decided he had had enough.

After winning seven fights in a row last year, he dropped a decision to Zora Folley last month. That set him far back where he was developing a reputation of losing the big ones.

Minor Hockey

Low-scoring and very close close games featured the peewee playoffs this morning as the Mack, Bruins, Barons, Red Wings and Maple Leafs won the first round of their goals-to-count series.

The Macs shaded Black Hawks 2-1 and took the series 3-2. David Emerson scored one Mac goal and assisted on the other, scored by Ted Herrington. Greg Moore also had an assist. Gary Lucas potted the Hawk goal unassisted.

Bruins squeezed out another 2-1 victory over the Rangers to win the round 10-1. Ino Blakley, with a goal and assist, Jim Clarke with a goal and Ted Clarke an assist, were the Bruins' point-collectors. Paul Ford replied for Rangers aided by Paul Cooney.

Barons dropped a 2-1 decision to Quinte but waited until with the series 6-3 by virtue of last week's 5-1 win. Billy Forbes scored the Baron goal. David Beresford potted both Quinte goals with Bob Carmichael helping on one.

Red Wings blanked the Canadiens 2-0 and captured the round 5-1. Warren Wolfenden and Doug Dickey triggered the goals, Jan Ivo Smith scored the lone goal with assists going to Jan Morris and Robert Scott.

Bisons Reach Second Place

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Winners of four of their last five games, Buffalo's Bisons have climbed into second place in the American Hockey League for the first time this season.

The Bisons, beating Cleveland 7-2 Friday night, edged into the runner-up spot with 66 points, one more than Rochester which lost to fourth-place Providence 2-1.

Cleveland goaltender Gil Mayer was forced out of the nightcap in the second period as the Bisons rocked the Barons goal and scored four times to put it away. Mayer suffered a torn rib cartilege and may be sidelined for a few games. The Barons are three points behind Providence in the battle for the league's final playoff spot.

The Bisons Wally Hergesheimer had two goals and an assist.

Bill Maloney, Ron Ingram, Bill Dea, Gus Mortson and Dick Gamble added singles. Bill Needham and Aldo Guidolin scored Cleveland's goals.

Eddie MacQueen and Stan Balukin tallied in the second period to give Providence the win. Needham and hand Rochester its sixth defeat in the last eight outings. Stan Smrke connected for the Americans' goal in the third period.

Lions Defeat Sudbury 4-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The six Eastern Professional Hockey League teams look as if they'll be in a race to the wire for playoff spots in the last three weeks of the league's inaugural season.

Friday night Trois - Rivieres Lions whipped front-running Sudbury Wolves 4-2 at Sudbury.

That put the Lions into fourth place with 57 points. Sudbury has 61, Montreal 60, Sault Ste. Marie 58, Hull-Ottawa 55 and Kingston 53.

The Wolves flubbed another chance to increase their lead over Montreal Royals, dropping their fourth game in a row—only the second time this season they've slumped so badly. The other clubs have been jostling positions all season. Only the first four teams will enter playoffs.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Sunday, February 22, 1959

General Tendencies: Now you have a day in which you have every sort of chance to go forward in all spiritual, scientific and educational matters — a Sunday where all kinds of benefits await your acceptance in relation to whatever you would like to do or have in mind. Make sure that you do then get out and show others you can live your life as a pattern for them to follow.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Many excellent thoughts occur to you today that will permit you to increase your abundance and have greater happiness in personal life. Be certain you go to services of your choice so that you have the very highest inspiration.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — An excellent day for meditation and to concentrate upon all the vital affairs of your life. This will lead to greater aspirations and more efficient ways to operate so that you can realize infinite benefits in the future. Be charitable, too.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Be sure to attend church this a.m. and meet with persons of good character with whom you can become associated in the future toward some mutual and profitable goals.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Don't become confused because so many things happen today. Since this is a day of action on your part turns these into stepping stones for the future. Increase prestige, make friends with those who can give you excellent support.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — You have a very fine opportunity to exchange with a most wise spiritual advisor now and gain years of the knowledge he, or she, has accumulated through the years. Later, be affectionate with loved ones and most hopeful toward the needy.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — It is important you get into low-rolled Science for a time today and allow your fine intuitive faculties to operate properly. Then take notes of wonderful ideas that occur to you. P.M. fine for romance and happiness.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — Go to that marvelously clever partner now for the advice and suggestions you need. But you must co-operate fully instead of criticize. P.M. enjoy yourself as you see fit.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — There is every opportunity for you to be of service to worthy individuals and this will bring rich rewards for you in the future. Live the Golden Rule and inspire others. P.M. schedule weeks ahead intelligently.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — If you are following your astrological chart, you should awaken on this morning feeling very happy and full of optimism. Be with partners and spread this joyous attitude. Then assist those who are in dire need.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Take the lead in adjusting any problems at home, but be sure you are understanding and in a cheerful mood. Then all foundational matters can be placed on a safe basis extending far into the future. Don't be dictatorial.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Fine day to listen attentively to a wonderful spiritual leader so to read the great philosophers and add much to present wisdom. P.M. be of real assistance to your good friends as well as have an enjoyable time.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Look to the experiences of the past which have been successful for the answers to today's spiritual problems. Then think about a more efficient modus operandi for the future so that you realize greater benefits.

If your child is born today— The wonderful child born today is a born pioneer, and will early in life want to go off to seek his or her, fortune. Be sure you early in life give the finest spiritual training so that the personality is rounded out in such a way that success and happiness will come no matter where this child of destiny may wander. Also, be most kind and understanding in rearing. A fascinating chart.

Monday, February 23,

General tendencies: The morning is apt to bring delays, obstacles and limitations that can throw you into a tizzy. Then when you keep objective and realize this is a chance to organize future hours better. Then all afternoon, evening is splendid for pitting into operation plans of action that have been held up are this.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Look into affairs of credit during A.M. or you can suffer a financial setback. Remainder of day is then excellent for pursuing your goals with enthusiasm. Be direct. P.M. especially fine for social affairs. Dress beautifully.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Rather than trying to jump from this to that, work more slowly and different, look into some specific outlet with which to replace the old more successfully. Consult with specialists in that field and take preliminary steps.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — It will do no good to seek advice from a pal and a higher-up, since you will be poles apart. Do what you think is best. P.M. go out socially and be dynamic. Make the contacts you desire to have allied with you in the future.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — In A.M. you must decide whether to stand on own personal affairs or give your associates a helping hand. Be altruistic. Later you can handle credit and other important affairs wisely and be successful throughout.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Complete those important chores in A.M. quickly and be off to more interesting and profitable activities. Show admiration where where merited, and be sure to learn a good deal about modern procedures, etc. Grow.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Begin work wisely by being many economical and taking care of your credit, coming through with promises made. P.M. be a fun the one you love the most and come to some real understanding. Go to an inspiring site.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — Be sure you keep that close tie apart from equally boonbastic outsider. Then you can safely be off with intelligent partner to some place where you can combine business with pleasure.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — See that you do not waste your morning on some dull tasks, but rather get out into the bustling world of activity. Have conferences, visit, do your shopping, etc. P.M. go out for a good time at sports or other recreation.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Get fundamental affairs on a more practical and solid basis instead of being extravagant or investing unwisely at this time. Then in P.M. it will be possible to go out and enjoy yourself without worry or fear.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — It is imperative you act circumspectly today and are very wise in the choice of words. Then you can reach far more harmonious relations with kin. P.M. take it easy. Enjoy own home, be kind and thoughtful with all.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) —You can certainly fuss over some secret anxiety, if you permit yourself such a luxury. Be off to more constructive activity in the world of business and achievement. This can then be a wonderful day and a charming evening.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — If you stop long enough to plan minutely your activities that will put you closer to your goals, you have to follow these plans to

Mr. TWEEDY — by Ned Riddle

"All aboard! All aboard! Last bus to town...."

Albury

ALBURY — This community was shocked to hear of the sudden passing on Tuesday of Mr. John Goodman, who had lived in this district for several years. Sympathy is extended to his wife and family. The funeral was held on Friday with interment at Desoronto.

Several Albury residents attended the euchre party at Amelisburg, sponsored by Quinte Lodge, on Thursday evening.

Beef Producers Likely to Get Lower Prices

beef producers will receive a slightly lower price for their product this year, W. P. Watson, livestock commissioner for the Ontario agriculture department, said Thursday.

Last year's exports to the United States were less than half of that in 1958, he said, and yet there is a greater number of beef cattle in Canada. The 1959 cattle exports totalled 90,000.

He told the annual meeting of Ontario Red Trianga Baby-Beef Association that a decrease in exports to the U.S. this year means that cattle marketing in Canada will rise. There will be a fairly abundant supply of meat, but a demand for the branded quality is expected, he said.

Your Car

Some Matters Can't Wait for 1,000-Mile Check

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

In driving that new car during the first week or two, you must notice body rattles, sluggishness, stiff or squeaking doors, hood or trunk-lid, slow starting and poor gas mileage, etc. This type of complaint can wait for the 1000-mile check-up, but there are others which should be given immediate attention.

Unusual oil pressures and engine temperatures, severe transmission noise or vibration, rapid loss of oil, water, gas or fluid should be reported to the dealer without delay.

Certainly, if steering isn't right — too stiff or too loose — you can't afford to wait. The same applies to brakes that may be weak, grabbing or pulling to one side, headlights which are weak or misdirected, faulty stoplights or directional signals, exhaust gas odors or wipers that are not clearing the windshield properly.

From Mrs. S. K.: "Yesterday, a terrible screeching noises could be heard beneath the engine hood of our car. What could this be?"

(A) It could be, and often is, caused by the fan pulley shaft when it is in need of lubricant.

R. C. writes: "My car runs well enough for me, but I believe something may be wrong with it. There's a long thin rust streak at the engine top. If I clean it off, it's back within a few days."

(A) A defective cylinder head gasket or loose head bolts may be permitting water leakage.

W. R. asks: "On a new 6-volt battery, I have just noticed a small number 80. Does this refer to a 80-day guarantee, a safe temperature, a code for recharging or what?"

(A) It refers to the ampere-hour capacity — meaning that the battery has the capacity to furnish one ampere of current per hour for 80 hrs.

From H. D.: "Since a cold battery is a weak one, how about pulling an ordinary electric heating pad on the battery during severe cold spells?"

(A) Fine idea. It serves the purpose very nicely, as some enterprising car owners have already discovered.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

After 65 Husband Most Valuable Thing a Woman Owns Says Widow

By THOMAS COLLINS

"I want to add my voice to the growing protest against forcing men active life from when they reached age 65.

"Consigning an active 65-year-old worker to retirement when he is capable to do his work is a great evil. Compulsory retirement should be kept for executives, who otherwise have no one to tell them when to quit."

Wives, children and friends of 65-year-olds — and a lot of other intelligent people — simply do not understand why a worker is no longer needed because of a birthday.

"You wrote a column called 'Pity Your Poor Heirs When the Will Is Read.' This was a bad thing to write. It was an incorrect thing to write. And it reflected unfavorably on lawyers."

It was not bad because it led a lot of retired people to re-examine the screwball legal machinery by which they hope to leave their money to their children . . . and make some changes in their wills. It wasn't incorrect because I sat in front of a lawyer's desk and heard every word of it. And as for reflecting unfavorably on lawyers, it did. Lawyers make the laws, and they have made it so complicated for a person with money to die that nobody should even consider it without first getting a degree from a law school.

MAKING PLANS

"My husband and I will retire with an $18,000 house and an income of around $200 a month.

"For many years we have enjoyed vacations at Gatlinburg, Tenn., and though it is a resort area we have made friends with year-round residents.

"Recently we bought a lot there. We plan to take $10,000 from the sale of our home and build a retirement house on it. We will be about in the centre of town. With all the motels and craft shops we feel we could get part-time work if we needed it.

Gatlinburg is charming country. And it is far from Knoxville, where you could get a good hospital, or an airliner to go via it an ailing grandchild. In retirement there it would not seem fitting to wear Confederate uniforms celebrating Yankees. There would be more pleasure and more profit in it tramping back into those beautiful mountains and collecting native handicraft that could be shipped off to smart shops in far-away cities.

"I read what you wrote about the wife who was unhappy when her husband retired and came home with a measly $212 a month for them to live on.

"I think that wife is crazy.

"My husband came home at that $212 a month. We owned our home. We sold it, moved to Bradenton, Fla., and bought a retirement house. We had $2,400 left over, and put it in a savings account for emergencies.

"WE HAD EVERYTHING"

"For two years we lived the happiest hours of our lives — fishing, sunning, reading, being with each other. We had everything. A good retirement promises. We didn't hunger, and we didn't strive. We just lived.

"Then my husband took his journey. I was left with half the income we both had, or, about $115 a month. I was 56th, too, with some practical problems.

"I rented our home. I took $2,500 from the emergency savings and bought a trailer. I placed it in a Bradenton trailer park, and with my most treasured possessions moved in.

"Financially, I am fixed. But I would exchange what I have for a public welfare check of $50 a month — if I could have my husband back. After age 65 a husband is the most valuable thing a woman owns, no matter how much income comes with him. This I know. And this is why I think that complaining woman who wrote about is c r a z y."

Money is a nice thing to have around after age 65. A husband is nicer.

Garden Notes

Making Preparations for Spring

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Last week I heard a song sparrow. That, to me, is the first sign of spring. Spring! So many things to do, such as to order gardens to plan, repairs to equipment, fences, trellis. Grapes should be pruned. Fruit trees sprayed and examined to see how they have fared so far this winter.

One chore that should be attended to right now is a thorough examination of the bulbs, corms and tubers you have stored for spring planting. If they are drying out spray them lightly with water and pack, or re-pack in slightly damp peat moss; sawdust, or hard coal ashes. They must be kept cold enough to discourage sprouting for some weeks yet. Plastic bags make good storage containers for these items.

If you find dahlia tubers with decayed or have salt spots cut them off and dust the cut surface with sulpher before repacking. If you neglected to dust your gladiolus corms with D.D.T. powder peel off all dry loose skin and treat them by placing a teaspoon of the powder in a large paper bag, you have a dozen or so corms and close the bag tightly. Give it a good shake and repeat the corms. Treat all glads and other containers before you store them previously. It may be harboring thrips.

You should look over any vegetables you have stored. When vegetables are allowed to sprout they lose a considerable amount of their nutrition. Unless you can control the temperature and humidity of your basement vegetables and fruits should be bought in small quantities.

ATTRACTIONS FOR BIRDS

Soon the birds will be on their way back from the south. If you would encourage the feathered friends to stay, and they are hard working friends, provide some attractions for them. The finest is said to be about 5000 ants, each day, or a like number of insects. Once the baby birds are out of the shell the parents work tirelessly from dawn to dark feeding the family with worms, grubs and insects. This is a wonderful help to the gardener.

Put out welcome signs by setting up a feeding station during the winter. The local birds will share it with the migrants and some of the new comers may stay if they find suitable houses. The robin will not live in a house but often make a nest on a veranda post that has a shelf-like top. Wrens want a small house with a one-inch opening, so they alone may enter. Most birds like unpainted wood houses. The martins live in colonies, so provide a house large enough for all their cousins, even those once removed.

If you set up a bird-bath place it out in the open so the birds can see approaching cats. Keep it filled daily with fresh water as it is used for drinking as well as bathing.

Some birds are insect eaters, others live on seeds, but even the insect eaters like fruit for dessert so plant a few berried shrubs such as mulberry, bayberry, sumac, mountain ash or rowan berry. During a dry winter birds may eat barberry but it is not a popular food.

It will soon be time to pot up tuberous rooted begonias. Buy some peat-pots for them. It will simplify planting and get them off to a good start.

Chou And Nehru To Discuss Border Dispute In April

Red Chinese Leader Will Make Trip to New Delhi

33 Fatalities Across Canada During Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fire took the lives of 12 persons, seven of them children, as Canada's fatality toll mounted to 33 during the weekend. There were 16 traffic deaths.

Three children died in a Winnipeg fire and four were killed with their mother when flames swept a house in the Eastern Ontario town of Carleton Place. Only one person died in a fire in Ontario and three elderly women perished in a Montreal apartment blaze.

The Ontario and Manitoba fires occurred Saturday and the one in downtown Montreal early Sunday. The Montreal victims were Mrs. Bernard Fahey, 77, Mrs. Mary MacMillan, 73, and Mrs. Mary Carlson, 72.

Three of eight children of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Tummon died in their blazing four-room frame home in the Winnipeg suburb of St. James. The children were left homeless were Gordon, 10, Kathy, 12, Robert, 10, Kenneth, 8, and Jane, 4.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local times Friday until midnight Sunday showed 13 died in Ontario. Five were killed in traffic, one was drowned and one died in a fall.

Quebec had eight deaths, four in traffic. A man was fatally injured in a fall down a flight of stairs. Three persons died in fires on British Columbia roads and one was drowned.

Saskatchewan had one traffic death and one accidental shooting. The person was killed in traffic in each of Newfoundland and New Brunswick.

The survey includes deaths connected with all forms of holiday activities.

HOCKEY PLAYERS KILLED

Other Ontario dead:

Alfred Gelinas, 17, and Don Scherfee, 19, both of Walkerton, Saturday in a two-car collision 15 miles south of Hanover. They were members of the Owen Sound Junior C hockey team.

David Antoine, 19, Saturday when he fell 100 feet down a firefighter boom on the Welland Canal.

Gerald Crossman, 10, drowned Saturday when he fell through the ice on a pond near the South Marie home.

Fernand Aubin, 32, of Georgetown Saturday when his car was struck by a train on a level crossing at Hornby, 12 miles south of Georgetown.

Dickie Scott Wilson, 21, of Toronto Saturday when his car was struck by a train at a level crossing near Alma.

Clifford Waterhouse, 69, Friday night when fire swept his Toronto duplex.

James Desrosiers, a New Liskeard pensioner in his 80s, when struck by an CNR train near his home Sunday.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: Partly cloudy conditions with a few snowflurries expected in the Southern Ontario today with continuing sunny cold weather in the north. Little change is indicated for Tuesday.

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Indian Prime Minister Nehru and Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai today agreed to fix April meeting in New Delhi to discuss their border dispute.

Both leaders made clear they regarded the talks as exploratory with the prospect of setting in motion negotiations for settling the frontier feud which has brought bloodshed.

Nehru's announcement that he was agreeable to meeting Chou "sometime in April" drew applause in Parliament.

OPPOSITION STAND

But leaders of the opposition Praja (Peoples) Socialist party and the right-wing Jam Saneb of Nawanagar objected to asking Chou so long as the Communists occupy territory claimed by India.

No definite date has been fixed for the meeting.

Nehru had suggested March but Chou replied that he would be busy with trade affairs then and said bluntly: "I shall come to your country in April."

The Indian leader told Parliament Chou's visit would be the first he early in April as he is flying to London for a Commonwealth prime ministers' conference late in the month.

TRIP ACCEPTED

Socialist leaders noted that Chou's acceptance of the invitation to visit India at this time just before Nehru confers again with Nikita Khrushchev in Calcutta this week, during a stopover by the Soviet premier returning from Indonesia.

Khrushchev has appealed publicly to both New Delhi and Peking to settle their differences peacefully, but the Soviet premier insisted he was not getting involved in the dispute.

Involved are claims and counter claims to 51,000 square miles of mountainous territory on the frontier.

Chou pressed Nehru to agree to a strong position because fruitless talks probably would not worry the Communists. The Chinese are prepared for a long pull for areas they claim being in Indian hands.

But India needs peace on the border to concentrate on economic development.

Predicts Liquor Advertising in Ont. This Year

TORONTO (CP) — Liquor advertising will be legalized in Ontario this year, Dalton J. Camp of Sudbury predicted Saturday.

He told the annual Ontario Management Association that this would be the only way to prevent revision in the province's liquor laws for several years.

Mr. Camp, a former president of the Ontario Hotel Association and owner of several Northern Ontario motels and hotels, said the government will probably be compelled by advertising in two years.

He also said the time has come for installation of coin machines in beer parlors, taverns and hotels. Guests are tired of tipping waiters, delivery of these items, he said.

'Boarding School' for Bulls Bid To Improve Britain's Cattle Herds

LONDON (CP) — Britain has decided to open a "boarding school" for bulls in a bid to improve the country's cattle herds.

Two hundred specimens of the elite of the bull population — said to be the best soon after birth and sent to the school for five years.

There, the milk board said during the weekend, they'll live behind a handsome Georgian style farce farm near Wheeby Lodge in the gently - rolling north countryside. Here they will be set to lowed inside the fence to distract the neighbors.

The project is being handled by the milk marketing board in an effort to help farmers produce better dairy cows through artificial insemination.

While he's still on the milk board, Mr. Hall-Patch said, bull has sired will be reared and mated. When they bear calves, their milk yields will be measured.

Such careful supervision will make it possible for livestock scientists to find out the descendants of these animals. Through genetics and the control that can be exercised, they hope to produce the kind of bull the country needs most.

Second-rate performers cannot expect to survive. From progress records, the scientists will select a few bulls to return to the artificial insemination service. The rest are to be slaughtered for meat.

The scheme will first be confined to British Friesians, the black-and-white breed that supplies half the country's milk requirements. If it succeeds, it will be extended to other breeds.

Each boarder will cost roughly $6 a week to keep in top shape. But scientist feel they have no doubt justifying this relatively high expense.

Eisenhower, Frondizi Pledge To Boost Living Standards

BARILOCHE, Argentina (AP) — The physical grind of the President Eisenhower flies to Chile today after pledging with Argentine President Arturo Frondizi to work for better living standards in the Americas.

The United States and Argentine presidents also agreed in a "declaration of Bariloche" that their governments would continue to work for non-intervention from abroad in the internal affairs of nations and for mutual respect among nations.

The declaration was signed Sunday night as Eisenhower's Argentine visit drew to a close in his private cabin at the foothills of the Andes Mountains.

The declaration was not in general terms and did not deal specifically with Frondizi's call at a press conference earlier for an increase in U.S. financial and technical aid to Latin American countries.

Wind-up the first half of his goodwill mission to South America, Eisenhower appeared to 12,560-mile tour. But White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said the president is "feeling fine."

Eisenhower's weekend stay at Bariloche was largely one of rest, relaxation, and private talks with Frondizi. But after fishing for 2½ hours Sunday for salmon and trout — and catching nothing — the president was in a jovial mood.

Hagerty waved aside the anxious questions of some reporters, who asked: "Have you ever tried wading in a trout stream for fish?"

Argentina was the second stop on the tour which began in Brazil. The president will visit Uruguay after Chile.

Hagerty told reporters that Eisenhower is getting the views of the host president on matters to be discussed at the East-West summit talks beginning in Paris May 16, as well as their ideas on hemispheric problems.

Elliot Lake Women See P.M., 'Things Will Be Fine Now'

OTTAWA (CP)—A delegation of travel-weary women from Elliot Lake came out after a 10-minute meeting with Prime Minister Diefenbaker today with the feeling that things "are going to be fine from now on."

That was the way smiling chairman Shirleen O'Brien gave out the news to 25 members of the Elliot Lake Women's Emergency Committee.

They staged a 400-mile motor cavalcade to the national capital to plead for more jobs in the uranium mining community, hard-hit by drying-up United States markets, before the prime minister and the government.

There were no specific agreements given by the prime minister to proposals made by the delegation, said Miss O'Brien, who led a 10-woman representative group into the prime ministerial office in the Parliament Building. The rest of the delegation waited in the corridor outside.

"But he said we have great hopes for the people and this spirit everything would be solved."

Miss O'Brien, managing director of the semi-weekly Elliot Lake Standard, said she is to check with Mr. Diefenbaker next Monday to see whether he will come to Elliot Lake. This was the first item on the list of requests the delegation made.

"We gave him such a wonderful invitation that I think he might come."

They also discussed a proposal that the government consider changing the site of a nuclear research centre planned for Manitoba to Elliot Lake and help for miners who will have to move away because of the slowdown in uranium production. Those matters were also to be discussed with Labor Minister Starr and Trade Minister Churchill later today.

Mr. Diefenbaker came into the hallway after meeting the 10 spokesmen for the group. Many of the women had cameras and were pressed with reporters and photographers for a shot of the prime minister.

"I am sorry to have kept you waiting all this time," Mr. Diefenbaker told them. "I appreciate very much that you have come."

During the meeting, a small body of women filed back down the Parliament Building hallway to board buses for a pre-luncheon sightseeing tour. The 10 leaders headed for their offices in the Starr and Mr. Churchill.

The women have given ample evidence of their determination since cold and cramped, they piled out of two buses and 10 cars about 11:45 a.m. Sunday night after a 14-hour trip. With only about six hours' sleep, they appeared to have lost none of their morning as they left their hotel to dodge flie and wake the four blocks to Parliament Hill.

Orders were for "every lady to wear her best hat" — they had made an Easter parade sight of the group.

Arriving at Parliament's centre block, they were ushered into the locked doors were opened at 9 a.m. EST. Then they marched up and down the prime minister's office and stood determinedly outside while their representatives were heard.

They broke into applause when their leaders and Mr. Diefenbaker emerged and Miss O'Brien said "We're happy."

This afternoon the delegates were to have tea with Opposition Leader Pearson, whose Algoma East riding takes in Elliot Lake, and Mrs. Pearson.

MENTAL ILLNESS SURVEY URGED IN PRIVATE BILL

Communication Media Attacked

OTTAWA (CP)—A proposal for a national survey of mental illness and another for parliamentary inquiry into ownership of mass media of communication are on the Commons order of business today.

A motion moved by Alan Macnaughton (L—Montreal Mount Royal) proposes a national survey of the extent of mental illness, its causes, problems and methods of treatment. It urges that the federal government cooperate with provincial governments and professional and other interested groups in such a survey.

If Mr. Macnaughton decides to proceed with his motion, it probably will come before the day for debate on it, provided enough speakers participate and debate is not adjourned.

ARGUE SEEKS INQUIRY

Following his motion is one proposed by Hazen Argue, CCF House leader, calling for parliamentary inquiry into ownership of newspapers and radio and television stations.

Mr. Argue sets out four main questions he wants a parliamentary committee to study. They are:

1. The extent to which ownership of mass media, daily and weekly newspapers, radio and television stations "is becoming concentrated both nationally and in specific areas, in the hands of few corporations."

2. "The degree of concentration of control within these corporations and the degree to which such monolithic concentration may affect the free expression of opinion and the emergence of new policies of opinion."

3. "The relationship between the public service responsibilities of mass media and their functions as corporate enterprises."

4. "The desirability of encouraging the creation of a communications council made up of representatives from all sections of the public to advise the public opinion."

WINTER WORMS DEBATE

Tuesday the Commons returns to study of the government's supplementary estimates. The opposition once again resuming study of a $15,000,000 estimate for the winter works program.

This item has occupied four sitting days, an unusually long time for a single item, largely due to unanimous agreement among the parties that debate could range over the whole field of unemployment and not be confined precisely to the winter works program.

Early in the debate Paul Martin (L—Essex East) served notice that the Liberals were in for a battle on the item unless the government agreed to drop everything that it takes current unemployment seriously.

SUSPECT WOUNDED

TORONTO (CP)—A bullet in the leg brought down a 19-year-old suspect fleeing from police at a downtown apartment building Sunday. Fired by constable Robert Rumble, the shot hit Norman Newton Hall as he climbed a fire call of the right leg. Frost, Jo-Anne Frost, 19, of Toronto, and a 14 - year - old boy were charged with conspiracy to rob a city parking garage.

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev said today Russia will sign a separate peace treaty giving East Germany control of West Berlin if the Big Four summit talks in May fail to reach agreement on an over-all German settlement.

Khrushchev spoke at a press conference following his return from Bogor, where he agreed to lend Indonesia $250,000,000 credit in an effort to check this Southeast Asian nation's slow drift Westward.

The Soviet threat to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany had never been abandoned, and in recent weeks has been repeated at intervals. But this was the first time Khrushchev had tied it to the outcome of the May summit conference.

TRYING TO CONVINCE

Khrushchev still Russia is trying to convince the West of the need for a peace treaty with East Germany. If this is not concluded, he said, Russia will sign a separate agreement with East Germany.

If that happens, he said, all post-war agreements affecting Germany "cease to exist and are valid" and West Berlin would come under the authority of Communist East Germany. Russia's West Berlin stands on territory belonging to the East German Democratic Republic."

Khrushchev rejected the idea of a German plebiscite to determine whether the Russian or Western plan for unification of that divided country should be accepted. U.S. State Secretary Christian Herter has been repeatedly considering proposing such a plebiscite.

"We are not going to take part in such a plebiscite and we are against the participation of any other country in such a plebiscite since this would be interfering in the internal affairs of another country," Khrushchev declared.

The Western plan calls for establishment of an all-German government by free, un-supervised elections in both parts of

Two Members Of Hockey Team Killed in Crash

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Two members of Owen Sound's Junior C Greey hockey team were killed and three others injured in a two-car collision on Highway 6 about 12 miles south of here Saturday.

Alfred Waechester, 17, and Donald Scherfer, 19, both of Walkerton, were pronounced dead on arrival with two other men, Albert Boerger, 20, of Walkerton, and Gerald Schaefer, 19, both of Walkerton, were admitted to hospital with lacerations and bruises.

Driver of the other car was Howard Sowerby of Holland Centre. He is in hospital with a poor condition with head injuries.

Provincial police said the cars have played against Guelph, but the game was called off as a result of the accident.

Boycott Token Backed by Unions And Labor Party

LONDON (Reuters) — Britons opposed to South African racialism were fired up today to promote a month-long token boycott of South African products on sale in Britain.

The boycott, backed by trade unions and the British Labor party, was launched officially Sunday in a mass rally harassed by right-wing British racialists.

Eleven persons were arrested and several policemen were injured when rightists and boycotters clashed.

Thousands paid fines ranging from 30s to £5 for obstructing police and assaulting a policeman. Eight others were charged to appear for trial next month on charges of insulting behavior, obstructing or assaulting police.

Trucks carrying rightists cruised about Trafalgar and Parliament Square during the Sunday rally. But 10,000 more of the left-wing dressed by Labor party leader Hugh Gaitskell and other prominent opponents of white supremacy policies in South Africa.

TRUCKS BORE SIGNS

The trucks bore signs saying "Buy South African." Pamphlets urging "beat the boycott" were handed out. Some rally speakers were heckled and one man was dragged away from microphones when he tried to interrupt.

The hecklers were honored as supporters of pre-war British Fascist leader Sir Oswald Mosley, who now runs the extreme right-wing Union movement.

On paper, the boycott and unions have the support of some 13,000,000 people throughout Britain, but it was not known how many of them boycott would be.

Some municipal councils including the London County Council, have declared they back the boycott.

The Conservative party officially does not support the movement. Prime Minister Harold Macmillan made it clear in a Capetown speech Feb. 3 that while he opposed South Africa's racial policies, he was against the idea of a boycott.

IMPERIAL LABOR

British imports from South Africa amount to some $300,000,000 a year. But only about $80,000,000 is accounted for by consumer goods susceptible to a boycott, like fresh and canned fruit and wine.

Eden's Defence of Suez Greeted As Tale of Man Who Destroyed Self

LONDON (CP)—Britons are reliving the drama of Suez but the memory is not as bitterly sharp as softened by expressions of sympathy for Sir Anthony Eden (Churchill).

With the publication Sunday of Sir Anthony's memoirs, Full Circle, British newspapers look back with something less than anger upon events that in 1956 divided Britain and tripped off a crisis in the Commonwealth.

Says columnist Cassandra of the Daily Mirror: "The sharp critics of the Suez intervention:

"This is a sad book because it is the story of a man who was long, forlight, honorable record who has left behind him a record of destruction and in the doing of it tarnished his country's name.

"When you have read his 584 unpolished pages, you have the feeling that Sir Anthony Eden has a charitable verdict upon himself of not guilty will receive no applause in the courts of History."

With the same note of compassion for a man who spent his life as a negotiator for peace, and then stepped down as a man of war, Cassandra said:

"His tragedy lay in the final failure of his policy."

On the rights or wrongs of the controversial Suez action, the reviews were kinder than they did in 1956. The critics are just as critical, if not more critical, of Anglo-French intervention just as Eisenhower was then and remain so to prevent a second Munich and all that follows from appeasement.

But there is agreement, among the critics, that the book is what the memoirs still do not tell the full story of Suez. The pro-Eden Daily Telegraph, for instance, complains of "incompleteness and lack of frankness." The pro-Labor Herald says:

Mrs. W.C. Mikel Dies in Toronto, Ill Short Time

A figure well known in the community, Mrs. Lillian Ewen Mikel, of 141 Sherbrooke Road, Toronto, died at Toronto Western Hospital on Saturday. She was in her 70th year.

Resident of Toronto for the past three years after moving there from Belleville where she spent most of her life, Mrs. Mikel had been ill only for ten days.

Born in this city, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Edward Ewen. Her husband was the late William Charles Mikel, K. C., well known Belleville legal figure.

During her residence in Belleville, Mrs. Mikel was associated with many charitable and welfare organizations.

She was a Past Regent of IL-She was in charge of the Red Cross in this city and was honorary vice president of the Belleville Red Cross Society.

She was also one of the founders of the Girl Guide movement in Belleville and was president of the Women's Christian Association here from 1916 until 1928, when she became honorary life president of the Ontario Provincial Auxiliary of the Association.

She took an active interest in the work of Belleville General Hospital and saw her hospital auxiliary organized in 1918 and active until 1956. She was a member of the hospital board here from 1948 until 1956, was past president of the Ontario Hospital Auxiliary and an honorary life officer of the Ontario Hospital Auxiliary. She was a past president of the Women's Canadian Club of Belleville and was a past regent of the Quinte Chapter of the IODE.

While living in Belleville she was a member of St. Thomas' Anglican Church.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. F. M. (Audrey) Jefferson of Toronto.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home, the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

Jim Walker's Rink Wins Mixed Spiel

The boys and gals had a merry time on Saturday at the Belleville Curling Club when a one-day mixed bonspiel was held. There were 16 rinks in competition with three eight-end games. The curling was started early on Saturday morning and the last draw was finished shortly after seven o'clock, which gave other curlers a chance to have a friendly game in the evening.

It is the intention of the committee to hold special functions on each Saturday until the end of the curling season and next Saturday the Victoria Day Trust Company will be hosts for a cosefay bonspiel. The Company will put up a trophy for annual competition and the winners of the several branches around the Province will be on hand along with the local rinks for the Quinte Club. Three eight-end games will be played and a draw will likely close the affair.

On Saturday Jim and Agnes Walker skipped with Bill and Jean Meagher were victorious in the three games played on a round system with Charles and Doreen Lovett, Harold Agnes Benn and Dave Duffy in the second spot. The two-game high was won by Bill and Jean Hunt with Bob and Pat Emerson, while the one-game high was won by Frank Crewe-Brown and Margaret Riley with Everett and Vera Fairman.

Splendid prizes were distributed at the end of plays and all voted the spiel most enjoyable.

Estate Only Few Thousands

VANCOUVER (CP)—A lawyer says Ralph Danker's "Aunt Fanny" left a few thousands, not millions.

A Montreal report this week said Danker, killed in a fall, was beneficiary of "Aunt Fanny" Metzler who was worth millions.

Lawyer John S. Burton of Vancouver says there is little doubt Danker was referred to in Mrs. Fanny Doro Draper-Bruster who died here in 1954, aged 87. He said the woman's $7,267 will left probated months ago and that he was sole executor. He did not say who the beneficiaries were.

Special Tax Concessions Should Be Given Dyno Miners Meeting at Bancroft Told

BANCROFT, Ont.—People who have investments in bonds in the hard-pressed uranium centres of Ontario should be exempted and be given special tax concessions, Ontario Liberal Leader Donald C. MacDonald told a meeting of residents Sunday.

While all operations were granted "tremendous concessions" in the uranium areas, the federal government has not given any assurance that severance pay will be non-taxable or that unemployment insurance will be paid to unemployed workers, Mr. MacDonald said.

He compared the crisis in the uranium industry to that of the nickel industry following the First World War. To save the industry and the livelihoods of dollars were spent in developing a tentative civilian use for the nickel.

But what has the government done to help the uranium industry? queried Mr. MacDonald today. He charged Premier Frost with avoiding the issue.

EROSION-STOPPER

It is true that the use of uranium is slow to stop rust and corrosion is possible, the requirements would be only a few tons a year for the automobile industry and perhaps a few tons of Canada's production?

He said the Ontario government's present policy encouraged power from uranium at 7,000,000 kilowatts by 1965 and 20,000,000 by 1975.

MacDonald said the real answer to the problem of surplus uranium is the development of "civilian uses" by industry.

Harry Gunn, National Director of the Unitar Steelworkers of America (CLC), said he noted a change since last January, when it was announced that the United States was considering not renewing uranium contracts, no concrete plans had been established by the government to meet the crisis.

ADJOURNED FOR MINERS

Calling the present situation "ridiculous," he told of an advertisement in the Toronto Star appearing in Scottish newspapers inviting miners to come to Canada to work in uranium mines.

"This advertisement is appearing at a time when there are thousands of miners unemployed here, he said.

The Steelworkers represent employees at Elliott mines in this area. The Bancroft area is represented by the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) and the Dyno mine, closing June 30, has an independent miners' association.

It was announced that a delegation from Bancroft will call on Labor Minister Starr and Trade Minister Churchill Thursday to discuss the situation here.

Those Difficult Days

Q. Every month I go through what we three days of functional misery. I have tried everything under the sun to relieve it. Could be done for this periodic pain? Miss H.

A. Most women probably have some periodic discomfort but consider it normal and pay little attention to it. Although dysmenorrhea (difficult or painful menstruation) can be caused by specific disorders, in most cases the cause can be found. If the doctor who examines you fails to pinpoint the cause, don't assume that it is "all in your head" or "all in your head." The pain is there and no one can tell more than the sufferer. The first step in getting lasting relief of these "routine" type of dysmenorrhea is often difficult. It is difficult because it may involve disregarding folklore and many common ideas about a normal and natural function. Although there is a big state of ill health although terms commonly applied to it often imply illness. Some women have the false notion that menstruation is some sort of purgation which rids the body of poisons and that it is an indication of infirmity. This thing we wish you to know. You may be surprised by the results.

We point with pride to the thousands of prescriptions we have filled as evidence of the confidence and readiness to serve your prescription need skilfully, promptly, and economically.

Answers do not necessarily reflect the opinion of all doctors. The diagnosis and treatment of disease is the province of the patient's personal physician. Questions should be sent to Medical Mirror, P.O. Box 97, Terminal "A", Toronto, Ontario will be incorporated in these columns when possible.

Negroes Plan To Press Drive For Equal Service

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (CP) — Negroes planned to press their campaign for equal service at lunch counters in the South today as the Senate prepared to start round-the-clock debate in Washington on pending civil rights legislation which would ensure that Negroes get the vote in all parts of the United States.

The Negro protest movement against segregated eating facilities was in variety and department stores was in its fifth week and tensions appeared to be growing in the troubled South.

The bi-racial Southern Regional Council in Atlanta reported the "sitdown" movement indicated a time of change under terms "that cannot be dictated by white southerners."

Senator Richard Russell (Dem., Ga.) charged that the demonstrations in the South was inspired from outside to stir up race riots that would encourage enactment of civil rights legislation.

Dr. Stephen G. Wright, president of Fisk University, told a chapel meeting at the predominantly Negro school in Nashville, Tenn., that "as president of Fisk I am going to back our students in what they are seeking by these demonstrations."

At Richmond, Va., Oliver W. Hill, chief counsel for the Virginia chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said Negroes are subject to segregated eating places should be willing to go to jail in such numbers that the jails will become havens of liberty.

At Chattanooga, Tenn., the Rev. James M. Lawson, a theology student at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, told a Negro meeting that the demonstrations were not meant to stir up trouble "but to make both Negroes and whites see a good look at ourselves."

At Winston-Salem, N.C., several Negro ministers urged their congregations to co-operate with an NAACP request to boycott stores which have denied them service while seated at white lunch counters.

Family of Eight Found in Shack, Dead for Week

THOMSON, Ill. (AP) — A car died and trudged through heavy snow along the banks of the Mississippi River to reach the secluded house of an employee Sunday and found him and seven other members of his family dead.

The frozen bodies of Leroy C. Hensel, 39, his wife, Dora, 33, and their six children were discovered by Eddie Shuler, for whom Hensel worked as a mechanic. The Hensel children, four daughters and two sons, ranged in age from seven to 17 years.

Dr. L. B. Hussey, Carroll County deputy coroner, said the family apparently died of asphyxiation a week ago in the four-room house the family was building. An oil burner in the house was extinguished and the oil tanks were empty.

Shuler said he decided to drive to the Hensel home out of Hensel was sick as he had not been to work at Shuler's garage in nearby Morrison since Feb. 5.

Shuler said Hensel had told him not to worry if he didn't show up for work because of severe snowstorms. The house is a mile south-west of Ebner, a small railway switching station south of Thomson in northwestern Illinois.

"But I decided to take a look and see if he was sick," Shuler said.

The children were Judy, 17, Billy, 14, Kenny, 12, Susan, 10, Patricia, 8 and Jane, 7.

Optometrist To Wear Dress Worth Million

TORONTO (CP) — A sparkling evening dress that reflects an eye for an eye is the highlight of Optometrical Association of Ontario's 50th anniversary convention opening here today.

The dress is covered with about 10,000 tiny plastic contact lenses and Lloyd's of London has insured it for $1,000,000. More than 400 eye specialists will attend the three-day convention.

The fancy outfit will be worn at the convention by Dr. Victoria Russell of Toronto. The lenses include ones which have been polished and ground but rejected because of minor flaws.

The dress stands out against millions of dollars worth of eyeglass collectors' items bridging ancient, Chinese curiosities and modern times. The items are exhibited alongside the modern phoropter, a machine capable of responding 2,800,000 combinations of lenses and prisms.

TCA Pilot Guides Lost U.S. Plane To Safe Landing

TORONTO (CP)—A Trans-Canada Air Lines pilot reported Sunday how he guided a lost United States Army plane to safety over Lake Huron by enabling it to land with less than five gallons of gasoline left in its tanks.

Capt. Henry W. Lange, flying a TCA Viscount to Fort William was asked by the U.S. Army field at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., to look out for the lost plane, a Canadian pilot reported.

The Beaver was on a flight from Pagwa in Northern Ontario to the Soo with four persons aboard. The Soo base lost radio contact with the Beaver and declarm to the Viscount.

The Viscount located the Beaver over the lake and guided it by radio to a landing field at Gore Bay on Manitoulin Island.

The Beaver was heading in the wrong direction from the airport towards Lake Huron," Capt. Lange said. "We got him turned around and he got tuned in to Gore Bay."

The names of those aboard the Beaver were not known.

Chinese Actress Just Friend of Armstrong-Jones

LONDON (AP)—The girl who has been cast in the life of Antony Armstrong-Jones before Princess Margaret captured his heart was a sultry Chinese actress named Jackie Chan.

They were often seen together. And one London newspaper, the Daily Sketch, suggested Saturday Armstrong-Jones once even thought he would marry the 24-year-old actress-model.

For 18 months, said The Sketch on Saturday, Jackie was busy denying rumors they would wed.

Friends of Armstrong-Jones said the couple were just good friends. Jackie was just his favorite photographer's model, they said.

As usual, Saturday night, Jackie went on the stage to play Lily, a street girl, in The World of Susie Wong.

After the show she refused to talk with reporters but sent out this message:

"Tell everyone I am delighted. I don't want to talk about the engagement and I have nothing more to say."

FRENCH ARMY LOSSES

PARIS (AP) — The French army has lost 13,000 men killed during the five years of the Algerian rebellion, the government announced Saturday.

MR. D. McMULLEN, vice-president of Canada Creosoting Company, is shown presenting Mr. Jess Fownes, manager of the Trenton plant, with a plaque marking 1959 as an accident-free year in the Trenton plant, at a banquet on Saturday night.

Ladies Guests of Firemen At Annual Dinner and Dance

TRENTON — Members of the Trenton Fire Department were hosts to their ladies and a number of other guests at a dinner held in the fire hall on Saturday night. This is an annual affair, eagerly anticipated by all concerned. Decorations, table settings, menu details and entertainment are all arranged by the men themselves. Fire Chief Norrie Gothard had supplied the floral arrangements of yellow daffodils and pink snapdragons this year.

Fire Chief Vance of Belleville, Chief Leonard Carter of Belleville, Inspector Al Williams from the Ontario Fire Marshall's Office in Belleville, and Mrs. Williams, Mayor James MacDonald and Mrs. Macdonald, Councillor Howard Cole and Mrs. Axit, Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Larry, Miss Marjorie Gothard and Fire Chief and Mrs. Cecil Ellis of Trenton. Also among the honored guests were Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Baker of Consecon. Mr. Baker is formerly assistant fire chief with the Trenton department.

Fire Chief Ellis introduced the head table guests, members of the fire department and the other distinguished guests.

Mayor MacDonald spoke briefly, extolling the work of the department with special emphasis on the intensive fire prevention program sponsored by the fire chief and his staff last year. He also praised the work of the Ladies Auxiliary this year when toys are repaired and given to the Salvation Army for distribution to needy children. The mayor urged the men to sponsor a youth program.

Councillor Axit brought greetings to the men from Councillors C. V. Graham, chairman of protection, to persons and property. Councillor Graham is holidaying in Florida.

Mr. O. W. Larry spoke of the high morale in the department. Mr. Larry paid tribute to Mr. Jesse Baker who had served the fire department for many years.

Mr. Williams also spoke of the efficient way the Trenton department and Miss Gothard said that she was very pleased of the men in the department.

CHIEF VANCE SPEAKS

Chief Vance of Belleville evening was Fire Chief Gerald Vance of Belleville. He gave a short history of the Belleville department from the year 1915, when the city of 10,000 had a volunteer department of a few men, to the present-day staff of 40 paid firefighters under the chief. He said that the first permanent paid fireman had been formed in 1916, when there were 10 paid men, including the chief. Each man worked 24 hours a day, two days a week. He said that when he joined the fire department had had one horse-drawn hose wagon. Fire Chief Vance was made assistant fire chief in 1920 and, upon the retirement of Chief Linton in 1940, had become chief.

Chief Vance said the fire fighting methods employed today are much more efficient than in former years. He mentioned the fire fighting school at Gravenhurst where men are taught all the latest methods.

The benefits derived from the Mutual Aid Association and the life-saving course given to the firemen were also metalioned by Chief Vance.

The guests were entertained by the inimitable Zaniacs, and Miss Dean Smith demonstrated her ability as a tap dancer and favored those present to the intricacies of a Hawaiian dance routine.

Following the entertainment, square dancing was enjoyed, with Frank Coleman, Ben Turnbull and Clayton Webb supplying the music.

Accident-Free Year Marked By Canada Creosoting Plant

TRENTON — An industrial safety dinner, sponsored by the Canada Creosoting Company, Trenton plant, was held in the Trenton Legion Hall last Friday night. The dinner was a special event, signalizing the fact that the men at the Trenton plant had not had one accident injury involving lost time during 1959. There are around 90 employees at Trenton.

Head table guests were Mr. D. McMullen, vice-president and general manager of the eastern area for Canada Creosoting, Mr. Robert Cosgrove, assistant general manager of Dominion Tar and Chemical Company, Mr. Cosgrove, Mr. Tom Oosterhoff, production manager for the eastern area, Canada Creosoting, Mr. Jess Fownes, manager of the Trenton plant, Mrs. Fownes, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Blight, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Acton, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Mantle, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Rogers.

The dinner was prepared and served by the ladies' auxiliary of the Trenton Legion, with Mrs. Fraser Fairman as convenor.

Dinner music was provided by Frank Coleman, violin, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Hilda Leatherland.

Following the dinner, Mr. Cosgrove congratulated the Trenton plant on the accident-free year. He remarked that safety pays and also how the accident-free year in the Trenton plant.

Mr. McMullen spoke briefly to those present. He said that safety in a plant could be achieved by the management paying greater to bear on the employees, but that the better way was to foster the concepts of safety in each employee and instill in him the determination to prohibit any unsafe act on those of his fellow-workers. He said that each worker had the God-given right to think as he chose, and his approach to the question of safety could either be negative or positive, and he felt that the management of the Canada Creosoting Company had done all in its power to reach a positive attitude which would result in its employees adopting the positive approach.

PRESENTS PLAQUE

Mr. McMullen presented Mr. Fownes with a plaque from the Canadian Creosoting Company, at national level. Another plaque from the National Safety Council of America, Chicago headquarters, will be presented to the Trenton plant at a later date.

MOOSE FACTORY, Ont. (CP) — Major L. G. d'Artois, hero of the French Underground during the Second World War, has captained the first annual Winter Carnival at Moose Factory.

The dark intense officer of the Royal 22nd Regiment who heads Canada's Arctic Establishment flew in by train Friday night just before the carnival, sponsored by the boys of 632 Squadron of the Royal Canadian Air Cadets, was due to begin with a squadron parade.

The RCAF inspecting party was unable to be present Sunday but later due to the weather and Master of Ceremonies Lockie took service as inspecting officer.

The major carrying an ice axe in the a swagger stick took the inspection in the community hall. His gold peaked cap with red staff ban, mukluks, parka, parachroop wings and three rows of ribbons above his left breast pocket are among the blue clad members of the air force station.

Would he crown the carnival queen?

An hour later he was holding a papier mache crown over the head of a pretty Cree girl on the steps of the Moose Factory ice palace, built out of blocks of snow.

"Let everybody know," his French-boned voice called above the racket of the night that had broken out in the cry Vemina Hardisty is queen of the Moose Factory Winter Carnival."

Freight Train Leaves Rails

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — Twenty-nine cars of a CPR freight were derailed early today at nearby Pointe du Lac, some 75 miles east of Montreal.

No one was injured, but most of the cars were demolished as they reared off the tracks on a curve on the main line between Montreal and Quebec City.

Three diesel engines were hauling the 81-car train when the first 29 cars spilled off, ripping up the rails under them. The cars carried agricultural machinery, automobiles and animals.

Two of the engines also left the tracks.

The wreck occurred at about 2 a.m., and CPR officials estimated it will take at least a day to put the line back in operation.

CPR said passenger services to Quebec will continue, but trains are expected to run 2½ to three hours later.

Shrove Tuesday Tomorrow

If you were wondering as to when Shrove Tuesday, more commonly known as Pancake Tuesday, occurs it is tomorrow. There is, however, a wealth of information and calculations behind this simple statement.

To start off with Shrove Tuesday was a day celebrated by the English people of the 1400's as an evening set aside for merrymaking and feasting with pancakes and fritters as the main delicacy. The observance of this celebration was not, however, confined to the English and its continuance is still found in the western world today. Perhaps the best known example of these celebrations to North Americans is the famous Mardi Gras held in New Orleans with the early French settlers being responsible for its initial observance.

Shrove Tuesday is but one of three days known as Shrovetide, which was set aside by ancient people as a time in which to confess their sins and to be shriven (obtain absolution) in preparation for the period of Lent immediately precedes Ash Wednesday, the first day of Lent, on which, by a very old church custom, the palm branches distributed to the parishioners on the past Palm Sunday are burned (today, actually, they are roasted) and their local priest makes the sign of the Cross upon their foreheads as a symbol of penitence.

Shrove, incidentally is an old English word for confess.

Shrovetide consists of the three days, occurring between the evening of the Saturday before Quinquagesima Sunday and the morning of Ash Wednesday. Quinquagesima Sunday marks the seventh week before Easter Day which brings us around to the manner in which Shrove Tuesday is determined.

The time is all taken from the Sunday on which Easter Day occurs. Easter Day is always the first Sunday following the full moon which happens upon or after the day on which the sun appears definitely above the earth's equator, on its northward journey or, in other words, on the spring equinox, usually considered to be March 21st.

There is an overiding provision here that if the full moon falls on a Sunday, then Easter Day is the following Sunday.

Now Ash Wednesday is 40 days prior to Easter Day excluding Sundays. Sundays are not allowed in this count because they are considered to be feast days and therefore are not allowed to be counted in the 40 days allotted to Lent. This period, incidentally, is symbolic of the 40 days which Christ spent in the wilderness.

Since Shrove Tuesday immediately precedes Ash Wednesday it is but a simple matter to determine exactly which Tuesday it is and we trust that those husban is who are served with shrivelled pancakes tomorrow will duly pardon their wives with the spirit which the occasion warrants.

Why?

John Bidner, 19-year-old Waterloo resident, lost a bet the other day. He had wagered that he could walk three miles stripped to the waist. A policeman stopped him.

Why?

There was a time when a man stripped to the waist, even on a beach, would have been arrested for indecent exposure. But that time has passed. Any evening in a drive through any suburb of any Ontario town, one may see dozens of men clad in nothing but shoes and shorts busily mowing their front lawns or chatting with neighbors. Workmen downtown often labor on the streets stripped to the waist. Why should a policeman stop Bidner? If he wanted to freeze his hide, that was his own business. The police have too many other problems these days without worrying themselves about harmless eccentricity.

Cause of Death?

Surgeons in Poznan are glad they used delicate care in conducting the autopsy on the late Bongo, a 200-hippopotamus. Bongo turned out to have a live hand grenade in its stomach, one hundred coins, a postman's bag and other articles. (Morgenpost, Berlin).

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY
DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS
BEST IN THE BUSINESS
Is there any, particular thing you can do? "Oh," you reply, "I can do most anything, I'm not boasting, but I'm handy at most everything I set my hand to." Admirable and suitable, indeed, talent, management — most everything.
Run along, little man; you're not worth your salt in a world where astronaut pioneers are really trying to get worth-while projects done. You'll be carrying bricks for someone else to lay, stone for someone else to build with until you get yourself in hand and make yourself adequate, or perhaps even indispensable, in some particular field. Take this advice to heart especially if you are young.
Make a place for yourself that no one else can fill. Learn a technique which will not be easily sought after in the attaining of certain results.
Years ago, when anyone mentioned the word "efficiency" I never thought of Edison. When automobiles were mentioned everyone thought of Henry Ford. But you don't have to be a leader of industry to be a person whose skill and usefulness will be sought after and commented upon with appreciation. What you learn or what you does not have to be something big; it just needs to be something useful done in a big way.
Learn that one thing well and to become the best in the business. Along that route lies happiness.

Portable Pension Study

Vancouver Sun

Close to two million people in contributory pension plans in Canada will be interested in seeing how far Ontario gets in its inquiry into methods of making pensions portable, or transferable from one job to another.

One-third of Canadian workers are now covered by pension plans. And there has been growing discussion of the theoretical benefits to all — workers and industry — if all pensions were portable.

One claim is that if workers carried their pension rights from job to job, there'd be an end to discrimination against older workers.

Another is that workers would be more mobile, able to accept job changes to advance their industry. And that commerce would benefit because firms wouldn't have to be concerned about fitting skilled over-40 workers into their pension plans. They want the cash. Even when they lose their rights to go with them — can be "portable."

The employee psychology isn't hard to understand. As one pension consultant told The Sun: "What chap of 35 is going to stay at the job 5-10 or 25 years, mean to a worker? He doesn't know what it will purchase, but he knows what his $2,000 interest will buy right now."

The inquiry of money's purchasing power particularly puzzles us, when workers have seen it drop 35 per cent in 14 years-works against thrift. So in practice, pensions are not that interfering employees set on the basis that they'd be the head is better."

A second factor overlooked by the opponents of portable pensions is that few unions put the right very high in their bargaining aims. Certainly not if the loss transfer involves a switch in union affiliation.

The most interesting aspect of Ontario's inquiry, however, is this: what could the province do about it if it did decide portable pensions are desirable

Pension plans aren't compulsory. We suppose it could be done unless it has been written into a labor agreement. So how could the province force transfers of schemes that are voluntary and private?

From here it appears the only practical answer is: First might reach is that if portable pensions are desirable, the only effective way is to introduce one or another socialization of all pensions.

That, too, would take care of the purchasing power problem, since money is the constant factor. But it wouldn't do much good unless the scheme were then taken over by the federal government.

The inquiry should be interesting. But, unless pension experts know less about their business than they appear, the conclusion the inquiry is likely to end with voluminous report and nothing more.

Scrap Last Battleship

Montreal Gazette

Occasionally some striking chapter in the history of mankind draws to a close that requires special, even nostalgic recognition. It is impossible to deny such a tribute to the last British battleship, H. M. S. Vanguard, which is to be scrapped within the next 12 months.

The first of the modern, heavily armored and powerful battleships made its appearance in the year 1906. At that time it was an innovation so revolutionary that almost at a stroke it rendered all previous capital ships virtually obsolete. The name of the first such battleship was HMS. Dreadnought, a name that made history.

Before long all the great powers and especially British and Germany, were building dreadnoughts and expensive fleets of ships based on the Dreadnought prototype and on its various improvements. After the First World War broke out both Britain and Germany had scores of battleships grouped in units, which boasted such proud names as "The Grand Fleet" and "the High Seas Fleet."

Both fleets were engaged in one large battle, that of Jutland, at the end of May, 1916.

After the Second World War, most of the battleships that remained in existence began to disappear from sight. The German and Japanese navies had vanished from the seas, and American fleets put some of their battleships in mothballs, or used a few for training, and scrapped others.

But the climax is to come this year. Now when H. M. S. Vanguard is to be scrapped, its death symbolizes inevitably the passing of one-or the greatest era in the history of the sea. The nation that brought the first battleship, the Dreadnought, into being.

Refreshingly Revealing

We have grown so accustomed to the presentation of fantastic totals in dollars to measure the consumption of liquor in one year, or the gambling done on race tracks, it is truly refreshing to read that the people of the United States consumed $1,000,000,000 a year on apple pies.

Afrikaners Give Warning

By Anthony Sampson in the London Observer

Mr. Macmillan's astonishing speech Feb. 3 has changed in retrospect the whole strategy of his African tour.

It is now apparent that the Cape Town speech — first stretched in London two months ago was intended to be the climax of the tour. All through Ghana, Nigeria and Rhodesia the speech has been revised or added to.

It is already being insisted that the Cape Town speech contained no change in British policy, and no doubt every statement has at some time been made before. But the important new feature of the speech — apart from the fact that it was made in Cape Town — was that it was free from ambiguities: in particular it contained no suggestion that the white people in Africa retain will be on the side of South Africa.

During such a swift journey, from the Gold Coast to Salisbury and Cape Town what he wanted to say — with little commitment — to Africa must see themselves in perspective, as awkward liabilities in the changing background in Africa.

His Cape Town speech had no hint and no possible interpretation that Britain would be prepared to defend black allies for white under any circumstances. Such assurances had been taken in South Africa.

The Cape Times said: "Our isolation is largely fatal." Die Burger, the leading government paper, said: "South Africa has been given formal notice of a state of emergency by the mother of the Empire."

No other speech has been greeted so deeply in South Africa since the Nationalist Party came to power in 1948 ago. What, in practical terms, will be its repercussions?

It will be some time before the full response of the South African government becomes clear; but already the first some effects are certain.

In the first place, it is now impossible for the Commonwealth Dr. Verwoerd that Britain would be prepared to defend South Africa at the United Nations. This decision, that apartheid is no longer the business of the Commonwealth, is clearly in his mind when he said in his speech: "Mind your own business, of course, but mind how it affects my business."

Secondly, having once made her views known within South Africa, Britain cannot easily go back. There will be no question of apology, of making amends, or explaining away this ambiguous statement.

Now that the Afrikaners may be left to their own devices there will be in a situation of profound and genuine difficulty, it is important to see exactly what is to offer false assurances of support.

But the most important result of the speech is already being worked out to be its effect on the concept of the Commonwealth. Until now it has seemed as if the Commonwealth connection had restrained, rather than encouraged, Britain's frank criticism of South Africa. But Dr. Verwoerd has had just the president of the African National Congress, Chief Albert Lutuli, would have been told that Africans would never allow Africa not to be in the Commonwealth, so that Britain could be more outspoken.

But now that Britain has withdrawn her full support she has made a thorough criticism which has put a new and more effective for being invited and broadcast throughout South Africa, the Commonwealth's discussion has become more, not less, real.

It is by no means certain that, with his hardening temper of his government, Dr. Verwoerd will wish to remain in this club, where members have begun to speak to one another without reserve. There is already doubt whether he will join his Commonwealth colleagues in London in May.

But the practical reasons for South Africa wanting to remain a member are still good ones.

All the other countries of members of several other clubs usually more important ones for them — the NATO club, the SEATO club, the uncommitted club. But South Africa belongs to only one — the Commonwealth; and if she left that, she would find herself in the state of total isolation which is becoming a growing nightmare for thinking South Africans.

Macmillan's visit," said one Afrikaner intellectual today, his speech, "is our last chance of keeping contact with Europe. We know that Britain is our only real friend."

That friendship may be more useful now that its limits have been clearly defined than the last link with Europe will not be readily thrown away.

Strictly Personal

It's Easier To Command Than to Coax

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Speaking of learning to hear our own voices, as I was a few years ago, it occurs to me I know very well-suggested that I colour a wall with a piece crayon parents to listen to themselves as they talk to children.

"Have you ever eavesdropped on a mother and her child, when she didn't know anyone was near?" she asked. "If someone could set a tape-recorder under her kitchen table, she would be appalled at the playback."

We all do it, and we rarely realize we are doing it. "Communication" is one of the most largely a series of barks, shrieks, injunctions, imprecations, warnings, threats, pleas and demands.

And I am speaking here about the "good" parents — you and I — not about the completely incompetent and impatient ones. What would the world seem like to a small child if he were wholly on the testimony of his parents?

We forget how the simple fact of size can overwhelm a child at how everything and everyone towers above him. Likewise, we forget that the child, in the early years of his life, he hears little but "No," "Don't," "Stop," "I Can't," "You Musn't, "Watch Out, and a bewildering array of similar negatives.

Of course, some of this is done for his safety — but a lot of it is done for our parental convenience. It is easier to bellow across a room than walk over and speak to the child quietly; much simpler to prohibit than to explain; much less trouble to command than to coax.

I am not suggesting that we should always assume the sweet voice of reason; this simply cannot be followed at all times, especially at the end of a ragged day. But Reading a child soon becomes a conditioned reflex in the child's mind, and a very substitute for understanding and direction; and then, ultimately, the child learns to hear and act on. There is a law of diminishing returns in saying "No," and we finally has to say it louder and more often to achieve the same results.

This is all part of the lack of communication which I mentioned in my previous essay; our inability (or unwillingness) to listen to our own voices, and to hear how they sound to others. It is not a question of technique, but of sensitivity — a sensitivity to the quality of our tones as we speak to our children.

Here is a good, simple test to discover whether we kill join his Commonwealth colleagues in London in May.

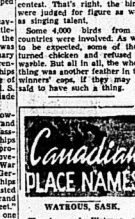
Olympics For Canaries

St. Thomas Times - Journal

Most of the world may not give a peep but the world championship canary contest was held in Darmstadt, Germany, the other day. White there was plenty of whistles — mostly from the contestants — was a refreshing change from the usual run of beauty and talent contests. Canaries, not humans were judged for figure as well as singing talent.

Some 4,000 birds from 21 countries were involved. As was to be expected, some of them turned chicken and refused to warble. But all in all, the whole thing was another feather in the winners' caps, if they may be said to have such a thing.



The town of Watrous was named by Canadian Pacific Development Co. to fit in with their system of naming towns after Scottish Border Abbots west, except divisional points, all which were named for officials of the company. Watrous, as a division point, was named for an official of the Company and it is believed to have been Mr. Watrous.
Originally, the settlement was called Hafstad, because it was populated by people from Mandal, Norway.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

GROWING GIRL TROUBLED BY MILK ALLERGY

"Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter, 18, had skin tests to find the cause of her hands breaking out. She was found to be allergic to 14 different things, one of which was milk. I was told to keep her off milk and all things made with milk. Do you think this is necessary? She is a growing girl and I feel she needs milk in her diet. — Mrs. S. H."

There are three possibilities in controlling a food reaction. First: avoid the food that causes the allergy. Second: make it desensitize the patient, so the food will not touch off the allergic attack, or will not touch it at all. If the food is taken in moderate amounts. Third: use medication to minimize the effect of the offending food.

Please keep these three points in mind.

For the girl who is allergic to milk, the first two methods are the most logical.

Milk is an important part of the diet of a growing girl. It contains protein, calcium and Vitamin A, and a lot of energy is needed.

There's one thing about milk, however, which often is helpful in a case like this. Its allergic properties are changed by heat. Thus heating it to the boiling point for 30 minutes. Sometimes this solves the problem, sometimes not. For this reason, sometimes canned condensed milk can be used. Powdered milk, reconstituted with water, may also avoid the trouble.

If none of these helps, then it may, indeed, be essential to remove milk from the diet. Then, of course, you may find that reinfinely small quantities may be tolerated by the system and not bring on the allergy. Sometimes this can be done by milk used in baked goods, etc. But it is not easy to do this altogether. It is well to keep in mind that symptoms caused by allergy tend to be a matter of dosage. If a large dose causes trouble, sometimes a small one handling.

causes no reaction at all.

To return to the possibility that the young lady might have to avoid all or nearly all milk, that, of course, must be taken to provide the same food values that milk contains, but to get them from other sources.

Meat and eggs will be the chief items. Milk-like solution can be taken in tablet form that will get some nutrients in other foods, but probably not enough) Vitamins A and D likewise can be taken separately in capsule form.

Perhaps the young lady can be desensitized by giving her small amounts of diluted milk over a period of time. The doctor can give details on this.

Tomorrow I will discuss an adult case of allergy.

Dear Doctor: I have a wen, as big as a chestnut, on the back of my head. Is it better to have it taken or should it be removed? — F. S.

A wen is a cyst, and if it does not interfere with combing your hair, or if it is not likely to be unsightly, it can be left alone. Sometimes, after a time or experiment, wens can become infected, and if this occurs you describe might well be removed (if's not a major operation) to prevent the spreading of infection developing. It's not something to be worried about very about unduly.

For S. T. A.: You are absolutely right. A burn should be treated as carefully as a cut or scratch. Prompt cleaning of infection is very much present, and a light dressing to protect the small burned area from germs or other harmful dirt is also a good precaution.

For cramps and foot pains? Both can be stopped! To learn how, write to me in care of The Ontario Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., requesting my booklet "How To Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains," and enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5c in coin to cover handling.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

COURTESY

Courtesy is one of our commonest words, yet how important it is when put to daily practice!

I recall the example of a great department store in St. Louis which reserves an entire day to the cultivation of courtesy. They call it Courtesy Day, and at this time a flower is worn by every employee. A carnation, I believe, is their choice, but now they can have a brand new flower that has recently been made the flower of the country — a lovely, good selection, and all over the United States the beautiful carnation blossom is in season.

A Rose should prove to be a fine agent to all who act in the spirit and from now on we can expect rose gardens getting a warmer welcome than ever known before, beautiful as all Rose gardens are. The Rose deserves the great honor it receives, and can happily with it a long life, and may it remind us of the rare virtue — Courtesy — which has been in the background for years.

Courtesy is a universal gift to us all. We may be proud when we give it the go-ahead signal! People who practice Courtesy, to young or old, are amply repaid in that great reward of a smile on the face of the kindly creature. Be Courteous — always!

THE PACKSAK

By GREGORY CLARK

Humor is a durable thing. Its quality changes with the years very, very slowly. But comedy is fragile. Funny, by the years, as fast as women's fashions. The place to see the truth of this is in the silent movies. Some of the late-late shows which re-run from time to time are a revelation on you. For you are going to laugh, as you would, ten, twenty years ago.

The reason for Chaplin films, and those of W. C. Fields, or the short sketches of Robert Benchley, is that they are timeless. And as they were long ago is that they are today. Real humor is a tradition that never grows old.

And the voices, the style of utterance of the comic characters, everything about the presentation of the film is unexpected, pathetic. Yet in their time these pictures were high art comedy and they irritate you, as you switch off the ghosts from your past, is that they are so fleshless on you. For you are looking at a film made a second, ten, twenty years ago.

The reason why Chaplin films, those of W. C. Fields, or the short sketches of Robert Benchley are timeless. And as they were long ago is that they are today. Real humor is a tradition that never grows old.

Vegetarian Makes Point

St. Thomas Times-Journal

When Dr. Barbara Moore made her 19th walking tour of lands of England to London, many people — even people who perhaps — regarded her as a crank because she lived on a diet of raw vegetables, fruit juices and honey. She vowed she would beat the record in walking from John o' Groats in the extreme north of Scotland to Land's End at the Southwest corner of England, a distance of 900 miles. She did it in 19 days, do it on a vegetarian diet. She is 56 years old.

Dr. Moore has just done it, covering the distance in 19 days, less than the 23 days a 200-mile walk across the United States.

Athletic feats by vegetarians are seldom heard about, probably because all athletes regard a meat diet as essential. Dr. Moore's achievement was done to prove that vegetarian foods are best for the human body and furnish the greatest stamina. The result of her walk

Germany. The Soviet Union proposes unification negotiations between the West and East German governments.

"A plebiscite in this or that state is the sole concern of the countries involved," Khrushchev said. "We are not neighbors of Germany. If they want to, the two German governments can come to agreement on this."

The Soviet leader said he would "exert all efforts to bring the (summit) conference to a successful conclusion."

"I do believe in the good intentions of President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Macmillan and President Charles de Gaulle," he declared.

Khrushchev and Indonesian President Sukarno signed economic and cultural agreements Sunday which will give these agricultural islands a big boost toward industrialization.

In turn, Sukarno promised in a joint communique to continue his "policy of non-alignment" in existing military alliances." The only alliance in the area is the anti-Western Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO), which Indonesia, despite its growing friendliness toward the West, has shown no inclination to join.

The economic pact granted Indonesia a seven-year credit at 2½-per-cent interest to be paid back over 12 years in British pounds or commodities. The loan will enable Indonesia to build a steel plant and develop her agricultural, textile, chemical and non-ferrous metal industries. It also provides for construction of one or two nuclear reactors under a 1956 Soviet aid offer.

Khrushchev also announced Russia will build a 200-bed hospital and clinic as a gift.

By extending this help, Khrushchev hopes to keep Indonesia out of the Western camp. But Foreign Minister Subandrio said Indonesia still needs $500,000,000 to set up a program of industrialization.

TO VISIT RUSSIA

The communique disclosed Khrushchev had invited Sukarno to visit the Soviet Union and that the Indonesian president had accepted.

Loyalists Will Hear Address At Napanee

"When the thirteen colonies of North America cast off their allegiance to the British Crown in 1776, and erected themselves into the Republic of the United States it was not without much opposition from many gallant and loyal subjects of King George. Men who loved the British flag, and cherished the name of Briton as an honorable birthright, had no sympathy with their fellow countrymen in their attempt to dismember the Empire, of which they formed so important a part. For this reason they were called United Empire Loyalists, a term synonymous with gallant daring, patient endurance of suffering and often, unfortunately, with unrewarded loyalty to King and country. Driven from their homes by the Whig or rebel party these faithful men, with their families, found refuge in the colonies which had been recently taken from the French. They were among the earliest settlers of new Brunswick and Upper Canada, and were found also in considerable numbers swelling the populations of Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, and Lower Canada. The perilous adventures and noble daring of these United Empire Loyalists inspired many of our early historians who have written worthwhile books".

(The foregoing is taken verbatim from the Fourth Reader published under direction of The Reverend Egerton Ryerson LL.D., Chief Superintendent of Education for Ontario, in the year 1867.)

On Friday evening March 4th Napanee, members, and friends, of the United Empire Loyalists of the Bay of Quinte Branch of this honorable organization will have the pleasure of hearing an address on the subject of the "British Military Operations in the American Revolutionary War" by Major Fred B. Branscombe, a Commander of a Squadron of the Queen's York Rangers (1st American Regiment). Major Branscombe is well qualified to handle this topic. Born in Moncton, New Brunswick, later coming to Toronto, where he received his schooling, graduated with honors in History from the Ontario College of Education, University of Toronto. Enlisting in the infantry corps of the Canadian Army, he earned a commission and became a staff officer to the Canadian General Chief of Staff. At present he is engaged as audio and visual consultant and Director of teaching aides for the Weston Board of Education in West Toronto.

Judo Club Fights Well In Tournament

The Belleville Judo Club fought its way to the semi-finals before bowing out of the Eastern Canada Judo Tournament in Niagara Falls on Saturday.

Twenty teams from Ontario and New York State competed for top honors. Belleville's entry lost to the Hatashita Club of Toronto in the semi-finals while the Niagara Falls team won the tourney by defeating Toronto in the finals.

Belleville's five-man team was composed of team captain Gord Oliver (Brown Belt) of the O.P.P., vice-captain Len Solver (Brown Belt), Ronald Post (Green Belt), Fred Woster (Green Belt) and Ted McDonnell (Orange Belt).

Oliver was outstanding in all his matches each of which went into extensions, while his final match against Paul Schelk of Toronto was one of the better exhibitions.

In the separate Black Belt competion Belleville's Don Dalrymple fought Hank Jensen of Toronto's Hatashita Club. The match had two extensions before Jensen was given a decision and he later went on to capture the black belt championship.

Jim Driscoll, chief instructor of the Belleville Judo Club, was a judge in the black belt competion, which was referred by Toronto's Frank Hatashita.

Coffee Hour Enjoyed After Fashion Show

Following Contact Club's Springtime Fashions" held Wednesday evening at Christ Church Parish Hall, a most delightful "Coffee Hour" was enjoyed by all who attended. As the guests left what might be termed as "Central Park", they passed a most attractive variety table and a tempting table laden, on the way to the coffee room. The variety table, conjured up by Jean Weatherstone, was a medley of pretty and useful articles. Here one could purchase aprons, gloves, doll clothes, needlepoint pictures, toys, crochet and knitted work, children's clothes, pincushions, and various articles of handcrafts made by the Contact Club members. Happy Easter bunnies decorated the bake table, conveyed by Greta Moulit. The usual array of home baking included cookies, do-nuts, pies, cakes, delicious tarts, tea cakes, buns and date loaves, etc.

POPULAR RENDEZVOUS

The coffee room in the upstairs hall became a popular rendezvous where guests could cheerfully discuss the pros and cons of the fashion show, and enjoy a cup of coffee served with delicious Dutch cookies. The long coffee table with its individual coffee carafes was centred with a garden scene having miniature fashion models accompanied by their escorts, and backed by the rose trellis and garden bench interspersed with spring flowers. Coffee and cookies were served by Contact Club members.

Appreciative thanks go to all who helped make the evening a tremendous success. General conveners were: Joan Ford and Trudy Sandt. Lighting and sound was capably managed by Mr. Mowle. Tickets and advertising were looked after by Mary Fletcher, Margaret MacInnes and June Friar. Helen McCormick and Diana Settle did a wonderful job behind scenes as old ill Contact Club members. Clothes were shown by the Georgia Salon, and Mariannes hats and furs by Woodleys, and make-up by Dolan's Drug Store.

Appreciation also goes to Templer's for flowers, Leslie's Shoe Store, Bobby's Dairy, Tots and Teen's, Ford Decorating Service, E. Sanders and Mr. D. Rylama for their help in making the evening a happy and successful one.

C.N.R.A. Aux. Celebrates 11th Anniversary

In February, 1949, a Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian National Railways Recreation Association was formed. This February since a birthday party has been held in every month of this event.

This year the celebration took place at the Association's club, "Canaan," in the form of a potluck supper.

The Auxiliary members and their husbands, C.N.R. officials and wives, joined together and enjoyed a social evening.

The tables were arranged in horseshoe formation, and with their floral centres and lighted candles made a perfect setting for the huge birthday cake.

PROFESSOR BIRDWHISTLE

During the evening, Mr. Don Flintfall, as master of ceremonies, introduced "Professor Birdwhistle" and his troupe. The professor entertained in a lively and comical address on "Little Boo Peep," assisted by his troupe, dressed in ridiculous costumes, with background music and remarks.

Two vocal selections of Pearl Bailey's were done in clever style by Jack Fitzgerald dressed as a most attractive young gaiglet, he later portrayed the "professor," and the following vocal selections were: Sweet, Mr. and Mrs. Will Storms, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Martin, Mr. and Mrs. John Bonsky, Mrs. Ted Brunton, Jack Fitzgerald, Mrs. John Stott and Mrs. L. Courtemanche.

MINSTREL TOUCH

Mr. Haggerty added a minstrel touch to the program when some fine old songs were sung in Dixie style. Mrs. Len Stott displayed with beautiful rendition of "Trees."

The reaction of the audience to this fine program would have shattered any applause meter.

Cards and games rounded out the evening.

Mrs. Haigney at the piano, was responsible for the fine music.

Mrs. Storms, Jr., president of the Auxiliary, reminded the members that the euchre parties still start on February 29, but will be announced again in the Social Events' column of the paper.

Professor Birdwhistle" was lovited to bring his troupe to entertain on "Members' Night" held every Friday at Club Canaan.

Prizes were won by Mrs. Storms, Mrs. Reynolds and Mrs. A. Wardaugh.

Community Presents Parting Gifts

LATTA — Over 125 friends, neighbors, and relatives gathered on the evening of February 17th in the Methodist Church Hall in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Parks, and Ted, who have been members of the community all their married lives.

The Rev. O. Wagar acted as chairman and opened the program with a few remarks. Mrs. Ann LaRue and Mrs. Arnold Dills led in community singing; vocal selections were offered by Mr. Larry LaRue and Miss Rose Dills led in community singing; vocal selections were offered by Mr. Larry LaRue and Miss Rose Ann LaRue, Mrs. William Sills, Mrs. Arnold Dills, Mrs. Harry Godbout, Mrs. Bill Wickens, Miss Betty Dickens and Mr. Ray Dickens. Mrs. Harry Harrison and Mrs. William Sills.

Mr. Sherman, Mr. Wagar called Sherman, Mary, Ted and Mrs. Garnet Denyes forward, and read a heartfelt address on behalf of the community.

Mrs. Garnet Denyes and Mr. Clarence Hall presented Sherman with a sand lamp with beautiful walnut coffee table. Ted, who is training to be a chiropractor in Toronto, was presented with a combination desk clock and pen holder. Mary Parks and Ted each expressed their deepest thanks to all for the beautiful gifts and enjoyable evening.

Delicious refreshments were served and enjoyed by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Parks will reside at 32 East Moira Street in Belleville.

Pretty Twins

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Mother and daughter make quite a picture in these "twin dresses" of printed rayon challis in various colors with black velvet bows, cuffs, edging and piping. Triple rows of black velvet cording mark the hem. Mother has a black velvet sash, but there is none for daughter, who doesn't mind one bit, we're sure.

Had to Flee Three Times From Russians

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. Irene Pelenskyj, a novelist and linguist, is carrying on what she calls the "big business of fighting communism."

The sad-faced little Ukrainian grandmother fights the Reds through Ukrainian women's organizations in the British Commonwealth and the United States.

"We Ukrainians know the Russians. We've known them through war and occupation for more than 100 years."

In her lifetime she has had to flee three times from the old aggressor.

Her first flight was in 1939 from Lvow in Poland and her last was in 1949 when with her professor husband and daughter she escaped from East Germany and joined the 25,000 Ukrainians who immigrated to Australia.

Her home now is in Sydney, Australia. Her husband is dead and her daughter married.

The novelist and former specialist in Baltic languages was elected president of the Ukrainian Congress in New York.

"The Communists say they are giving Ukrainian women equal rights now, but they are only giving them equal rights to work in the forests and mines with their bare hands like the men.

"Prisoners are escaping from Siberia. We know what rights the women have there.

"I think those unlucky women will feel better if they know we free women are trying to tell the truth about communism.

The big fight against the old foe must be fought in free countries, in the homes, and speakheaded by women."

Alluring Lace Dress

By ALICE ALDEN

The well-handled, short-skirted dinner dress of fine lace is a worthwhile investment that pays long and excellent dividends. Maggy Rouff does one of tobacco brown Chantilly lace with a front panel of matching organza. The buttons and bows are of satin, also in matching brown. The bell skirt is lined to retain its shape.

SURVIVES IN SNOWBANK

STRATFORD (CP)—A 76-year-old man who was first thought to be dead was dug from a snowbank by patrolling police Saturday and taken to hospital suffering shock and exposure. F. C. Grear apparently collapsed as he was walking home about midnight and lay unnoticed all night during a heavy snowfall.

TAKE AIM AT SPAIN

HAVANA (AP) — Refugee groups in Cuba, Mexico and Venezuela have united to attempt overthrow of the governments of Spain and Portugal, a spokesman declared Saturday. He said Spanish and Portuguese refugees throughout Latin America had united under the Spanish Liberation Directorate.

Women's Activities

HOLLOWAY ST. UNITED W.A.

The evening group of the Women's Association of Holloway Street United Church met in the church parlor last Tuesday evening with the president, Ethel Kinkley, in the chair.

Mrs. Ethel Knight, Mrs. Helen McCorquodale and Mrs. Eileen Moore assisted in the worship service based on Galatians 6: 7-10 and centred around the text, "Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

During the business meeting it was decided that Mrs. Jean Digby would continue with the committee catering for the Men's Club dinner in March. Working with Mrs. Digby will be Mrs. Helen McCorquodale, Mrs. Eileen Moore, Mrs. Ethel Knight, Mrs. Ruth Lowther and Mrs. Joan Thompson.

Plans were made for the March meeting when the afternoon group of the Women's Association will be guests.

Mrs. C. W. Coleman will be in charge of the devotional service and the refreshments' committee will be made up of Mrs. Jean Bateman, Mrs. Glenda Baker, Mrs. Ann Reid and Mrs. Marlene Coulter.

A resolution was passed that an annual membership fee be raised from 50 cents to 75 cents.

After the meeting closed refreshments and hour of conversation followed.

ST. ANDREW'S W. G.

The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's Women's Guild was held Tuesday evening with the president, Mrs. R. Michaud, in the chair.

Arrangements were made to entertain the Deaconess Training School choir, which will be giving a concert at St. Andrew's the last week of April.

Several group announcements were made, including a coffee party and bake sale, and plans to cater for the Children's Aid Society banquet.

Miss Irene Harris and Mrs. Dora Elridge showed the pictures they had taken on their recent trip to England, Scotland and the continent.

An enjoyable evening was brought to a close with lunch served by Mrs. Townsend and her group.

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Hagner Shaw

ETIQUETTE FOR THE SECRETARY

There is an old saying that "trifles make perfection, but perfection is no trifle." While we all strive for perfection, few, if any of us, ever attain it. It is my belief that adherence to these little words of wisdom will bring the ideal a little closer. Particularly is this true of the woman who strives to be a success as a private secretary.

To begin with, the importance of good manners in an office is something that should never be made light of. It's hard to tell sometimes where social life stops and business life begins. Good manners are as important in an office as in a drawing room — perhaps even more so, since one's living may depend on it. The woman who feels that her executive position as the boss's secretary gives her the right to be snippy and dictatorial to her fellow employees, and downright rude to clients, is in for a sad sorrow, that such tactics do not pay in the long run. Only by careful attention to the niceties, the "little trifles" of courteous behavior, can she possibly hope to advance in the business world.

Tact, which is the beautiful quality of the secretary is to shield her boss from unnecessary interruptions. It is of course business efficiency to ask the name of the person who is calling upon him, but it is not necessary to put the client through a regular interrogation. A very good approach is, as "Mr. Smith is tied up right now, I wonder if I could be of help to you" is certainly more courteous than the barked "He's busy now, what do you want?"

Putting people at ease, whether they be co-workers or clients, is part of a secretary's job. Office efficiency can be enhanced tenfold if she is cheerful, gracious and understanding with her fellow employees. Not only does the office routine run more smoothly, but she herself is protected from petty annoyances caused by dissatisfied personnel.

The matter of personal appearance is of paramount importance to the private secretary. Tweaks, boy blouses, skin-tight sweaters or flashy afternoon gowns do not befit her position. She should dress with her boss's position in mind. After all, clients reflect her as his representative. A fresh, clean looking secretary who arrives for work dressed for the cocktail hour can do her boss more harm than she realizes. Every effort should be made to dress in a smart, well-groomed manner. Let simplicity be the keynote. Consult against overdoing the makeup or hairdo. Appearing with a face better suited to a clown, and a hairdo appropriate for the most formal evening affair, will definitely not enhance one's chances of advancement.

I have seen women, well trained and efficient, remain at the bottom of the ladder in the business world because they failed to take into consideration the all important "little trifles" that mean so much.

Question: I am 21 years of age and work for the government. I have been engaged to a wonderful boy for three months. He is in service and is going home soon on a ten-day leave. His home is half way across the country. His mother has invited me to visit them. I can only get a week off from my job so I am planning to go up for just that length of time. My parents think it is go alone that his parents won't think much of me. Do you agree with them?

Answer: Since his mother has extended an invitation to you to visit them, I can certainly see no reason why there could be any criticism of your making this trip. I gather it is the only chance you will have to meet his parents before your marriage. Knowing them is certainly to be desired.

A Handsome Cake From Ohio To You

by Mary Moore

Travelling readers often bring home treasures they have found and forward them to me. I have one of them to pass on to you today.

Laverne H. writes:

Dear Mrs. Moore: While visiting friends in Ohio last November, we were served red cake with vanilla ice cream. Before I left I begged for the recipe, as it is the only cake my husband has ever admitted was good. (He's a pie eater.) I am forwarding the recipe to you, hoping you and your readers will enjoy it as much as we do.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

MONDAY

Apple Juice; Quick Pan-Fried Liver with Green Onion and Parsley Butter; Quick-Cooked Shredded New Cabbage with Sour Cream; Fluffy Mashed Parsnips; Rhubarb Cobbler; Tea.

This afternoon I made Laverne's cake and finished up with a beautiful 4-inch high masterpiece. It is mahogany red, 4-layered, tender-textured and lightly chocolate flavored.

I was hankering for a new chocolate cake idea and when this turned up it seemed like the answer to my wish.

RED CORONATION CAKE:

(Courtesy Laverne H.)

1-2 cup shortening, 1 1-2 cups white sugar, 2 eggs, 2 oz. red food coloring (see note), 2 tablespoons cocoa, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 1-4 cups sifted flour (all-purpose works better), 1 cup buttermilk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 tablespoon vinegar.

NOTE:

U.S. food coloring sometimes is not a dense as Canadian food coloring so I used 1-2 cottle of red food coloring and added 1-2 tablespoon water to make the liquid equivalent of 2 oz.

Cream shortening, sugar, and eggs. Make a paste with coloring and cocoa (or do as I did - mix 1-3-oz. coloring, cocoa and vinegar, 2 tablespoons water together). Add to creamed mixture. Add flour and salt sifted together alternately with buttermilk and vanilla. Beat well. Fold in but do not beat the vinegar and soda. Bake in two buttered 9" layer tins lined on bottom with wax paper at 350 deg. Fahr. 30-35 minutes. Cool and split layers with nylon thread or sharp knife to make 4 layers.

Icing: Gently melt 3 tablespoons flour in 1-4 cup butter and stir in 1 cup warm milk until thick. Cool thoroughly. Cream the following until light and add to first mixture: 3-4 cup butter (or margarine), 1 cup white sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat well, beating until sugar crystals dissolve. This takes 6-8 minutes. Spread between layers and on top and sides of cake. If desired make only half of the above icing. Use it for top and sides of cake and spread this lemon filling between layers: 3-4 cup sugar, 4 tablespoons flour, dash of salt, 1-2 cup water, 1 egg, well beaten, 2 tablespoons butter, 1-4 cup lemon juice 1-4 teaspoon grated lemon rind. Combine sugar, flour, and salt in top of double boiler; add water and egg, mix thoroughly. Place over rapidly boiling water and cook 10 minutes, or until thickened, stirring constantly. Remove from boiling water; add butter, lemon juice and rind, and cool.

Health Hints

(by Department of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa)

Recreation can be an aid to mental and physical health for the tension of work or school should be different from the daily work — for the worker at a sedentary job, activities suitable to age and health; for those who work hard physically, a mental pastime or hobby may be best.

When preparing vegetables for cooking, cut them into equal sized pieces to allow uniform cooking.

Overweight persons are often shallow breathers. Deep breathing which results in greater intake of oxygen, helps to burn up fats and thus aids the reducing program.

Contagious diseases still spread rapidly in many countries and this should be a reminder to us that immunization is our defence against such killer diseases as smallpox, polio, diptheria and whooping cough.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mr. F. Y. — She should'nt go back to her husband.

Betty S. — It's dreary living with Dad.

Mr. F. Y. — My daughter, a woman of 35 with one child, has been suffering for the past 15 years because of a stupid marriage she made before she was old enough to know her own mind.

Betty's husband is a first-class nut and she has separated from him twice — only to go back. Now she has been living with not for the past ten months and I am trying to prevent her from going back again to waste more of her good years.

Betty says her life has been ruined anyway and she misses her husband, but I feel she should get a job and go out among people and try to make friends and build a new life. She accuses me of trying to hold her back because I'm a lonesome old widower. But I'm just thinking of her good.

* * *

Betty S. — I know that Dad means well by Barbara, but he can't help being influenced by the fact that he is lonely without me. When I am home, he also has my 10-year-old son as a companion and enjoys this very much.

I love my dad, but the truth is life is very dreary keeping house for him and the boy. I don't feel I can go out to work either. I have never worked. I was a secretary but I got out of high school.

My husband is an eccentric man, but he has always been kind. He always wanted to live in a bungalow or a trailer — something like that and I couldn't stand the life. But now he admits he was wrong and is willing to live in an apartment. The problem now is his experiments. He has so much junk he'll be no room for it.

The Council: We agree with Mr. F. Y. that his daughter needs to build a new life, but whether that means she should remain estranged from her husband, we are not sure. We are sure.

The outstanding fact in Betty's story is that she has never made a real decision. She shuttles back and forth between her husband's home and her father's unable to know where she really belongs. Wherever she goes her decision is half-hearted and she thinks she can always reverse her plans later.

The big advantage in making a real decision is that it prepares us for the good and bad consequences of our actions. If Betty decided that she must make a home with her husband, she would learn to accept him as he is. Apparently she can't get him to change his ways so she must adjust to him and try to find some satisfactions in life in areas where their desires don't conflict.

If, on the other hand, Betty would decide that she can't live with her husband, she would try to map a different sort of life for herself. She says she has never worked outside the home. Well many women who have never worked take a course, look for a job and find themselves career gals in a short time. There is also the possibility of study and volunteer work. If Betty realized that there are many individuals who could be benefited by what she can give, she might have a better feeling about herself and life in general.

We don't think Mr. F. Y. should try to influence Betty. But he should tell her to make up her mind for good. If he knew for sure that she isn't going to live with him, he might make other better arrangements for himself.

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — Burton Cantwell Carter celebrated his 94th birthday, still a resident of the house at nearby Fordyce Corner where he was born, and where his 90-year-old sister lives with him. He takes a daily walk, and likes to watch television.

Club Activities

FR. ED.-BELLEVILLE I.C.

The regular monthly meeting of the Prince Edward - Belleville Ladies Club was held at the YMCA. The president opened the meeting with Mrs. Lent at the piano.

The president, after a welcome to visitors, expressed the regret of herself and the members due to the passing of an associate member, Mrs. H. Westover, by reading a poem, "Just Away", followed by a minute' silence; the hymn, "Abide With Me," was sung by her request.

Corresponding secretary reported on cards and two plants sent to ill members, Thank-you cards were read from Mesdames Greenlaw and Barber and the Westover family.

A pot-luck supper will be held in the Recreation Centre in March at 6.30 p.m. instead of the regular March meeting.

The meeting was turned over to group convener Mrs. Baird who presented the following programs; readings, "Valentine's Day," by Mrs. Baird, and "A Recipe," by Mrs. Ellis.

As this was the club's birthday meeting, Mrs. Parliament gave a summary of the club and Edward Club's activities since its inception in February 1943.

"The club was started by a number of ladies who had previously been in Prince Edward County now residing in Belleville being invited to an afternoon tea at a friend's home. Each thought it would be nice if they formed a club and met once a month, which it has now been going for just 17 years.

"During the years the club has been able to help many worthy causes, financially, especially the furnishing of a room at Quinte Children's Hall, school for the blind at Kingston."

Two lovely birthday cakes were cut by two past presidents, Mrs. M. B. Wood and Mrs. Lent, and a social half hour was enjoyed.

RARE VISITORS

ST. FELICIEN, Que. (CP) — Lumberjacks reported sighting several white arctic quail, seldom seen as far south as this Lake St. John community 175 miles north of Quebec City.

Girl Guide Movement Outlined to Bridge St. W.A.

At the February meeting of Bridge Street Woman's Association, Mrs. J. Guthridge was guest at and Mrs. W. Dallaz, president, presided.

Reports were heard from Miss Ida Keehn, recording secretary, Mrs. S. Hibbard corresponding sec. Mrs. C. MacDonald, card sec. and Mrs. H. E. McBurney, treas. Mrs. Lewis reported on membership and Mrs. W. Osmonde on Kitchen equipment.

Mrs. H. Fuke and Mrs. J. G. Demeza with their group were in charge of the program.

The theme of the devotional service was 'Light', as exemplified by Jesus Christ.

Mrs. C. Hyde read a portion of the first chapter of Paul's letter to the Colossians and Mrs. Fuke led in meditation, refrred to the well-known painting of Holman Hunt's 'The Light of the World', depicting Christ as Prophet, Priest and King approaching a locked door of the spirit in the darkness of night. His is the true light which can illumine all lives.

A prayer that hearts' doors be opened to the Saviour, was offered by Mrs. Hyde.

Mrs. A. V. Barkley, accompanied by Mrs. J. G. Demeza, sang the beautiful Spiritual Balm of Gilead'. After the solo was given, an added charm was given when Mrs. Barker explained that the 'balm' was an evergreen, from which the resin was used as a healing ointment. She referred to several translations of the 'Balm of Gilead' as mentioned in Jeremiah.

Mrs. Demeza introduced the speaker, Mrs. A. McLean Haig, as Belleville's First Lady and Area Commissioner for Girl Guides. Mrs. Haig has given distinguished leadership in Girl Guide work in this community.

In her interesting and informative address, Mrs. Haig traced the development of the Girl Guide Movement. The first Canadian Company was established in St. Catharines. In Belleville, Mrs. M. E. Branscombe organized the first Company with Mrs. W. H. Finkle as Captain.

In Ontario now, in this Jubilee year there are 200,000 enrolled in Brownies, Guides and Rangers. These groups provide the means of uniting the old, old Canadians, the Eskimo and Indian and the old and new Canadians. It helps to bridge the horizons of the girls enrolled in Patrols, Companies, Packs and Camps.

This year a ribbon of Golden Tulips planted by Guides across Canada will express their thanks for what 50 years have done for Guiding.

In expressing the thanks of the Association to Mrs. Haig, Mrs. Fuke thanked her for her talk and also for the time and effort she and her associates had devoted to the work of Guiding.

An interesting movie of the Guide camp at Ox Lake was shown. At this camp Guides from 37 countries joined Canadian Girls in work, play and worship.

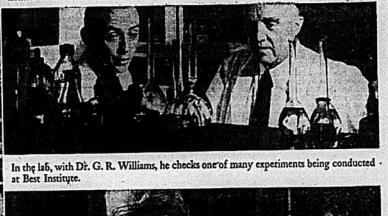
Insulin's Co-Discoverer

Dr. Charles H. Best

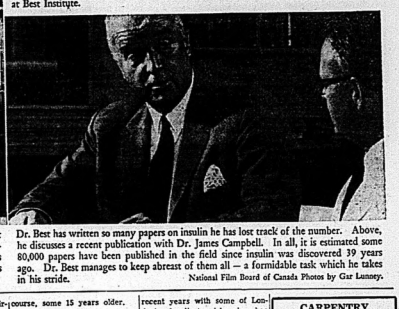
A man of impressive vigour and charm, Dr. Best has endeared himself to his colleagues and to the hosts of students attracted to his laboratory. Above, at his Nassagaweya farm with 8-months-old grandson Charles Stewart Best.

With his wife, Margaret, and pet poodle "Dochel" in the living room of their Toronto home.

After a busy day, Dr. Best leaves the Charles H. Best Institute of Physiology which he has headed since its opening in 1953. In addition to research on insulin and diabetes the Institute is engaged in projects on cancer, thrombosis and liver damage.



In the lab, with Dr. G. R. Williams, he checks one of many experiments being conducted at Best Institute.



Dr. Best has written so many papers on insulin he has lost track of the number. Above, he discusses a recent publication with Dr. James Campbell. In all, it is estimated some 80,000 papers have been published in the field since insulin was discovered 39 years ago. Dr. Best manages to keep abreast of them all — a formidable task which he takes in his stride.

National Film Board of Canada Photos by Gar Lunney.

The lives of 18 million diabetics throughout the world have been saved and lengthened because of the dramatic discovery of insulin in 1921 by the youthful Canadian research team of Frederick Banting and Charles Best. Bold vision, uncompromising intellect and devoted teamwork combined to conquer a hitherto fatal disease and a new era in medical research was begun. Dr. Best, a dedicated science graduate of 23 at the time he worked on the great experiment which resulted in the isolation of the hormone insulin and the demonstration that it could be used to control the blood sugar content of diabetic patients, went on to become a world authority on insulin and an eventful career in the realm of scientific research which has brought him a battery of honours and awards unparalled in Canadian medical history. Born in Maine, U.S.A., in 1899, the son of native Nova Scotians (whose ancestors came from England at the time of the founding of Halifax in 1749) Charles Herbert Best entered the University of Toronto in 1916 receiving his first in a long series of academic degrees in 1921. He has been honoured by 19 Universities in the Western world, among them the Universities of Paris, Amsterdam, Edinburgh, Melbourne, Uruguay, Chile and Peru. His distinctions range from the first Canadian fellowship in the Pontifical Academy of Scientists (limited to a membership of 60 scientists throughout the world) to first honorary president of the Canadian Diabetic Association and honorary Admiral of the Texas Navy. Dr. Best served in the artillery in the first world war and as director of medical research for the Canadian navy in the second world war. For his work on a method of drying and storing blood for military purposes he was created a Commander of the British Empire in 1944.

News of Engagement Came As Surprise to Closest Friends of Armstrong-Jones

The following dispatch was written for Reuters news agency by a friend of Antony Armstrong-Jones.

LONDON (Reuters)—Princess Margaret could not have chosen a gayer—or more courageous—husband than my former schoolmate, Antony Armstrong-Jones.

London now knows him as a witty and successful society photographer—but only his intimate friends realize what a tough struggle life has often been for him.

At Eton College, where I first met him, Tony was stricken by poliomyelitis for a time. But he made a wonderful recovery and went on to become an able oarsman.

The same courage and drive has helped meteoric rise in the London photographic world.

STUDIED WITH BARON

His path to the fame in the photographic world was far from a smooth one. After studying with the famed photographer Baron, he set up his studio in unfashionable Pimlico.

He lived above the studio in a tiny flat and cooked for himself—except when he was popping into the nearby tavern for a glass of beer and a snack.

But to his shabby little studio came scores of leading society figures as his fame mounted and newspapers and magazines began to reproduce his work.

In time, he won commissions to photograph members of the Royal Family — but he never sought to move from the little studio which had brought him "luck."

He achieved a minor fame among the Chelsea set for his gay parties.

BEREFT OF TROUSERS

None of his parties, however, matched the occasion when he lost his trousers during a coming-out dance for a debutante.

In the early hours of the morning five old Etonians, who took the view that he should not have taken up photography, invited him to leave the ballroom.

Two held his head while the others removed his trousers.

He was furious with the men, especially after they declined to apologize to him or the hostess.

As he said at the time: "It seems that it is rather infra dig (not the thing) to be in society and be a photographer at the same time. It seems I should be a stockbroker or someone stinko with money."

Both his stepfather, the Earl of Rosse (pronounced "Ross"), and his mother, the countess, have encourage his artistic leanings.

Lord Rosse is vice-chancellor of Dublin University and chairman of the Georgian Group, which seeks to preserve worthwhile buildings of the 18th-century Georgian era.

His mother is the sister of Oliver Messel, a stage designer.

All of his friends—especially the members of the opposite sex—are intrigued by the contrast he presents to Group Captain Peter Townsend, the suitor Princess Margaret rejected in 1955 in her "duty before love" choice.

Tony is rather short, fair-haired and artistic in manner. Townsend is a tall, dark and commanding figure, and of course, some 15 years older.

GOOD MIXER

The two men do, however, share the same attribute of charm and a knack for being able to mix freely with people in all ranks of life.

Despite the fact that his work has brought him into contact in recent years with some of London's loveliest girls, he has rarely made romantic copy for newspaper gossip writers.

Although he escorted Princess Margaret in public on occasions, the news of the engagement came as a complete surprise to even his closest friends.

Industrial Hockey League Results

Williams Brothers earned their way into the Belleville Industrial Hockey League finals this weekend action but Ellis Printers, the battling juvenile club, tossed another upset at Booth TV's.

Williams edged Chris' Drive-In 2-1 to sweep their half of the semi-finals in three consecutive games.

Meanwhile Ellis Printers won their second straight over Booth's who finished atop the league by a 3-1 score to grab a 2-1 games lead in that series. The winners will meet Williams for the championship.

Junior Day and Jack Lucas were the marksmen for Williams. Bert Faulkner, Duke Dorsan and Don Bishop collected assists. Jack Gill potted Chris' lone marker, aided by Bill Vesterfelt and Phill Cornell.

The Booth-Ellis fixture was a penalty-riddled affair, especially in the second-half of the game, with 20 sentences being handed out in all. Booth's picked up 15 of the 20 penalties including a misconduct to Jim Campbell; a misconduct game misconduct and four minors to Bob Brooks and a misconduct and game misconduct to Jack Calnan. Hughes of Booth's and Len Harvey of Ellis also had fighting majors late in the game.

Ellis marksmen were Bobby Duggan, Doug Dafoe, Billy "The Kid" McGuire, Bruce Gelatharpe and Pat Kellar. Pete Wesley had two assists with singles for Kellar, B. Duggan, Yorne and J. Dahl. Gord Irwin had two Booth goals and Jack Hughes one. Chuck Rowbotham, Kellet and Brooks had assists.

Toronto Named Tennis Site

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian Lawn Tennis Association Saturday elected John Bassett of Toronto, publisher of The Telegram, president and selected Toronto as the site for the 1960 Canadian tennis championships.

The association at its annual meeting also decided to move its headquarters to Toronto from Montreal.

The championships were tentatively set in early September. The organization unanimously approved commercial sponsorship for the meet for the first time.

Bob Bedard of Lennoxville, Que., grabbed off the No. 1 men's ranking for a fourth consecutive year. The top woman was Susan Butt of Vancouver.

ST. THOMAS WINS

LEAMINGTON (CP) — A rink from St. Thomas Saturday won the first invitational curling bonspiel at Leamington's new curling rink, defeating a Windsor rink 19-3.

The St. Thomas rink, skipped by William Hieborough, entered the finals by defeating a Woodstock rink 10-3.

Ninety-six curlers from Detroit, Sarnia, Chatham, Blenheim, Toronto, Brantford and Bradford took part.

Spurs Defeat Blackburn 4-1; Wolves Win

LONDON (AP) — Tottenham Hotspur, English Soccer League leader, raised to a 4-1 victory over Blackburn Rovers Saturday. Spurs' revenge for a cup defeat by the Rovers last week.

Three second-half goals, one by half back Dave MacKay, kept Tottenham one point ahead of Wolverhampton Wanderers.

The Wolves, 1959 champions, won by 3-1 a home game against West Bromwich Albion. They did all their scoring in the first half.

The Wolves will play next Wednesday in a return European cup game here against Barcelona.

BIG SURPRISE

Manchester United pulled off one of the big surprises of the day—a 8-0 victory at Blackpool. Manchester's out of the cup contest.

Club quarter - finalists Sheffield Wednesday, Burnley and Preston North End all ran into trouble.

Wednesday and Chelsea fin ished their match in a 1-1 draw. The Bolton Wanderers defeated Burnley 2-1 and Everton crushed Preston 4-0.

One of the big upsets of the day was in the Second Division. Aston Villa lost 3-1 to a smoothworking Sheffield United.

Villa and United are in the Second Division's only representatives among the eight teams left in the cup finals.

Jenkins Won't Defend World Skating Title

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canada's stock in the world figure skating championships opening here Tuesday took an upturn Saturday when three-time winner Dave Jenkins of the United States announced he will not defend his title.

The Olympic men's champion said he is retiring from competition to return to his medical studies in Cleveland and will pass up the world meet here.

This means Donald Jackson, 19-year-old Ottawa skater, has only to improve slightly on his showing in the compulsory figures at the Olympic Winter Games last week to take the world crown here.

Jackson took the Olympic bronze medal, finishing 13 points behind second-place Karol Divin of Czechoslovakia.

Canada is almost assured of the world pairs championship with Barbara Wagner and Bob Paul of Toronto, Olympic gold medalists, making their third straight world defence.

Canada also has a chance in the ice-dance competition with Toronto's Virginia Thompson and William McLachlan rated reasonable chance of upsetting defending champions Doreen Denny and J. L. Courtney Jones of Great Britain.

The United States is conceded the fourth world title—the women's singles in which Olympic champion Carol Heiss, 20, should be an easy winner. Canada has no strong contender in this competition.

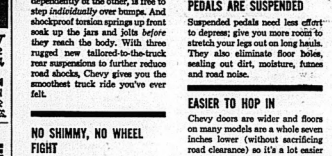
WORTH MORE BECAUSE THEY WORK MORE:

Compare this list of Chevy advances with the features ordinary trucks are still talking about. You'll see why Chevy trucks get more work done in a day...why they go extra thousands of miles before trade-in time. These Sturdi-Bilt Truck's aren't just new; they're a full scale revolution!

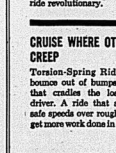


TORSION-SPRING RIDE

Each front wheel, suspended independently of the other, is free to step individually over bumps. And shockproof torsion springs up front soak up the jars and jolts before they reach the body. With three rugged new tailored-to-the-truck rear suspensions to further reduce road shocks, Chevy gives you the smoothest truck ride you've ever felt.

NO SHIMMY, NO WHEEL FIGHT

Drive a '60 Chevy. Just once. Right away you'll notice the absence of I-beam shimmy and wheel fight common on ordinary trucks. With independent front suspension there's a brand new, smoother, easier handling feel behind the wheel.



PRECISION WHEEL BALANCE

Front wheels are balanced electronically before the truck ever leaves the factory. Helps make that new ride revolutionary.

CRUISE WHERE OTHERS CREEP

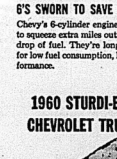
Torsion-Spring Ride takes the bounce out of bumps. It's a ride that cradles the load and the driver. A ride that allows faster safe speeds over roughest roads to get more work done in a day's time.

CABS FOR BIG DRIVERS

Big guys get a bigger break in a Chevy cab. There's plenty of space inside to stretch out and relax; more room for hats and hips, more room for wide shoulders and long legs. There's horizon-wide visibility through a windshield with 26% more glass area; a new see-at-a-glance instrument panel. Cabs are safer, too, up to 67% more rigid.

BRAKES ARE BIGGER

Bigger brakes bring loaded Chevies to safer, surer stops. Extra-wide linings wear longer, reduce maintenance expense. They'll give you the best in braking — from efficient torque-action brakes in light-duty models to powerful full-air brakes in heavyweights.



LOW, LOW UPKEEP COSTS

Chevy's built the way every truck should be built. For one thing, the big rugged fender crown hinges right back. That means easier access to Chevrolet's unbeatable power plants. You cut routine maintenance and upkeep costs to the minimum. Another way Chevrolet gives you a short cut to higher profit hauling.

6'S SWORN TO SAVE

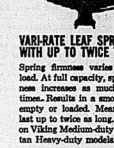
Chevy's 6-cylinder engines are set to squeeze extra miles out of every drop of fuel. They're long famous for low fuel consumption, high performance.

CABS CUSHIONED ON RUBBER MOUNTS

New four-point cab mounting, with rubber cushions to isolate road shock, quiets the ride, keeps down sheet metal vibration.

LIGHT-HANDED STEERING, EVEN IN THE BIG ONES

A new steering linkage system that cuts vibration means easier driver control with less effort. Coupled to a low friction ball-gear steering mechanism, steering is light, firm and positive. Greatly reduces driver fatigue. Power steering is available at extra cost on many models.

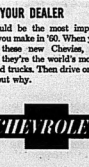


VARI-RATE LEAF SPRINGS WITH UP TO TWICE THE LIFE

Spring firmness varies with the load. At full capacity, spring firmness increases as much as four times. Results in a smoother ride empty or loaded. Means springs last up to twice as long. Available on Viking Medium-duty and Spartan Heavy-duty models.

SHORT STROKE V8'S

Power-packed for peak performance. Chevy's husky V8's make child's play out of the toughest hauls. They have a mind tuned to economy, too, that keeps costs down, profits up.



DOLLAR-SAVING ECONOMY

Chevrolet's all-round savings make the big truck news for '60. For up-and-at-'em performance, day-in-day-out dependability, top gasoline mileage, far longer truck life, plus the industry's highest resale value, no other truck lines in compare with Chevrolet. Get your share of the savings very soon.

SEE YOUR DEALER

It could be the most important visit you make in '60. When you've seen these new Chevies, you'll agree they're the world's most advanced trucks. Then drive one and find out why.

Canada Whips Russia To Finish In Second Spot

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Olympics hockey brass of all nations raised eyebrows and exchanged amused glances when American coach Jack Riley made his now famous prediction, "The Japanese will be the dark horses of this tournament."

Or did the estimable Riley, his hockey "meniera-bility" decidedly upped since he was an army buddy of ours in Cornwall during the late bullets-and-bombs exchange with the late Jimmy Desmarais, Gene Kealty, Frankie Marlo, Bas Bastein and others who formed the "Cornwall Rookies" hockey club, have his tongue-in-cheek?

For Riley, and several of the team that was classified at least third-raters in the 1959 world tournament at Prague, pulled the biggest Olympics upset since Percy William flashed to victory in the 100 and 220 races away back when.

What a helluva difference a few months made. The American team was rated no better than fourth place in the world tournament and with luck among the top four in this year's Olympics.

This department, who boarded the Kitchener press and radio lions in their own den, and was nearly guillotined for so predicting, named Russia and the Czechs first and second, or reversed; Canada third or second with Sweden alternating, and the possibility of the Americans taking over fourth if the Canucks finished third.

Be that as it may. The fact remains the Americans won the Olympics championship and won it the hard way. They boarded Cloud Eleven at the kickoff and never looked downward. They nosed out the favored Canadians by sheer guts, desire, spirit, plus amazing goal-keeping that went on to give the victory was no pan-flash by shading the Russians and swamping the Czechs with a third-period six-goal explosion. There was nothing of fluke luck in any of the American victories. They were hard-earned and well-deserved.

So let's not speckle the foamy ads with tear drops, or ring the welkin with alibis.

Perhaps the Kitchener Dutchmen and the Belleville McFarlands have something in common. They were good enough to win, but couldn't produce the potential when it was vitally needed.

But the big question, as far as we, and a lot of others are concerned, is what did Riley do to the American team to bring it to the superb form it displayed throughout the Olympics tournament?

What did Riley have on the coaching and other phases of his job to lift this team to Olympics heights (no pun intended) and by the sheer force of its offensive and nigh invincibility of defence, cause the favored squads to play Indian and bite the dust?

Some Canadian die-hards have said, if the tournament was played over again, the Americans would be beaten in the rush. Riley himself was quoted as saying the Canadian team would defeat his Americans in nine games out of ten. We will buy that even if it is only salve to the wound. The fact is, the Yankees won the all-important tenth game.

The question asked by some is "Where did the Americans get their condition, know-how and sudden ability?" They did not, as far as we know, play in any organized league. They were not heard of as a hockey entity until the Olympics loomed in the offing. Nothing was heard of their training, outlining of what it took to weld together a strong squad, yet out of the American smog and into the brilliant Olympics sunlight, the Yankee Saints came marching in.

Yeah, they came marching in, looked around, "took" anything they looked like organization and almost literally a stunned hockey world had realized it, turned around and marched right out again with all the glory and a gold medal chucked in.

Canada in general and Kitchener in particular need not be ashamed of the Dutchmen. We believe they were the better team in the tournament, but were unfortunate enough to meet a squad that was riding high when they were definitely attacking. It was one of those times that ofttimes occur in sport, and, as in this case, sometimes means the difference between a championship and a lesser honor.

Dunnies, Dogs Divide Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league wound up its regular schedule during the weekend, and if the last game is any indication the league-leading Whitby Dunlops are the class of Ontario senior representatives to bolster their playoff hopes.

Dunlops won their 34th game of the season Saturday against Windsor Bulldogs—six victories more than any other team in the loop—but the Bulldogs came back for an 8-4 win over the Dunlops Sunday.

Whitby finished seven points ahead of Windsor, Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, who captured a silver medal at the Olympics, were tied for third with Chatham Maroons — both at 54 points, nine behind Windsor. Belleville McFarlands were last with 38 points.

ROUND-ROBIN NEXT

All five clubs enter a round-robin series to determine four teams for the semi-finals.

Whitby loaned some of its top players to the Dunlop squad for the Olympic tournament at Squaw Valley, Calif., and will welcome them back for the playoff.

Saturday's game was moved to Toronto from Whitby arena because ice and snow made it too dangerous. Jack Kane and Dunc Brodie paced Whitby with two goals each. Singles went to Bob Haszard and Gary Darling. Lou Bendo led Windsor with a pair, while Jack Costello and Bob Brown added singles.

On home ice Sunday, the Bulldogs led from the start. Costello fired three Windsor goals. Norm Walker, Brown, Rene Pepin, John Utendale and Gord Haldy got the others. Whitby scorers were Tom Conroy, Sandy Alr, Don McBeth and Brodie.

SUBSTITUTE NETMINDER

Al Bennett of the Senior B Wallaceburg Hornets performed capably in the nets for Whitby. Windsor had a 46-33 edge in shots on goal.

The round-robin playoff series opens Tuesday night with Belleville at Whitby and Chatham at Windsor. Kitchener-Waterloo is at Chatham and Whitby at Belleville Wednesday. Windsor is at Chatham and Kitchener-Waterloo at Belleville Friday.

At a meeting earlier this month it was decided that each team would have four home games in the playoff series. The team with fewest wins will be excluded from the semi-finals.

CANADIAN U.S. CHAMP

DETROIT (AP)—Ray Widelski, 24, Hamilton, Ont., won the national professional squash racquets tournament singles title Sunday by upsetting defending champion Al Chassard, 31, Bethlehem, Pa., 15-8, 14-18, 15-11, 15-10. In the pro-amateur doubles Joe Krinock of Detroit and Dick Leggett of Hamilton defeated Frank Lanniciotti of New York and Chassard-Stevens of Detroit-Brown added singles.

Makeshift American Team Wins Gold Medal and Glory; Soviets Wind up in Third

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP)—Canada cannot win at Olympic hockey under the present setup without a miracle, and the CAHA officials following the second-place finish of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen in the 1960 Winter Olympic championship.

A makeshift band of Americans who had never played together before December won the title with five straight victories in the six-country round-robin tournament that ended Sunday. The defending champion Russians, beaten by both the United States and Canada, took third place.

In two high-scoring games Sunday the Americans, dubbed Riley's Irregulars, took a whiff of oxygen after two losing periods and came up with a six-goal surge to defeat Czechoslovakia 9-4.

CANADA 8 RUSSIA 5

Canada piled up a 4-0 lead before Russia scored and got four more goals in the final to overcome Russia 8-5.

Sweden, led by star forward Lars-Eric Lundvall who scored three goals to cap a six-goal weekend, scored its only win of the championship by a 4-2 decision over Germany. The Swedes earlier tied Russia in a surprising display.

Saturday the Americans scored with less than six minutes left to whip the Russians for the first time Sat. That virtually clinched the championship. Canada had its hands full against Sweden, Trailing 4-1 at the end of the first period, the Canadians rallied for four goals in the third to pull the game out 6-5. Czechoslovakia clinched the bronze medal in a playoff with a 9-4 victory over Germany.

The Americans also will regain as world champions since the International Ice Hockey Federation recognizes the Olympic winner also as the world titlist. The world championships are held in the years Olympics take place.

The blow that shifted the augmented Dutchmen squad was a stunning 7-1 loss to the Americans last Thursday although the Canadians fired enough shots to win two games.

SOLACE FROM DUDLEY

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen "cannot be blamed for not winning the title," said George Dudley, Canadian boss and secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

"I hope that before the 1964 games (in Innsbruck, Austria) everyone will wake up to around our national consciousness so that we do not have to go through the experience here again.

"It must be plainly obvious to everyone that we have been in some years now, that it is only the best that we have in Canada that can meet this competition. And it should be plain to everyone in Olympic years when we are not permitted to use reinstated pros according to Olympic rules that every interest in Canada should be concentrated to provide very best amateur players to the club selected to represent the country.

"This must be done at the beginning of the season so that a team can be welded together out of the available material."

RILEY GAMBLED

Jack Riley, hockey coach at West Point for the last 10 years, took a gamble on the American squad and won.

His irregulars were a pickup team from all over the U.S.—Boston University salesmen, Minnesota carpenters, servicemen, a steelworker, a salesman from Wisconsin, a husky fireman from Massachusetts.

Seven of the players were picked last December. But they didn't really quit when he added Clearly brothers, Bob and Bill, from Warroad, Minn., before the deadline Feb. 4.

The U.S. resented the fact that the Clearys, busy with their Bolton insurance business, hadn't been playing with the squad. They joined the team barnstorming across the country to Squaw Valley.

"I told them they would to come to Squaw Valley as the second best team, OK—I didn't," Riley said. "I said we'd go as the best, or not at all."

They went along with the Christian brothers from Warroad, Minn., turned out to be stars of the American team that won the first gold medal in hockey for the U.S.

BILL CLEARY TOP SCORER

The Clearys and the Christians accounted for six of the 29 Yankee goals, and Bill Cleary captured the individual scoring championship with six goals and six assists for 12 points. Roger Christian, a star against both the Russians and the Czechs, scored the most goals—seven.

When they met the Czechs, the Americans were plainly fatigued from their thrilling upsets of the Canadians and Russians. Trailing 4-3 after two listless periods, the Americans were sitting glumly in the dressing room before the final period when in walked Russian Coach Arkadi Ivanovich Sidorenkov. He suggested that the Americans do as the Russians—breathe oxygen to offset the high, 8,200-foot altitude of Squaw Valley, in the High Sierra.

Sologubov had to do a selling job. The 36-year-old Soviet army captain, dressed in a long overcoat, hat and skating cap, kept waving his arms and talking in broken English about the wonders of oxygen. Finally, team captain Jack Irrsane, a Brooklyn, Mass., fireman, looked up and said:

"O.K., Solly, bring it in."

CLEARY SPURNS IT

The American team started in a large bottle and all the Americans except Bill Cleary took several whiffs before ripping through the Czechs six times in the final period.

"I think the lift was mostly psychological," said Riley. "The boys knew the boys appreciated Solly's gesture."

Here at the Yankee triumph was Roger Christian. He scored four goals after only two in the first period. Bobby Cleary got two and Bobby Cleary got two.

Billy Christian was the star Saturday as he scored two goals against Canada and two against the Russians while Bill Cleary got the other. Canada's goalie, only crowed of 10,000 turned out for the game, was presented one of those gold scalpers $50 a seat.

One of the big stars in the Canadian defeat was Bill Hunter, old soldier goalie John McCartan, who had played in only one of the games—an average of 2.2 a game for the least amount of any goalie in the tournament.

HIGH-SCORING GAME

The Sunday game of Fred Etcher, Bob Attersley and George Samolenko paced the Canadians to their second victory, 8-5 over the Russians Sunday before 7,000 fans.

Etcher scored two goals and assisted on two others, Attersley came up with a hat-trick and Samolenko paced the Canadians with two goals and four assists, and Bob Forhan added two.

Other Canadian goals were scored by Bill Sutherland, Don Rope, Butch Martin and Jim Connelly. Connelly didn't put the puck in the net but he did credit for it. Russia's Genrikh Sidorenkov banged the puck into the net after goalie Nikolai Puchkov had made the save. Connelly, and while Connelly was stealing away.

The Canadians started out as though they were going to whip the Russians in a second-period passing Russians.

They went ahead 3-0 in the first period, made it 4-0 at 2:35 of the second, and were coasting along when Russia's Yuri Moiseyev received a kneeing penalty.

Then Russia struck, led by Konstantin Loktev, Veniamin Alekseyev and Aleksandr Almetov, and goalie Nikolai Solgubov, stormed to the attack. Almetov scored, assisted by

Acquire Seven Gold Medals To Double Score on Sweden; Canada Finishes in 8th Spot

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP) —Russia and Canada have given the United States its first Olympic hockey championship and dropped Canada's Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen to their second consecutive Olympic also-ran role.

"We had bish and they gave us the gold medal," said U.S. coach Jack Riley after the 11 - day eighth Winter Games closed Sunday. But the second-place Dutchmen settled an old score by defeating defending champion Russia 8-5, the loss sent Russia into third place, the lowest it has finished in any international amateur tournament since it first challenged in 1954.

Apart from the Dutchmen's failure to win the gold medal, Canada's 44 athletes made a respectable showing in the 30-country Games. They won two gold medals, one seconds silver and one third-place bronze. In the unofficial national ranking, Canada finished eighth.

RUSSIANS FAR IN FRONT

Russia won seven gold medals —six in speed skating—and piled up an unofficial point total of 1615½, more than double the Dutch's nearest competitor. Sweden was second with 711½ and the U.S. third with 71. They were followed by Germany 70½, Finland 59½, Norway 34, Japan 33½, Canada 32, France 27 and Switzerland 26½. Points were based on 10 for first and 5-4-3-2-1 for the next five placings.

The Russians captured 19 medals in all compared with the 16 they won in their first Olympic appearance in 1956 at Cortina, Italy.

Germany won four gold medals, the final Gerhard Heidenreich captured the final one Sunday in the special ski jumping with a best jump of 92.5 metres, or 307 feet. Second place went to Finland's Niilo Halonen, 19-year-old student, who had a loop of 89½ metres, or 301 feet, as his best.

PROUD OF HEGGTVEIT

Probably the biggest thrill for Canada in the Games was Anne Heggtveit's gold-medal performance in the women's slalom which also gave her the world combined and slalom championships. It was the first time a Canadian had won a skiing Olympic history and the Ottawa miss did it by a comfortable margin over runner - up Betsy Snite of the U.S.

Miss Heggtveit's victory came exactly a week after Toronto's Barbara Ann Scott and Bob Paul added the Olympic pairs figure-skating crown to their world title. Don Jackson of Oshawa, who probably will be in the forefront of world figure-skaters now that Olympic champion David Jenkins of the U.S. has announced his retirement from active competition to concentrate on his medical studies, won the bronze medal Friday for third behind Jenkins and Karol Divin of Czechoslovakia.

Canada's showing here far surpassed that when the country didn't win a gold medal and ended 10th in the unofficial team standings with 12 points.

The failure of the Dutchmen to atone for their disappointing 5th place showing in 1956 at Cortina was a shocker. That year they lost 4-1 to the U.S. and 2-0 to Russia.

OUTHUSTLED, SAYS RILEY

"I don't figure it out," said Riley, "I still think Canada had the best team in the tournament, man for man. We were outhustled and out-tallied them. We told everybody within earshot that we were going to win the hockey title, that we would beat Canada and our guys were fired up enough to do it."

After the Americans hopped into the point lead by beating Canada 2-1 last Thursday, there still was hope for the Dutchmen.

Every hockey expert here figured Russia would have no trouble up by beating the Americans Saturday, but things didn't work out that way.

Riley's men edged Russia 3-2 in a game that the defending champions blew by missing many scoring opportunities in the first period. The Americans scored up the title with a six-goal final-period splurge to defeat Czechoslovakia 9-4 Sunday morning and post an unblemished record five wins and no losses in the championship round-robin.

The Russia-Canada finale was anti-climactic, but the Dutchmen came up with their best game, following a jittery 5-5 decision over Sweden Saturday night.

PLAYERS STUNG

"We watched the U.S.-Russia game and the players simply tensed up," Dutchmen coach Bob Bauer said. "We all thought the Russians would beat them, giving us a life, and it was a big disappointment to us when the Americans won."

Canada wound up with a 4-1 win-loss mark while Russia, tied by Sweden, was 3-2-1.

The consolation tournament for the three teams that didn't make the finals was won by Finland with three wins and a tie. Japan had two wins and a tie and the Canadian - coached Australians making their first Olympic hockey start, failed to win a game.

On another front, Russia beat Sweden Saturday on the pretext against Sweden's victory in the women's 15-kilometre ski race—the first after seeing movies that exonerated Irma Johansson of cheating with the Soviet's Radia Eroshina.

The 1960 Games opened amid criticism and closed with high praise.

The Squaw Valley facilities were criticized almost continually after the Games were awarded four years ago. There were predictions of dire failure.

It snowed when the Games opened Feb. 18 but from that day on the weather conditions were nearly ideal.

PRAISE VOICED

As the Games drew to a close there were congratulations from European sports officials and from Avery Brundage, American president of the International Olympic Committee. He said:

"The competition has been extremely keen, but without unfortunate incidents or complaints. The distribution of medals has been wide and honors have been well divided, as attested by the fact that 14 nations have received awards."

A crowd estimated at 26,000 for the final day brought the 11-day total to 260,900, still below the boxoffice total of 330,000.

Now the state plans to take over the facilities as a state park.

Juniors Meet Peterbourgh Here Tonight

Peterborough Leton-Canucks and Belleville Lambert-Rollins, undefeated coast-two in the OHA Eastern Junior "B" hockey league, meet tonight in action here tonight in an 8.30 fixture.

The Lambert-Rollins, undefeated in their last 11 games, would like nothing better than to hand the Canucks a defeat tonight. Despite the fact that the Belleville club has won 19 games and lost just seven this season none of the wins have been over Peterborough. The best the locals have done is a tie in their last outing in the Littlock City. Tonight is their chance to defeat the Petes before playoff time, but one thing is sure, they will have to step out of the penalty box to do it.

Playoffs are expected to get under way later this week. Belleville will meet Kingston in one half of the semi-finals while Trenton and Peterborough clash in the other.

But in the meantime don't forget tonight's tilt. It's an 8.30 game.

Not Funny, But It Helped Dutchies Win

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP) —Coach Bobby Bauer Sunday read a telegram to Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen in the dressing room before the Russian game to "make them mad," he said.

The telegram, with the signature of George Welsh, Kingston, Ont., alderman said:

"From the birthplace of hockey I am calling for one day of official mourning for your sorry showing. I will only ask that our flag be flown halfmast."

Another telegram, signed by Bill Mumlean of Ottawa, read: "Gentlemen you have let down Sweden knows, Let's show Russia."

"This one helped relieve the tensions," Bauer said. Canada defeated Russia 8-5.

The victorious Americans got some 300 telegrams from well-wishers following their 3-2 over Russia Saturday.

Most commended:

"The Christians showed the Communists."

Billy Christian, 21, of Warroad, Minn., netted two of the three U.S. goals in the victory over Russia while older brother Roger, 24, scored four goals in the American clincher against Czechoslovakia 9-4.

Minors Drop 3 Games to Kingston, Midgets Only Team to Win Round

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Belleville's minor hockey teams dropped a triple-header to their Kingston counterparts in the Kingston Community Memorial Centre on Saturday, but the midgets hung on to enough of their lead to split the two-goal victory on the round.

The Buzz Soo-coached midgets had to battle tooth and nail in Saturday's tilt and as it was they wound up on the short end of a 8-7 score. However, their 5-3 win here last Wednesday gave them a total-goals victory of 9-7. They will advance into the next round of the OMHA playdowns but no announcement has been made at this time as to when they will meet next.

Meanwhile Kingston juveniles downed the locals 5-1 Saturday and easily won the round 14-2 while Kingston bantams won 8-3 for a round score victory of 13-4.

JUVENILE

Kingston's powerful big juvenile squad had a real battle on their hands for the first two periods. They led 1-0 at the end of the second but led the series at this point 10-2. They scored four more in the third before Belleville could get on the board.

Don Patry triggered the only goal of the first two periods at 13.40 of the first.

Tom Carty made it 2-0 in the opening minute of the third period less than a minute later Fred Curran added another. Wayne Cutler scored Kingston's fourth at 8.45 while Ronnie Brown broke in alone for the 5-0 score at 12.42.

Belleville's lone goal, at 13.28, was a pretty three-way passing play by Pete Weston, Pug Kellar and Billy "The Kid" McGuire participating. McGuire completed the play at the goalmouth.

Once again the opposing goalies, Ron Dulmage of Belleville and Kingston's Dave Horst, turned in solid games between the pipes.

Penalties numbered only ten although it was a rugged, hard-hitting affair. Kingston had six penalties while the Belleville penalties were game misconducts to Don Patry for fighting and arguing with the officials at 17.42 of the final frame.

Belleville: Dulmage, G. Duggan, Sheridan, Dahl, Pointer, Dafoe, Harvey, Yorke, Gelabhouse, McGuire, Weston Keller Scott, Lewis, Shibbert.

Kingston: Horst, Myles, Jarvis, Harkness, Carty, O'Donnell, Tuttle, Long, Jodoin, Patry, Curran, Murphy, Brown, Curran, Freeman.

Referees — "Whitey" Walton and Ted Hurst.

First Period

Kingston Patry (Jodoin) .. 13.40

Penalties: Tilley, Myles.

Second Period

Kingston Brown 12.42

Belleville McGuire Weston, Keller) 13.28

Penalties: Tilley, Carty, Lewis minor, game misconducti, Dahl game misconducti.

MIDGET

By far the best game of the day right from the drop of the puck the midget contest saw Kingston score its only goal of the first period, take a 2-1 lead in the second and add three goals in the third. They never let get any closer than two goals to the fighting Quinte crew on the round but did make it plenty hot, playing several good chances until the final whistle.

Kingston's opening goal came at 3.45 of the first when Earle Sproule, Kingston tiq it for a sizzler. Rowland tiq it for Belleville early in the second while Kingston was shorthanded. Aylesworth scored at 9.00 to put Kingston in front again. Belleville had an extra man but when Bob Joyce slipped near his blueline at 13.40 Dowdell took the disc and roared in to make it 3-1 for the home club. Kingston countered twice in seconds to Kiser and Richards at 19.23 and just after they returned in the third Richards lifted a rebound over Kingston goalie Ron Mercer, Earle scored Kingston's two-goal lead at 4.37 with a backhander, Turner got that Mercer, Earle scored Kingston, at 6.39 and Vince Dowdell got the game scoring at 11.06 for the final 5-3 score.

Both goalies, Brian McBride of Belleville and Kingston's Mercer turned in strong performances.

Among the tilt's 13 penalties was one misconduct and match penalty to Gary LaValle, a Kingston hothead. He became involved in mixup with a Belleville player at 9.04 of the second to start it. He threw his opponents' stick over the boards, drew a minor and misconduct, fired his glove into referee Ted Hurst's face and drew a match penalty as meant a suspension.

Three Belleville goals were unassisted, scored by Ted Rowland, Jerry Jones and Rod Kingston, while Kingston's Mercer was on with a goal and two assists.

BELLEVILLE — McBride, Boyle, Rowland, Turner, Kiser, Joyce, Ridley, Richards, Mule, Jeffery, Adams, Fisher, Hanlow, Jones, Goodfellow.

KINGSTON — Mercer, Davis, Smith, LaVelle, Aylesworth, Martin, White, Reid, Evans, Cathcart, Earle, Dowdell, Vince, Instant.

The Other Day

We were asked to name the best all-round form of transportation we've ever seen or used. We didn't have to think long and it's a good thing we weren't because it turned out to be the Belleville Intermediate

Ken Pinder who had been asked when the first motor vehicle was used would have guessed it was too many years ago and then again you would have been wrong.

Primitive vehicles operated by human muscle, animal muscle or water wheels were used as early as the 3rd century B.C. Some of the palaces of Roman emperors had elevators.

The modern power operated elevator, however, is largely a product of the 19th century, when steam power was applied to their use. The powered elevator enabled a revolution in height of buildings, which in all previous history had to be confined to reasonable heights.

The first inventor of an elevator could not have foreseen the skyscrapers that would come into being because of his elevator, but that's the way of invention. It's taking place all around us all the time, but without our sensing it.

For our part, we want to furnish you with the latest product of evolution in the transportation field, and make sure to keep it the safest transportation you can own.

American Named Top Goalie Of Olympics

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (CP) —John McCartan of the United States Olympic hockey champions today was named the outstanding goalie of the six-country round-robin tournament by the International Ice Hockey Federation.

McCartan, a 24-year-old corporal in the U.S. Army, allowed only 11 goals in five games.

Nikolai (Golly) Sologubov of Russia, who had seven assists, was named the outstanding defenseman. Sologubov, a 30-year-old veteran considered good enough to make the National Hockey League, was similar honors in the 1956 Olympics.

Nils Nilsson of Sweden was picked as the outstanding forward. He scored five goals and assisted on four others.

Hot 'Soup' Wins Writers Annual Spiel

KINGSTON (CP) — George Campbell of the Oshawa Times skipped the winning rink the Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association annual bonspiel Sunday.

He defeated a rink skipped by Neil MacCarl of the Toronto Star 7-5 with his last rock in the last end. Other members of the winning rink were Fred Lindsay of the Oshawa Times and Don Soulier and Doug Jackson of the Kingston Whig-Standard.

Scarboro Takes Peewee Crown

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec's eight - day international peewee hockey tournament ended Saturday with an entry from Scarborough, Ont., in possession of most of the honors.

The tournament, first of its kind in Quebec City and held in conjunction with the winter carnival, proved a huge success. A repeat next year is almost a certainty.

Big crowds, including 6,500 for Saturday's final program, watched the games throughout the week.

Scarborough won all its five games by handsome margins, scoring 36 goals and allowing only one.

The team's big games were Saturday when it blanked Rimouski, Que., and Montmorency, Que., by identical 6-0 scores to win the grand tournament championship and the Quebec City Cup.

Other teams also gave good account of themselves, including Peterborough, an early favorite before being eliminated by Scarborough.

BIG PARADE

Thousands of people jammed city streets for dancing and an hour-and-a-half parade Saturday at the carnival—an 18-day whirl of dances, sports, social and artistic events ends Tuesday at midnight.

A crowd estimated between 25,000 and 30,000 watched the four-mile parade.

Sunday, 10,000 people watched the annual canoe race across the St. Lawrence River from the Quebec side to Levis and back in cool, crisp weather.

Aussies Break Five Records

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—John Konrads and Dawn Fraser led the Australian Olympic swimming swimmers shattered five more world records Saturday night in the climax of the national championships.

In the eight days of the meet, which also served as Olympic trials, 12 world marks were bettered—five by Konrads, five by Miss Fraser and two by butterfly specialist Kevin Berry.

Saturday night Konrads, 17-year-old Australian immigrant, lifted 17.7 seconds off his records in the 1,650-yard and 1,500-metre free style with 17 minutes, 11 seconds.

Miss Fraser, 22, Olympic 100-metre champion, did the 220 yards and 200 metres in two minutes, 15.6 seconds, which is 2.1 seconds below her previous world's best for the distances.

Haynes sped the 110-yard men's butterfly in 63 seconds, two-tenths of a second better than the listed mark held by Tim Jecks, Bethesda, Md. Last week Haynes held the mark for the 220-yard butterfly with 2:17.9.

'SPORT IN BRIEF

NORTH AMERICAN CHAMP

BOSTON (AP) — Veteran Ken Chantler of Montreal defeated Tom Pugh of England 15-10, 15-7, 7-15, 15-2 Sunday for the title in the North American racquets open championships. Chantler, 40, is a pro at the Montreal racquet club.

ESES SIGN END

EDMONTON (CP)—End Presley Lavern Blahke, who played with Mississippi State in 1958, has been signed by Edmonton Eskimos for the 1960 WIFU season.

TIES U.S. CLUB

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—The University of British Columbia rugby team centre Neal Henderson's eight points, came back in the second half Saturday to gain an 8-8 tie with California in the second match of the World Cup rugby series. The final two games are in Vancouver next month.

QUEBEC RINK WINS

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que. (CP) — J. D. Montgomery's Mount Royal rink won the McCrea Trophy here Sunday for the second successive year, defeating Carl Ott's Outremont team 9-7 in a close final match in the 24th annual bonspiel. Thirty-two rinks from Ontario and Quebec entered.

Amerks Regain Second Place

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rochester Americans broke out of their scoring drought just in time to capitalize on Buffalo Bisons' losing streak and regain second place in the American Hockey League.

After scoring only one goal in three games, including a 6-0 whipping from the league-leading Springfield Indians Saturday, the Americans came through with a 4-3 decision over Providence Reds Sunday night.

The Indians strengthened their hold on first place as they turned back Quebec Aces 3-0 Sunday, and Barons Sunday, gave Rochester second place by one point over the Bisons—67 to 66. Cleveland, which also beat Providence 3-1 Saturday, took over fourth spot at 63 points' as Providence dropped to fifth.

The Indians strengthened their hold on first place as they turned back Quebec Aces 3-0 Sunday, and Marcel Pailie shutouts on two successive nights. Bill Sweeney and Jim Anderson provided the goals.

'Bally Ache' Wins Over Toronto Horse

NEW YORK (CP) — Edgehill Farm's Bally Ache defeated Toronto-owned Victoria Park by 3¾ lengths in the $142,000 Fountain of Youth Stakes at Miami's Hialeah Track Saturday.

Bally Ache ran the 1⅛-mile in 1:48, just one second off the record set by Native Dancer, TV the favorite owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto, was second.

Victoria Park became the favorite a week previously by setting a new track record for the 1 1-16 mile in 1:40 3-5. Bally Ache was second in that race.

GAILLARDIA WAY

Victoria Park, under jockey Eric Guerin, made a gallant try through the long stretch run but couldn't catch Bally Ache which almost equalled the record set by Hail Victor in 1857.

Bally Ache paid $7.80, $3.30 and $2.90. Victoria Park returned $3.10 and $3. Keenation, an outsider, was $21. A crowd of 36,300 saw the race, third largest crowd in track history.

Guerin said Victoria Park had no trouble but just couldn't catch the leader.

"Some others didn't stay with him (Bally Ache) long enough," Guerin said. "They were all at the half-mile pole and when Bally Ache got that big lead, I knew I couldn't catch up."

Arcadia, Calif., Linwold, (Mo.) a slightly-crippled colt, his four-year-old, scored a stunning upset Saturday and won the $145,000 Santa Anita Handicap closing with a rush to beat a field of 11 first class stars.

Jockey Don Pierce rode Linwold which won in an stretch drive and edged Maschal, Amerigo third.

The New Orleans Tudor Era stayed in front all the way to win the $58,900 New Orleans Handicap.

Palmer Wins Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Arnold Palmer fought cold, wind and rain and a great closing spurt by Doug Ford to win the $20,000 Texas Open Sunday.

He limped in with a three-over-par 75 for a 276 total for 72 holes. Ford shot a thunderous-par 67, lowest round of this stormy day and finished with 278 and a tie for second with Frank Stranahan.

Bill Kendall, Wimberley amateur now playing out of Reading Mass., shot rounds of 72, 73, 72, 75 for a 292 total.

Moss Takes Grand Prix

HAVANA (AP)—Stirling Moss of England hitting more than 100 miles an hour on straightaways in his new experimental Maserati, won the 135-mile Grand Prix sports car race Sunday.

The 30-year-old daredevil shot into the lead from his pole position and led all the way in his powerful 2.5-litre car.

Maserati driver of Venezuela was killed Saturday when his Maserati failed to take the first crucial hairpin curve and exploded as it plunged off the track. Chimenti was thrown clear of the car.

Moss finished more than a minute ahead of Mexico's Pedro Rodriguez in a 3-litre Ferrari.

World champion Jack Brabham of Australia crashed out on the 18th lap when his Cooper-Monaco developed ignition trouble. Less than half the 37-car starting field finished the race.

The winner completed the 50 laps in 1:57:31.5, averaging almost 80 miles an hour.

Lecture for Higher Teachers' Salaries Had Little Appeal

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Poet-playwright Archibald MacLeish and the National Broadcasting Company presented a lengthy television lecture Sunday night on the need for higher teachers salaries.

Nobody is to blame for the sentiments expressed in The Secret of Freedom. They were fine and lofty. But they were just a series of long speeches thinly disguised as a drama.

The plot—it was no more than a shadow—was that the townsfolk voted down a bill to increase teachers salaries. This so upset one young couple (Tony Randall and Kim Hunter) that the husband walked all over town to find out why the bill had failed to pass. At each stop, somebody climbed on a figurative soap box. The intentions were good but it was extremely dull dramatic fare.

The Olympics wound up Sunday with the dramatic 50-metre ski jumps. The events have been handled by CBS-TV and CBS TV did a good job of bringing them to us, both live and on tape.

Person to Person, whose fate seemed in doubt in the balloting in taping some shows in Rome: film star Silvana Mangano in one of the personalities, Gene Kelly is producing a series, An American in Paris is the French version, Hail Van Johnson as ski star. Ronald Colman renewed The Dennis O'Keefe Show for the rest of the season, Twilight Zone also has been renewed, Boris Karloff has been signed as host for next season's NBC "thriller" series; Julie Cassavetz, star of the soon-to-be-axed Johnny Staccato TV series, will star in the first show, Doubles in Death.

Hull-Ottawa Trims Wolves; Kingston Loses

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The weekend in the Eastern Professional Hockey League proved once again that the power play as strong as the sometimes mighty.

Lowly Hull-Ottawa Canadiens took league - leading Sudbury Wolves 4-1 in Hull; Trois-Rivieres Lions, playing on their own ice, defeated Quebec Aces (Canadiens) 6-2; and Montreal Royals ended Cleveland Barons' Thunderbirds' seven-game undefeated streak by defeating them 2-1 in Montreal.

But the fourth weekend game, played Saturday night in Kingston, was the exception when Shawinigan defeated Frontenacs 5-3.

Sudbury's win in Kingston was the first on the road in 10 outings, even though Wolves for the last six weeks have been on fewer than four points ahead of their closest pursuer.

HOMES WIN

Ironically, it was the Frontenacs who held the EPHL record of games without a win on the road—they had 12—before Wolves took over.

As far as Kingston was concerned, Wolves chose unfortunate moment to end their streak. Frontenacs are in the playoff cellar and have only 10 games left in which to make one of the four playoff spots.

Sault Ste. Marie's lone dropped it from third place into a fourth-place tie with Hull-Ottawa.

Lions are third with 59 points, one ahead of Canadiens and Thunderbirds.

Sudbury has a comfortable 66 points and Montreal has 61.

The outcomes of all four weekend games with victory decided before the third period.

YMCA TARGET

WINNIPEG (CP) — In 1911 the citizens of Winnipeg raised $254,000 in 10½ days to build a new YMCA building. This year, 49 days have been set aside to raise $2,000,000 to develop the YMCA's of Greater Winnipeg, from Feb. 15 to March 5. There's more to the more than 11,000 members compared, with 82 when the YMCA started here in 1888.

Marlies Clinch First Place In Junior 'A'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Marlboros clinched first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series during the weekend as five games Saturday and Sunday decided all but fifth and sixth place with one regular game left.

Toronto Marlboros, although losing 11-8 to St. Catharines Teepees in St. Catharines Saturday night, were assured of first place when Barrie Flyers, their only possible challengers, were defeated 3-2 by St. Michael's in Barrie the same night.

Marlies and Barrie 6-0 and Guelph Biltmores nipped St. Michael's College Majors 6-5 in Toronto games Sunday.

The Guelph win gave them fifth-place with 46 points, one more than sixth-place Peterborough Petes who lost 5-1 to last-place Hamilton Tiger Cubs in Hamilton Saturday.

DECIDES STANDINGS

Marlboros play Peterborough tonight and Toronto win would leave the standings unchanged while a Peterborough win would move Petes into fifth place over Majors.

Marlboros will meet fourth-place St. Catharines in the semi-final. St. Catharines will have to wait till fifth and sixth place are decided before they find out who they play. The Flyers and Teepees opened even with 34 points each but Flyers get second place with a better goals for and - against average. The second-place team plays the fifth-place finisher and the third-place team meets the sixth-place team.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Seattle Totems moved into second place in the Western Hockey League with two weekend victories but required a last-minute rally to edge Winnipeg Warriors 7-6 Sunday night.

In Spokane Saturday, Totems won 6-2 over the last-place Comets. Winnipeg fell into third place by dumped 4-2 by Calgary Stampeders. Victoria Cougars moved into a third-place tie with Edmonton by whipping Vancouver Canucks 8-4 Saturday night.

Totems were trailing 3-2 going into the third period against Warriors. Gordie Redahl, Ray Brunel and Barrie Ross tied scored for Winnipeg and Alan Powers and Marc Boileau, for Seattle.

Ray Brinson and Steve Wiliuk put Winnipeg farther in front but Frank Arnett, Don Chiupka and Rudy Filion tied the score 5-5 with 10 minutes remaining.

The Quinte Reports

News of Your Local Sea Cadet Corps

(A Member of the Belleville United Appeal)

ASST AREA OFFICER VISITS

The "Quinte" was visited by new Assistant Area Officer, Commissioned Ordinance Officer R. E. Bracken, RCN, on their Thursday parade at the Sea Cadet barracks. The Sea Cadets were complimented on their smart appearance and on being well turned out.

"The Cadets appear quite keen and enthusiastic", Com. Off. Bracken remarked to the officers of the corps in his remarks at an officers' meeting held after the evening's program.

He gave a number of pointers on how the administration and records of the corps could be improved in order to better the corps' standing amongst other Sea Cadet Corps in Ontario. It was also suggested there were some repairs and building required in the very near future.

The meeting with the new Assistant Area Officer proved very instructive to the Corps officers and a number of changes in the corps' routine will be implemented in the immediate future, the new divisional system which was implemented last year, commended by Com. Off. Bracken, who added that he felt it added a lot to the smartness of the corps.

COURSE FOR OFFICERS AT KINGSTON

The officers of the "Quinte" will be attending a divisional officers' course at HMCS "Cataraqui" in Kingston in the very near future. This arrangement, made through the co-operation of Lt.-Com. Caeseman, the commanding officer of "Cataraqui" has been approved by the Office in Toronto and the Navy League.

The course will last from six to eight weeks and tentative plans are being made to have the entire corps visit "Cataraqui" at the conclusion of the officers' course. This will offer the opportunity of every Sea Cadet to visit the new quarters of HMCS "Cataraqui" which were just recently completed.

FIRST AID COURSE?

The possibility of the Sea Cadets being given a St. John Ambulance Corps' first aid course in order to qualify for their badge is currently under investigation. It is hoped that this course might be conducted over the next two months in order to qualify cadets before their annual inspection.

HOWE DIVISION LEADS

During the past week Howe Division took the lead in points earned towards the "Best Division Award" which is to be made each month. Beatty Division is not too many points behind, however, and a close competition is expected before the first award is made.

The trophy has now been obtained for the inter-corps hockey series. There will be several more games played before it is awarded. Currently the "Quinte" is two games up on the Sea Cadets of the RCSCC "Trent".

NEW ENTRIES MAY APPLY

Applications are now being taken for the next "new entry" course, Boys who wish to join the Sea Cadets are invited to attend one of the Tuesday or Thursday night parades and give their names to any of the officers present. Tuesday parades are held in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Armouries at Bridge and Pinnacle Streets and Thursday night parades are held at the Sea Cadet barracks on South Front St., opposite the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club. Parades commence at 7.15 p.m.

EDEN'S DEFENCE

must be that Eden's basic motives were honest and that his miscalculations at the very end . . . it is hard to know how much the health played its part) his career in foreign relations has to be seen as a whole."

DOUBTS IMPROVES CASE

Sir William Hayter, British ambassador in Moscow at the time of Suez, writes in The Observer that he doubts whether Eden's book will be widely read. "It will have improved the case for Suez. Summing up Sir William compares Sir Anthony with Shakespeare's Hamlet, "a man of great practical ability, courage and considerable honourable intentions, who finally destroyed himself and much else besides by his failure to assess correctly the situation that confronted him."

Robert Murphy, former U.S. deputy undersecretary of state, took issue with Eden's complaint that the United States let down the British government during Suez.

Murphy commented "as a private citizen" in a London Sunday Times article on the former British prime minister's memoirs.

SEEKS TO RATIONALIZE

Murphy suggested in his review of the book that the memoirs are an attempt to rationalize Eden's action throughout the four-month crisis which ended in Anglo-French failure following their attack on Suez.

Eden contends that the course of the Anglo-French dispute "with Egypt "was decided by the American attitude to it." He complains that the U.S. failed to act "in the spirit of an ally" in refusing to support Britain's use of force.

Murphy retorted that the Anglo-French invasion of Egypt "was undertaken without consultation which an ally might have had the right to expect."

OTHER REVIEWS

The Sunday Times, which serialized the memoirs before their publication in book form, carried three other reviews of the book apart from Murphy's—by British Labor Leader Hugh Gaitskell, Australian Prime Minister Robert Menzies and the Marquess of Salisbury, former Conservative leader of the House of Lords.

Gaitskell described his memoirs as "an unabashed, subjective, personal apologia" which is "exceptionally misleading."

Gaitskell referred to several Labor party warnings against the use of force which Eden omits from his memoirs.

FIRM SUPPORTER

Menzies declared himself as "an unrepentant supporter of Anthony Eden" and said he found the memoirs "vigorous."

Salisbury also supported Eden's line and said that some current Middle Eastern problems might not exist now "had a firm grip of the situation been taken by the United States and Britain at Helsinki and France, over Suez in 1956."

Commentators in other Sunday newspapers divided roughly on political lines, right-wing newspapers backing Eden and the rest opposing him.

Sub-Miniature Cars Butt Of Jokes From Salesman Down to Guy on the Street

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

KANSAS CITY (AP)—It takes a big man to own one of those really small foreign cars.

Much has been written about the new compacts, the sports cars and the small imports. But sub - miniatures have been neglected — possibly because automotive writers consider them too small to be talked about.

Buyers are lured in a variety of ways. One is the gas mileage. The car you've been driving gets 13 miles to the gallon, with luck.

"This one," says the salesman, "we'll take back if you don't get 50."

When you apply for your loan, you laugh with the banker as he says, "Why don't you carry it in here and let me take a look at it?" You don't know that you'll hear that one 36 times in the next five days.

KEEP SMILING

The buyer's sense of humor has to be there from the start, just like cash or a good credit rating. He has to keep smiling at these sallies (number of times heard in parenthesis):

"Where do you wind it up?" (63). (There also is a popular variation: "What if the rubber band breaks?")

"If I breathe down you can just put it in your pocket and carry it home." (37 — but there are a couple hundred variations).

"Do you lift it into the kitchen sink to wash it?" (24. Tried that one but the wife wouldn't let me)

"What'll it be when it grows up?" (21).

And so on.

COMES THE TROUBLE

One day you're tooling along and the motor stops.

You're lucky — you find the wire has fallen off the lone spark plug. You push it back on, but it won't stay.

Seems a little spring inside has sprung. You look for an auto parts store. "We don't stock anything like that, mister."

You leave the car and take a bus.

Next day you hunt down the dealer. He's not in business anymore.

You stick the outside of the spark plug cap onto the motor with chewing gum. It works for a while, then falls off. In desperation you hold your head between the seat — against the cap—until you get home.

Then the research starts—following all the false leads about "mechanics that used to work on them."

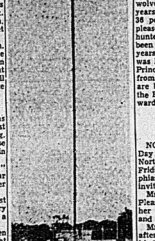
So you end up buying a whole new spark plug arrangement for a North American car.

The woes increase as the trouble increases. You spend days at a time hunting down parts. After awhile your car has more North American parts on it than foreign.

This is good, because that way they're easier to replace.

But the next time somebody comes to you with the sign he saw on the little car, "If lost please drop in nearest mailbox, owner will pay postage" you mutter to yourself:

"It wouldn't be worth it to me."



SURVEYING AID — The telurgometer, used by surveyors to measure distance electronically for map making, has been fitted with a 40-foot collapsible aerial for use in heavily-wooded areas. The aerial enables surveyors to send and receive radio waves over the tops of bushes and trees. Distances are determined by measuring the time it takes radio waves to travel between a master station and remote unit, both using aerial telluorometers. (CP Photo).

PICTON

Brush Wolf Killed in Athol Township

PICTON—Though tracks have been noted for some time, hunters during the winter failed to catch up with several wolves believed to be inhabiting Prince Edward County. However, persistence paid off for Arthur Johnston, Athol township who, in company with Lawrence Hinesman and Rodney Pounder, spent a whole day trailing one of the animals through deep snow in that township. Johnston was the lucky marksman, and it was a first for him in twelve years' hunting. Hinesman has several wolves to his credit in previous years. The brush wolf weighed 38 pounds. Sheep owners were pleased at the success of the hunters, though no sheep have been attacked this year. In other years, loss from wolves or dogs was heavy. The wolves when in Prince Edward are some 40 miles from their natural habitat and are inclined to cross the ice of the Bay of Quinte to Prince Edward from Hastings County.

Northport

NORTHPORT — The World Day of Prayer will be held in Northport United Church on Friday, March 4th, for the Sophiasburg charge. Everyone is invited to attend.

Mrs. Merton Christie, Mount Pleasant, spent Wednesday with her daughter, Mrs. B. Rabbie and Mark.

Mrs. W. Belnap spent Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Frank Rabbie, Picton.

Mr. and Mrs. George Beatty spent Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. B. Rabbie and Mr. Ed Rabbie.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Foster were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Pearsall, Bethesda.

The Northport W.A. held a pot-luck dinner at noon and a quilting, at the home of Mrs. phony.

PICTON

Ivanhoe

IVANHOE — The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian W. M. S. and L. A. met at the home of Mrs. Morley Haggerty, on the evening of February 17th.

The president, Mrs. William Donnan, presided and read a poem, "The Family of God." The Scripture which included Acts 2: 36-39 and Luke 23: 30-36 was read by Miss Margaret Wright, followed by prayer led by Mrs. William Donnan. The key word "Prayer" was given by B. M. Fleming.

A short business session followed.

The first chapter of the new Study Book, "The Way In Africa," was introduced by Mrs. Kenneth Rooney, assisted by Mrs. Harold Thompson. A solo, "There is Peace In The Valley" was given by Mrs. Irvine Badgley of Foxboro. Readings were given by the following: "An Answer To Prayer," Mrs. Harold Thompson; "God's Love for Sinning Men," Mrs. John Wallace; "Ponderings of a Preacher's Wife," Mrs. Harry Haggerty. The meeting closed by the singing of "Lead Us Father," and prayer.

Kingsley, on Thursday.

A pot-luck supper and conregational meeting will be held next Monday, February 29th, at the church, Northport.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Aman on the birth of their daughter in Belleville General Hospital, a sister for Peter.

Mr. Elmer Kerr of Guelph was a visitor during the early part of the week, of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith.

Mr. Jack Nagle is doing some carpenter work for Mr. Eric Foster, Solmesville.

PICTON

Police Officer Injured in Three-Car Crash

PICTON — Several accidents with the snowstorm of Thursday and Friday as contributing factors are reported by town and provincial police.

A member of the Picton Police Force, Constable Allen Marvin, 24, suffered two broken ribs on the left side and an injured left knee when his car was in collision with one driven by Raymond Brown, 53, of the village of Wellington. Also involved in the collision was a car driven by Donald Greenshade, 29, of Ridge Road RR 2, Aurora. It is alleged that Brown was driving on the wrong side of Main street west at the time and he was lodged in the county jail. Damage to the three cars amounted to about $900.

Mrs. Clarence Cowan of R.R. 2 Milford, suffered a gash on the head which required seventeen stitches to close, when the car driven by her husband was in collision with a half-ton truck driven by Gerard Murdoff, Brighton, on the Greenbush Road, four miles north of Picton, Saturday morning. Blowing snow obscured the vision of the drivers, the OPP was told. Damage to the Cowan car was $500, and to the Murdoff truck, $350.

A car driven by Don Trumpour, Picton, collided with the rear end of one owned by W. J. Ayton, Picton on Lake street, Picton, after the Ayton car had stopped and the driver gone for help. Total damage to cars was $290.

A car driven by Gerald Mitchell, Main street, Picton, suffered $300. damage to side and top when it rolled over on highway 14, in Green Point area, Saturday evening.

PICTON

Johnstown

JOHNSTOWN — The GIT girls of Johnstown church held a meeting at the leader's home, Mrs. Douglas Harry, on Tuesday evening.

The opening of the service with the "Purpose," was in charge of Beverley Clapp.

Miss Beverley Clapp read the Lord's Prayer in French and then all recited it in English.

Bible study was in charge of Rosemary Rose.

The next meeting will be a skating party at Glen Miller. A letter from a missionary in Formosa was read to the children by Mrs. Harry.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cruickshank, of Trenton, had supper and spent the evening with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Farrar on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jeffery from the 4th of Sidney, spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Harry.

Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Hardor were callers on Mr. and Mrs. Everett Harry on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. David Sanson of Trenton, spent Wednesday evening with their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gare and children.

Mr. Bernard Hollinger of Foxboro, visited his daughter, Mrs. Everett Harry and husband on Monday afternoon.

Rossmore

ROSSMORE — Mr. and Mrs. Frank Belnap entertained members of the Euchre Club at their home Wednesday evening. Six tables were at play. Prizes were awarded according to score and a social time enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Rupert and Patsy, who are moving out community, were honored by a presentation from the Euchre Club and from their close neighbors and friends. Mrs. A. Alyea read a suitable address while Mrs. Ross made the presentation. Mrs. Rupert expressed her gratitude and extended an invitation to visit them in their new home. A sumptuous lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

"Actually I was the one who advertised for a baby-sitter."

Many thanks to the Rossmore friends who made the March of Dimes a success to the extent of $91.20. Mrs. Florence Pyllil, canvasser for the March of Dimes, reports that the mothers collected a total of $238.17. The communities which contributed were: Redneersville, Rossmore, Centre, Massassaga and Victoria.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Halre (nee Mona Empey) on the arrival of their baby daughter, Tracy Lynne, a sister for Perry.

HERB ELLIOTT A FATHER

MELBOURNE (AP)—Anne Elliott, wife of champion miler Herb Elliott, gave birth to an eight-pound 16-ounce boy Sunday their first child. The hospital announced that the baby is "quite well" and his famous father "very excited."

Your family can't get across on part of a bridge

The average man has a wife and two children to support. And not a lot of income left over at the end of the month. Should he die, what would happen to his family? What income would they have?

What part of your present income would your family get? What part would your present insurance and other assets provide them? Could they make out?

They cannot live on half a meal, drive a piece of a car, pay part of the utility bills. They cannot buy half a pair of trousers, make do with one shoe.

In short, they cannot cross the years on part of a bridge. What income would your family need? What would they get? What can you do about it? Ask an expert—your Metropolitan Man.

He can help you analyze your situation and will chart a program tailor-made for your family's special individual protection . . . and the cost may be considerably less than you expect.

Your Metropolitan Man works today with the widest selection of policies in Metropolitan's history, with the newest and most flexible provisions and benefits. There never was a better time. Call him now.
